PROVINCIAL THEATRICALS

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENTS.)

ABERDEEN.—HIS MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Proprietors, Robert Arthur Theatres Co., Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. H. Adair Nelson.—Cinderella finishes her merry reign at His Majesty's this week, and local playgoers part with the dainty show regretfully.

PALACE THEATRE.—Lessees, United County Theatres, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Percy H. Gallagher.—Vasco, the mad musician, contributes the star turn this week, and his marvellous manipulation of multitudinous instruments arouses the enthusiasm and wonderment of the audience; Mdlle. Alexandra and Mons. Bertie give a very clever and daring gymnastic display on the trapeze; Lottie Bellman and Bay Russell are well received in an American vaudeville act; and the Misses Kirk and Saraski are seen in an interesting aquatic display. Others on the programme are Miss Elsie Ellis (comedienne), Charles Woodward (comedian), Gertrude Moore (dancer), and Dainty Dolly Clyfe (child comedienne).

ACCRINGTON.—PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. B. Ormerod; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. E. Barnes.—Mr. and Mrs. Charles Draycott's company are occupying the boards here this week with the new play, Her Path of Sorrow. A full account will be found in another column.

NEW HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, The Accrington Hippodrome Co.; Resident-Manager, Mr Walter Mould.—The Great Olympian team of cyclists, in their speciality "Football on Wheels," top the bill here, and are favourably received; Gus Harris, in his latest scena, "Palestine," is proving extremely popular; Abel and Welch are two old favourites who are repeatedly recalled; Kendrick and Laura submit a capital dancing turn; Carlos Menard is responsible for a refined musical act; Bessie Lind is a most charming comedienne; Damerell and Rutland are good comedians; the Vays, in their pathetic scena, "Life in the Slums," are applauded; and the Bioscope pictures conclude.

ALDERSHOT.—ROYAL AND HIPPODROME.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Clarence Sounes; Resident-Manager, Mr. Jack Gladwin.—Curtis Leo and his educated bantam, assisted by Little Noblesse, top the bill, and appear with success; the Three Orros, in their original acrobatic act on the silver chains, are well received; Bert Powell, a military illusionist, gives a performance worthy of mention; Edith Chantler is a juvenile vocalist who wins applause; Les Frascettis, violin and harp soloists, are clever; Hope Trevelyan sings with ability, as does also Millie Howell; and several capital pictures are shown on the Bioscope.

ASHINGTON.—MINERS' THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Fred Gould.—The pantomime season commenced here on Monday night, when Mr. Gus Levaine's company, in The Babes in the Wood, opened to a large house. Miss Marion Collins, an old favourite, makes a capital principal boy, her singing being highly appreciated; as Maid Marion Miss Lizzie Levaine makes a winsome principal girl; Miss Edie Levaine as Allan A'Dale is particularly smart and charming; as Phillis Miss Vera Levaine does creditably; Miss Fanny Collins is a capital Will Scarlet; Miss Nellie Harvey as Roy and Miss Violet Harvey as Dorothy undertake the rôles of the Babes very sweetly; Miss Ida Conway makes an ideal Fairy; Mr. Victor Silvernie as Demon Darkness is well suited; Mr. Arthur Collins is very good as the Baron; Mr. Bert Leona as Dame Durden and Mr. Will Freda as Chirrup, the page, both do good work; Mr. Charlie Towers as Snatcher and Mr. Jimmy Goode as Sneaker, the ruffians, cause much merriment; and Mr. Fred Folloy and Mr. Bert Elmore as the Robbers take their parts as if to the manner born.

ASHTON-UNDER-LYNE.—EMPIRE HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Resident-Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Leech; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Jesse Bursiem.—For Christmas week the Empire numbers in its list of artists the Six Brothers Luck, who appear in a comic pantomime sketch entitled Lift-Ems, Limited. It is most diverting as a laughter-providing medium. Leslie Race is a popular vocal comedian; the Three Drabbles are clever juveniles who have made a reputation in a refined musical speciality; Lieut. Chard's Dog Circus is very good; the Derrington Family are expert wonders on wheels; Scholey and Scholey (George and Tom) are decidedly clever in their new sketch, Winning a Wager. The star artist is Harriett Vernon, who introduces her latest London successes, including the scena "Emblems; or, Why Britannia Rules the Sea," with great effect. The scenic dressing is very fine. The Bioscope shows Sirens of the Hypso.

AYR.—NEW GAIETY.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. H. W. Day.—Messrs. Dudley Bennett and T. C. Wray's company this week presented Miss Hook of Holland to Ayr playgoers. Miss Kathleen Starling played the part of Miss Hook most daintily; Mina was cleverly played by Miss M. Carewe; Miss Hazel Alexander was Freda; Miss Phyllis Smith Clara; Miss Molly Trevor Gretchen; and Miss Ethel Stone the old market woman. Mr. Charles Sims filled the part of Mr. Hook successfully; and Messrs. Sam Lockridge, Alex. Johnstone, Charles Berkeley, and Mr. Reginald Hunter were all very good in their respective parts.

BARNSLEY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr. A. C. Mitchell.—For the holiday attraction Mr. J. W. Turner's opera company appeared in Maritana, Faust, Il Trovatore, Lily of Killarney, and Bohemian Girl. Mr. Turner appeared twice during the week, singing in quite his old style.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. Smithson.—Business has been great. Topping the bill is the Japanese Riogoku Family, who give an extraordinary performance; Tom Hayton's Six Manchester Lads are clever in a song and dancing scena; Ted Karno and company appear in a screaming comedy sketch; Lennard and Vereker are picture melody experts; Cyrus Dare is a mimic of ability; L. B. Athol is possessed of a very fine voice; the Cheers Performing Cats are clever; the Three Permans give a good gymnastic show; and the Palascope throws out some good pictures.

BARROW-IN-FURNESS.—ROYALTY THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Stone.—Messrs. Kimberly, Green, and Hinton's company is here with Was She to Blame. Miss Maude Hastings is a great success as Lillian Norman; Miss Cissie St. Elme demonstrates her powers in a striking degree as Mrs. Kate Roselle; Mr. George Keene is very fine in the part of George Courtenay; Mr. George Langdon in his portrayal of the villainous Frank Roselle is very clever; Mr. Henry Rutland plays the Vicar with becoming grace and dignity; and all the other parts are in capable hands.

HIS MAJESTY'S.—Lessees and Managers, Mr. and Mrs. Calvert-Routledge.—Mr. James Welsh's company in When Knights Were Bold is the holiday attraction. Mr. H. Langdon Bruce as Sir Guy proves himself a comedian of rare skill; Miss Brnita Lascelles is admirable as Lady Rowena; Mr. Gerald Venning does well as Sir Bryanz Ballymote; Mr. Charles Lloyd is most capable as the Jew financier; Miss Isla Glynne is very pleasing in the part of Sarah; and the remainder of the caste leave nothing to be desired.

TIVOLI.—Lessee, Signor Pipe; Acting-Manager, Mr. Henry Wood.—Dave Samuels, the premier turn, receives a great ovation; Baker and De Sales create much laughter with a comical sketch; the Two Burkes are expert and amusing gymnasts; Belasco renders some capital music; Vera Hind is a pleasing comedienne; Jack Rae is a skilful comedy gymnast; and Gaydon and Garth give a clever vocal scena.

NEW HIPPODROME.—Owners and Managers, Mr. and Mrs. Calvert-Routledge.—The chief attraction here is John Warren, the illusionist, who is ably assisted by Miss Mollie Wynter, Mr. Herbert Jackson, Mr. F. G. Fenn, Mr. Frank Morton, and Donald McDougall.

BATH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Egbert Lewis; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lewis A. Long.—Mr. George Edwardes, for a second season, is associated with Mr. Lewis in providing the Yuletide attraction, which commenced on Boxing Day, when two crowded houses assembled to greet The Dollar Princess on her southern tour. Mr. Edward Royce, the stage producer, has yet another triumph to his record. The fine company contains many well-established favourites, including Mr. W. H. Rawline and Mr. Leslie Holland, who as Mr. Bulger and Harry Conder in dissimilar ways are the cause of endless laughter by their capital impersonations; to Miss Norah Barry (whom Bathonians claim as their own "Merry Widow") must be accorded unstinted praise for her triumph as a vocalist and actress in the difficult rôle of Alice Conder, and no less a success was scored by Mr. Alec Worcester as Freddy Fairfax, another young artist who is bound to make a name for himself, possessing as he does a fine light baritone voice and an excellent stage presence; a prepossessing Olga is Miss Madeleine Seymour, who also sings with most pleasing results the numbers that fall to her share; good support is accorded to the more prominent characters by Mr. J. Cranston Neville as Dick, Mr. Sydney Lyndon as Earl of Quorn, who, with Miss Peggy Primrose, a dainty Daisy, sang and danced themselves into much favour; and Mr. Willie Warde, jun., made the most of his chances as Sir James the Footman, and in his dance with Miss Primrose gave one a reminder of his capabilities in this line. The chorus and largely-augmented orchestra, under the experienced direction of Mr. Ernest Vousden, are always doing good work, and added to the general excellence of this delightful play. Mr. J. Garrett Todd is the general-manager for the tour; and Mr. Lewis A. Long, the local manager, has had his hands full in finding room for the crowds that nightly pack the house.

PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Chas. Schuberth.—No more suitable selection than Corman's Juveniles, in their popular scena The Waif, could have been chosen as the leading attraction here; comic to a degree are the contributions of Dan Whitley; another comedian who makes much laughter is Dan Conroy, in his Irish songs and patter; the fine elocution and tragic intensity of Miss May Fairclough in several long speeches from well-known plays are duly appreciated; as a lady ventriloquist Florence Raymond is quite successful; the chorus songs of Rose D'Aulby, who is assisted by a juvenile seated in the circle, are loudly applauded; Wyze and Adna, in a vocal domestic squabble, are well received; and the pictures continue to give infinite pleasure.

BELFAST.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. A. Salmond.—Under the Iron Heel is presented by Mr. Wilson Howard and company. In the rôle of Rene De Maupassant Mr. Howard achieves a notable success; and Miss Carlotta Anson furnishes a decidedly clever interpretation of the curate's niece, Germaine Mirbeau. The iniquitous Otto Marx is powerfully depicted by Mr. W. J. Richards; and Mr. John Talford's impersonation of Father Mirbeau would be difficult to excel. Mr. Charles Digby is an admirable Major Schronberg; and Miss J. Douglas Hicks is all that could be desired as Maman Gouffe. Miss Jessie Yatman plays Andre with undoubted skill; and Mr. R. Merrings's impersonation of Col. Muller leaves nothing to be desired. Mr. Austin H. Longford is an excellent Sergt. Bleucher; and other rôles are adequately presented by Messrs. Fred M. Best, A. E. Rose, T. H. Winter, and W. H. Crookall.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred Willmott; Resident-Manager, Mr. Henry T. Downs.—The leading attraction for the holidays is supplied by Richard Cebhardt's troupe of Tyrolean singers and dancers, who achieved much success on Monday. Mr. Owen McGiveney furnishes some realistic impersonations of characters from Dickens; the feats of Leroux's monkeys are really remarkable; Bijou Russell is an exceedingly smart sand dancer; Mr. J. G. Graham and Zerlina Harrington produce with great eclat their powerful sketch A Life of Pleasure; the Coloured Meisters delight all with their harmony and songs; and Mr. Charlie Bignell, an old Belfast favourite, gains an immense reception for his comic songs. Also here are the Oakes Duo, the Falcons, and the Hipposcope.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LIMITED.—General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. C. Laidler.—Joe Peterman and company top the bill here with the farcical phantasy Slaterstein, Ltd.; Mr. Arthur Kenny's cycling feats are remarkable; Eadie and Ramsden gain great favour in Charley's Visit; the Brothers Corcoran give a capital musical act; Miss Lena Leslie is a dainty and fascinating comedienne; Mr. Bert Marsden's speciality takes well; and also in the bill are Miss Flo D'Orville, comedienne and dancer, and the Bioscope.

ULSTER HALL.—Proprietors, Belfast Corporation.—Mrs. Whale's Children's Opera Company is appearing here in H.M.S Pinafore, and the performance reflects much credit on the performers.

BILSTON.—NEW ROYAL AND HIPPODROME.—Licensee, Mr. A. L. Owen; Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery.—Seasonable fare is provided here. The Leonas submit an interesting electric musical act; Baby Parkinson is a clever child dancer; and others who contribute are Chirrup, the boy mimic and whistler; Capner and Steele, character duettists; and Harry Delmore, comedian.

BIRKENHEAD.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee, Mr. W. W. Kelly; Acting-Manager, Mr. Herbert M. King; Secretary, Miss Isabel Morris.—A clever and spirited performance of the musical comedy Miss Hook of Holland, by Mr. George Dance's company, forms admirable holiday fare here. Miss Gertrude Melville gives a finished rendering of the title-rôle and invests the part with great charm and acceptance, both vocally and histrionically; Mr. Edmond Russell acquits himself with irresistible humour as Mr. Hook; Mr. Wood Mansey is a capital Captain Adrian Paap; Lieut. de Coop is well represented by Mr. C. F. Hewlitt; and Mr. Arthur Ballance is well to the front as the Bandmaster; Simon Slinks is amusingly portrayed by Mr. Fred Dark; Mr. George Mudie, jun., scores as Ludwig Schnapps; and the important rôle of Mina is cleverly and artistically filled by Miss Cissie Sephton. The full chorus and augmented orchestra is under the direction of Mr. H. A. Dyer, and the staging of the comedy is all that can be desired. The present visit fully maintains its previous excellent reputation here.

ARGYLE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. D. J. Clarke; Acting-Manager, Mr. John Keating.—An excellent entertainment is supported by Miss Willette Whitaker, refined vocalist, who, assisted by Mr. T. Wilbur Hill, appears in an acceptable musical mélange with distinction; Harry A. Meynott and company, in an up-to-date comedy sketch, The Bride Elect; Mr. Harry Freeman, the popular comedian; Little Jack Marks, Hebrew comedian; Kelly and Agnes, a clever Australian duo; Pyck, Tholl, and Taylor, in The Dancing Master; Miss Daisy Harcourt, American comedienne; Tim O'Connor, the boy with the obedient feet; Godfrey James, the Welsh singing collier; Charles Hatch, chorus singer; and Brown's Royal Bioscope. The present is the anniversary week of this popular hall, which was opened on December 21, 1868, and has so far established an honourable record of forty-one years of uninterrupted success—remarkable in these degenerate days.

HIPPODROME.—Director of Entertainments, Mr. Will Sley; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Weston.—A. V. Mackinnon's Scottish Meisters Comedy Quartette, in the vocal extravaganza Ancestral Spirits, form an attractive item here. Virto, in his instrumental act with his daughter Venita, is a prominent success; Carl Reevo, the padlock expert, is an interesting feature; and other turns include Miss Radie Stuart, comedienne; Harry Angers, comedian; Tessan and Chapman, vocalist and harpist; Reid and Power, comedians; Harry Tomlin, comedian; Ondra, juggling gymnast; and the Hippodrome pictures.

BIRMINGHAM.—METROPOLE.—Proprietor, Mr. Andrew Melville; Manager, Mr. J. Hindle Taylor.—The continued popularity of The Worst Woman in London is evidenced by the crowded state of the houses here this week. Miss Rose Ralph appears in the title-rôle, and handles in masterly style the network of plots and schemes upon which the drama is based; Mr. Archie W. Chappell is a warm favourite as Jack Felton; and Mr. John B. Shinton portrays the heavy character with commendable skill. Miss Ada M. Ryder as Ruth Milford wins sympathy; and the humorous side is cleverly sustained, Mr. Andrew Emm being particularly good; Miss Susie Beaven makes a capital maidservant.

CARLTON THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. James Alexander.—Mr. Douglas Bruce's company is presenting The Girl Who Lost Her Character to appreciative audiences. Miss Doris Brook undertakes the title-rôle with a great meed of success; and Mr. Edward Grange gives a fine representation as the Rev. Robert Everton. Mr. Cecil Mannering is a dashing character as Jack England, and he has a charming partner in Miss Maggie Hobart. Miss Lydia Mannington and Mr. Richard Ferris make a clever pair of adventurers; and Mr. J. W. Stonelelgh is also good as James Sutton, the forger. Mr. George H. Asquin and Miss Mamie Thorpe are exceptionally good in low comedy.

EMPIRE.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. V. Matcham; Assistant-Manager, Mr. A. Williams.—Miss Lydia Yeamans is proving a big draw here, and is especially popular in her impersonations; Ted E. Box is a comedian who pleases with topical songs and whistling selections; and the Four Black Diamonds are singers and dancers of much ability. Rome and Romani present a high-class musical performance; and Hubert Harbent and May Gerald are clever comedy duologists. Fred Earle is as popular as ever; Clark and Glenny appear in a weird sketch; and Frank Maura, Phillips and Merrit, Edna Lyall, and Griffin and Ardel are other good turns.

GRAND.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. B. Foster; Assistant-Manager, Mr. H. Lucas.—Mlle. Liane D'Eve provides a dainty Parisian entertainment consisting of chansons and transformations, that is a leading feature of this week's programme; the Will o' the Wisps are a company of original and bright entertainers, who appear in new and tuneful songs and dances; the Great Roland is popular in a number of smart illusions, concluding with "The Bachelor's Dream; a cheerful comedian is Frank Fort; and the Osnatos, gymnasts, are in the front rank. Grace Merton, vocalist; Massons, eccentric juggler; Tiny Arnold, juvenile comedian; and Harry Cooke, comedian, complete a strong programme.

GAIETY.—General-Manager, Mr. Albert Bushell.—Hayman and Franklin interpret Hebrew humour in a style that pleases audiences immensely, and they cause continuous laughter; Satani is an illusionist who mystifies everyone with new tricks; the Six Franklins sing delightful chorus songs, and have a great reception; Les Andres are protean dancers of merit; Gladys Re Vell sings in a taking style; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Shelley are popular in a duologue, "When Master and Mrs. Are Out"; Carl Muller is a smart speciality dancer; and the Four Panamas are notable contributors with a pantomime act.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Tom Barrasford; Acting-Manager, Mr. F. D. Elbourne; Assistant-Manager, Mr. C. Baldry.—Barnold's dogs and monkey actors are a strong feature of this week's programme, and they delight all with their wonderful intelligence; Mephisto proves himself a master of magic in several smart illusions; the Krags trio contribute a good gymnastic performance; and pleasing vocal items are rendered by the Primrose Quartette. Dan Filmer is a popular comedian; Blake and Amber display great versatility in an acceptable turn; and Diana Hope and Co., in The Altar of Duty; Gwennie Morgan, comedienne and dancer; Will E. Stopit, comedian; and May Fayre are also well received.

ASTON HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Aston Hippodrome Ltd.; Manager, Mr. T. H. Middleton.—The Six Brothers Luck are an attraction par excellence in their new burlesque, H.M.S. Perhaps; Miss Emmie Ames, after singing good songs, distributes gifts from a Christmas tree, causing much amusement; a clever vocal and dancing turn is furnished by the Soho trio; Henri and Tyler are smart comedy trick cyclists; Alis and Cassetti provoke amusement; Harry Bancroft, actor vocalist, makes a great hit in a couple of good songs; Howe and Ardie are amusing acrobats; and Edith Coalville sings pleasingly.

CURZON HALL.—Crowded houses are enjoying the performances of the American and Continental Circus. There are a number of clever equestrian performers, including Miss Rosa Transfield, Miss Cora Stuart, H. Stephenson, T. Fossett, and the Bros. Scott, who go through daring performances; Captain Permane's troupe of bears are also notable; a smart wire act is furnished by Miss Trojer; and Aerian and Ostara are daring trapeze artists. A clever troupe of clowns is headed by Mr. Dan Gregory.

KING'S HALL.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. J. P. Moore and B. Kennedy.—A beautiful pantomime picture in colours, entitled The Talisman, is a strong feature in a splendid programme of animated subjects. The Adventures of Nick Carter, Detective, also arouse much interest, and other notable subjects are The Bandit's Daughter; In Love with a Picture Girl, and His Daughter's Choice. A revival of the old harlequinade provides an acceptable vaudeville turn, and good contributions are also forthcoming from Brown's Banjo Boys and Edie Vernie.

QUEEN'S HALL.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. B. Kennedy and J. P. Moore.—This hall reopened this week with a new series of animated pictures, and there is every indication that the entertainments will prove as popular as last year. A powerful dramatic subject, The Justifier, is one of the best of the bunch, and good variety turns are contributed by Lila Vesta, the Coolies, and Shillox.

BISHOP AUCKLAND.—EDEN THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs. R. Addison, Ltd.; Business-Manager, Mr. J. Huntley.—This week Mr. Chas. Elderton produces his pantomime, Aladdin, and opened to a packed house on Monday night. A sprightly chorus, charming scenery, effective exponents of the leading rôles, and specialities make up a pantomime which could hardly be excelled. The title-rôle, Aladdin, is exquisitely portrayed by Miss Maudie Vincent, and her songs were most successful; Miss May Gibson, a charming principal girl, has a fine voice; Mr. Will Beanland is a rousing Widow Twankey, and he is without doubt the right man in the right place; the Sisters Terry proved to be successful and entertaining duettists; the policemen, Tip Pit and Wot Toe, keep the house screaming with laughter by their drolleries as presented by Messrs. James and Alexander; Mr. Harry Harrop is an Abanazar deserving of every praise, being an arduous worker and very funny and amusing; Mr. Billy Melia meets with approval as Wishy Washie, his dancing being a feature of the performance; Mr. James Matchett, a pleasing Emperor, is a refined singer; and the specialities include the Cameron Quartette, Morrisey in his musical turn, the Lottie Stone Dancing Quartette, Stean and Melia (comedy artists), Claremont and Victor (acrobats), Li-Ching-Hi, and the Mimosa Troupe of Juveniles. The chorus is very strong.

THE HIPPODROME (BISHOP AUCKLAND), LTD.—Managing-Director, Signor Pepi; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry Curry.—Harry Tate's company, in the laughable sketch Fishing, tops the bill, and creates great hilarity; Ernest Montefiore and company do very well in The Little Colonel; Gillin excels as a ventriloquist; Mr Dan Robans sings his songs in excellent voice; the Sisters Brooklands are capital vocalists; Yetta is expert on the wire; Zetta Gray and company take well in The Lancashire Lass; and the Hipposcope concludes.

BLACKPOOL.—HER MAJESTY'S OPERA HOUSE.—General-Manager, Mr. J. R. Huddlestone.—Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr. Percy Hutchison's company is paying another very welcome visit with Brewster's Millions, and drawing crowded houses. The part of Monty Brewster is in the clever hands of Mr. Charles Esdale, who scores a complete success; Mr. Gordon Ash does well as Charlie Harrison; Mr. Robert Forsyth is well suited to the part of Mr. Grant; a very charming Margaret Grey is Miss Cicely Stuckey; whilst Miss Lillias Earle embodies exactly the rôle of Mrs. Dan de Mille. Other parts are in efficient hands, and the great yacht scene awakens the utmost enthusiasm.

GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietors, the Blackpool Tower Co., Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. Geo. H. Harrop.—Messrs. Tilbury and Friedman's company is in possession. The programme consists of two comic burlettas, entitled Happy Holland and Princess Lolah, the principal parts being entrusted to Messrs. Walter Tilbury, Jake Friedman, Clifford Morgan, Lionel Braham, and Misses Margaret Radcliffe and Florence Hunton.

PALACE.—General-Manager, Mr. Geo. H. Harrop; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Waller.—Frances Letty is a chorus singer of unquestionable ability, and is ably assisted in her work by Imre Sutton, pianist, and Tiger Letty, a clever boy buck dancer; Sandy McNab is here again with his sketch The Mummy, and causes great hilarity; the Selbinis contribute cycle tricks; Ray and Calden appear in a comedy act; the Original Cestria is a marvellous juggler; Maude Clifton is a taking comedienne; Alix Lukos excels as a protean actor; and Charles Mildare appears with great success in a whistling scena, entitled A Day in Birdland.

BOLTON.—THEATRE ROYAL (LTD.).—Managing-Director, Mr. J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr. John Moncur.—The Dashing Little Duke, which opened here on Boxing Day, is having excellent receptions from large audiences. The scenery, music, and dresses are delightful, and the members of the company, led by Miss Zena Dare, present the piece admirably. As the dashing Duc de Richelieu Miss Zena Dare is bright and vivacious; Miss Dolly Castles, in the difficult rôle of Diane de Noailles, is an undoubted success, her singing eliciting warm admiration; Mr. Johnny Danvers as the Baron de Bellechasse is responsible for much broad humour; and Mr. J. Kelso Henderson, the Chevalier de Matignon, acts with spirit and sings effectively. Mr. Alec Johnstone makes a sympathetic Abbé de la Touche; Miss Kate Graham-Beck is a commanding Duchess de Noailles; and Miss Eileen Gordon as the Duchess de Bourgogne and Miss Doris Dickins as Césarine are adequate in their respective parts.

GRAND THEATRE (LTD.).—Managing-Director, Mr. J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry Kenyon.—An excellent Christmas holiday programme here has drawn crowded houses, the great attraction being Fred Karno's comedians, in the sketches O.P.O. and The Bailiff. Other turns are J. H. Bray, descriptive vocalist; Radena Dey, speciality dancer; Bell and Butt, in a novelty act, Fun in the Garden; Spangles and Sawdust, comedy gymnasts; Mr. and Mrs. Harold Finden, sketch artists; May B. Excellent as the Girton girl, in song and dance; Tod Lowen, comedian; Florence Phillips, the girl with the baritone voice; and Vernon's Imperial Bioscope.

EMPIRE HIPPODROME, LTD.—Director of Entertainments, Mr. Will Sley; Manager, Mr. A. R. Harrison.—Large holiday audiences have appreciated the excellent programme submitted here, comprising the King's College Boys, an accomplished sextette, in the vocal scena The Students' Concert; Ailsa Douglas, vocal comedienne; Lenton and Lane, in Unconsidered Trifles; Mlle. Sylvesto, contortionist; the Moxon Trio, comedy acrobats; the Venetians, in a vocal scena, introducing living statuary; Phil Herman, comedian (an old Bolton favourite); Gladys and Alber, in a comedy act; Layton and Douglas, in a clever quick-change musical act; The Last of the Desmonds, performed by three gentlemen and a lady, who play with much ability; and the Empire Bioscope.

BOOTLE.—WINTER GARDENS.—Lessee, Mr. J. Smith; Manager, Mr. George Barry.—The Plattis Child Trio of clever juvenile musicians meet with a rousing reception; Mr. Teddy L. Benn is a clever light comedian; Alfonzo gives a wonderful exhibition of foot-balancing; and an interesting sketch is presented by Evelyn and Norris, entitled Set a Thief. Miss Gertie Sandiford, contralto, pleases with her charming singing, and the programme includes a series of animated pictures.

BOSCOMBE.—HIPPODROMES, LTD.—Joint Managing-Directors, Messrs. Fredk. Moutillot and Walter de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. A. H. Burdett.—An excellent bill is headed by De Biere, the Mysterious, whose performance is greatly appreciated; the Five Vernons, operatic xylophone quintette, are a complete success; the Flying Hanlon Troupe are expert gymnasts; Dalvero and Wallace, comedians, create roars of laughter; the Three Dixons are successful as vocalists, dancers, and banjoists; Trixo, the chimpanzee, is highly amusing in his unique rope speciality; Beatrice Allen, comedienne, deserves mention; and up-to-date Hippopictures conclude.

BRADFORD.—MOSS' EMPIRES, LTD.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Percival Craig.—There is a strong holiday attraction here this week, consisting of Clarice Mayne, a clever comedienne and mimetic entertainer; Alice Raymond and her Players, in a bright and artistic entertainment with musical instruments, viz., A Night in Egypt; Annie Purcell, comedienne; Hubert Connorton, the "tired one," and his Valet, in an amusing turn; Carl Lynn, a clever imitator of animals; Lester Carey, with well-illustrated songs; Clark and Hayden, musical comedy artists; Haines and Borthwick, in a rollicking sketch, Half a Dollar; and some excellent pictures shown by the Bioscope.

THE PALACE.—Lessee, Mr. F. Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. B. Harrison.—An excellent company consists of the Five X Rays, mad athletes, in quaint and clever tumbling; Alexander Lofton, coloured comedian; Harrigan and Holt, comedians, with funny patter; Sim Moree, clever contortionist; Barnes and West, agile dancers; Mamie Morris, a remarkably smart comedienne; the Five Tritons, in a striking musical scena; and an amusing show of Palace Perfection pictures.

BRIDLINGTON.—SPA OPERA HOUSE.—Manager, Mr. Harry Tunbridge.—Mr. Keith G. Kenneth commenced his tour here on Monday with Under the Greenwood Tree. The part of May Hamilton was most charmingly played by Miss Ida Chapman, and she was [illegible]. Betty Fairfax was effectively [illegible] Ingledow, and worked up the [illegible] cleverly, ably seconded by Mr. Ellis the Manager in the part of Sir Kenneth Graham. A success Hylton of Mr. Kenneth was a fine manly performance; Mr. Lionel West made an excellent Griggs; Miss Letitia Rushforth and Mr. Clive Russell as Mrs. and Mr. Knapton Bowles were very good, as were also Mr. Walter Dane and Mr. Harold Darle as the Gypsies.

THE GRAND PAVILION.—Manager, Mr. Charles Palmer.—Mr. Walter George's The Smart Set has been the holiday attraction at this theatre, and the audiences have been highly entertained. Mr. George is a versatile performer, his singing and acting being fine; Miss Georgie Martin, both in song and dance, receives quite an ovation, her coon songs and dances being specially encored; Miss Lena Hutchins, Miss Julie Doloro, and Miss Mabel Silvester score with their songs, and so does Mr. Arthur Russell with some clever imitations of singers; Mr. Fred Marshall in recitations and Mr. Edward Elliott in his clever ventriloquial patter with Sunshine James; and Mr. Edgar Rutland is a talented piano soloist and accompanist.

BRIGHOUSE.—ALBERT THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. H. N. Phillips; Manager, Mr. George W. Coe.—On Monday, after a vacation of two weeks, this popular theatre opened its doors to Mr. Morton Powell's How Girls Are Brought to Ruin company. Mr. Harry Scott gives an excellent impersonation of Harry Hailing; Mr. Edward Heanley as Philip Dare and Philip Edge acts with power; Mr. A. Burton as Solomon Sleep is quaint; the comedy is in the hands of Mr. Sydney Byrant and Miss J. Risley, who keep the audience convulsed; Miss Isla Garnet Vayne is a sincere and convincing Jessie; Miss Katherine Eckart is excellent as the stepmother; and Mrs. Powell, the authoress, as Winnie Waters is the life and soul of the piece.

BRIGHTON.—ALHAMBRA.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Alfred Smith; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. A. Smith.—The Villions win hearty applause for their excellent turn, which includes daring and clever cycling feats and a comic acrobatic whirlwind dance; Farley, Rennie, and Farley contribute an entertainment comprising fun at a railway station and smart acrobatic business; the Sisters Belmont are popular dancers; the Six Boys of England are very effective in barrack-room ballads; R. J. Sheldon, "the comedian in the white evening dress," is entertaining with racy anecdotes; Fred Arthur, the mimetic dialect comedian, is enthusiastically received; Lillian Farrar achieves great success in a charming song-scena entitled Bubbles; Clarke and Mostol are diverting patter comedians and good dancers; the Baynhams are amusing in the comedy musical act, The Potman and the Page; Kerr and Koe are pleasing comedians and dancers; and the Alhambra Picturegraph is interesting and amusing.

HIPPODROME THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Messrs. Barrasford and Smith; Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford; Resident-Manager, Mr. B. J. Brown.—Constantino Bernardi, protean actor, effects some marvellous quick changes which evoke enthusiastic applause; Foot-gers, a versatile French comedian, submits a turn which is warmly appreciated; Walter Stanley, comedian, achieves great success; the Carina Sisters appear in an artistic and refined musical act; Dave Carter, Irish tenor, sings in good style; Leoni de Lausanne presents a clever shooting act; Robbie Roy is a pleasing comedian; and Radie Stuart is a dainty comedienne.

BURTON-ON-TRENT.—OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Bennett; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. de Hague Body.—A large Bank Holiday crowd welcomed Mr. Joe Peterman's company with the most amusing sketch The Pawnbroker; Mr. Ben Jackson gives a clever banjo performance; an amusing turn is that of Mr. Chas. Slaman, comedian and dancer; some clever sleight-of-hand work is introduced by Lazern; Mr. Peter Shannon is to the front as a sand dancer and coon vocalist; and Miss Dorma Morgan in her two songs achieves remarkable success. The Operascope has some up-to-date pictures.

Season's Greetings.

...—ROYAL.—Proprietors, The ...res Co., Ltd.; General-Manager, ... Culling; Assistant Acting-Manager, ... H. Potter.—The holiday attraction is pro...ced here in The Woman Pays, presented in admirable fashion by Frank M. Thorne's company. Mr. Phil Harper is particularly clever as Sid Armstrong; the villainies of Roger Marchant are fittingly portrayed by Mr. Clavering Craig; and Mr. Beresford Innes gives a good performance as Cyrus Treadgold. Miss Kate Blair is prominent as Nell Morland; and Miss Alice Greenwood appears to distinct advantage as Madge Armstrong. Others who do good work are Mr. Joseph Magrath, Mr. Dunlop Stewart, Mr. Claremont Gaskell, Miss Lily Beverley, and Miss F. Thorne.

CIRCUS OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, The Northern Theatres Co., Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Assistant Acting-Manager, Mr. H. H. Potter.—Pictures continue to prove a big attraction. Rex Fox gives an exceptionally clever display on the slack wire; and Alice Winsome is also in the bill.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Resident-Manager, Mr. Thomas Baker.—The Merrions, a popular trio, are clever and original; an exhibition of sand and trick dancing by the Three Langfords meets with well merited applause; the Brothers Miranos appear in a novel balancing act; and Tom Franks, ventriloquist; Wal Owen, comedian; Delmar and Demany, in comedy sketch; George F. Hall; Elliot and Lane; and Hillett and Hallett meet with success.

CAMBRIDGE. — NEW THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. W. B. Redfern, J.P., D.L.—For the holidays Messrs. Alfred Paumier and Walter Howard's company presented The Prince and the Beggar Maid. Mr. Walter Howard as the hero, Olaf, gives a capital representation of the part; as the Princess Monica Miss Annie Saker made herself a decided favourite; Miss Mona Hungerford played Viola naturally; Mr. Major Cooke was also entirely satisfactory as Prince Hildred; as was Mr. Lionel Gadsden as Prince Michael; Mr. Robert Noble was good as Captain Hedor. Other small parts were adequately filled by Messrs. Stanley B. Farbridge, Richard Lane, W. Beazley, Ernest Gray, J. Chamberlain, Arnold Cameron, Fred Upton, and Miss Ethel Patrick.

CARDIFF. — EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. Herbert J. Taylor.—The programme here is headed by Alec Hurley, supported by his company, in his musical comedy, Cockneys in Japan; Mr. Tom Clare, the celebrated entertainer at the piano, secures second position; while others who appear are Lil O'Gorman, comedienne and dancer; the Great Vincent, acrobatic table expert; Tom Lloyd, the eccentric comedian; Gipsy Woolf and her Six Sunbeams; Farr and Farland, the inimitable duo; and Nellie Farrwell, the gifted singer of Irish songs; with the Bioscope to complete.

PALACE AND HIPPODROME. — Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. A. Jackson. —A decidedly fine holiday programme is in evidence at the besieged Palace this week. Prince of the Dandies, a musical comedy by Flo Stanley's company, takes a large share of the evening, in which Arthur Watson as Sprouts and Miss Stanley herself as Daisy Highclass appear with enviable distinction. Second position is accorded Arayama, foot-equilibrist. Others on the bill are Zenora, the little upside-down wonder, Reg. Beauchamp, comedian, George Young, blind musician. Marie Kay, a clever dancer, Montes Bros., motor comedians, and the usual Bioscope pictures.

CARLISLE.—H.M. THEATRE.—Lessees, Mrs. R. Stewart M'Kim and Mr. Thos. Courtice; Manager, Mr. Thos. Courtice.—A big attraction is provided for the holiday week in Walter Howard's interesting drama, The Prince and the Beggar Maid. Messrs. Paumier and Howard, who are responsible for the production, have brought an excellent company, and a house packed to the door gave them an enthusiastic welcome on the opening night. Miss Ethel Branwell's many clever performances here had evidently not been forgotten, as she received quite an ovation on her first appearance as Monica, a part which afforded her opportunities of displaying her exceptional histrionic gifts; as Prince Olaf Mr. Ernest N. G. Cox contributed a fine performance, which met with well-deserved appreciation; a strong robust rendering of Prince Hildred was given by Mr. Alfred Goddard; and Mr. Victor Rae was no less successful as Prince Michael. In personal appearance and breezy style Mr. H. Burton exactly filled the bill as Captain Hector; and Mr. H. Nelson did good work as the Bishop. Miss Stella Campbell made an interesting and pathetic figure as Camiola, and some excellent comedy scenes were done full justice to by Mr. J. H. Vyvyan and Miss Mona Hall. The minor characters would be difficult to improve on, and the dressing, staging, and general excellence of the whole performance afforded the utmost satisfaction.

CARMARTHEN.—ASSEMBLY ROOMS.—Proprietors, Public Rooms Company; Secretary, Mr. Edward Baldwin.—During the holidays Messrs Alfred Burrows and Co.'s company appeared in the popular pantomime Jack and the Beanstalk, and were well patronised. The part of Jack was very creditably taken by Miss Edith Jacobs; Jill was captivatingly performed by Miss Lillie Swallow; Johnny Horner was in the capable hands of Miss Mary Geary; Little Bo-Peep was capitally impersonated by Miss Molly Richardson; Mr. Peircy Watson was amusing as Sir Peter Pippin; Mr. Albert Browning was very good as the Giant Grim; Mr. Fred Dewar was splendid as Tommy Tucker; the same may be said of Mr. Percy Dewar as Billy Piper; and Mr. Arthur Jarvis was excellent as Barney the Bull; as was also Mr. Harry Harcourt as Mother Hubbard and Miss May Douglas as Selina. The songs and dances were well done, and the staging and dresses were very attractive.

CASTLEFORD.—ROYAL.—Sole Proprietor and ...nsee, Mr. Chas. Gadsby; Business-Manager ...ouncillor Hy. Masterman, J.P.—Mr. T. Morton Powell's latest drama, A Girl's Temptation, is seen for the first time, and is being played by a capable company to crowded audiences. The prodigals, Kate Stirling and Guy Warren, are impersonated in a clever manner by Miss Gertrude Gilbert and Mr. Frank V. Fenn; Mr. Tom Handley is an amusing Hon. Charles; the villainous Mark Klaw is typically acted by Mr. Clifton Earle; Mr. Dan Hardie as Sammy Sniggles and Miss Amy Corallie as Jemima are entertaining; Mr. C. E. Lambert gives a good performance of Basile Warren; Lady Constance is cleverly presented by Miss Maud M. Powell; Miss Louie Walton makes a capital Mrs. Stirling; and Miss Blanche Lee plays admirably as Annie Brown. Geoffrey Stirling finds a careful exponent in Mr. Gerald Nolan; and Mr. Fred J. Mace does justice as Jim Judd.

QUEEN'S THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, The Castleford Queen's Theatre Co., Ltd.; Managing-Directors, Messrs. Charles Beanland and W. H. Emerson.—The Dayton Family again head the bill here, and receive quite an ovation; Cedar and Elgar present a clever and interesting turn; Floria Ormonde, who sings with considerable taste, is accorded warm applause; an admirable display of dancing is given by Louise Dott and Jack Williams; Walter Aubrey is an amusing comedian; the Three Milfords give a smart and skilful performance on the tight rope; Jerome Ward and Elsie Wallace in a comedietta, Taming a Wife, cause roars of laughter; Bert Crosbie wins loud applause for patter, songs, and dancing; Les Trippelos are responsible for a clever manipulation of musical instruments; and the Loyal Dominion Co.'s animated pictures are enjoyed.

CHATHAM.—GAIETY THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Capt. H. E. Davis; Manager, Mr. G. Humphries.—The chief attraction here is the Abdullah Troupe of Arabs, whose exciting acrobatic display is vociferously applauded; Dorothy Sephton, the white girl, sings to everyone's satisfaction; Graham's Lilliputian Entertainment, including Past and Present Comedians, is one of the best-liked items; the Six White Boys, in song and dance, afford much pleasure; and others appearing are Claude Gardner, vocal comedian; Camilla Feo, in song and dance; and Syd Crossley, the long comic.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, Messrs. C. and L. B. Barnard; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lionel Barnard. —Excellent audiences assembled during the holidays to welcome Dear Little Denmark on its first appearance here. The company is sent out by Mr. Frank Curzon, who has staged and dressed the production in lavish style. Miss Netta Lynde as Christine is immensely popular; Mr. Conway Dixon assumes the rôle of Conrad Petersen with distinction, his vocal numbers being greatly enjoyed; Miss Mabel Sealby makes a quaint Ophelia; Mr. Henry Kitts' Duke Ernst Von Ramussen is quite a popular performance; Mr. Tom Redmond makes a capital Simon; and Mr. Arthur Staples scores throughout as Hans Hansen.

CHESTER.—ROYALTY.—Proprietors, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Resident-Manager, Mr. C. B. Fountaine.—Messrs. C. St. John Denton and Peter Davey's pantomime Blue Beard met with an enthusiastic reception when presented to a crowded house on Monday afternoon. The pantomime is produced under the direction of Mr. Buckstone Clair, who is to be congratulated upon such a well-balanced and artistic production. Mr. Tom Seymour, in the title-rôle, is quaintly amusing, and proves himself a most capable comedian; the Dame of Mr. Arthur Royce is a droll and witty portrayal of the amusing character Sister Ann; Mr. Percy Galino as Blue Beard's valet, Swank, is grotesquely smart, and fully deserved the plaudits accorded him; and the clever characterisation of Mr. Max Copland as the old man Mustapha greatly delights the audience. The principal boy, Selim, falls to the lot of Miss Ernestine Desborough, who acquits herself admirably, her graceful figure and pleasing presence winning the hearts of the audience; Miss Christine Roy as principal girl gives distinction to the part of Fatima, enhanced, moreover, by the charm of a sweet voice; Miss May Hart makes a pert and dashing Shacabac; and Miss M. Sadie as Lieut. Pride is a saucy and winsome leader of a gallant band of Jack Tars. Miss Thelma Geary, a pretty, graceful girl, scores a success as Miss Silvery Thames; and her triumph is also shared by the Six Flapper Girls, impersonated with vivacity and charm by the Misses D. Hart, Mavis, Dagmar, Boyd, Curti, and Townsend. The chorus ladies and dancers are excellent, and, under the able bâton of Mr. Claude B. Yearsley, render full justice to the tuneful and well-arranged music. The scenery, effects, and dresses are superb.

CHORLEY.—GRAND THEATRE.—Lessees, Geo. T. Santé, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Frank Santé.—Mr. F. B. Woulfe and his capital repertoire company presented Lady Godiva on Monday, before a capital house. In the title-rôle Miss Edith Lorraine gave a talented and sympathetic rendering; and Miss Maud Lillian capitally portrayed Lady Aldyth. Miss Mabel Spencer vivaciously presented Elfrida; as Tom of Coventry Mr. F. B. Woulfe gave a skilful interpretation; Mr. F. Cheevers portrayed Edgar with considerable success; Mr. Charles M. Julian was a powerful Algar; and Mr. Alfred G. Raymond was conspicuous as Robert Skakelton. Nell Gwynne, The Merchant of Venice, Jane Shore, and The Three Musketeers are also in the bill.

COLCHESTER.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Chas. Macdona; Lessee and Manager, Mr. F. Graham Macdona.—The Flower Girl, greatly improved since its last visit, is presented here by Mr. T. N. Walter's company. It is altogether brighter; witticisms of an up-to-date nature are introduced, and the effects are very smart. Mr. John T. McCallum extracts the maximum of drollery from the character of Joe Wheeler; whilst Mr. Henry Adnes is great as the volatile Frenchman Alphonse; Mr. G. Brailsford as Bertie, Mr. J. Burlington Rigg as Hon. Billy, and Mr. John A. Latham as Johnny Wheeler are all good; Miss Lena Brickwell is a dainty Lily; and Miss Eva Brickwell makes a capital Suffragette. Miss Elsa Brettingham works assiduously as Lizette; and the minor parts are capably depicted.

HIPPODROME.—Directors, Messrs. Fredk. Mouillot and Walter de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. Ben de Frece.—A well-written dramatic episode entitled Before the Dawn is the top of the bill here this week, and is admirably sustained by Mr. F. Rawson Buckley as Major Stetson and Master Reggie Connor as Dick; Raymond Trio in a musical and dancing act are effective and highly cultured; Victoria Dagmar on bar and rope provides a taking turn; Maurice Lee scores; the Sisters Harcourt, comediennes and dancers, are a graceful, pretty duo; Eva Le Clare, comedienne and dancer, works with excellent result; Nevan Tossan, lightning painter, is well received; and the film by the Lubin Company is a good one.

CORK.—OPERA HOUSE.—Manager, Mr. R. J. Bell.—Mr. George Edwardes' company, with The Merry Widow, opened a fortnight's engagement here on Monday, when the play was thoroughly enjoyed by a large audience. Miss Sylvia May in the part of the Merry Widow gave a pleasing and graceful performance, her singing and dancing winning the warmest applause; Mr. Edward D'Arcy impersonated Baron Popoff with irresistible breeziness, and his mannerisms evoked continual merriment; Mr. Fred Fowler was a capital Nisch; Mr. Fred Leslie as Prince Danilo sang and acted with taste and refinement; Mr. Ripley Evans as Vicomte de Jolidon used a sweet and well-trained voice with excellent effect; Miss Ada Thomas in the part of the Ambassador's wife proved herself a capable actress, and sang beautifully; Mr. Clifford Seyler as General Novikovitch was also very good; and Miss Winnie Baillie as Olga acted the rôle with considerable skill and naturalness. Mr. William Allison as the Marquis de Cascada, Mr. H. Gordon Sherry as M. De St. Brioche, and Mr. Ernest Clempsur as Khadja also deserve credit.

PALACE THEATRE, LTD.—Manager, Mr. Thos. F. O'Brien.—The excellent all-round entertainment includes a comedy, entitled Toplitsky, or the End of the World, in which Frank Bernard, Frank H. Dale, and Miss Edith Martyn take part effectively; Lewis Hardt, the "Sandow Boy," proves himself a well-developed strong man; Harry Lamore, comedy entertainer, proves a decided success; Daisy Hicks, Belle Brocade, and Rosie Bartett possess good voices, and are most entertaining; Rappo and Ella are clever gymnasts; Charles E. Robinson, an Irish baritone, renders some capital songs; and the Palascope continues to please.

COVENTRY.—OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor, Mr. Wm. Bennett.—Cinderella is being produced for the first time at the above house by Mr. Arthur Carlton's company, and will run here for two weeks. Miss Elma Wilmer, who possesses a pleasing voice, makes a charming Cinderella; Miss Flo Wilton is a handsome and dashing Prince Charming; Miss Ida Dorrie appears successfully as Dandini; Mr. George Prince makes a big hit as Pimple, the page; Mr. Herbert Colley and Mr. Fred Hutchings are a clever pair of Ugly Sisters; Messrs. Sandy and Carl as the brokers' men give a clever burlesque boxing act; and Miss Ethel Rainforth and Mr. Henry Maynard score heavily as Immortals. The musical numbers and the scenic effects are all that could be desired.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director Mr. S. T. Newsome; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. E. Wright.—The great attraction this week is that of Henriette de Serris's celebrated living art masterpieces and bas reliefs; a very good turn is that of the Jackson Family, who skilfully manipulate many and various instruments; Falco and Eita do some original dancing; the Vanderbilts, duettists, give an acceptable turn; Signor and Madame Borelli are entertaining comedy artists; Tom E. Finglass arouses much enthusiasm with his comical songs; and a capital set of Bioscope pictures concludes.

CROYDON. — GRAND THEATRE. — Manager, Mr. Roland Daniel; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Ernest Archer.—A capital attraction here is the tuneful and amusing Our Miss Gibbs, whose visit will last a fortnight. Mr. Tom Shelford makes a big hit as the Hon. Hughie Pierrepoint; Mr. Ernest Darrell scores as the Earl of St. Ives; Mr. Reg. Sheldrick is quite at home in the part of Slithers; Mr. R. M. Strachan is admirable as Mr. Toplady; Mr. Harry Fairfax makes an effective Lord Eynsford; Mr. Henry De Solla contributes his full quota as Mr. Beavis; and Messrs. H. Player and Murray Stephen are adequate as a taxi cabby and Mr. Amalfy. Miss Kathleen Courtney hits off to a nicety the rôle of Miss Gibbs, and sings her numbers sweetly; Miss May Marshall is a charming Mrs. Farquhar; Miss Winifred Kinekby makes an agreeable Duchess of Minster; Miss Nancy Mervyn does well as Mme. Jeanne; and Miss Lilian Birtles is a pretty Lady Elizabeth Thanet. Mr. Theodore Leonard is very funny in the character of Timothy Gibbs. There is a full chorus and augmented orchestra under the direction of Mr. Otto Manns. The scenery and dresses are of the best.

EMPIRE PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Managing-Directors, Messrs. Walter Gibbons and Thomas Barrasford; Manager, Mr. Eustace Jay.—On Boxing Day and during the week the patrons of this comfortable house have been thoroughly enjoying the pantomime, Babes in the Wood, produced under the supervision of Mr. J. Collins. It is a merry and bright show, embellished with pretty dresses and elaborate scenery. Mr. Fred E. Terry is exceedingly quaint as the Baron Stoney de Broke; Mr. Charles Paton is well to the fore in the rôle of Llorgie Georgie; Mr. Fred Webb gives a whimsical rendering of Mrs. Pankake; Mr. E. Lyle contributes clever burlesque acting as Sammy Nothing; Mr. J. Graydon is smart and invigorating in the rôle of Tommy Less; and Mr. Bert Goodwin makes an energetic Mischief, the Teddy-bear. Miss Ethel Lyle is entrancing as Maid Helen; Miss Mildred Bryan makes a handsome Robin Hood; Miss Mabel Mignon is a great favourite as Maid Marion; Miss Connie Hasledon is very nice as Herbert; Miss Lulu Clayton is a pretty little Minnie; and the chorus girls are well dressed and bewitching. Mr. Eustace Jay may be congratulated upon the excellent business which is being done.

DARLINGTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. James Bell.—Mr. Edwin C. Jazon's pantomime Cinderella—a bright and sparkling show—opened here on Monday to packed houses afternoon and night. Miss Vera Marine, a pretty Prince Charming, is loudly applauded for her singing; Miss Molly Doon is a sweet Cinderella, her singing and dancing going well; Messrs. Crosley and Walker are responsible for much of the merriment as the Ugly Sisters; the Carlsons are also funny as the Court Bailiffs; Miss Jenny Clare is good as Dandini; Mr. Will Penn is clever as the Baron; the performance of the Musical Keiths meets with a great reception; Miss Jessie Jukes as Dorothy dances well; and Mr. Leo Field as Buttons proves himself a clever artist.

HIPPODROME THEATRES, LTD.—Acting-Manager, Mr. Albert E. Nicholls.—The Christmas bill is headed by Mr. Will H. Fox, in his piano monology; Albert Wyndham's company, in the Shakespearean sketch Prince Arthur, evokes great applause; the Northern Troupe are fine in their speciality dances; and other turns are Ryan and Hall, funny acrobats; Monie Mine, singer and dancer; the Jockey Trio; Gus Barra, musician; Marice and Maurice, soprano and baritone; and the Hipposcope pictures.

DARWEN.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees, The Animated Pictorial Enterprises, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. G. E. Burnett.—The pantomime Cinderella, written and invented by Captain Cecil Clayton, was produced here on Monday by Messrs. Travis Green and Arthur Hinton before a packed house. Miss Leila Zillwood is entrusted with the part of Prince Charming, which she fills with great success; Miss Dela Fredricks is a charming Cinderella; Dandini is smartly played by Miss Lottie Mellor; and Miss Gertie Russell shines as Fairy Sunshine, her electric transformation dancing being a feature of the performance. Much fun is introduced by Messrs. Frank Shepherd and Gus Granville as the Broker's Men, Mr. Wilfred Dane as Pimples, Messrs. Will Webbs and Tod Squires as the Sisters, and Mr. Carl Fredricks as the Baron. Specialities are supplied by P. J. Durney, rolling-globe walker; Wyman, comic and trick roller skater; La Belle Mascot, on the slack wire; Len Lyvette, novelty instrumentalist; and the May Quartette of Dancers.

DERBY.—GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE. Sole Proprietor and General-Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Acting-Manager, Mr. Bert Dent.—Mr. Arthur Carlton's pantomime Puss in Boots made an excellent opening here on Boxing Day, when both afternoon and evening the house was packed from floor to ceiling. As Colin Miss Victoria Carmen figures very agreeably, and sings a number of excellent songs, including "Kelly." She has a pleasing and cultured voice, and is a clever dancer. Miss Ruby Emmerson plays the Princess Iris in a charming manner; dainty and pleasing, she sings several pretty songs very successfully. An amusing character is that of Pompey, a negro, which is played by Miss Nancy Renshaw, who is very popular with her songs and dances; Miss Queenie King and Miss Clarice Osmond are very pleasing as Phyllis and Lubin; Miss Louie Love, who plays the Fairy Felina, is possessed of a pleasing voice; Mr. Harry Gilmore's performance of the Cat is a really wonderful one; Mr. Fred Lyndo, as well as stage-managing the production, plays the King; Mr. Wm. Dempsey, who impersonates the Ogre, has a remarkably fine voice and sings with the greatest success; and the Brothers Hannaway play Rufus and Uriah, and their singing, patter, and dancing prove extremely funny. Another clever comedian is Mr. E. D. Nicholls, who plays the Baron, his make-up being original; Mr. Michael Madden is very funny as the Queen; and Mr. H. A. Griffiths as Freddie and Mr. M. Foster as the Donkey also do good work. Clever specialities are introduced in the second act by the chief comedians, as well as by Seeley West and Rhodesia, the Fantasia troupe of dancers, &c. The scenery, designed by Messrs. H. C. Bontor, Henry Emdon, Francis H. Bull, Geo. Collier, and Harry Griffiths, is effective, and the costumes are most elaborate. The ballets are all cleverly executed, the performers having been instructed by Madame Phasey. The composer of the incidental music, Mr. Leslie Lewis conducts the performance; and the whole is produced by Mr. Fred Lyndo, under the personal direction of Mr. Arthur Carlton, for whom Mr. A. Hamilton Warden is acting as general manager.

PALACE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. W. Moyes.—A capital holiday programme is headed by Lickson's Canine Wonders, whose clever and amusing tricks reflect great credit upon their trainer; Harry Russell and company, in a neatly-acted sketch entitled Binks' Blunder, prove excellent fun-makers; Captain Ellis and son are accomplished musicians, and introduce some novel selections; Tom Kelso and company, in a side-splitting absurdity, The Singing Slavies, score a distinct success; Bert and Dora, song and patter artists are refined and entertaining; Mark Leslie is a swell coon whose songs are rendered in faultless style; Sam Williams, comedian, has some tuneful chorus ditties; the Sisters Barnes, duettists and dancers, meet with deserved appreciation; and the Bioscope adds to the general enjoyment.

DEVONPORT. — HIPPODROME. — Manager, Mr Herbert Taylor.—Packed houses at both performances on Monday were rewarded with a really first-class programme to which Tschin-Maa and his wonderful band of Chunchuse entertainers are principal contributors with clever musical numbers, conjuring tricks, and juggling; the Three Pydoras have an excruciatingly funny musical act; Willie Atom and Co. bring down the house with a farcical absurdity entitled Wriggles; Joe Belmont provides some first-rate singing, whistling, and other imitations; Alby Portsmouth, described as the premier naval entertainer, justifies his description; Terry and Tate are accomplished vocalists and dancers; Hampton and Bauman supply the remaining number as Darktown entertainers.

DEWSBURY. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Lessees, Northern Theatres Co., Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. Herbert Asquith.—Mr. Fred Granville's company in The Better Land is appearing here to very good houses. Miss Marguerite Trevosper as Doris is responsible for a piece of well-studied acting; Mr. Edward E. Ashby is to be complimented on his perfect portrayal of Philip Radcliffe; Mr. Stanley Radcliffe as Hubert Radcliffe is very effective; Miss Ada Hender gives a forcible rendition of Mercedes; Mr. Arthur Traill submits a pleasing character study of George Grant; much laughter is caused by the comedy introduced by Mr. Bert Dench as Tom Tadpole and Miss Bessie Frank as Pollie Perkins; Aunt Jemima is in the capable hands of Miss Bella Moody; the Misses Gerty Moody and Emilie Entwistle well sustain the parts of Harry and Tessa, and introduce interesting vocal items; and Messrs. Carl Beechy and J. F. Hughes do well as William White and Bill Jones respectively. The piece is well staged.

EMPIRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. G. W. and G. E. Smith; Manager, Mr. Claude Shayler.—Miss Alice Hollander's fine contralto voice is heard to great advantage; the Daunton-Shaw troupe of trick cyclists perform really marvellous feats; one of the most interesting items in the bill is James Willard's dramatic sketch Ace of Hearts, the characters being very ably sustained by Messrs. Jas. Willard and Jackson Willcox and Miss Maisie Everette; the Four Markies are a troupe of tuneful musicians; James Brady, the vocal joker, causes much merriment; Leo and Roland in an equilibristic act are deservedly applauded; Lilian Travellie submits interesting vocal items; and also appearing are Varden (ventriloquist) and Sam Dalton (comedian). The latest subjects are introduced on the Palascope.

HIPPODROME.—General-Manager, Mr. Geo. Weldon.—The Three Sisters Urma occupy premier position, and prove themselves to be very clever artists on the trapeze; Carlo and Maie Trio in a comedy acrobatic and wire act, Fun on the Lawn, cause much merriment, and at the same time perform very clever feats; the Jackaway Trio keep the audience in a jovial mood in their laughing act The White Statue; Vesta Nixon is a dainty comedienne and dancer; Rowlands and Ford, Welsh and Scotch patterers, amuse greatly; Tom Reed is a quaint comedian; and the Sisters Dudley, operatic vocalists, sing very sweetly. The pictures are popular.

DUBLIN.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Frederick Mouillot; Resident-Manager, Mr. Charles Terry.—The Moody-Manners Opera Company, Ltd., are having their annual Christmas season here, and on Boxing Day, before a very large and crowded audience, Maritana was played. Mr. John Child was warmly greeted for his excellent performance of Don Cæsar; Miss Kate Anderson gave a very artistic rendition of Maritana, and her numbers "The harp in the air," "Oh, fairy wand," and "Scenes that are brightest" were excellently sung. The Don José of Mr. Charles Mborhouse was a very finished and capital representation. Mr. Charles Magrath sang finely in the part of the King of Spain; and Miss Bessie Weir made an admirable Lazarillo. The orchestra is under the able conductorship of Mr. Harrison Frewin. Il Trovatore, Carmen, The Master Singers, La Tosca, and Faust are to be played during the week.

EMPIRE. — General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager and Secretary, Mr. George H. Marsh.—The holiday programme submitted here is a strong one, the chief item being Ye Colonial Septette in An Old Tyme Hallow E'en, which delighted a crowded house on Monday night. The gymnastic performance of Lord, Murray, and Lord was loudly applauded, and Lily Palmer acquitted herself well as a comedienne and dancer. The McConnell Trio in an amusing sketch, McTavish and His Airship, provoke much laughter, and Billy Hubbard scores successfully as an eccentric comedian. Barnard's Mannikins are cleverly manipulated, and create much merriment, and Elly Adair has some taking songs and knows how to sing them. Mart and Pep, in a smart acrobatic and balancing act, make a decided hit, and the pictures are up to the usual standard.

TIVOLI.—General-Manager, Mr. Charles M. Jones; Assistant-Manager, Mr. H. A. Murphy.—Haley's Juveniles head an excellent bill of fare here this week, supported by the Creo Brothers, acrobatic entertainers; Gertie Rex, comedienne; W. F. Reno, in a daring cycle act; Polo and Florence, equilibrists; Florrie Conolly, Irish songstress; J. W. Gilbey, comedian; Marjorie Russell, queen of magic; Charles Grantley, comedian; and the Bioscope.

WORLD'S FAIR AND MUSIC HALL.—Proprietor, Mr. C. A. James.—The programme here this week includes:—Professor Green's Punch and Judy Show; Junn Kook, vocalist; Syd Hope, comedian; Alberto and Ale, comedy artists; E. L. Knowles, comedian; and the cinematograph.

SAMUELS' EXHIBITION PALACE.—Proprietor, Mr. S. Samuels; Manager, Mr. P. Mac.—The following artists are appearing here this week:—Alf Rosco, eccentric comedian; Jenny Humber, serio and dancer; Musical De Relis; and the cinematograph.

DUNDEE.—HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Manager, Mr. Louis Karpe.—The Flag Lieutenant was accorded a most enthusiastic welcome on Monday evening here. The play is magnificently mounted, the scenery and appointments being most excellent, while the acting of Messrs. Lyn Harding and Sidney Cooper's talented company leaves nothing to be desired. In the title-rôle Mr. Edgar Kent plays in spirited fashion, his acting throughout being perfect; Mr. Montagu Love is also worthy of praise for his Major Thesiger; Mr. George Mallett shows to advantage as the Vice-Admiral; Mr. George Percy acquits himself creditably as the Surgeon; Messrs. Hugh Wakefield and Olaf Hytten submit diverting and highly popular studies of the two Middies, Hood and Dormer-Lee; Mr. John Belton as Ordinary Seaman James Sloggett provides a good portion of fun; the General Gough-Bogle of Mr. Lionel Isted is a clever study; Mr. Edward Christopher makes an excellent Colonel McLeod; Mr. John Wheatman as Michael Palliser is capital, his brogue being delicious; Miss Stella Leigh depicts the character of Mrs. Cameron in talented fashion; and Miss Dorothy Ripley adds materially to the success as Lady Hermione. Miss Winifred Vallant is a bright and interesting Viola Hood; Mrs. Gough-Bogle is smartly hit off by Miss Margaret Stuart; and Miss Ada Clarke is an effective Lady Dugdale.

KING'S THEATRE AND HIPPODROME, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Alfred Moul; Manager, Mr. S. McIntosh.—The leading features here are Fred Karno's comedians in Early Birds and Mumming Birds; Mark Hanbury is applauded for his fine singing; Lily Belle is a success in her barefoot dancing; the Real Mackays, a pair of clever juvenile performers, work well together; Ray Raymond interests the audience with several delightful numbers; and the Kingscope shows the latest pictures.

GAIETY THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Alfred Moul; Manager, Mr. S. McIntosh.—Mr. Percy Norman's No. 1 Company in A Woman Worth Winning, under the personal direction of Mr. A. B. MacKay, has proved a good draw here. Miss Margaret Noble makes a charming Roma Pauloff; Mr. A. B. MacKay handles the rôle of the villainous General Borinski with tact and judgment; Mr. Sydney Barton is a capital Czar; Mr. Gilbert Standing presents a good portrayal of Amos Pauloff; Mr. Carl Kirzo gives a finished performance as Fergus; Mr. Jack Corlass is a typical Colonel Mashemoff; Mr. Wynne Davies undertakes the part of Fedor Petronvitch in powerful style; Mr. Graham Hamlyn as Ivan Bardoff is deserving of warm praise; Mr. C. W. Black as Bertie Scribbles and Mr. Ernest Hendrick as Peter Popples act with much humour; Miss Trixie Leighton enacts Lola Kalnovsky in a very capable manner; and Miss Ida MacKay is clever and funny as Katherine Kless.

KINNAIRD HALL.—William Hamilton's Excursions inaugurated their annual winter season here on Monday, when a packed and delighted house gave a rousing welcome to an entertainment which, as worked on the Hamilton lines, will never grow stale or uninteresting. The pictures, each a masterpiece of the panoramic artist's craft, are quite up to the high standard of excellence associated with the name of Hamilton, while, in addition, a variety programme of a diversified and entertaining order is also presented. Clara Coverdale and Horace Huxley's Bijou Juvenile Troupe appear in a pretty musical scena entitled Pansy's Birthday, which contains many attractive features; Lilian Savardo is warmly applauded for her artistic and daring trapeze act; the Dunlops create much laughter with their comedy cycling act; Captain Devereux introduces his wonderful troupe of performing dogs; and a fine display of the latest films is given by the Engraph. Mr. Claude Howell again appears in his long-established rôle of guide, his various "yarns" being related with much unctuous humour. Mr. Victor Hamilton is the courteous and energetic business manager of the Excursions.

DURHAM.—THE PALACE.—Proprietor, Mr. T. C Rawes.—Kioto and Esa, Japanese equilibrists, head the bill, and are warmly applauded for their clever act; Billy Ross and Co. in Mr. Maloney's Troubles introduce some smart ball punching and boxing; Chummie La Mars, comedienne, had an enthusiastic reception, her impersonation of Harrigan being capital; in a singing and dancing act Cliff and Kean are favourites; the step-dancing on roller skates of J. H. McCann proves popular; the Three Cyclins, comedy cyclists, and Will Sergeant, comedian, create amusement; and the Cathedoscope shows Race for a Monkey.

ASSEMBLY ROOMS THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. T. Rushworth.—Mr. Geo. Munro and company, including Miss Doris Horricks, are presenting during the week The Sleigh Bells, David Garrick, The Robbery of the Lyons Mail, and She Stoops to Conquer.

EASTBOURNE.—DEVONSHIRE PARK THEATRE.—Sole Lessees and Managers, Murray King and Clark.—An enormous success has been scored by Murray King and Clark in their first pantomime production, which has been written by William Morgan on the immortal subject of Dick Whittington. Additional interest is derived from the fact that Mr. Murray King himself undertakes the rôle of Jack, his inimitable humour evoking shouts of laughter from the delighted audiences. Excellent comedy work of a broader type is provided by Mr. Tom Walls as Phyllis Pushwinkie; while Messrs. Herbert C. Walton and Jamie Dallas, smart pantomimists and expert dancers, speedily become favourites as Captain Poll and Peter Pann. Mr. Ardene Linden's Fitzwarren is responsible for a by no means inconsiderable addition to the practically continuous merriment, and Mr. Theo Pinaud, jun., is very popular with the juvenile visitors as Tobias Ticklepitcher Topport. Miss Gertrude Gilliam is a perfect principal boy as Dick Whittington, acting and singing with artistic effect; Miss Norah Dwyer's Alice is the very personification of daintiness and charm; Miss Adele Levey makes an imposing Emperor of Morocco; and the immortals are admirably impersonated by Miss Edith Jefferies (Felina) and Mr. Douglas Cox (Rat-at-at). Mr. Cox being also responsible for the stage management. Miss Lily Craig and Lottie Stone's troupe of dancers are admired in a series of smart dances. The scenery and dresses are of a costly and elaborate description. Mr. Maxwell Stewart, who must be congratulated on his successful "production," is the general manager, and Mr. Michael Dwyer admirably controls the musical arrangements.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Sidney W. Winter; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. W. Holford.—Unita and Paul open an attractive holiday programme with a clever and novel gymnastic display; Hardie Palm's songs and patter are enjoyed to the full; Le Prince Kuroki's smart conjuring display is received with enthusiastic applause; Barn and Bardell amuse with their duets and cross patter; Bradley and Barns are vocalists of exceptional merit, and also get off a number of original wheezes; the Carlyles are particularly clever in their terpsichorean display; Lilian Violet is a juvenile comedienne of quite exceptional merit; Breton's Troupe head the bill with the screamingly funny pantomimic sketch A Sleepless Night; and a clever Urbanora film called Dissolving the Government concludes.

EDINBURGH. — KING'S THEATRE.—General Manager, Mr. Amand Mascard.—The pantomime The Babes in the Wood, so successfully produced at this house last week, now runs with the greatest smoothness, and crowds of holiday-makers testify to their appreciation of the feast of fun and excellent music which the management has prepared. The delightful acting and singing of those two charming children Baby Bowden and Miss Vi Wilson, in the name parts, appeal not only to the younger members of the audience, but are heartily applauded by the grown-ups. Miss Dolly Elsworthy, Miss Mollie Woolstenhulme, and the admirable comedians Mr. Will Tony, Mr. Sam Fay, Mr. Geo. Brooks, and Mr. Johnnie Osborne keep the fun going with unflagging spirit, and the remaining members of the cast loyally support the principals in their laudable efforts to banish the spirit of melancholy.

EMPIRE PALACE THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. Aynsley Cook.—Odette Valery provides the leading item in this week's bill with her famous dance creations Salome and Cleopatra, the latter scena concluding with the Egyptian queen's death from the sting of an asp, the realism of which is heightened by the employment of a genuine snake; Lockhart's Elephants are a great attraction, winning champion honours; and the Eight Lancashire L favourite; Nina Gordon is a clever mimic; Leolin manipulates clubs with almost incredible dexterity; Royburn and Dix, in the comedy act, Skits on the 'Phone; and the Kingscote complete a good bill.

GLASGOW.—KING'S, LTD.—Managing-Directors, Messrs. F. W. Wyndham and Geo. T. Minshull; Business Manager, Mr. Hugh Macfarlane.—"House full" is the order of the day here, and Mr. George Edwardes' company, in The Dollar Princess, looks like making a record during the holiday season. The brightness and attraction of the play itself, and the excellent company engaged in it, make it undoubtedly quite the best thing Mr. Edwardes has yet sent us. Miss Clara Evelyn as Alice, Miss Norma Whalley as the Lion Queen, and Miss Mabel Russell as Daisy, whose songs and dances are a special feature, make a strong trio of lady principals. Mr. Louis Bradfield is seen in something of a new rôle as the American millionaire; Mr. Leonard Russell is well suited as Freddy Fairfax; and the public never tire of Mr. Eric Thorne in his quaint comedy creations. Mr. Howard Cridland as Dick and Mr. Paul Plunket as the Earl of Quorn complete a strong quintette, and the work of the chorus and the staging of the play are magnificent in the extreme.

THEATRE ROYAL, LTD. — Managing-Directors, Messrs. Fred. W. Wyndham and Geo. T. Minshull; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy O. Humphrys.—The pantomime of Aladdin continues to fill this theatre to overflowing at every performance.

ROYALTY, LTD.—Managing-Directors, Messrs. F. W. Wyndham and Geo. T. Minshull; Acting-Manager, Mr. Ernest Wright.—The D'Oyly Carte Repertory Company continues here, and will form the holiday attraction.

GRAND.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; District-Manager, Mr. B. G. Maclachlan; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. Christie Grant.—Mother Goose continues with undiminished popularity.

PRINCESS'S.—Proprietor, Mr. Rich Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Hugh Murdoch.—Willie Winkie goes with great spirit to the accompaniment of not only a splendid orchestra, but also roars of laughter from delighted houses.

METROPOLE, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. Arthur Jefferson; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. Gordon Jefferson.—Mr. Wilson Benge's company is here this week, presenting The Eve of Her Wedding to well-filled houses. Mr. Fred Lloyd gives a vigorous rendering of the hero, George Tremain, known as Nemo, the helper of the poor; Squire Leverton has a dignified representative in Mr. Chas. Osborne; Mavis is touchingly played by Miss Pauline Nanton; and Dick is well portrayed by Mr. Henry Danson. Miss Annie Hylton gives a strong rendering of Renie de Telle, an adventuress, whose accomplice is ably played by Mr. Harry Leyton as Dean Clifton. Amusing parts are those of Hiram P. Younger and his lively daughter, the father being rendered in American style by Mr. Chas. W. Dockwray (who also doubles the part of Paul Cairshaw) and Gwendoline by Miss Ella Thornton; Mr. Arthur Keand makes a picturesque Giovanni.

LYCEUM.—Proprietor Mr. Rich Waldon; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. H. Oakden.—The patrons of the popular Govan house have this week a favourable opportunity of seeing the world-famous play The Grip of Iron. Mr. C. H. Knight's company is headed by Mr. Fred Powell, whose powerful acting as Jagon has helped the piece wonderfully; adequate support is given by Mr. Henry Deane as Blanchard and Mr. A. G. Polson Turner as Ribas; the detectives are effectively represented by Mr. Fred Bentley (Coucou) and Mr. John Brittain (Dodot); Mr. W. Graham Arthurs is good as the young lawyer, Belfort; and the parts of Beaudin and Loustalot are cleverly doubled by Mr. David Phillips. Miss Laurie Turner's Marie Guerin proves a bright and attractive girl; the Sophie Blanchard of Miss Florence Trevoir is a telling performance; and as Jagon's daughter Miss Alice N. Livesey looks and acts well.

EMPIRE.—District-Manager, Mr. S. Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. F. Reynolds.—Mlle. Irma Lorraine, in her picturesque poses and dances, in which she is assisted by Marjah and Mlle. Leony, provides an excellent star turn here; the Four Amati Sisters give a most enjoyable musical turn, with classical piano quartettes and songs; in a different frame of mind, Phil Percival causes roars of laughter by his most amusing piano selections and burlesque drama; O'Malley and Brown are a comedy couple whose merits are well known here, and their new business is heartily enjoyed; Freda Spry and H. S. Monti give a most amusing and clever comedy and burlesque turn; Jessie Albine sings her chorus songs with lots of vim and go; John Macauley contributes a clever character sketch of an old pensioner; the Empire Comedy Four again cause hearty laughter at their amusing business; and the Prince Milner Trio display much ability as jugglers, wire walkers, and hoop manipulators.

PAVILION, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. Samuel Lloyd; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Evan Good.—A powerful dramatic sketch, entitled Gentlemen, the King, heads the bill here, and keeps the audience enthralled for fully half an hour. In the part of an old soldier Mr. Henry Bedford acts with notable power and pathos. The Great Four give an enjoyable comedy singing act; Jack Hayworth as a Scotch comedian makes a first-rate appearance, and is well received; Alice Golding once more gets a good reception for her chorus songs; Ross and Grayson provide lots of amusement in their comedy turn, introducing songs dances, and instrumental work; Cicardo is a juggler of special ability, his neatness and dexterity being exceptional; the Camille Lavis Trio give an American vaudeville turn, with some very smart dancing introduced; the Maningos are equilibrists of more than average ability; Margaret Ashton comedienne, in several catchy songs; and Sibb and Sibb, acrobats, complete a first-rate bill.

PALACE.—Proprietor, Mr. Rich Waldon; General Manager, Mr. Harry McKelvie.—A most attractive programme is submitted this week, and with the Ten Loonies at the head of affairs much enjoyment may be had; the Bros. Huxter are also extremely popular; an operatic scena is presented by Dora Barrington, who has the able assistance of Netta Gray, both ladies being in good voice. Valvero, with his Naval Bombardment, pays a return visit; Willie Gardner's skate dancing is appreciated thoroughly; Derenda and Green are makers of mirth; Edie Veno is a vivacious artist with good swinging choruses; Stuart and Morris appear with success in their dancing turn; Harris Coome, vocalist and dancer, meets with appreciation; and the Palascope films conclude.

COLISEUM.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; District-Manager, Mr. S. Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Burdette.—Harry Roxbury and company occupy the leading position here with Sergeant Longfellow; Ruth Davenport, who is very popular, sings selections from Dorothy in fine style; Miss Edie Gray has the assistance of two clever youthful dancers; and an item of exceeding interest is Mlle. Haydee's miniature vaudeville theatre. The other turns include Harry Anderson vocal comedian; Hugh Barclay, basso; O'Malley and Brown, comedians (who are deputising for Charles Matteson and company—unable to appear); and "The Book of Life," a living tableau.

PANOPTICON.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. A. E Pickard.—A capable lot of variety artists here include Perrugal, a clever and amusing ventriloquist; the Three Sisters Volka, comedy artists; Rosie Dawn, comedienne and dancer; Bob Merry, Scotch character comedian; and James Toner, newsboy mimic. The films are interesting.

GLOSSOP.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Sydney Spenser.—After being closed for a short season, this theatre reopened on Friday, the 24th ult., with Mr. and Mrs. Sydney Spenser's own company in the romantic comedy Peggy; or, Masks and Faces. As Sir Charles Pomander, Mr. S. Spenser ably portrayed the character of the man about town; Mr. W. Heilbronn was very good as the young country squire; Mr. Fred C. Imbert gave a good interpretation of the eccentricities of Lycimachus Triplet; Miss Elsie Heap and Miss Fanny Wallace were very fine in the parts of Mrs. Triplet and Mabel Vane; and Miss Lizzie Hall made a charming and vivacious Peg Woffington.

GLOUCESTER. — PALACE. — Owners, Messrs. Pooles' Theatres, Ltd.; Director, Mr. C. W. Poole.—The Christmas attractions here comprise the Brothers Gaudsmidt, celebrated clown acrobats, with performing dogs; Hayes and Merritt, bounding trampolinists; Amy Anderson and Co. in new sketch, Troubles On and Off the Stage; Thora, clever ventriloquist; Tee and Tee in a pot-pourri musical act; Rorke Rooke and Co. in the farcical burietta The Prince"s Love Affair; T. W. Lennar, comedian; Marget and Lener, with Wet Paint; and Irve Hayman and Co. in Christmas Eve. The Palascope concludes.

KING'S HALL.—Messrs. Poole, Ltd.—Animated pictures, the Cinephone, and special vocalists contribute a good entertainment here.

THE ELECTRIC THEATRES (1908), LTD., have obtained a long lease on the hall in Northgate-street, Gloucester, known as Goddard's Rooms. About £1000 has been spent on improving the entrance, making new and improving old exits, and general decoration, from plans by Mr. May, architect, of Plymouth. It is proposed to give a continuous performance from 2 p.m. to 10 p.m. Animated pictures form the chief item, with Mr. Theodore Arthur, entertainer and pianist. Mr. G. Boultwood is the courteous manager.

GREENOCK.—KING'S THEATRE.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. A. B. and J. J. Wright.—Shakespearean plays are being presented here by Miss Glossop-Harris's talented company, which opened on Monday with The Taming of the Shrew. Miss Florence Glossop-Harris portrayed with great effect the rôle of Katherine, being ably supported by Mr. Frank Cellier as Petruchio; Mr. James Mason provides a capable interpretation of Hortensio; and Miss Mary Goulden deserves high compliments for her portrayal of Bianca; Mr. Arthur Seaton as Baptista, Mr. Vernon O. Crabtree as Gremio, and Mr. Murray Skinnell as Lucentio were all successful. The Merchant of Venice, Romeo and Juliet, Hamlet, Twelfth Night, and The Merry Wives of Windsor are also in the bill.

HIPPODROME.—Lessee and Manager Mr. H. L Skivington.—Alfred Graham's Juveniles occupy the premier position on the bill, and are accorded a hearty reception; Cummin and Seaham are clever comedy acrobats; as duettists, Florence and Rose Showell earn loud applause, a most amusing sketch, entitled There's No Place Like Home, is presented by Mueller and Coyne; Allan Hanbury, in song and story, takes well; and Ada Gatley submits a graceful performance on the slack-wire. Pictures on the Dromoscope are good.

GRIMSBY.—PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. H. Curry; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. W. North.—After being closed for a week the theatre reopened on Monday with the romantic drama, From Convent to Throne. Miss Mary Fulton sustains her reputation admirably as Queen Maritza; Mr. Graham Woods gives a vigorous representation of Lieutenant Hapsburg; Mr. William J. Miller portrays the plotter, Baron Strelsau, in inimitable fashion; Mr. Arthur Estcourt acts with dignity as General von Hapsburg; Mr. A. F. Stuart is equally good as Prince Maurice; and others taking prominent parts are Miss Lissa Young as Caspar, Miss Maudie Grayson as Rosella, and Mr. T. G. Vane as Lieutenant Otto Felson.

THE PALACE.—General-Manager, Mr. F. Verner Walford.—The burlesque, Astronomy, presented by W. Fullbrook and company is full of amusing business, and is a great laughter provoker; Harry Taft repeats his former success as a comedian, and his clever whistling and good stories are equally appreciated; Texas Hattie is a coloured performer on the tight-rope, who accomplishes new and daring feats; Mike Cray combines clever jugglery with good comedy; the Tiger Lily gives a smart acrobatic dancing turn; Bert Weston is a comedian with original patter; and Miss Dorothy Dundas is a pleasing vocalist.

GUERNSEY. — ST. JULIAN'S THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. Ed. Marris; Acting-Manager, Mr. Stanley Hope.—On Boxing Night Mr. A. Clifton Alderson and his company opened with Home, Sweet Home. Mr. Alderson handled the part of Stephen Armitage with skill; a really good embodiment is the David Armitage of Mr. Frank Dalton; Mr. A. W. Norman effectively portrays the Duke, whose offspring is cleverly and humorously enacted by Mr. Sam Roberts; Mr. Leslie Vyner successfully represents Dick; and Mr. R. Faulconer gives the necessary colouring to the scheming Lucas Lyle. Miss Winifred Love's delineation of Joan is highly praiseworthy; Miss Effie D. Crawford very effectively handles the rôle of Sybil Fay; and Miss Violet Lets is successful as Sal Keary. The Coal King and East Lynne fill in the week.

HALIFAX.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Robinson; General-Manager Mr. Otto C. Culling.—Mr. F. Mouillot's company is here with A Message from Mars. Mr. A. Lovett is very good as Horace Parker; Mr. G. P. Polson plays with distinction as the Messenger from Mars; Mr. N. Clark gives a good rendering of the Tramp; Mr. A. Lugg is well placed as Arthur Dicey; Mr. D. Greene is exceptionally good as the Policeman; and Mr. A. C. Roife (Dr. Chapman), Mr. E. French (Sir E. Vivian), Mr. J. Mavis (Mr. Fergusson), Miss. E. Twitchen (Bella), are all good. Miss A. Ashton is splendid as Miss Parker; Miss R. Helene's Minnie Templar is a good portrayal; and the numerous small parts are all well played.

PALACE AND HIPPODROME, LTD.—Managing Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. T. H. Lambert.—Will Van Allen, the tramp musician, gives selections on various instruments in a clever manner, and has some humorous patter; Fritz Kornaw, the human flute, is a clever artist, and is well received; J. P. Carroll, soldier tambourinist, is an undoubted success; Sisters Henderson are two youthful and clever musicians; Dale and Vale give a smart dancing act, and meet with warm approval; the Francoli Troupe of pantomimists, and the Palace pictures complete.

GRAND THEATRE, LTD.—Managing Director, Mr. Wm. Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Resident-Manager, Mr. S. Winks.—Pictures form the principal attraction here. The singing and dancing of the Baltimore Quartette gave great satisfaction; as a coon singer and dancer J. J. Mannis is excellent; and Mlle. Ameda is a clever, daring, and graceful gymnast.

VICTORIA HALL.—The Carl Rosa Opera company is here this week in The Merry Wives of Windsor. The singing and acting of Mr. A. Winckworth as Sir John Falstaff is excellent; and Miss D. Woodell (Mrs. Page), Miss Ina Hill (Anne Page), and Miss B. Miranda (Mrs. Ford) were splendid, and all in magnificent voice. Mr. E. Davies is heard to great advantage as Fenton; Mr. C. Victor's singing and acting (Mr. Ford) are of a high order; Mr. F. Clendon ably takes the part of Mr. Page; and Mr. W. O'Connor (Master Slender) and Mr. A. Richard (Dr. Caius) showed undoubted ability. The other parts were finely played by Mr. T. Hamilton, Mr. A. Felton, Mr. B. Coe, Mr. F. Rowe, Mr. E. Hopwood, and Mr. C. Brearley. Miss Annie Elliott contributes some excellent dances. In Destiny, Miss Gertrude Vania is splendid as Leonora, using her magnificent voice with rare effect; Miss Woodall and Miss Wilson ably sustain the parts of Preziosilla and Curra; Mr. Davies scored another success as Don Alvaro; as Don Carlos Mr. Alan Turner, who is the possessor of a baritone voice of full range, sang exceedingly well, and received a tremendous ovation; Mr. A. Richard as the Marquis shows strong powers; Mr. A. Winckworth is eminently suited to the part of Father Guardiano; Mr. F. Clendon is equally well placed as Father Melitone; and Mr. W. O'Connor (Trabuco) and Mr. Frank Rowe (a Surgeon and the Alcade) were also very good. The hall was packed from floor to ceiling for Destiny, and good houses have been the rule. The other operas produced have been Faust, Carmen, The Marriage of Figaro, Tristan and Isolda, Tannhäuser, and Il Trovatore.

HAMILTON, N.B.—HIPPODROME.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Bostock; General-Manager, Mr. René Clayton; Musical-Director, Mr. J. Millar.—Sports in a Jungle, by the Donaldson company, with excellent scenery and effects, is proving a popular top-liner here this week. Nora Emerald, a dainty little lady, is a favourite in song and dance; Austen Temple is something unusual as a conjurer; The Martelloni lady acrobats are exceedingly clever and effective; L. W. Harris, light comedian, is an assured success; Ted Johnson and Belle de Vere are clever and amusing in a trick cycling act; and Musical Silvo, soloist on the musical glasses, and the bioscope conclude.

HANLEY.—GRAND.—Proprietor and Managing-Diretor, Mr. Chas. G. Elphinstone; Manager, Mr. Arthur Rand.—A fine programme is headed by the Mackweys, who in an eccentric comedy wire act cause quite a furore. Bob Hamilton, comedian, is "special Scotch"; Raymond's Biograph depicts A Christmas Story with wonderful success; Leoni Clarke, with his inimitable animal show, is received with great favour; Miss Rose Atherton's company in Murphy's Affinity are excellent; Bowden and Stoll in Jumps are loudly applauded; Harry Zetter is a huge success; the Denaro Bros. are wonderfully smart; and the Dean Bros. are delightful dancers.

HARROGATE. — GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. Peacock; Acting-Manager, Mr. Eric Fielding Smith.—Mr. Mark Blow and company presented for the first three nights of the week The Prisoner of Zenda. Mr. Blow as the redoubtable Rudolph Rassendyll secured the enthusiastic reception that his fine and thoroughly talented rendering of the part deserved; Mr. Julian Cross as Colonel Sapt gave a virile interpretation of that determined soldier; Mr. W. J. Stack played with telling strenuousness as Fritz von Tarlenheim; Mr. G. A. Brandram as the Duke of Streslau distinguished himself by his tragic intensity; Miss Agnes Verity's impersonation of Antoinette de Mauban was full of interest, her elocution being particularly commendable; Miss Ida Molesworth as the Princess Flavia invested her performance with dignity, dramatic force, and genuine charm; and the minor parts were all in good hands, and the romantic interest of the play was maintained throughout. For the remaining three nights of the week the same company are presenting The Little Damozel.

HARTLEPOOL.—EMPRESS.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Albert Maxsted.—The special item in this week's programme is provided by Paul Cavalli, an acrobatic athlete, equilibrist, musical virtuoso, and balancer, whose exhibition and splendid physique are much admired. The remainder of the entertainment is an excellent series of films by Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope Co. Noel is a charming picture illustrative of a waif's Christmas.

HASTINGS.—GAIETY THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. H. W. Rowland; Resident-Manager, Mr. Chas. E. Scutt.—On Monday a crowded house gave enthusiastic welcome to Mr. Robert Macdonald's company in The Dairymaids. An excellent chorus did full justice to the concerted numbers; and the increased orchestra, directed by Mr. Albert Vernon, rendered the music in irreproachable style. Miss Dorothy Grasdorff as Peggy sang very pleasantly Miss May Casson made a winsome Winifred, and her singing was also much appreciated; Mr. William Spray was an irrepressible Lieut. Sam Brudenell, whose merriment was infectious and his agility surprising; Mr. Herbert Lugg as Lieut. Frank Meredith, and Mr. Bernard Vaughan as Dr. O'Bryne gave excellent assistance; Mr. Edwin Dodds as Joe Mivens worked hard and with success in his humorous impersonation; Miss Edie Martin submitted a clever and amusing impersonation of Eliza; Miss Mabel Medrow was distingué as Lady Brudenell; and Miss Edna Russell was pleasing as Helen.

PIER PAVILION.—General-Manager, Mr. J. D. Hunter.—Mr. J. D. Hunter's thirtieth Christmas pantomime Jack and the Beanstalk is a bright and entertaining production. Jack (the hero) is charmingly represented by Miss Lallah Melrose; Miss Vera Dudley with a coquettish figure and winsome face, makes an ideal Jill. These two talented comediennes dance with grace and sing some pleasing songs; the Sisters Edwards in the parts of Boy Blue and Bo-Peep give a captivating performance; Miss Rene Ashley is very gentle and attractive as the Man in the Moon; in the part of Dame Trott Mr. J. D. Hunter has a mirth-provoking rôle and creates infinite amusement. Messrs. Mat Melrose, Phil Inglis, and Ford Beck cleverly contribute to the fun. The ladies of the ballet look attractive in their pretty dresses; and Mr. Surtees Corne, the musical director, has been exceedingly happy in his selections. Mr. R. Berré, the scenic artist, has provided some picturesque and lovely settings. A more joyous and mirthful entertainment it would be difficult to find.

HIPPODROME.—Lessee, Mr. H. B. Boyd; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Ewing.—The principal part of the evening is taken up with bioscopic pictures, interspersed by contributions from Miss Gena Manon, vocalist and soubrette; and the popular comedian, Johnny Dwyer.

HOYLAND. — HIPPODROME.—Owner and Manager, Mr. Scott Alexander; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Ferry.—Mr. Scott Alexander's company give a complete change of programme this week. The tabloid pantomime Babes in the Wood is all that can be desired, the gags and songs being quite up-to-date and the scenic effects very pretty. In the sketch The Word of a Judge Mr. Scott Alexander does justice to the character of Bill Wasp, and is ably supported by the company.

HUDDERSFIELD.—HIPPODROME, LTD. — Managing-Director, Mr. William Robinson; General-Manager, M. Otto C. Culling; Resident-Manager, Mr. N. M. Robinson.—During the three weeks this house has been closed a complete transformation has been effected in the interior. The new colour-scheme of decoration is a charming combination of an electric blue and gold. The stalls have been re-seated and carpeted, and screened by a new covered corridor past the pit. Two boxes have been added at about the stage level, and there is a new drop curtain by the company's principal scenic artist, Mr. F. Venimore, who has done a good impressionistic view of Kirkstall Abbey. The bill presented is a good one, and includes the Staley combination, in their ingeniously worked transformation act; Jules Kiaro, an expert hand balancer; Metz and Metz, a pair of merry comedians and graceful dancers; Miss Elsie Malpass, a precocious child mimic; H. C. Lovell and company, in a one-act burlesque, entitled Mam-selle Pom-pom; Chas. Russell, actor-vocalist; and Miss Agnes Molteno, in her well-known scena, Dolly and a Coach. Some interesting pictures fill up the bill.

PALACE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Herbert Garside.—The artists appearing are Miss Renee Graham, comedienne; the Maro Duo, a pair of skilled gymnastic comedians; Chas. Prelle, with his troupe of trained dogs, who perform original tricks; Thomas and Taylor, two comedians in a crisply worked quick-change turn, Fun on the Midland; Miss Josephine Crooke, with well illustrated songs; Miss Cissy Lupino, speciality dancer; Signor Arvi, presenting his mysterious Metablescope, a puzzling series of living pictures; and Harry Brown, coloured comedian; the Palace pictures are well chosen.

HULL.—GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Morton's, Ltd.; Mr. W. F. Morton, Manager.—Hull's only pantomime is being presented at this house by Mr. Elliston, who has hit the mark so far as the present taste in pantomime is concerned. The production is breezy and bright, and a corps of clever comedians keep the fun rolling merrily. The subject selected is the time-honoured story of Mother Goose, and both the old lady and her bird are treated with much skill by Mr. Harry Rich and Mr. Douglas Campbell. Mr. Rich invests the rôle with an originality that makes it highly acceptable; he runs clear of the stereotype vulgar old women of pantomime. He remembers that pantomimes have attraction for children, and so steers clear of what with many so-called comedians is thought humorous. The Jack of Mr. Chas. Rich will be one of the outstanding features of the pantomime. The work of Miss Violet Romaine, the singing fairy, is so much above the average that it can be written without disparagement to the other ladies that she stands foremost amongst them; she has been gifted with a sweet voice, finely under control and sings her allotted numbers with consummate ability and skill. Her reading of "Somewhere" is one of the pantomime hits. The Dutch Girl of Miss Lola Patey will no doubt attract a host of admirers. Miss Ethel Hall finds plenty of work in the rôle of principal boy. Mr Fred Barnes sings with much verve; the Dude is conceived on conventional lines by Mr. Henri Dori; the Alhambra Girls are to be credited with pleasing dances, and one of the best musical numbers in a "swing song." The pantomime should keep the business brisk until the 22nd inst., when it starts on its journey.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Morton's, Ltd.; Mr. Geo. Morton, Manager.—The Christmas attraction at this house is melodrama. The play selected is Her Secret Lover. It is the right sort to tempt a holiday audience, who received the play and the performers with much enthusiasm on Boxing Night. The House Full boards were very early put out, and those present made manifest their pleasure in no unstinted fashion. The authoress, Mrs. F. G. Kimberley, has given the play the proper amount of thrills, and Miss Lilian Herries plays the part of Ivy Seymour with fine force; while the husband finds a capable representative in Mr. Harry F. Wood. Mr. Walter Clarke carries the house with him as Capt. Darrell Rose; whilst the heavy rôle is well sustained by Mr. Douglas B. Watson, who finds a counterpart in the excellent work put in by Miss Amy Ellam. The play this week is truly the thing, judging by the support accorded.

HYDE. — EMPIRE AND THEATRE ROYAL. — Lessees Central Theatres and Franco-British Picture Co.; Managing-Director and Licensee, Mr. W. Turner; Resident-Manager, Mr. Ernest Percival.—Sherlock Holmes, capitally represented by H. Hamilton Stewart's company, is proving a strong holiday attraction. Mr. Stewart imparts dramatic dignity to the title-rôle, and holds the interest of the audience throughout; the subtle cunning of old Moriarty is excellently delineated by Mr. Charles Brandon; Mr. Arnold O. Raper accentuates the villainy of James Larabee; Mr. Eric Mordon is a gentlemanly Dr. Watson; as Alice Faulkner Miss Grace Pearl is soon in sympathetic touch with the house; Miss Edith Vogue as Madge Larabee plays a thankless part very well; and Miss Maisie Richardson is delightfully vivacious as Therese.

STANSFIELD'S HIPPODROME.—A popular programme includes Sidney Clifford, Alec Kendal, Mary Preston, Jacke Truman, and Jim Topping.

ILKESTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. L. F. A Rogers.—Mrs. Frank Bateman and company are here playing The Way Women Love and Camille. The Way Women Love was put on on Monday evening, when, in the rôle of Verene Alabra, Mrs. Bateman proved her cleverness. Miss Camille Treherne gave a pleasing performance of Violet Tremaine; Mr. Fred W. Goddard's excellent representation of Captain Howard Tremaine won much applause; Mr George Herbert as John Barryford and Miss Dolly Clarke as Frank had suitable parts; Miss Mattie Everett (Lottie Gray) and Mr. Will White (Ben Barcombe) worked well in their respective spheres; and Mr. Percy Shaw was smart as Dick Palmer, his whistling solos being encored. Mr. George Harvey was seen as Leslie Lamont, the evil genius.

INVERNESS.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr. Burgess.—Mr. James Stephen's company opened here on Monday with Our Boys. The part of Sir Geoffrey Champneys was well played by Mr. J. C Miller, and Mr. James Hart was good as Talboy. Mr. James Stephen was very successful as Perkyn Middlewick. Miss Lillian Beaumont as Violet Melrose, Miss Lucie Victor as Mary Melrose, Miss Louise Cooper as Clarissa Champneys, and Miss Viviane Douglas as Belinda all acted their parts well. The rest of the rôles were in good hands.

IPSWICH.—LYCEUM THEATRE.—Messrs. Lyn Harding and Sidney Cooper's company in the Flag Lieutenant is playing to crowded houses. Vice-Admiral the Hon. Berkeley Wynne, K.C.B., in the hands of Mr. Mark Paton, is an admirable piece of acting; the Richard Lascelles of Mr. Hastings Lynn is an excellent study, as also is the part of John Penrose by Mr. Stanley Groome and the Thesiger of Mr. Frederick Leister; Christopher Neate is played by Mr. Stephen Gatling and Crutchley by Mr. Edward Mervyn; Messrs. Geoffrey Wilkinson and Guy Lanham are an amusing pair of midshipmen; the difficult part of Mrs. Cameron is well portrayed by Miss Mabel Rees; and as Lady Hermione Wynn Miss Rita Johnson made a good impression. The minor parts are well filled and the staging and dresses excellent.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. E. H. Bostock.—An excellent bill this week is drawing crowded houses. Secner and Fridkin's clever troupe of Russian singers and dancers are great favourites; the Four Mexicans, lariat wonders and lasso manipulators, give a really marvellous performance; Phil Parsons is a light comedian in the best sense and sings delightfully; Chas. F. Best as McBunker, the mountebank, has a very amusing turn; the Bouncing Pips are an agile troupe of comedy gymnasts, their horizontal bar and invisible net performance exciting great wonder; Miss Nellie Coleman is very pleasing in her impersonation of male characters; Dome is a clever and amusing clay modeller and a versatile actor; and Billy French, the wooden shoe dancer, is very popular. The Bioscope concludes.

JARROW.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. H. Lionel Locke.—Mr. C. Watson Mills' company is here, with For Love and the King. Mr. Alfred Maurice gives a striking rendering of Michael Obrenovic; Mr. F. J. Webb is a powerful Valdimir; and King Hara Dragomir is carefully handled by Mr. Frank Lindon. Mr. F. K. Wickstead does full justice to the part of Prince Uros; and Mr. G. Chate is well placed as Duke Fernand. Mr. C. Watson-Mill is a manly Gerald Meredith; Miss R. Tate, a most effective Edith Meredith; Miss Ellis a capable Natilia; and to the rôle of Grazia Obrenovic full justice is done by Miss Marie D. Smith. Mr. Oscar Power revels in the part of Carl Oppenneim.

JERSEY.—OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee, Mr. Edward Marris; Acting-Manager, Mr. Stanley Hope.—Messrs. Smith and Carpenter's company is presenting Pete. Miss V Malcolm Barnett as Kate Cregeen shows herself an actress of ability; Mr. Austin Milroy is most convincing in the name part; Mr. Alfred Gray plays conscientiously as Philip Christian; Mr. Frank Stone does well as Cæsar Cregeen; Miss Lucy Murray brings down the house as Nancy; Mr. J. Edward Fletcher appears as Ross Christian; and the numerous other characters are capably undertaken.

KILMARNOCK. — KING'S THEATRE.—Lessees, Wilson's Electric Empires; Manager, Mr. Wilfred M. Lawson.—The principal item on this week's bill is the stirring sketch The Corsican Brothers, presented by the Francis-Harold company. Mr. J. P. Dryden gives a talented rendering of the dual part, Fabian and Luis de Franchi, and Mr. F. Carlile is good as M. de Chateau Renaud. Miss Callagan (a local amateur) plays the parts of Mme. de Franchi and Emilie de L'Esparre with feeling. Miss Annie Estelle is a dainty comedienne and dancer. On the Bioscope the principal pictures are Death of the Duke D'Enghien and The Poachers. Business is good.

LANCASTER.—GRAND THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Stanley Rogers; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. C. Howitt.—A remarkably clever company, under the management of Mr. Louis Calvert, is presenting Sunday. Miss Janet Lind gives a delightful rendering of the title-rôle; Mr. William Gifford is a capable exponent of Colonel Brinthorpe and Mr. Boyce Wellams of Arthur Brinthorpe. Mr. Richard Trieve as Tom Oxley gives an effective portrayal; and the contrasting characters of the four "boys" are well sustained by Mr. Richard F. Symons as Towzer. Mr. Launcelot St. G. Lowther as Davy, Mr. James Hussy as Lively, and Mr. George Marriott, jun., as Jacky. Miss H. Graham Edwine is a pleasing Mrs. Naresby; and Miss Gladys Hewitt makes a charmingly natural Nun. The play is well staged, and has proved a big attraction.

LEAMINGTON. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Lessees, Messrs. Dottridge and Longden; Resident-Manager, Mr. Chas. H. Longden; Assistant-Manager, Mr. John Halifax.—A very fine holiday attraction is provided here by Mr. W. W. Kelly's company, which is appearing to appreciative audiences in A Royal Divorce. Mr. Keith Fraser gives a forceful performance of Napoleon, bringing out the various characteristics attributed to the great Emperor with striking effectiveness; Miss Violet Ellicott's Josephine is a very queenly figure, played with great taste; whilst the Marie Louise of Miss Winnie Tempest is also a successful performance. Mr. Percy H. Vernon is an excellent Talleyrand, and the leaders of Napoleon's army find clever exponents in Mr. Edwin J. Collins as Angereau, Mr. Harold S. Standing as Marshal Murat, Mr. Edward Longford as Brigadier Antoine, and Mr. Lawton Orme as Brigadier Pierre. Other performances worthy of special mention are the Stephanie of Miss Dorothy Garth, the Marquis De Beaumont of Mr. C. Stirling, the little King of Rome of Miss Dorothy Hudson; whilst Mr. J. J. Gordon, Mr. C. Jackson, and Mr. J. O'Brien also fulfil commendable parts. The tableaux of the battle of Waterloo and of the conqueror overthrown are most realistic settings. On Friday evening Miss Violet Ellicott was accorded a benefit performance.

LEEDS.—GRAND THEATRE.—Cinderella was produced on Boxing Night with much success, and owing to the crowded state of the theatre and standing room being at a premium we hold the notice over till next week.

EMPIRE.—District-Manager, Mr. T. Gerald Morton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Alex Galley.—Prominent in a strong holiday bill are the Russian Singers (eleven in number), who render some Russian folk-songs; Herbert Darnley's company supply some uproarious fun in The Barnstormers; Miss Gladys Hooley renders some violin solos in fine style; and Marshall and Parr, The Kramers, Braata's Dogs, Richard Taylor, Lizzie Glenroy, and Alf Maynell also successfully contribute.

BARRASFORD'S HIPPODROME.—Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry Dunford.—Mr. James Kiddie presents Dick Whittington here, and packed houses are the result. Miss Lena Page makes a capital Dick and Alice is daintily taken by Miss Florrie Warner. Messrs. Dennis McCarthy, Burt Hudson, Charley Chard, Tom Gott, and Clifton and Gibson are comedians of merit, who work well together; and Miss Flo Hilton possesses much vivacity in a principal character.

THE VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr. Fred Wood; Booking-Manager, Mr. Johnny Whiteman; Acting-Manager, Mr. Sam Jones.—Appearing here are Albertus and Millar, Jack Hartley, Helen Martin, W. H. Downs, the Forsyths, and the Three Miltons.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Fred Wood; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Bush.—The Cattaneo Troupe, Hall Rees' Stable Lads, Randolph King, and the Delvaines are appearing here.

LEICESTER.—PALACE THEATRE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; District-Manager, Mr. Hatton Wharton; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. Finch-Hatton; Assistant-Manager, Mr. W. S. Buccleuch.—Enormous audiences here on Bank Holiday were enthusiastic in their praise of the excellent programme submitted, at the head of which was Victoria Monks, the popular comedienne, whose songs were most successful. A big hit was made by Giovanni Wals, the Spanish Caruso, his powerful and dramatic singing being quite a feature; the Dandies are prominent with a thoroughly delightful and versatile turn; Larry Lewis is a first-rate comedian, who evokes much laughter; the Crisps are very smart in their dancing act; the Three Delaries give a clean, clever, and novel performance on the triple trapeze; Harry Hemsley is good in his caricatures, sketches, and impersonations; Violet Stockelle is a capital comedienne; James Curwell, described as a Liverpool newsboy, proved himself to be a pianist of ability; and the pictures are of the usual entertaining nature.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Acting-Manager, Mr. P. Allerton Turner.—A very hearty reception is being accorded to Mr. J. Forbes Knowles' excellent company in the sensational domestic drama Her Marriage Vow. The various parts are done full justice to, Miss May Richardson as Kate Walker being especially good. The effects are well worked and the staging of the drama leaves nothing to be desired.

LEIGH.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor, Mr. J. W. Cragg; Manager, Mr. W. Heath.—Messrs. F. Marriott Watson and James Ussher's company is paying a return visit with The Face at the Window. Mr. Augustine Knight gives a powerful portrayal of Lucio Delgado; Mr. T. W. Dunscombe plays with excellent judgment and artistic finish as Paul Gouffet; Mr. Charles H. Phelps gives a clever rendition of Lucien Courtier; in the somewhat trying part of Marie de Brisson Miss Clare O'Sullivan is successful; while the Petit Pottlebury is Mr. John A Stimson and the Babette of Miss Francis Day are amusing.

GRAND THEATRE AND HIPPODROME, LTD.—Secretary and Acting-Manager, Mr.

...horace, Marjorie, and Princess Zorilda. Rodent the Rat and Thomas the Cat are made effective by the singing of Mr. Clifton Hall and the antics of Mr. James Stratton. The comedians are in strength, including, besides Mr. Russell, Mr. Bert Maddison as Alderman Fitzwarren, Mr. Jack McKenzie as Sarah the cook, and Mr. Bert Edwards, with Little Tichbourne, as Toby Fore and Bob Aft. Songs, wheezes, and dances go off with éclat, and bring repeated encores. Mr. G. Kinnaird is a good Emperor of Morocco; the Eight Esmeralda Girls put in a series of gratifying appearances as dancers; and a pretty fairy scena, entitled "The Enchanted Tree," by Mr. John Darlison, in which the author, assisted by Miss Jean Brodie and twenty little lasses of Leith take part, forms a very bright interlude.

LIVERPOOL. — ROTUNDA THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery.—Mr. Edwin C. Jazon's pantomime, Dick Whittington, is doing good business. The production is an excellent one, having artistic scenery and a good all-round company with plenty of spirit. Miss Maud Beaumont holds the title-rôle, which she handles with charm; Mr. Fred Ward as Idle Jack proves a great laughter-maker; Miss Ena Compton is a sprightly Alice, and looks pretty; the fun is greatly helped by Messrs. William Miller (Fitzwarren), Justin and Mantell (Captain and Mate), Bob Stephenson (Cook), and Willie Vanda (Cat). Mr. Pete Vote is an imposing Emperor; and specialities are introduced by the Vandas, wire performers, Pearce and Ward, with a comedy act, Salida and Vone, creole performers, and Clara Coverdale's Nine Dainty Dots, child vocalists and dancers.

STAR THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Harris Fineberg.—The old-time drama Alone in London is having a capital presentation here this week by Mr. Charles Gibbon's company, which comprises a number of artists of merit. Miss Nelly Clyde deservedly earns the sympathies of her audience by her pathetic portrayal of Nan; another touching part is that of Little Paul, agreeably interpreted by Miss Hetty Hornsby; Mr. Russell Norrie makes a strong John Biddlecombe; the Richard Radcliffe of Mr. Gerald Jordon is a good piece of work; Mr. J. W. Wilkinson acts well as old Jenkinson; and the minor parts are also ably held.

KELLY'S THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. W. W. Kelly; Acting-Manager, Mr. Reginald Grant.—Here we have A Country Girl, which has come for a fortnight's stay. Messrs. Dudley Bennett and T. C. Wray's company give a most acceptable rendering of the popular musical comedy, and large audiences are thoroughly enjoying it. Miss Anna Hikisch makes a delightful Nan, and her excellent voice is heard with pleasure in several songs; Miss Dorothy Arliss plays Marjorie Joy with a quiet grace that is agreeable to witness; Mr. Coningsby Brierley causes his audience to roar with laughter by reason of his busy Barry; Mr. Nelson Hancock well fits the rôle of Geoffrey Challoner; Miss Addie Lennard proves a lively Sophie, and adds to the fun; and Mr. J. W. Bruce does everything necessary with Mr. Raikes, the Rajah. The chorus is a full and accomplished one, and the dresses are very pretty.

EMPIRE.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Manners.—The big line here this week is a fine musical performance given by Olga Petronowa and her English military band. The selections played are received with manifestations of delight. La Bert gives some exceedingly pretty transformation dances, that in the flames being particularly effective; a merry farce, Dolly's Deception, comes from John Scott and company; Harry Grey has a hearty reception for his funny impersonations; Nina Wood provides a delightful musical turn at the piano; Ugo Nap causes continuous laughter with his burlesque scena Home Without a Mother; as comedy acrobats Goggin and Davis score largely; the Cumberlands go through some remarkable acrobatic work on cycles; and Olive Armidale, soubrette, also appears.

LYRIC.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Henry C. Arnold. — A neat little pantomime, Jack and the Beanstalk, is here this week, included in Mr. Jack Haddon's company being Miss Alma Obrey, a smart principal boy; Miss Ida Brophy (Dora); Mr. Bob Baxter, a very funny Silly Billy; Mr. Gordon Brookes, who, as Dame, is exceedingly diverting; Mr. Hal Forde, sen. (Squire); the Tintos (Dip and Dap); Mr. Tom Packard (Giant); and Miss Marie Rayner (Wicked Fairy). The engagement is for a fortnight.

ROYAL HIPPODROME. — Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford; Resident-Manager, Mr. Walter Hassan.—Aladdin is the title of the pantomime which Miss Edith St. Clare has brought here this week. It is bright and compact, just the sort of entertainment to suit a two-hours' audience. Miss Edith St. Clare is Aladdin, a captivating, dashing rôle which finds general favour, that artist's vocal numbers being received with satisfaction; a delightful Princess is submitted by Miss Nan Farren, whose song and step dance earn loud applause; Mr. Bob King proves an exceedingly droll Widow Twankey; the Emperor is ably presented by Mr. Frank Wood; and others who help with the fun are Mr. Harry Shaw (China's G.O.M), and Messrs. Fremel and Fremel (Chinese Policemen). The Sisters Volbecque look well as the young Princess; Miss Marian Bradshaw acts effectively as the Genie of the Cave; Mr. Fred Russell ably impersonates Abanazar; and Mr. Robert Gilmore has some funny antics.

ROYAL PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank O'Toole.—Fun on the Bristol, given here by the stock company, is receiving big public patronage. The principal parts are in the good keeping of Messrs. E. D. Allen, Tom H. Solly, Leo Montgomery, Sydney Grant, Harry Tresham, R. Seath Innes, and Cecil Ravenswood; Misses Lillian Radbourne, Gertrude Entwistle, and Gertrude Gilman. Mr. Anthony Brown's Bioscope has the latest pictures.

OLYMPIA.—District-Manager, Mr. Horace Cole; Acting-Manager, Mr. Ernest Wighton.—Top of the bill here this week we have Mr. F. Stuart-Whyte and company in the dramatta 1643, which is watched with pleasurable interest; the Wizard and Irene Stone go through a daring motor cycle feat in the "Globe of Life"; the Barowskys have a sensational acrobatic act; Miss Alexandra Dagmar earns a flattering reception for her popular and catchy songs; Mme. Elizabeth Burgess renders some soprano songs in true artistic manner; Mona Garrick shows high powers as an impersonator of characters from famous plays; Jack Smiles is as funny as ever; Harry Drew sings some fine bass songs; Taree, the Australian bushman, has an accomplished musical turn; and Carney and Armstrong excel in song, dance, and patter.

PAVILION.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Manager, Mr. George F. Slatter.—Tiller's Jack and Jill pantomime is here again. Twelve months ago its week's stay was witnessed by some 50,000 people, there being three daily performances, and now that this really admirable show has returned, the vast theatre is being crowded nightly. New songs are introduced, as well as a deal of fresh business. Included in the excellent cast are the Misses Lilian Doris (Fairy), Francis Delane (Wicked Genius), Harriett Fawn (Prince), Nellie Rodney (Princess), Alice Maude and Gladys Satchwell (Jack and Jill); and Messrs. Harry Cotton (the Baron), Bruce Green (Dame), Horace Jones (Ginger), and the Le Crens (General and Private). A number of capital specialities are introduced, the "Gathering of the Clans" ballet being loudly cheered.

LOWESTOFT.—MARINA.—Manager, Mr. E. A. Smith.—This week we have the first presentment locally of the drama From Shop Girl to Duchess, which is carefully interpreted by Mr. Geo. Kirk's company. Miss Mary Neil is seen to great advantage as Sylvia Grey, the shop girl, and other characters are creditably filled. The scenery and effects are good.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. Geo. Gilbert; Manager, Mr. W. Alvar.—The holiday bill includes Lilian, a clever lady cyclist; Gladys Wells, contralto; Stelling and his educated dog Kiswaski; Harry Keeble, ventriloquist; and Fields and Mansell, lightning painters and jugglers. Some highly interesting subjects are shown on the Biograph.

MACCLESFIELD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. W. K. Gatley.—Mr. Montague Beaudyn and company opened on Monday to a crowded house in For Honour and Revenge. Mr. Beaudyn is excellent as James Galston; Harry Travers is well depicted by Mr. Edward Dunston; Mr. C. D. Pitt as Sir Gilbert Redville and Mr. A. Cresswell as Arthur Redville are capital; Joe Reckitts has a capable exponent in Mr. A. A. Tomlin; Miss Irene Munroe gives a charming rendering of Maud Deamond; Miss Irene Stanhope presents a pleasing Mary Galston; and as Nancy O'Brien Miss Phyllis Rae deserves much praise.

MAIDENHEAD.—TOWN HALL.—Secretary, the Town Clerk.—Dr. Seaton's Animated Photograph and Concert company came here for the first half of the week. Very interesting and amusing pictures were shown, and relief was provided by Miss Amy Wooderson, a pleasing vocalist, and Mr. Albert Trillo, an accomplished ventriloquist.

MANCHESTER.—PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietors, the United Theatres Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. George Lee.—"Until further notice" Mr. George Edwardes's company is established here in Our Miss Gibbs, the latest London success in musical comedy. The presence of Miss Gertie Millar in the cast is alone sufficient to draw large crowds, and on Monday afternoon, as well as evening, the house was packed to its utmost limits. Needless to say, the title-rôle was charmingly filled by Miss Millar, who carried off the prime honours, though the whole cast is one of extraordinary merit. An especial favourite is Mr. George Gregory, who adds to previous successes a distinctly comic rendering of Timothy Gibbs, Mary's country cousin. Mr. Lionel Mackinder as the Hon. Hughie Pierrepoint, the amateur criminal, and Mr. Robert Nainby as the professional crook, Slithers, are strong features; and in quiet but effective style Mr. Ernest Mahar makes all that is possible of Mr. Toplady, the manager at Garrod's. Mr. H. V. Cropton as Lord Eynsford plays in accomplished style; Mr. W. E. Richardson is quite satisfactory as the Earl of St. Ives; and Mr. Campbell Bishop does all that is necessary as Mr. Beavis, the solicitor. As Lady Elizabeth Thanet Miss Marie Wilson displays real talent and humour; and good work is done also by Miss Dora Sevening as Mme. Jeanne, Miss Grace Wixon as the Duchess of Minster, and Miss May Marton as the impecunious Mrs. Farquhar. The dresses and staging are beautiful, and there can be no doubt that the piece will have a successful run.

ROYAL OSBORNE THEATRE. — Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Mason. — The attraction here is the well-known drama, The Midnight Wedding, played by Messrs. Paumier and Howard's company. On this occasion, one of many recent appearances, Mr. Alfred Paumier is seen once more in the part of Paul Valmar, while Miss Margaret Brodie plays with success as Princess Astrea, the other parts being filled with good effect.

GRAND JUNCTION THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Brearley.—Messrs. Sutton and Raynor's company, here this week, have added to their programme a performance of The Young Mrs. Winthorpe, the répertoire for the week consisting of four plays.

QUEEN'S PARK HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. W. Meek.—A well-arranged holiday programme here is headed by Change, the Jewels' successful protean sketch; which is agreeably supplemented by the famous Lyons Trio, the Normans, in their military song scena, Talbot Rhodes, comedian, the Carmody Trio of jugglers and acrobats, Frances Hanlon, comedienne and dancer, and Milton and Horton, the grotesque Chinese.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Dry.—A capital programme is provided here, with George Mozart as the big turn and a decided attraction. Atlas and Vulcana are marvellous weight-lifters; Leslie's Comedy Cadets are successful in their naval scena; and Harry Blake, comedian, is very amusing with his patter. Pleasing items are contributed also by Sydney Brandon in scenes from Dickens; Ted Waite, comedian; Frank E. Ford, coloured comedian and dancer; Will Willis, comedian; and the Three Clarks, Canadian club throwers.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Hall.—The top turn here this week is Taylor Granville's sketch, The Hold-Up, which, besides being interesting and dramatic, is well described as presenting the most realistic railway effects ever seen upon the stage; a funny burlesque, "Dr. Awful Bogie, M.D." is provided by "One Who Knows"; the Four Eugenes are seen in a very fine aerial gymnastic performance; Mendel, the blind pianist, is well received, as usual; the Sisters Storm give a nice turn in song and dance; France and Stewart play well in their bright comedy, The Hundred to One Chance; the De Breans, fancy Japanese entertainers, are much enjoyed; and other good turns are Frank Cass, the popular vocalist, and Maud and Sydney Wood, duettists and dancers.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. Nelson Barry.—Excellent fare is provided here, the principal item being the production of The Motor Chase, the sensation from the London Hippodrome. This is well put on, well acted, and highly appreciated. An extraordinarily good turn also is that of the Okabe family of Japanese acrobats; the Durant Brothers give a fine comic speciality; Leipzig, the Royal conjurer, shows wonderful expertness with cards; and other enjoyable items are Les Marsumas, comedians on wheels; Wal Croft (and Kathleen Naughton), in "The Last Roll-Call"; John Bardsley, the well-known tenor vocalist; and Odeyne Spark, in song and dance.

PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Frece; Manager, Mr. A. J. Carter.—In addition to "Skating," produced last week, we have here Al Fields and Dave Lewis, American comedians, in some lively and novel business; Dorothy Toye, a lady with a phenomenal voice; Arthur Stacey, comedian; the Two Lillys, in a smart equilibristic act; and Milner and Storey, comedy duo.

TIVOLI.—Managing-Director, Mr. Charles A. Wilkes; Manager, Mr. Arthur B. Wilkes.—An interesting programme here comprises Ernest Legh and company in the drunken scene from David Garrick; Marie Pera and company in "Two Doors in a Passage"; the Luzellas, in a refined gymnastic mélange; Gladys Witton, contralto and comedienne; George Porter, comedian; Mr. and Mrs. George Leonard, in "Coming Home"; Mary Law, a charming and clever violinist; Allen and Austin, comedians and dancers; and May Newall, soprano vocalist.

KING'S THEATRE, LONGSIGHT.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. James R. Trippett.—The principal attraction here this week is Billy Williams, the man in the velvet suit, whose comedy is much enjoyed. A capital turn also is that of the Elton Foy company, in their gymnastic act; and the Ten Dixie Girls score in a vocal and dancing scena. Other good turns are Stanley and Vandyke, comedy duo; Ernest Tilbury, tenor vocalist; Goodall and Knox, comedians; the Max Troubillion troupe; and George Robinson, character comedian.

ALHAMBRA THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Managing-Director, Mr. H. D. Moorhouse; Manager, Mr. Arthur Preston.—Pantomime has held sway here this week, and has proved a huge success. The Sleeping Beauty is well written on traditional lines, and proves a wholesome entertainment of beauty and fun, the scenery being delightful, while the comedians cause roars of laughter. Mr. Tubby Edlin as the Demon's Son makes himself a favourite, his funny mannerisms and gags being really clever; Miss Lilian Elliott is a charming principal boy; Miss Ivy Moore is also delightful in the principal girl part; Mr. H. Davis, Mr. Tom Shenton, and Mr. Willie Black also prove acceptable in their respective parts, while specialities are presented by the Three Martinettes; Tom Shenton and Chicks; the Eight Oowana Girls; John S. Leick, cornettist; and Mabel Keith. The pantomime as presented at Openshaw should have a huge run of success.

MANSFIELD.—GRAND.—Managing Director, Capt. Clayton; Assistant-Manager, Mr. F. Clayton.—Miss Lena Stanton and Mr. Harry E. Joseph's company in the pantomime Dick Whittington opened on Boxing Night to a record house. Miss Lena Stanton, already a great favourite here, gains fresh laurels as Dick; Mdlle. Le Mair, a winsome Alice, sings and dances daintily; and the Sisters Holman repeat their success of last year in their duet and dance. Little Keeno, the boy comedian, as Sexton Blake is making a hit; although youthful, Keeno is rapidly developing into a comedian, and accomplishes some effective step-dancing. Mr. G. Grogie as Margarina is an extremely funny dame; Mr. F. Owen Hunter a good Fitzwarren; and Mr. J. Harrington as Idle Jack introduces some smart patter. Mr. Hector Strange as the Cat imitates in lifelike manner many characteristic mannerisms of the feline tribe. Specialities are introduced by Little Keeno; the Sisters Holman, vocalists and dancers; the Pagoda troupe of dancers; Vic Verney, American whistler; the Brothers Hinson, patter comedians; and the Zola troupe of acrobats, who give a most able performance.

MARGATE.—HIPPODROME.—Managing-Directors, Messrs. Fredk. Mouillot and Walter de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. Mayall.—The holiday programme has attracted large audiences. Jean and Josie are remarkable lady contortionists; Florence Leonard, in her melody of Scotch songs, is good, and Phil Kaufmann, descriptive vocalist, sings with success; Captain Kettle, comedy coin and card manipulator, evokes laughter and applause; the Hamiltons, comediennes and dancers, are thoroughly deserving of the recognition they secure; and Elsie Kerry, comedienne, and A. W. Scott, coon delineator and dancer, also have a favourable reception.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Edward Michael; General Manager, Mr. Frank Weathersby.—Mr. Frank Weathersby's company has been presenting the powerful military drama Two Little Drummer Boys. The title-rôles are taken with excellent effect by Miss Nellie Morris and Miss Marjory Armstrong, as Eric Carsdale and Jack Smith respectively. Mr. Alec Forbes as Captain Carsdale gives a very creditable performance. The rôle of the heroine, Alma Kingsley, is undertaken with complete success by Miss Beatrice Shirley, and Mr. James Howard gives due weight and dignity to the part of General Kingsley. The villainy of Captain George Darrell is depicted with telling emphasis by Mr. Gerald Kennedy, and two amusing "Tommies" are found in Mr. Alfred Holt as Private O'Quirke and Mr. Chris Ainslie as Private Timothy Trimmer. The erring young lieutenant, Allen Kingsley, is ably portrayed by Mr. J. G. Campling, and Miss Nellie Murray's Margaret Rivers is a touching portrayal. As the servant, Molly Meadows, Miss Alice Fane is bright and pleasing.

METHIL.—GAIETY THEATRE.—Proprietors, The Methil Theatre Co., Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. John C. Burnett.—Mr. Montague Beaudyn's company is the attraction here with Send Him Victorious. Mr. G. M. Montanini ably depicts the villainous Colonel Kaufman; no less successful is Miss Sidney Crowe's portrayal of Countess Kara von Mechlinberg; Mr. Herbert Skardon is a manly Captain Frank Allison; Mr. Charles Russell is exceedingly well placed as Sergeant Max. Comedy relief is supplied by Mr. Bert Woodin as Geordie Walker and Miss Madge Palmer as Gretchen Holtz; Miss Netta Mitchell is effective as Ethel Harding. Elaborate dresses, uniforms, and staging aid success of the drama.

MIDDLESBROUGH. — THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor, Mr. J. Chas. Imeson; Acting-Manager, Mr. George Imeson.—Messrs. J. M. Polini and Austin Melford's company is fulfilling a welcome engagement with The Silver King. Miss Mildred Surrey ably sustains the trying character of Nelly Denver; in the title-rôle Mr. Fred D. Daviss is most successful; Mr. Edward J. George plays the popular part of Jaikes competently; the "Spider" is capably delineated by Mr. Arthur H. Rooke; and Elijah Coombe is in the capable hands of Mr. Arthur Wright. The play is well staged.

EMPIRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Charles G. Rembges.—Percy Honri and his colossal combine in Concordia meets with well-deserved success; Dusty Rhodes, the favourite comedian, does well; the Bouncing Dillons are a popular turn; and the Venola Bros., comedy gymnasts, Johnny Walker, in song and story, Will Newton, baritone, and the Empire pictures, all go well. Good houses rule.

HIPPODROME.—Estrella provides an entertaining speciality act, and a number of capital pictures are drawing at the "Hip."

MOTHERWELL. — NEW CENTURY THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager. Mr. Chisholm Taylor. — Fred Karno's company is paying a return visit in His Majesty's Guests. Mr. George Heston as Sergeant Lightning keeps the house in perpetual laughter; Mr. E. O. Freshwater admirably sustains the rôle of Lord Easem, and Miss Jessie Crammonde is equally good as Lady Maud; Mr. Chas. Ushen is excellent as the bumptious Mr. Miffins, Mr. G. Gordon does well as Minks, Fritz, the doorkeeper, being admirably rendered by Mr. S. Bolton; Dolly Miffin is played by Miss Edith Ager, and Miss Manley is suitably represented by Miss Annie Wright.

MUSSELBURGH.—GAIETY.—Proprietor, Mr. Hugh Ritchie; Resident-Manager, Mr. Walter Walla.—During Christmas week we had a short visit from Mr. A. W. B. Kingston and company with Jeanie Deans, Maria Martin, and Old Edinburgh. This week Mr. E. H. Knight's company is in occupation with The Lighthouse Robbery. The principal parts are in the hands of Miss Hilda Baynton, Mr. Percy Beresford, and Baby Freda.

NEATH.—GWYN HALL.—Lessee, Mr. J. W. Robinson.—Miss Inez Howard's company, under the direction of Mr. Henry Chattell, presented Pete to a crowded house on Boxing night. Mr. Geo. R. J. Austin as Pete is all that can be desired; Mr. Guy P. Ellis proves himself an actor of ability as Philip Christian; Mr. William J. Rae gives a meritorious rendering of Ross Christian; and Mr. Clem Horlock gives a good reading of Cæsar Cregeen. A talented actress is Miss Margaret Savill, and as Kate she is a great success; a vivacious Nancy is Miss Katie Flood; and Miss Maud Randford as Grannie is capable. The scenic effects are excellent.

NELSON.—GRAND THEATRE.—Mr. Horner, proprietor of the Burnley Victoria Opera House and the Empire, has taken over the Grand, which was re-opened on Christmas Eve, when the stirring drama, With Edged Tools, was played.

PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. Benson; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. Shaw.—The bill of fare this week is excellent. The programme includes Callahan and St. George, American sketch artists; Hinton and Wooton, with a football match on bicycles; Bostock's educated baboons; Martin Henderson, a blind musician; Vera Brunton, impersonator; and the Faludy troupe of Hungarian acrobats.

NEW BRIGHTON.—WINTER GARDENS.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs. Jones and Douglass.—Great success has attended the holiday programme presented at this favourite resort. The Five Olracs have received loud laughter and applause for their clever turn; Mr. Ernest Lord's Excelsiors have made a hit in their refined entertainment; and the Creedons, in a sporting act; Mr. Harry Morris, in song and stories; Mr. John Wilkinson and Miss N. Layton, in sketch; Master Wallace Lupino, dancer; Vaudinoff, lightning oil-painter; and Mr. W. Walton, in song, all give complete satisfaction. The animated pictures are excellent, and in the best possible taste. Business is big.

TOWER.—Manager and Secretary, Mr. R. H. Davy.—Pantomime for one week has been put before Tower patrons, and The Sleeping Beauty, produced by Mr. A. E. Smith's company, is the attraction.

NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE.—TYNE THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Lessees, Messrs. Howard and Wyndham; Manager, Mr. F. W. Sutcliffe.—In lieu of pantomime at this popular house, the management have secured Miss Marie Studholme and a specially-selected company in Miss Hook of Holland. The innovation is proving an immense success, as the crowded houses testify. Miss Studholme in the principal rôle is extremely bright and vivacious, her sweet voice and piquant style being most attractive. Miss Maud Kenny is agreeably conspicuous as Mina, and has some captivating songs. Mr. Hook has in Mr. Alfred Wellesley an excellent exponent, who makes the most of an amusing character; another clever study is that of Mr. Fred Lyne as Simon Slinks; Mr. Frank Crisp as the bandmaster and Mr. Frederick Hobbs as Captain Paaf are responsible for clever personations.

PALACE THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. T. W. Rowe; Business-Manager, Mr. E. Clarke. — Mr. Frederick Melville's company, in one of his popular hits, The Bad Girl of the Family, is the holiday attraction. The principal rôle of Bess Moore is strongly played by that accomplished actress Miss Violet Crossley. Miss Daisy Cook, Mr. Richard A. Greene, Mr. Geo. Mountford, and Mr. Luke Forster all fill prominent rôles in a creditable manner.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Resident-Director, Mr. Richard Thornton; Manager, Mr. W. Parham Wells; Assistant-Manager, Mr. J. W. Kilgour.—Packed houses are the rule, a most attractive holiday bill being presented. At the head of affairs is La Tortajada, who presents a wonderfully pretty operetta, full of good singing and graceful dancing, Tortajada herself appearing in many different parts with equal success; Noran and Wiser, in quite a novel act, that of boomerang hat throwers, are marvellous; the Casey Army turn is full of humour and quite successful as a laughter-producer; Harry Leybourne, the well-known comedian and mimic, does a smart turn; and Tom Bryce, in A Dude's Wooing, is as good as ever; Miss Millie Engler and company in sketch; Edie Reynolds, musical interlude; Charles Vincent, comedian; Leonie Dixon, comedienne and dancer; and the Bioscope complete an entertaining programme.

PAVILION THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. Thos. Barrasford; Manager, Mr. W. H. Boardman. —The following well-known artists are appearing here: Minola Hurst, Everhart, Dale and O'Malley, Charlies, Arthur Reece, Maude Courtney, Alma, the Gascoignes, Alec Chentrens, Leigh Leicester, and Elroy.

NEWPORT.—EMPIRE.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Major Gallagher; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Wild.—A capital holiday bill is provided here. Foremost in the programme are the Craggs, who present a grotesque comedy sketch, Territorials, a clever and neat turn; O'Gust (the original Gown) has lost none of his popularity; the Gems (two ladies and three gentlemen) afforded a musical treat; and Bert Errol, a lady with a remarkable voice, proved popular. The Brennans (May and Will) appeared in a clever dancing act; Jennie Alexander wins applause by her performance; and Staig's Steeplejacks, in Cycling the Chimney, present a sensational and unique performance.

LYCEUM.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Sidney Cooper.—The Cingalee provides the holiday bill of fare here. Mr. Jack Crichton as Chambhuddy Ram is mainly responsible for the fun; Mr. Arthur Cartwright as the Hon. Harry Vereker plays with dash and sings well; and Mr. F. W. Ford makes a realistic Sir Peter; Miss Pauline Hague acts with grace and charm as Lady Patricia Vane; Miss Mercy Lane is a winsome Synouna; and Mr. Douglas Munro is well suited to the part of Boobhamba; Mr. Scott Cullin gives plenty of life to the character of Bobby Warren; Miss Florence Watson is a romantic Nanoya; and Miss Sadie Thompson dances admirably.

NORTH SHIELDS.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Stanley Rogers; Acting-Manager, Mr. Horace Lee.—Mr. Bulmer's company, with The Girl Who Went Astray, is drawing large audiences here. As Madge Harvey Miss Lydia Donovan meets with warm approval; Miss Lalla Stanhope makes an excellent Violet Harvey; as Captain Frank Julian Mr. Louis Lingard is heartily applauded; Rupert Murdoch finds an admirable exponent in Mr. C. Quinton Fulford; Mr. Evan Roland is a good Adolphus Boomer; Mr. Charles Coventry is well placed as Sergeant John Harvey, V.C.; Mr. R. Ashton is a commendable Doctor George Wilson; and Mr. Tom Beasley as James Yellowsocks and Miss Roma Pendrous as Molly Smart are highly successful.

CENTRAL PALACE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. William Mould.—An excellent holiday bill of fare has attracted large audiences here. The Zeenas, in their speciality act, are heartily applauded; Smith and Johnson, the Coloured Singing Duo, are as popular as ever; and John Ridley, a local blind musician and vocalist, who is making his first appearance on the music-hall stage, has had a cordial reception. Nellie Neil is a smart comedienne and dancer; the Two Gentrys in Bits and Pieces are very amusing; and Frank Boyne, vocal comedian, Van and Lil Gelder, entertainers and magicians, and the pictures contribute successfully to the programme.

NORTHWICH.—CENTRAL THEATRE.—Manageress, Miss S. Golden.—Mr. G. M. Copping's company in Love Rules the World is proving a success here. Mr. Will Hee plays Harold Kingston in convincing style; Mr. George Gaisford is a powerful Stephen Blight; Mr. S. Walbank does well as Paul Carruthers; Mr. J. Campbell is a capital representative of Jim Dixey; and Farmer Carruthers is safe in the hands of Mr. Fred Astley. Miss Helen Cameron as the adventuress, Flo Merton, is good; and Miss Aimee Grattan Clyndes gives due prominence to the rôle of Maud Carruthers, playing with artistic restraint. The comedy parts of Billy Blinks and Kitty Snowdrop are played with marked success by Mr. Mat Russell and Miss Florence Gomer respectively.

NORWICH.—HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. E. H. Bostock and F. W. Fitt; Manager, Mr. Councillor F. W. Fitt.—Mr. Jack Haddon's pantomime, The Babes in the Wood (and out Again), is proving greatly to the public taste. Miss Marie Brayman as Robin Hood is charming and is much appreciated; the Four Foresters are ably filled by the John Lloyd Quartette, who give evidence of their ability by some pleasing selections; Mr. Victor Wallace as Baron Skeemalot is most successful; the Babes, Eric and Rosa, are pleasingly represented by the Misses Marie and Elsie May; Miss Mabel Osborne deserves every praise as Maid Marian; Miss Dorothy Bruce as Little John and Miss Maude St. John as Margery May are very good; August and September as Nobby Tike and Soppy Sam, the ruffians, create endless fun; and some very pretty dances are given by Madame Teresa's Eight Little Pinkies. The chorus and ballet deserve every praise; and the whole goes well under Mr. Arthur W. Parry, the composer and conductor. Mr. Harry Elleston deserves mention for his able staging of the piece.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee, Mr. Fred Morgan. —Signor Cavaliere F. Castellano's Italian Grand Opera Company opened here on Bank Holiday. In the afternoon a matinée was held, and a magnificent rendering of Verdi's Il Trovatore was given. In the evening La Traviata was rendered with equal success to the delight of a crowded house. Cavalleria Rusticana, followed by Il Pagliacci, Rigoletto, Carmen, and Il Barbiere di Siviglia, is also in the week's bill.

CENTRAL HALL (Upper Market).—Messrs. Goodman continue their cinematograph and variety entertainment here, and receive good patronage.

NOTTINGHAM.—EMPIRE. — Managing - Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. Albert C. Duncan.—Frank and Jen Latona present their comedy musical items with greater success than ever here; the singing of L'Incognita arouses the highest pitch of enthusiasm; an interesting vocal scena is capitally given by Leonard Charburn's young stars; and still another musical turn calls for praise in Edward Crossland's Melody Makers. Clever impersonations by Rhoda Paul, Daras' quick-change and conjuring entertainment, dancing by the Lester Bros., Walker and May, negro dancers, and Fred Edwards and company in a farcical sketch all add to the pleasure of the evening.

HIPPODROME.—Lessee and General-Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Resident-Manager, Mr. H. F. Miller.—Under the new management a capital bill is presented this week, headed by Harry P. Selwyn's company in a sporting sketch of great merit; a gymnastic display by the Ten Bedouin Arabs is thoroughly enjoyable; Clare and Pastor give excellent musical and instrumental items; the equilibrist display of the Maximilian Trio is accorded high praise; and the Indian club exercises of Star and Leslie are a never-failing source of pleasure. The Three Orleans sing and dance in spirited fashion; the musical monologue of J. Milton Hayes is well received; Wyllie, as a tramp musician, uses quaint instruments; and Lilly Eyton sings a taking song.

OLDHAM.—GRAND THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr. S. Smiley.—Messrs. C. and F. Renad opened here, after an absence of about seven years, with the ever-popular Swiss Express, and packed houses greeted them. Messrs. Renad again demonstrate their clever pantomimic acting as the two servants John and James; Miss Dorothy Deakin as Virginia Squeeze is a dainty bride, her songs and dances being very good; Mr. Wilford Bailey as Dr. Gull is clever, and his tormentors are smartly played by Messrs. Victor T. Raymond, very smart as Dudely Green; J. Hawkes as Bob Rollingstone, and Harwood Cooper as Jack Gadabout. Mr. George Power makes a capital landlord; and the antics of Mr. W. Rigby and Mr. C. Barrett as the gendarmes are highly amusing. The fun is fast and furious.

COLOSSEUM THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Wm. Eastwood.—The holiday programme is Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Levy and Mr. Cardwell's pantomime Hop o'-My Thumb, played by a clever company of juveniles. Miss Kitty Trewhitt as Prince Uno is a prime favourite; Miss Kitty Rafferty as Princess Meadowsweet is dainty and charming. In the duet "Somewhere," the two mentioned were heartily recalled. Miss Evelyn Major is a smart Rupert; and Miss Gladys Wyse in the part of Jeannie Macgregor is decidedly clever, her dancing fairly bringing down the house. Miss Olive Purcell, a capital vocalist, does full justice to the part of Moonshine; a clever artist is little Georgie Harris, who plays the title-rôle Hop, his acting and singing being highly delightful; Masters Stanley Annison and Sandy Simpson as Sandy and Pete are worthy of mention for smart work; Mr. Vivian Wakeman as Georgina is a clever and versatile artist; Mr. E. W. Selman makes good use of his opportunities in the part of Jerry; Messrs. Cowley and Rick as Silversheen and Goldstein, a pair of villainous Jews, are exceedingly good, their dancing being smart; the part of Tom Thumb, the youngest of the family, is well taken by Harold Pyott, the smallest man in the world, who has created quite a sensation.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Hulme.—O Hana San is the star here, with her company, in a beautiful Japanese scena, and it is well received; the Bros. Doran, in their smart bar act, are smart; Bertha De Pas shines as a low comedy artist; and Neville and Moss are a clever operatic duo. Walter Buxton sings well; Sam Redfern is as funny as ever; Blanche Leslie sings her songs smartly, with illustrations; Celeste is clever in a novelty wire act; and the Bioscope concludes.

PALACE THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. Sharrocks.—The Four Holloways are on the top, and their cycle act is proving a big draw; The Spy is a well-acted dramatic episode by Pord and Webb's company; and the Bros. St. Clair, in their cycle football act, are clever. Ted Curtis and company sing and dance smartly in a speciality act; Jack Barker is a capital vocal comedian; the musical Bentleys are clever musicians; Master May also sings well; and the Palace pictures conclude.

OXFORD.—NEW THEATRE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. C. C. Dorrill; Assistant-Manager, Mr. G. T. Lucas.—On Boxing Day Mr. George Brydon-Phillips's company opened to crowded houses with the pantomime Sinbad the Sailor. Miss Hettie Lee makes a fascinating Sinbad; and Miss Constance Lait is vivacious as Badorna. Miss Dorothy Tempest is a charming Crystal, and sings very effectively; Miss Amy Maple is full of life as Zoe; and Miss Clare Farron is well to the fore as Princess Naggles. Mr. Harry Rose is highly successful as Mrs. Sinbad; and Mr. Fred Maple is good as Hindbad. Messrs. Morrin and Cardiff are accorded a very enthusiastic reception as Jack Bobstay and Ben Bunk; Mr. Geo. Snow as King Tibbles works well; and Mr. Eldretta Gulson is seen to advantage as Captain Scuttle. Mr. Harry Ewins is very clever as Agrippa. Specialities are contributed by Messrs. Morrin and Cardiff, Snow and Farron, and the Maples, all of whom attain indubitable distinction and success. Miss Nella Dene is the principal dancer.

EAST OXFORD THEATRE, LTD. — Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Stuart; Acting-Manager, Mr. Julian Graham.—Miss Maude Western's company, including Mr. Joe Ellis, opened here on Boxing Night to an overflowing house with Folly's Fortunes. The brunt of the acting falls on Mr. Joe Ellis as Billy Boyd, who accompl

"BABES IN THE WOOD" AT ASHTON-UNDER-LYNE.

On Boxing Day the pantomime, The Babes in the Wood, was performed at the Theatre Royal. Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Levy and Mr. J. E. Cardwell have produced the Christmas annual for Mr. Revill, and a very pretty and entertaining extravaganza it is. It is a brisk and diverting version of the familiar story of the Babes and their cruel uncle, Baron Strangeways, constructed on lines customary in pantomime. The action is divided into ten scenes, which are a mixture of song and dance, and all sorts of extravagant fun. A thread of the main theme, however, strings all the varied events together, and the spectator finds that Leslie and Marjory, the Babes, after being persecuted by the Baron and his ruffians, emerge by the help of the bold Robin Hood and his men of Sherwood, in the end into comparatively easy and pleasant circumstances in the Home of Good Luck. The alleys and by-ways of the plot are many and various, beginning in the Village on May Day, to the Baronial Hall, the Nursery, the Edge of the Wood, the Woodland Glade, the Dream, the Friar's Retreat, the Castle Ramparts, the Corridor, and finally the Home of Good Luck. For a first performance on Monday afternoon the production was worthy of warm praise. There were a few defects, of course, which are all easy of amendment, and by the next performance or so the entertainment will be one of sterling and diversified merit.

With regard to the excellent company, Messrs. Levey and Cardwell have got together, it may be stated that little Peggy McDonnell and Cissie Wyse are two sprightly and intelligent juveniles, and become favourites as the Babes, Leslie and Marjory, at once. Miss Marie Lumberg as Robin Hood, the rightful heir of Chester, enacts the bold forrester in a spirited manner, and sings and dances well. Miss Winifred Norman as Maid Marion portrays the part with winsome grace. She vocalises and trips it lightly, insinuating herself into the good opinion of the audience. Lucinda, the nurse to the babes, finds in Mr. Jimmie Watson a masculine old woman who is funny without vulgarity. Baron Strangeways, his many "strange ways" and his peculiar idiosyncracies are capitally hit off by Mr. Neil Hardy. The two ruffians, Willing and Weary, are very low comedy. Their burlesque, especially of the combat, when they have the two Babes in charge, has some elements of rough and tumble fun, which create laughter. The cast also includes the friends of Maid Marion, Phyllis and Dolly Warden (Misses M. Rafferty and Annie Brumby), and Little John and Allan-a-Dale, Robin's friends (Misses Flo Taylor and Eva Hope), Grinda, the Miller (Mr. Harry Tullett), Friar Tuck (Mr. A. Hutchison), and a chorus of pretty maidens who pose as villagers, corn-flower girls, bluebells, archers, soldiers, fairies, &c. There are some grand ballets introduced: The Birds' Ballet, the Grand Fairy Ballet, the Grand Statue Ballet. There is a grand chorus of fifty and an augmented orchestra. Specialities are introduced by Miss Winifred Norman, Jimmie Watson, Graham and Barron, Levey's and Cardwell's Troupe of National Dancers, Mr. Harry Tullett, Mr. Neil Hardy, and Little Peggy McDonnell, and the Marguerite Quartette of Dancers.

"BABES IN THE WOOD" AT ASTON.

Mr. Alexander Leighton is producing an engrossing pantomime at the Aston Theatre Royal, the piece being a replica of that staged at the Pavilion Theatre, London. The story of The Babes in the Wood has been combined in happy style with the adventures of Robin Hood, and the piece must be described as a very successful production. The first performance was given before a packed house on Christmas Eve, and on subsequent evenings the pantomime has met with receptions which leave no doubt that it will enjoy a brilliant fortnight's run. Afterwards the production will go on tour.

A bright and vivacious presence are qualities which contribute to the popularity of the principal boy, Miss Jennie Lynwood, in the part of Robin Hood. She makes a great hit in two songs, "The girl in the clogs and shawl" and "Charlie Brown." Miss Lilian Jeffries as the principal girl is a valuable acquisition. Of the comedians, Messrs. Fyne and Hurley play a very prominent part as I. Killem and U. Eatem, their business being of the active, humorous order. Their gags at once catch on, and they keep the ball rolling merrily right to the end of the piece. Mr. J. W. Hooper as the Baron, too, is always good for a hearty laugh. As the Schoolmistress Mr. Alec Godfrey is one of the leading spirits in the merrymaking, and Mr. W. B. Frecar is a lively and amusing Page. The Misses Lillie and Violet English have been well chosen as the second principals, and Mr. Harold Godwin and Miss Madge Bell sustain the two immortal characters with every success. The Babes are represented by the Misses Elsie Videau and Phyllis Hughes, a pair of talented children, who are becoming very popular. Miss Millie Gordon is a dainty dancer who is well received in two pleasing items, and the Asturias Troupe of National Dancers are also an acceptable feature. In addition to the songs already mentioned other popular numbers are "Little girl from nowhere," sung by the Babes; "If anyone should see a little soldier," by Miss Emerald and Mr. Frecar; and a burlesque on "Harrigan," by Messrs. Fyne and Hurley. The spectacular side of the pantomime has been carefully attended to. The scenery is on an elaborate scale and the dresses produce a brilliant effect, especially in the concluding scene. The ballets have been arranged by Miss Ina Olston, and the chorus and company, numbering over fifty, has been well trained under Mr. S. Clarke-Richardson. Mr. Rudolph Kloss is the acting-manager for Mr. Alexander Leighton, and Mr. George Daw is the musical director.

"ALADDIN" AT BELFAST.

The subject of Mr. Fred W. Warden's annual is Aladdin, and it must be included among the long list of successes produced under his régime. From a spectacular point of view this year's pantomime at the Opera House has never been surpassed, while the dialogue is both witty and sparkling, the story being told in an ingenious and interesting manner. Messrs. R. Courtneidge and A. M. Thompson are responsible for the libretto, and the local allusions by "S. A. P." are amusing and quite up to date. The music, which has been composed, selected, and arranged by the talented chef d'orchestre, Mr. Samuel P. Swanton, is of the most tuneful nature. The scenery, always an important feature of Mr. Warden's pantomimes, is really magnificent, and the artists, Messrs. George Jackson, Conrad Tritschler, and J. Barry Parker, are highly to be commended. The costumes, designed by Wilhelm, have been executed by Agnes Scott and assistants, and are of striking beauty. The ballets and incidental dances have been arranged by clever Miss Fanny Boulton, assisted by Miss Lily Cleveland, and they form a decided attraction. The scenes presented are The Tombs, Egypt, Street in Chang Li Hang, Exterior and Interior of the Palace, Outside the Cave, The Cave, Shop of Widow Twankey, Gardens of Aladdin's Palace, Emperor's Palace, Court of Justice, and the Chrysanthemum Fête. Mr. Warden has spared no expense in the mounting, and at the conclusion of the sixth scene, which is extremely pretty, was heartily called.

A capital cast is headed by Carlton, who impersonates Abanazar with the utmost drollery. He also introduces his own speciality, in which his ingenious tricks with cards were greatly enjoyed. Dainty and graceful Miss Thelma Raye has the rôle of principal girl. Possessed of a handsome stage presence, Miss Raye speedily made herself a favourite with the crowded house on Christmas Eve with her clever impersonation of the Princess En-Chan-Ting, her success being enhanced by her delightful violin solos. She also sang "They never do that in old Ireland" with topical verses, and other songs with much charm and vivacity, being frequently encored. A dashing principal boy has been found in Miss Georgie Corlass, who achieved a positive triumph with the popular number "Somewhere," with which she created a perfect furore, and the song was loudly redemanded. Miss Corlass also sang "I've been out with Charlie Brown" and "I used to sigh for the silvery moon," the choruses of which were instantly taken up by the house. A more graceful and accomplished danseuse than Miss Topsy Sinden surely does not exist. Miss Sinden appears as Y-Bu-Tee, and during the course of the pantomime furnished a display of the terpsichorean art which is undoubtedly a feature of the pantomime. She also rendered "The pretty little girl from Nowhere," which gained repeated recall, as did also her clever dances. A very funny impersonation of Widow Twankey was furnished by Mr. W. H. Powell, who scored in every scene with his spontaneous humour. Mr. Colin Coop was admirable as the Emperor of China. A character sketch of much merit was furnished by Miss Gwennie Harcourt, who appeared as Our Mary Ann. Her songs, "Now I have to call him father" and "You splash me and I'll splash you," were rendered with great spirit. Mr. Neville Delmar must be congratulated on his capital impersonation of Pekoe, who made one of the biggest hits with his rendering of "The whistling dandy." His whistling was remarkably good and his dancing was smart. Miss Florence Foster appeared to advantage as Ah Sing, and was loudly applauded for her song, "Send them along to me." Among the immortals Mr. Jocelyn Hope as the Genie of the Ring gained high honours. He is possessed of a resonant voice, which just suits the rôle, and he delivered his lines with much effect. Miss Connie Glenabyn appears as the Slave of the Lamp, and the fine cast is completed by Miss Muriel Lennox and Mr. Walter Fairbrother in their respective parts of Love and Amenophia. Mr. Harry A. Turner deserves much praise for his stage management, and Mr. Fred W. Warden, under whose personal supervision the pantomime was produced, received the congratulations, and deservedly so, of his patrons, on the gigantic success his efforts had achieved. Aladdin, which is certain to draw crowded houses here, will run for four weeks, and afterwards go to the Theatre Royal, Dublin.

"BABES IN THE WOOD" AT BIRMINGHAM.

Round upon round of applause followed the production of Babes in the Wood at the Prince of Wales' Theatre, Birmingham, on Thursday night, Dec. 23, the first of half a dozen pantomimes staged in Birmingham and district last week end. The enthusiasm was well deserved, for there can be no question that this is one of the most sumptuous and artistic pantomimes that has been produced at this popular theatre. Mr. Fred Wyndham, his assistants, and his company are to be warmly congratulated. Mr. J. Hickory Wood is responsible for the book, whilst Mr. W. Jackson Houlston supplies the additional lyrics. Messrs. T. F. Dunn, T. Holmes, Stanley Schuter, and George Sutherland are responsible for the scenery, which is picturesque and beautiful, and the costumes are not only gorgeous, but tasteful. It is not as a spectacle alone that the Babes in the Wood scores, for the songs are catchier than usual, in every instance delightfully sung, and much of the business is novel and agreeably topical. There is a large chorus, the members of which can really sing as well as adorn the scene. The music, partly arranged by Mr. Wm. Southworth, is merry, and there is an abundance of dancing and several fine spectacles.

The first scene is a wonderfully realistic representation of a Village Fair. Mr. John Tiller's Eight Alhambra Girls, the Twelve Little Forget-me-nots, and the Eight Sunshine Girls are responsible for some pretty, novel, and clever dances. In the midst of revelry there enters the Earl of Chester (afterwards Robin Hood) (Miss Dorothy Ward, a handsome Birmingham young lady). In vigorous style she sings "One of the girls," concluding by carrying off one of the children on her back. Enter the Baron (Mark Sheridan), and this old favourite straightway proceeds to manufacture laughter with his clever patter. He is followed by Maid Marian (Miss Daisy Dormer) the Babes, the Robbers (the Brothers Egbert), and Maria Slapp (Harry Conlin), and the real business of the show is on the way in quick time. The bold Baron comes into conflict with the Earl of Chester through his attentions to Maid Marian. Now we come to the Village Inn, and here the inimitable Sheridan is seen at his best in company with the Brothers Egbert. The Baron's political gags are greatly appreciated, as is also the demonstration of "table-knocking." Maid Marian establishes herself a favourite by her rendering of the song "I wish I lived next door to you," followed by a clever dance. Then comes a scene which, from the children's point of view, makes the success of the pantomime, Maria's Shoe occupying a huge portion of the stage. The Twelve Little Forget-me-nots, pretty, dainty, and vivacious, having sung a washing-tub song, Miss Dorothy Ward here sings, in dashing style, "Ship ahoy!" Genuine fun is then provided by the Baron, the Robbers, and Maria, the Egberts being especially good in their tumbling business. The Stilt-walkers, or Giants, also provide an attractive novelty. Next comes a beautiful Alpine picture entitled "Somewhere," introduced to allow Miss Linda D'Amato, a charming young lady, to sing the catchy song "Somewhere." Then we have The Nursery and the abduction of the children, and some exceedingly funny work by the Robbers. Sheridan (dressed as Napoleon) enters by the stage "trap," and once more makes the audience roll with laughter. Maid Marian, with a delightful character song, "The girl in the clogs and shawl," wins vociferous applause, and the Babes prettily sing "Over the garden wall" before they are carried off by the Robbers. The Baron's Library is the next scene. The act is brought to a close with a brilliant spectacle in the Earl of Chester's conservatory, when the Earl is outlawed by King John in quite grand opera vein. At this stage on the opening night Miss Ward was the recipient of numerous handsome floral tributes.

The second half is opened with a Forest scene in which a most natural effect is obtained. Miss Daisy Dormer scores another success in a coon song and dance. The Baron discourses on the lion and the antelope, later creating quite a furore with "Don't take me home," which he brings to a close with his exceedingly quaint burlesque of a quadrille. The Robbers follow with their version of the famous fight, and the children, thanks to the Fairy Mavis (Miss Violet Darling), are covered over with leaves by the Robins. There is a brilliant scene as Miss Ward sings a fascinating song, "Pride of the Prairie," a most popular number. The Baron's Courtyard comes next, and with it one of the best bits of comedy, for as the Baron leads his musical quartette, composed of himself the Robbers, and Maria, down comes a huge ball, and clears them off. Clad in military costume, and supported by eight children similarly attired, Robin sings "If you should see a little soldier." In the following scene Sheridan and his coadjutors revel. It is called Crook's International Bureau, and is conceived in the genuine spirit of burlesque. Suffragists in sacks are carried out of Winson Green gaol in the next scene. The grand ballet is a brilliant spectacle of surpassing splendour.

Through all the scenes Mr. Mark Sheirdan moves with his quaint and irresistible drollery, and is the life and soul of the piece. He has invaluable coadjutors in the Brothers Egbert, who take a prominent part in the success of the production. An agreeable surprise to Birmingham people is Miss Dorothy Ward, who had a hearty reception. Her costumes are varied and beautiful, and her vivacity is remarkable. Miss Daisy Dormer fully deserves the repeated encores for her songs and dances. She is a pretty, vivacious performer, and is a great favourite. Harry Conlin is excellent as Maria. The Babes are played in delightful fashion by Little Miss Beatrice Hewitt (Reggie) and Miss Clarice Handel (Cissie). Miss Linda D'Amato has not a great deal to do, but she shows she is an artist of no mean ability. Miss Violet Darling is a charming Fairy; and the subsidiary parts are in capable hands. A special word of praise must be given to the hard-working ballet and dancing girls, and congratulations to Mr. W. Southworth, who arranged the music, and Mr. John J. Lloyd, the stage-manager, who has the assistance of Mr. Leslie Ward. We predict for the pantomime a long and successful run.

"ALADDIN" AT BIRMINGHAM.

Never has there been such a production as Aladdin at the Alexandra, and Mr. Lester Collingwood, the popular proprietor, is to be warmly congratulated. On Monday night the theatre was packed with an enthusiastic audience. The story is told in a simple, straightforward manner, but it is suffused also with genuine fun, fast and furious, and at intervals there are scenes unequalled in the most successful musical comedies. The tableaux are magnificent, and the dresses beautiful, artistic, and varied. The book has been written by Mr. Frank Ayrton, whose topical allusions are witty and impartial. The curtain rises upon a scene of great artistic charm—The Square at Pekin. The Brothers Brooks, as the Policemen, commence the fun, and get the audience in merry mood, and there is great enthusiasm when Miss Florence Dudley (Pekoe) sings "Somewhere" delightfully. Abanazar (Mr. Cull Pitt) descends upon the scene in an extraordinary aeroplane; and then we get a novelty—a female as Widow Twankey. Miss Millie Doris is the gallant young lady to fill this rôle, and her success was assured the moment she entered. She sings "Kelly" in unconventional style, and the chorus goes with a great swing. Her eccentric dances also cause roars of laughter. Another round of applause greets a charming Aladdin (Miss Ethel Beech), a "lidy" brimful of vivacity, and her song "Yipp-i-addy-i-a-ay" is one of the best items of the show. The Policemen follow with a humorous monologue about a football match, and another match, and the prettiest and daintiest Princess (Miss Molly Wynne) ever beheld makes her appearance and sings "A pretty little girl from nowhere," a fascinating chorus song, which arouses considerable enthusiasm—a delightful finish to an admirable opening scene.

On the Road to the Cave the Grand Vizier (Mr. Bertram Gunnell) is cheered to the echo for a clever dance, and Nigh See (Miss Ray Ford) creates quite a furore with her picture postcard song. Miss Ford establishes herself a great favourite, and at this stage and later the audience show hearty appreciation of her work. The Policemen, Wishee Washee (Mr. Frank Wier), and Abanazar are responsible for more boisterous fun before Aladdin is admitted to the magic cave. In the arrangement of The Magic Cave one notable and much admired departure is made. Instead of weird-looking genii, the Slaves of the Lamp—and there are many of them—are a bevy of fairies, who sing melodious choruses. Miss Nellie Taylor (Slave of the Lamp) is a sweet little lady, who sings charmingly; and an artistic and graceful toe dance is contributed by Miss Lilla Wheelwright (Geni of the Ring). The spirited Aladdin is again on the scene, and scores with her song "I let the world go by." Mr. J. Brewster's Six Ontarios are a troupe of pretty girls who deserve the loud plaudits of the audience for their artistic and graceful dancing. The comedy merchants, including the popular Widow Twankey, continue to supply exceedingly funny gags and stories, and a song, "It's the Alpine dress you're wearing," sung in the next scene—The Princess's Boudoir—by the Princess, proves a pleasing number. The Sisters Oswald next appear to advantage in Scene 5—The Geni's Realm of Riches. They are tall, attractive ladies, and their song and dance are cleverly done. In the next scene—The Royal Batteries—the comedians are in their element, and after Widow Twankey has caused the audience to roll with laughter with her song, "Pull yourselves together, boys," Aladdin and Wishee Washee figure prominently in the picture. There are many pretty incidents during the next scene, The Emperor's Study, Pekoe, Nigh See, and the Grand Vizier showing themselves to be pantomimists of a high class. Special praise is due to Miss Dudley for her song "Clogs and shawls," in which she is assisted by the Ontarios. A most gorgeous scene is called The Willow Pattern Plate. The scenic effects are brilliant, and one could not wish for a finer spectacle as the Ontarios give their Spanish dance. The audience also have another opportunity of singing loud and long, for Aladdin sends "Charley Brown" along in dashing style. This proved to be one of the most popular numbers. In the Charmed Palace the Emperor and the Widow indulge in humorous cross-talk; Abanazar as a Jewish pedlar and amateur photographer is highly amusing; Wishee Washee makes a hit with his song, "Welcoming him in"; and round on round of applause marks the end of each verse of a Budget song by the Policemen to the tune of "Who Killed Cock Robin?" This scene is brimful of excellent material, and we reluctantly leave it for Aladdin's Palatial Gondola. But recompense comes in a brilliant spectacle, never surpassed on this stage. The Oswald Sisters introduce a novel dance, and the Six Ontarios again dance cleverly. Aladdin sings, in fact, everybody, audience included, sings, and a night of successes and enthusiasm is closed by the appearance of Mr. Collingwood, who has to acknowledge the calls of his patrons.

Miss Ethel Beech is an ideal Aladdin, an attractive figure, charming voice, and in every sense a natural "boy." Miss Millie Doris is an undoubted success as Widow Twankey, and should herself prove a big drawing card. As Abanazar Mr. Cull Pitt is excellent, he displaying great versatility in a humorous vein. A more charming Princess than Miss Molly Wynne one could not desire to see. She is a pretty and dainty young lady, with a delightfully sweet voice. Miss Ray Ford as Nigh See is sure to prove a big favourite, for she is always charming, always vivacious, always magnetic. Miss Florence Dudley is an attractive figure as Pekoe; she has some of the best songs and she knows how to sing them. As the humorous Policemen the Brothers Brooks are responsible for a good deal of fun, and this will prove a "red-letter" engagement for them. Mr. Frank Weir is quite at home as Wishee Washee, and is one of the funniest pantomimists ever seen in this city. Warm praise is also due to Mr. Bertram Gunnell (Ching Chang), Mr. F. Durning Fraser (Emperor), the Oswald Sisters, Miss Lilla Wheelwright, Miss Nellie Taylor, the Ontario Dancing Girls, and members of the chorus, who sing prettily and show off their gorgeous costumes to advantage. Mr. Herbert Barnes has "composed, selected, and arranged" a remarkably successful series of numbers, and the scenery has been painted by Mr. Edward A. Hall. In the management of the theatre Mr. Collingwood is ably assisted by Mr. Fred Barnardo (business-manager), Mr. W. T. Guest (acting-manager), and Miss H. E. Powell (secretary).

"THE FAIR ONE WITH THE GOLDEN LOCKS" AT BIRMINGHAM.

For the first time in the history of the Bordesley Palace there will be a month of pantomime, and there is every indication that the venture will prove a successful one. In Mr. W. Goodwin Goodward, Moss' Empires, Ltd., have an excellent manager with a wide experience of pantomimes, and the innovation is a welcome one to him. The Fair One with the Golden Locks is written by Stanley Rogers, and is produced for Moss' Empires, Ltd., by Mr. Ernest Stevens and Mr. R. C. Buchanan. The familiar story is faithfully adhered to, and one finds the virtuous and beautiful princess wooed by the brave and handsome foundling who is really a prince, though he doesn't know it. The scenery throughout is magnificent, and the costumes throughout are varied, picturesque, and beautiful. But the chief features are a budget of bright, catchy songs, admirably rendered, and a good feast of wholesome fun. Children will be in their element, and there is an abundance of material to please the grown-ups. Miss Madge Brownie is a very charming Princess Allfair, the lady with the golden tresses. She sings sweetly and dances skilfully and cleverly. One of her most successful numbers is "How do you do, my baby?" a coon song with a delightful melody. Later, assisted by a chorus of ladies, she is loudly applauded for her rendering of a slumber song. A handsome principal boy with an attractive stage presence is Miss Esme Gordon, who sings in vigorous style several of the popular chorus songs, including "Charlie Brown," "In her clogs and shawl," and "Ship ahoy!" and she figures successfully in vocal numbers with the Princess. A pretty, vivacious little actress of great promise is Miss Lily Allchurch (Water Lily, the good fairy); she sings "Somewhere" beautifully, and fully deserves the encore. That versatile comedian, Mr. James Chippendale, figures as the Queen, and in song and comedy business he is always prominent. Mr. Will Letters is Prince Pippin, and it would be difficult to find a more suitable person for the part. The pity is that Mr. Letters has not more work to do in the pantomime. He is always welcome, and there is hearty laughter to reward him. His "Kelly" is a treat, and there is great enthusiasm when he sings a verse to the tune of "The Lost Chord." He gives another catchy chorus song, "I must go home to-night." Quite expert fun makers are Mr. Charles Calvert and Mr. George Hudson, who are respectively General Slopoff and Admiral Bunker. They are a quaint couple, and just the men to make a pantomime go. A comedian who seems to be always on the stage is Mr. Victor H. Crawford, but he sustains the comedy element admirably. His songs are real laughter-makers and his antics highly amusing and entertaining. Miss Irene Vere (Lord Chamberlain to the Princess) is a lady of fine presence, and she sweetly sings "One of the girls." A pleasing feature of the pantomime are the dances by the Mayfair Girls, and others who deserve special mention are Mr. Johnny Leoni and Miss Stella Dell. The music is composed, selected, and arranged by Mr. H. Henderson, Mus.Bac.

"JACK AND THE BEANSTALK" AT BIRMINGHAM.

In Jack and the Beanstalk, produced at the Birmingham Theatre Royal on Boxing Day, fun and splendour are admirably blended, and the enterprise deserves the success it is assured. From a spectacular point of view Jack and the Beanstalk is a brilliant production. It has a series of gorgeous scenes with wonderfully artistic effects of light and shade, harmonised colours, novel and elaborate costumes, worn by pretty girls of more than average grace and comeliness. The entertainment, which is so varied and well sustained, is full of bubbling mirth and sparkling wit, and there is not a dull moment from beginning to end. There is fun, good honest pantomime fun, and an abundance of it. Mr. J. J. Hewson, the author, has adhered to the familiar story, and the artists keeping to the lines, there is ample material for the children. It is the old tale of how Jack, sent by his mother to sell a cow, parts with the animal for a bag of beans. The enraged mother throws the beans away, and one of them grows up during the night. Our hero climbs the stalk, aided by a fairy, reaches a giant's castle and enriches himself. In the last chapter have pantomime authors been compelled to depart from the story. Mr. Hewson has arranged that a giant shall be killed by means of the sword, instead of being killed by a fall from the beanstalk. In other respects the nursery version of the tragedy is followed. The curtain rises to disclose a view of the village, a scene of great artistic charm. The people who dwell there are having an uncommonly fine time of it under the guise of living a simple life. A beauty competition is being held, and there are roars of laughter. An old Dame Trot (Mr. George Robey) on the look-out for a fourth husband, enters. There never was a better Dame Trot than Mr. George Robey, and he is cheered to the echo. He proceeds to relate his troubles with Jessie, the cow, and when "she" attempts to milk the animal (admirably represented by the Brothers Griffiths), the audience are in merry mood. "Jessie" goes through quite a circus performance, and then loud applause greets Jack (Miss Ada Reeve), and Jack and the Dame keep up the fun with the cow. Jack is joined by the Princess (Miss Angela Hope), and the two provide a delightful love scene. Prince Hal (Mr. Mark Daley) and Dulcie (Miss Jessie Lonnen) are another pair of sweethearts, and there is a merry scene when King Stoneybrokish (Mr. Tom Shale) enters and makes love to the Dame. In the next scene, the King's Ante-room, Miss Ethel Haydon as the beautiful fairy, Erethia, pleasingly sings "Won't you come to Madeira with me?" Then Barry Lupino as Miffins makes an acrobatic entrance which quite delights the youngsters, and there is more laughter when the Dame sings an exceedingly funny song, called "Archibald, certainly not!" and Jack is responsible for a topical song, "He's a naughty boy," with some amusing references to well-known Cabinet Ministers. The third scene is very effective. It is the fairground. There are side shows, roundabouts, &c. The colours of the dresses of the chorus are skilfully blended, and Tiller's troupe of dancing girls trip lightly through a pretty dance; quite a fantastical, but a more amazing dance, is to follow by Mr. Lupino, after his song, "Father was calm and collected." The Griffiths Brothers indulge in their famous wrestling match, which creates screams of laughter, and more merriment is caused by the Dame as she is thrown out of the show, and hurls spiteful words at a friend named Mrs. Moggeridge, whom she has recognised as a mermaid behind the front cloth. The Dame's subsequent song about "Don't tinker about in the dark," is one of the tit-bits of the production. Then follows the scene of the sale of the cow, during which the antics of "Jessie" are splendidly done. Prince Hal sings a song about the girls, and finally the cup, as the beauty prize, is presented to the Princess. The fourth scene, the Dame's Backyard, is one of the prettiest. It is a sunlit landscape with rose-clad cottages, and is quite charming. Here Jack explains to his mother how he came to sell the cow for beans, and he gives Miffins a lesson in the art of love-making. The Dame has some excellent patter to follow an amusing ditty, entitled "What a blessing you never miss the things you never had," and then Miss Reeve sings that delightful song, "Somewhere," during which the scenic effects are prettily arranged. A fine spectacular scene follows, showing "where the beans were thrown." It is quite a kaleidoscope of vivid colours, as the dancers, beautifully clad, enter, and when Jack, dressed in a suit of shimmering silver, with sword unsheathed, mounts the steps to the gateway of the Giant's Castle, the enthusiasm of the audience is intense. The effect is brilliant in the extreme, just before the curtain falls to terminate the first act.

The second part is opened with a scene of the Giant's Library, and the Princess prettily sings "If there's a girl there." The Brothers Griffiths introduce more comedy business, and Miss Reeve again scores with topical verses to the tune of "When Richard I. sat on the throne." The popular Dame enters through a stage-trap, and greatly delights with ditties about certain M.P.'s. There is very little wait before Jack is again singing, this time a song about Norah and the North Pole, and the children and the audience vigorously applaud, and the elders are full of admiration during the closing incidents of the scene, when Jack, with his magic wand, touches a volume of books, and from each there emerges charming young ladies, prettily and picturesquely dressed to represent different characters in nursery stories. The Terrace scene follows, and the King sings "Kelly" in vigorous style. After more funny business the Prince, Miffins, the Dame, and the King please with a quartette about "Charlie D. P." In the Giant's Kitchen scene Mr. Sam Elton introduces his juggling speciality, and is loudly applauded for a highly amusing entertainment. After another pretty dance by the Tiller Troupe dressed as kitchenmaids, and the Dame, aided by a chorus of ladies and policemen, sings a splendidly-worked number, with a "goey" chorus, entitled "We all want something to cuddle." There is more love-making, then the "thrilling" fight between Jack and the Giant, and Jack proves the conqueror. In the next scene—The Halt by the Way—we are treated to a potted version of Hamlet, and an amusing little donkey-cart episode, in which the Dame and the King cause roars of laughter. Finally, Jack's Wedding provides a magnificent tableau. All the girls come on the stage dressed in costumes to represent presents to Jack.

Mr. George Robey as the Dame is excellent throughout. He works like a Trojan, and when he is on the stage laughter reigns. He had previously established himself a big favourite in Birmingham, but he can confidently put this down as his greatest success. Miss Ada Reeve, a gifted and charming performer, is a typical Jack. She had a tremendous reception; she has a great deal to do, and she does it perfectly. In brief, she fills the picture to perfection. The Brothers Griffiths as Jessie, the cow, in the early stages give a highly amusing representation, and their subsequent burlesque items are cleverly contributed. A pretty and dainty Princess, with a sweet, effective voice, is Miss Angela Hope. Miss Ethel Haydon fully deserves the enthusiastic applause accorded her for her charming singing of delightful songs. Mr. Mark Daly makes a splendid Prince; Mr. Tom Shale is a humorous and imposing King, and is an excellent foil for the Dame; Miss Jessie Lonnen as Dulcie fills the rôle adequately; and as the Giant Mr. E. Story-Gofton performs with considerable judgment. Too much praise cannot be accorded to Mr. Barry Lupino, whose humour is natural and whose acrobatic dances are one of the leading features of the pantomime. Mr. Elton also shows himself to be a juggler and acrobat of exceptional ability. The music is merry and bright, and credit is due to Mr. Guy Jones, the musical director.

The pantomime is produced by Mr. E. T. Steyne, and Mr. Reginald Weidhall is a capable stage-manager. Mr. Phillip Rodway (the acting-manager) and his directors should feel satisfied they have a pantomime second to none in the provinces.

"THE FORTY THIEVES" AT BRADFORD.

Mr. Arthur W. Field in his book of the pantomime which marks Mr. Laidler's eighth annual production, has contrived so to deal with the story that it is not only told coherently, but there is a distinct originality in its construction, and he has supplied an abundance of genuine humour and some novel incidents, and on Christmas Eve at the Prince's Theatre a large audience unhesitatingly pronounced the production an unqualified success. The pretty and effective scenery is the work of Mr. E. Egerton, Mr. Harry Rushworth has composed and arranged the music, and Mr. Arthur Gibbons has admirably stage managed the pantomime, which is in ten scenes, the first being the Market Place of Bagdad, where all is alarm at the ravages of the Forty Thieves. The Captain Abdallah is planning a raid on the city, where he is posing as a millionaire and distributing his money lavishly. Ali Baba, a poor woodcutter, on his way home, meets his son Ganem, who tells the Father that Cassim Baba (his brother) is demanding payment of the money Ali owes him. Ali can't pay as he has spent the money in purchasing a slave named Morgiana. Ganem falls in love with Morgiana, who is seized by Cassim for his debt. Ali and Ganem are next seen on their way home on the Persian Mountains (Scene 3), and they see the Forty Thieves approaching. They take refuge in a tree, the band come to a halt, and Abdallah reveals the magic cave by pronouncing the magic words "Open Sesame." The scene is very effective and cleverly managed. Morgiana has escaped from Cassim, and she, having learned the secret of the cave, joins Ali and Ganem in entering. Lots of jewels are secured, the donkey Horace being heavily loaded. The next scene is the exterior of Ali Baba's home, and it is decided to measure the wealth as it will take too long to count it. Morgiana returns, having borrowed a measure from Cassim, whose suspicions are aroused. The measure is returned to Cassim, who finds gold sticking to the bottom of it, and he refuses to give up Morgiana unless Ali reveals the secret of the treasure. Scene 5 is the Interior of the Cave—a blaze of colour and splendour—Cassim and Morgiana enter, and the latter urges flight ere it be too late. Morgiana flies from the cave just in time, and she leaves Cassim behind, and he is caught by Abdallah and his men, and he is condemned to die within the hour. Scene 6 in the second part is the Seraglio, Ali Baba's mansion, where there is a chorus of Ali's wives. Morgiana enters and tells the story of Cassim's capture. Cogia (his widow) now wants to marry Ali, and there is love-making btween Ganem and Morgiana, who is now free. Abdallah and his men, who are still losing their treasures, arrange the usual plot of hiding the band in jars in Ali's yard. Morgiana discovers a thief instead of oil in each jar, and in the orthodox way the band is disposed of. Cassim minus his wits is freed from the cave, Abdallah and his officers are secured, Ganem and Morgiana are united, and all ends happily in the palace, a very magnificent scene, where knights and retainers clad in gorgeous dresses of gold and silver hold their revels in a blaze of light. The fun is fast and furious all through the performance, Mr. Chris Le Brun, who impersonates the wonderful donkey Horace, being responsible for a lot of it. The children are very entertaining in their Boy Scouts act in the mountain pass, and their soldiers and nursemaids scena, and the clever dancing by John Tiller's Eight Cherry Girls is a feature of the pantomime. Mr. Dick Tubb, who plays Ali Baba, with his "Coke" song, gigantic stature, and his quaint style and irresistible humour, is a source of hearty laughter, and in striking contrast is Mr. Alf. Corri, who is very diminutive, and who accentuates the fun as Hassarac. Mr. Arthur Gibbons acts exceedingly well and invests the part of Ali Baba with humour; Mr. Fred Spencer makes up well, and he is quaint as Cogia, with

DOROTHY WARD,

THE MOST STRIKING SUCCESS OF THE PANTOMIME SEASON.

THE VERDICT OF THE PRESS.

THE BIRMINGHAM "DAILY POST" SAYS:

"Miss Dorothy Ward seems to be the holder of a special patent in the matter of stealing the hearts of her audience. She has several good songs—notably the soldier one in which she is aided by a chorus of tiny performers—and she sings them all with success. She is an actress who, lavishly gifted by nature, seems to have improved in her art every time we see her. And as to her popularity—well, everyone in Birmingham will discover for himself that she is little less than an idol, for everyone in Birmingham will visit 'The Babes in the Wood.'"

THE BIRMINGHAM "DAILY MAIL" SAYS:

"First and foremost comes Miss Dorothy Ward, who promises to win one of the biggest successes of any principal boy seen in Birmingham. To be sure, she has everything in her favour. She is a local girl, and her rapid advance in her profession should delight her many friends and admirers. To her personal charms and splendid figure she brings hard-working enthusiasm and a refined manner, which carry the piece along most pleasantly, without the adventitious aids which some principal boys depend upon. Her voice improves as it goes on; she has an abundance of good songs, and wears as many very striking and picturesque costumes. At the end of the first act last night her bouquets took up half the stage, and the night was certainly a memorable one for her."

THE BIRMINGHAM "EVENING DISPATCH" SAYS:

"The 'principal boy' is handsome Miss Dorothy Ward, who cuts a striking figure in her numerous and costly costumes. She may truthfully be described as 'dashing,' which we believe to be the proper word to use in this connection. She has a budget of good songs, which cause her to appear in the costume of a naval officer, a soldier, and as an idealised cowboy, to all of which she did full justice. She had a very cordial reception, and she was the recipient of a large number of elaborate floral tributes."

"BABES IN THE WOOD" PANTOMIME,

PRINCE OF WALES THEATRE, BIRMINGHAM.

a good song "I want a husband"; Miss Mabel Mannering has a good stage presence, her Abdallah is a capital effort, and she sings "The silvery moon" well. Miss Patricia Weldon and Miss Ruth Wingrove, in the respective parts of the Robber Chief's first and second lieutenants, are very smart, and as Seizem Pasha and Sergeant Searchem respectively, Messrs. W. E. Williams and Frank Robinson contribute to the fun. Miss Lesley Gibson is a dainty Morgiana, and her song "It's the Alpine dress you're wearing" is capitally rendered, and Miss Ada Fawn as the hero Ganem acts with spirit and dash, and sings with much success "Has anybody here seen Kelly?" "I should like to meet you in the evening, little girl," "I must go home to-night," and "Somewhere."

"JACK AND THE BEANSTALK" AT BRADFORD.

Mr. John Hart has chosen for this year's pantomime a story which was selected by the late Charles Rice, and successfully produced by him at this theatre in 1880. The present production, or, rather, the book, is the work of Mr. J. Hickory Wood, who has not only treated the subject coherently, but he has furnished an abundance of humour, and the audience on Christmas Eve simply roared with laughter at the funny dialogue and situations. For the local allusions and additional lyrics Mr. T. F. Doyle is responsible; the very beautiful scenery is the work of the resident artist, Mr. D. G. Hall; and Mr. C. W. Chambers has selected and arranged some charming songs and music, with extra numbers composed by Mr. Henrie Jaxon. Mr. John Hart's exquisite taste is again noticeable in the lovely dresses, a leading feature of the pantomime, which is already stamped with the hall-mark of success. The first scene, The Widow's Laundry, is a realistic bit of scenic art, and here there is a chorus of sprightly laundry maids. Squire Giles enters, and Mother Muggles (the Widow) threatens him with breach of promise. He vows he won't marry her, when Billy Ladle enters and declares his love for the Widow. Billy is promised fifty pounds by the Squire if he will marry the Widow, and he gets five on account. The Widow owes two years' rent to Giant Blunderfuss, whose agent Gobble calls and declares that if the rent is not paid he will seize the Widow's three acres and her cow Gertrude. Margery, the Widow's daughter, pleads to Gobble in vain; she is seized, when her brother Jack arrives and rescues her. Gobble offers to wipe out the Widow's debt if Jack will hand Margery to the Giant. The offer is rejected, and Gobble is ejected. He returns with assistance, but is again overthrown. Scene 2 is The Exterior of the Widow's Home, where the cow is put through a funny performance and Billy does some love-making, but the Widow refuses him. Jack here suggests selling the cow, and amidst lamentations she is taken to The Market Place (scene 3), a charming and quaint bit of work of the Tudor period, with rustic and picturesque surroundings. Here Gobble in disguise meets Rumbo, the village sweep, who wants to be a "coon." Gobble promises to make him a high official in the coon lands of the Giant if he (Rumbo) will buy the cow. This he promises to do, and Gobble gives him a bag of gold for the purpose. The Squire acts as auctioneer, and he furnishes Billy with money to buy the cow, hoping thereby to enable Billy to persuade the Widow to accept him (Billy) as a husband; but Billy is outbid, Rumbo is the purchaser, and Gertrude is led off. Scene 4 is the Widow's pretty back garden, where Jack returns with the bag of gold. The Widow is full of glee at the prospect of being rich, and she proceeds to count the gold, which, to Jack's consternation and the Widow's amazement, has been transformed into beans. Jack is soundly rated, and the Widow throws the beans over the garden wall. The Widow is furious, when Margery enters as peace-maker. She sings Jack to sleep, and Gobble and the Giant's men enter and carry her off. Gleam, the fairy, enters, and she commands the Beanstalk to grow, and then she awakens Jack and bids him climb the stalk, which will take him to Giantland and to Margery. He ascends, and the next scene is The Top of the Beanstalk, a pretty cloth, which changes to The Land of Peasblossom, a gorgeous picture, in which there is a beautiful ballet of roses, lilies, elves, sprites, and butterflies, The Gates of Giantland seen in the distance being illuminated with hundreds of scintillating lights, dazzling in the extreme.

Scene 1 in the second act is The Court of Coonland, in black and white. It is wonderfully effective, and there is a charming ballet of coons, pierrots, and pierrettes, in black and white satin and silver. Rumbo is an official high in position here, and as everybody has climbed the beanstalk out of curiosity he meets with his deserts, for his supposed share in the bean fraud. Scene 2, The Giant's Dining Hall, is a clever and boldly-executed piece of work. Everybody is taken prisoner, and there is much fooling in the fattening process for feeding the giant, a marvel in point of height and bulk. The next scenes of interest are The Battlements of the Giant's Castle and The Seashore. Jack has met Margery, and the Fairy gives him a magic sword to destroy the Giant, and also a helmet to render him invisible. The Widow and Billy are seen in the fourth scene escaping in a diving bell, and at the bottom of the sea Gobble's men attack them, and some very funny business is the result. Jack and the Giant meet and fight, the Giant is slain in an impressive tableau, and the last scene, where all ends happily, is The Ogre's Palace. Here the assembling knights, retainers, and amazons present a dazzling picture in gold and silver armour, the general effect and beauty of the climax not having been surpassed in any of Mr. Hart's previous successful efforts in the way of pantomime. In the second scene of the second part Radford and Valentine provide a clever and screamingly funny juggling entertainment, which elicits roars of laughter; the Lyric Quartette with fine part-singing win approval; and Mr. Kit Keen's "coon" speciality is another valuable contribution to the variety element introduced. The Mother Muggles of Mr. Rowland Hill is a quaint performance of real merit in its line, and he has two capital songs, viz., "Is anybody looking for a widow?" and "I can't reach that top note"; Mr. Harry Ed. Ray is very funny as Ebenezer Giles, the Squire, and his song, "Merry widows of all nations," is excellent; Mr. Marriott Edgar as Billy Ladle is particularly quaint, and his "patter" is as funny as his song, "For months, and months, and months"; Mr. Kit Keen as Sam Rumbo is an ideal "coon" delineator and clever dancer; the Valdo Bros. work well together as Gertrude, the cow, and do some funny things; in a whole-hearted and convincing manner Miss Nell Emerald plays the hero Jack, winning applause for her sprightly dancing and her songs, "The Bandbox Girl," "Just someone," and "How do ma baby?"; as Margery Miss José Collins is very charming, and she renders the song, "A Corsican Maid," prettily; Miss Lily Black with natural grace fills the part of the Squire's dandy brother Percy; Mr. Harry Courtin acts with vigour and bears himself bravely in his huge "get-up" as the Giant Blunderfuss; Mr. Cyril Thompson's Gobble is a fine effort, both vocally and histrionically; as the Princess Zoe Miss Minnie Muir is graceful and pretty; as the Fairy Gleam Miss Annie Schuberth has scored an instantaneous success, and with a charming stage presence and a voice of exceptional power and sweetness she wins unstinted applause with her songs, "To the end of the world with you" and "Spagnola"; as King and Queen of Coonland Master Archie McCaig and Miss Dorothy Francis respectively are very smart and interesting; and the chorus and ballets are of exceptional power and quality.

"ROBINSON CRUSOE" AT [illegible]GHTON.

There was a large audience in the Brighton Grand Theatre on Christmas Eve, when Robinson Crusoe was produced, with complete success, under the supervision of Mr. Ben Court (general-manager of the theatre), and Mr Fred A. Marston, the writer and inventor of the pantomime. The "book" is marked by literary excellence; the author's version of Defoe's romantic masterpiece is delightfully interesting; and the pantomime possesses all those essentials that command success. The dresses are superbly rich and handsome, the staging and mounting are on a liberal scale, and the new and elaborate scenery, painted by Messrs. W. D. Hobbs and A. Wyatt, is charmingly picturesque. The music, composed and arranged by Signor De La Camera, the conductor of the orchestra, is tuneful and sparkling, and the songs introduced by the leading artists are of a popular and attractive character. The pantomime is undoubtedly one of the best of the many productions of a kindred character submitted to Brighton audiences during a long series of years, and it may confidently be assumed it will enjoy a highly prosperous career. The story is presented in ten scenes. The Port of Hull, from which Robinson starts on his long voyage, is a very picturesque set; while At the Bottom of the Sea which closes the first part of the pantomime, is a splendid stage picture, the effects of the rich and gorgeous colouring being considerably enhanced by the introduction of an electrically illuminated submarine, which the fairies provide to enable Crusoe to get "back to the earth, to glory and to fame." Warm praise must be accorded The Land of the Koker Nuts, a beautiful scene, which opens the second part; while the concluding set, with its processions, rich array of handsome dresses, and artistic groupings of the entire company, presents a brilliant and dazzling display of harmonious colouring. For an initial representation, the performance ran with remarkable smoothness, and closed to the accompaniment of prolonged and enthusiastic applause. While the surroundings of the pantomime are worthy of the warmest commendation, it is gratifying to note that the various characters were sustained in admirable style. Several of the artists were well-tried favourites who had appeared in pantomime during recent years on the same boards, and very cordial receptions were extended to them. Miss May Mars merits unstinted praise for her captivating enactment of Robinson Crusoe. Her commanding stage presence, clever acting, and artistic vocalisation enabled her to achieve conspicuous success. Though no encores were allowed during the evening, she was heartily recalled for all her songs. She was bright and winsome in her treatment of "All the nice girls love a sailor" and "I've been out with Charlie Brown," while she invested "Somewhere the sun is shining" with finished vocalisation, her tone and expression being admirable and gave "I can picture Polly hanging up the holly" with tenderness and touching pathos. Miss Violet Orme as Crusoe's sweetheart, Polly Perkins, was cordially applauded for her singing and dancing. She was very successful in her songs "If you should see a little soldier," "Red Bonnet," and "A sailor on a liner"; and also joined Miss May Mars in several graceful duets. Mr. Dave O'Toole, renewing his acquaintance with a Grand Theatre audience, submitted a good and characteristic embodiment of Mrs. Crusoe, and added considerably to the fun of the pantomime. Supported by a chorus, he scored one of the hits of the evening with his grotesque burlesque of an Italian operatic air, and he lent valuable assistance in several of the concerted numbers. Messrs. Sandford and Lyons, very popular and resourceful comedians, appeared as Captain Kettle and Corkscrew Bill respectively, and kept the audience in the merriest of moods with their amusing patter, gags, and humorous songs, and were enthusiastically applauded for their clever dancing. They were droll and mirthful in their renderings of "Ain't it a lovely day?" "Why do we do the things we do?" and "Don't take me home." Mr. Joe Redfern was well placed as the bold, bad pirate, Will Atkins; and Mr. George Campbell made a quaint and diverting Billy Crusoe. Miss Irene Rose was a dainty Princess Tauk-a-Lot, and gave a pretty rendering of her "Little Cingalee" song. Mr. Fred A. Marston (author of the pantomime) was a highly-picturesque Rajah of Ranji Put-Nee, and contributed a drinking song in spirited style; Mr. Edgar Budden as Friday made the most of his opportunities, and danced himself into favour; while Miss Edie Tennis (Daisy Buttercup) and Miss Gertie Laune (Jack Mainbrace) were pleasing in duets and dances. Miss Vera Ray, a graceful Fairy Goodenough, gave her lines with artistic emphasis and point. The choruses were well sung, and the finales of the various acts were marked by spirited vocalisation. Mr. Ernest Gates, the managing-director, may be deservedly congratulated upon the brilliant success of the pantomime.

"QUEEN OF THE FAIRIES" AT BRIGHTON.

The attraction provided at the West Pier Theatre, Brighton, for the Christmas holiday season is the three-act musical fantasy, The Queen of the Fairies, which was first performed on Friday afternoon last week by Mr. Ernest E. Norris's company. Written by Sidney Blow and Douglas Hoare, with lyrics by the latter and music by Edward Jones, the piece was originally produced at the London Coliseum as a one-act fantasy, and its reception under its enlarged form was of a very hearty character. The fantasy is distinctly pretty, the dresses are charming; the music is bright and melodious, the dances are graceful, and there is an abundance of sentimental and humorous songs. Under the stage management of Mr. Edward Boddy, assisted by Mr. Cyril Hardingham, the bright and merry piece ran with smoothness from start to finish, and should enjoy a long and profitable career.

The first act opens in the Park of Stroud Castle, the seat of the Duke of Stroud, and here a novel idea presents itself. Each of the household, from the Duke to his lowest servants, has an attendant fairy, whose object is to exercise discreet and healthy influence over the one entrusted to her care. The mortals are, however, not easily ruled, and soon find themselves the victims of real or imaginary troubles. The Duke's daughter Violet refuses her hand to Reginald Wane, who, contrary to the rules of the household, had been indulging in speculation. The Duke throws his gardener's daughter Jemima and a police-constable into the river, and as they are missing for some time, the Duke is accused of wilful murder. The park scene is distinctly picturesque, and the opening of the second act reveals a charming set descriptive of the Land of Castles in the Air, where there are castles inhabited by Mr. Lloyd George, Mrs. Pankhurst, and Mr. North-Pole Cook. Political and topical allusions introduced here prove very diverting. In the second scene of the act a return is made to the park, the Duke disguises himself as a policeman, but is identified and marched off to prison, but eventually escapes. In the third act, the Entrance Hall, Stroud Castle, matters end happily. Reginald's telegram with its intended message of speculation went astray; he had not really gambled, and Violet forgives him; and the Duke's supposed victims by drowning put in an appearance, and the sway of the fairies proves triumphant. Miss Nora Roylance made a delightfully graceful Queen of the Fairies, and not only sang with much taste, but contributed several refined and elegant dances, which secured her enthusiastic applause. Mr. H. E. Garden was admirably suited as the Duke, and proved amusing with his songs; while Miss Florence Lynn achieved great success as the Duchess. Miss Kathleen Storr as Lady Violet displayed easy acting and artistic vocalisation; and Mr. Eric J. Langham was well placed as the ardent young lover. Mr. Edward Boddy, as the gardener, Samuel Appleyard, presented a clever character sketch; and able impersonations were given by Nellie Craddock (Jemima), Mr. Creighton P. Hale (butler), Miss Clare Jones (Hannah), Miss Rosie Clare (cook), and Mr. Cyril Hardingham (P.C. Holder). Of the fairies, praise is due to Miss Blanche Kinross (Lady Mushroom), Miss Molly Heyward (Reginald's fairy), Miss Marie Montague (Duke's fairy), and Susie Elliott (Lady Wind). Miss Roylance's dances were arranged by Miss Aimée Phipps, and the others by Mr. Harry C. Gribben. The costumes were by Mme. Cloag and Messrs. Hyman, the wigs and effects by Gustave, and the properties by Messrs. J. Sheppard and C. Robbins.

"MOTHER HUBBARD" AT BRISTOL.

Mr. J. Hickory Wood has weaved quite an interesting story from the old nursery rhyme relating to Mother Hubbard, the pantomime being produced to a crowded house on Thursday, Dec. 23. The lyrics are by Mr. J. Dudley Smith. The argument, put shortly, is as follows:—Timothy Jacks, the village cobbler, spends too much of his time and money in the alehouse, much to the annoyance of Tric and Antic, twin fairies of mischief, who resolve to make him their slave. One moonlight night Jacks is thrown out of the alehouse; he is unable to stand. Tric, Antic, and their attendant imps surround him, and prod him with their pitchforks. Jacks is not really a bad sort, so Tric resolves to work out his redemption by making him work more regularly and imposes the condition that he must give away all the shoes he made as bad luck would attend the owners (and himself) of all shoes sold, but good luck every pair given away. Tric, Antic, and the Imps drive Jacks home with their pitchforks, and he commences to work at his bench. Early next morning Reuben, a young villager, calls in for a pair of shoes, for which Jacks charges him five shillings. But Reuben slips on the step outside Jacks' shop and breaks his ankle. Jacks runs out and helps Reuben home, and in his absence Fido, Mother Hubbard's dog, breaks Jacks' shop window by jumping through it. Mother Hubbard now calls, followed by Jacks. The dame requires a pair of shoes for her daughter Goody. Jacks finds a pair to suit, but refuses to take payment, being now convinced that the sentence of Tric will be enforced. The villagers think Jacks has gone mad, and swarm into his shop to get shoes for nothing. Mother Hubbard is in straitened circumstances, and she owes the Squire (who is described as "a sportsman") rent for her cottage. Dorothy, the Squire's ward, arrives from India, accompanied by her servant, Chocolate. Dorothy mistakes Jack, the Squire's huntsman, for Reggie, the Squire's son, who is a Naval cadet. Dorothy falls in love with Jack, and Reggie does likewise with Goody. Mary, Dame Hubbard's maid-of-all-work, tries to pal on with Chocolate, but is not very successful. The Squire wishes Reggie to marry Dorothy, who has forty thousand pounds, but he prefers Goody. In Mother Hubbard's absence to buy some dog biscuits the Squire enters her cottage to inspect the furniture, with the intention of distraining for rent. Fido attacks the Squire, who hits him on the head with a heavy silver candlestick and leaves him for dead. The dame returns with the biscuits, is much grieved at the death of Fido, and leaves the room to get a coffin. Then poor Fido recovers, shakes himself, and is none the worse. The dame returns and is overjoyed Jacks now enters, and informs the dame that the Squire is coming to distrain. Jacks agrees to pose as the dame's husband. The Squire comes with men to take away the furniture, when Goody, Reggie, Fido, Mary, and villagers all rush on them, and Goody hands her mother a letter from a lawyer, addressed to "Mrs. Mary Hubbard," to the effect that the dame's second cousin's aunt was dead, and had left her one hundred thousand pounds. The Squire congratulates Mother Hubbard, kisses Goody, and expresses his willingness for her to marry Reggie. Mother Hubbard and Goody now live in excellent style; part of the estate is called the Fairy Dell. Here Goody paddles in a running stream, and tells Fido to mind her shoes and stockings. Tric and Antic make Fido go to sleep. Mary enters, and seeing the shoes, puts them on, and throws her own away. Mother Hubbard and most of the other characters come on, when a letter is received from the lawyer by Mother Hubbard. In this letter he explains that a mistake has been made in consequence of his original informant dropping his h's and that therefore the property belongs to one "Mary Ubbard." The dame then remembers that her servant Mary's name is Ubbard, so the estate and money belong to her. The Squire now congratulates Mary, and tells Reggie that he must marry her instead of Goody; but Reggie declines to do so. Mary now lives in grand style at a Scottish castle. Mother Hubbard is her housekeeper, Goody her maid, Jacks her butler, and Jack her huntsman. The Squire, Reggie, Dorothy, Chocolate, and Fido are also there, together with a lot of impecunious aristocrats. Mary turns out to be a really good sort, kind and generous to her old friends, and Jacks has become very industrious in his new rôle of butler. Tric and Antic have a consultation, and resolve that Goody shall now have the estate and money, so Tric and Antic take an opportunity when Goody and Mary are asleep on a lonely moor to again change the shoes. Shortly after this, another letter comes from the lawyer, who has now ascertained that the fortune belongs to Goody Hubbard. Mary is very fond of Goody, and is quite willing for her to be the heiress. The Squire consents to Reggie marrying Goody, and Jack and Dorothy are also married.

Mr. Horace Mills, made up as a highly-respectable elderly woman, makes a fine part of Mother Hubbard. He acts the dame remarkably well, does not try to make her too funny, and his songs all go satisfactorily. Miss Alice Pollard is dainty, refined, and clever as Goody, and she sings pleasingly. Mr. Fred Conquest presents a marvellously clever animal study of Fido. Every movement tells almost as expressively as words, and the make-up dress is very fine including an intelligent-looking head and fine tail, which wags quite naturally. Mr. Charley Harvey does good work as the Squire, and amuses with some burlesque roller skating. Miss Lulu Valli acts with much refinement as Reggie, and with sufficient dash for the part. She also sings and dances in pleasing style. Miss Emmie Gardner plays in an expressive manner as Dorothy. Mr. G. H. Elliott has not a lot to do in the actual part of Chocolate, but he fully makes up for this with his speciality songs and dances, all these going remarkably well, and some of his scenes with children dressed precisely the same as himself are exceptionally attractive. Miss Betty Rutherford acts effectively and in good "manly" style as Jack, the huntsman. Miss Sydney Fairbrother presents a very fine character study of Mary, the Maid-of-all-work. She is always most amusing, and never makes the part too comic. Mr. Adolf Landolf acts realistically as a Wild Deer. The make-up is decidedly natural, and he has a fine fight with Fido. Miss Leah Hanman speaks the numerous lines allotted to Tric with fine elocution, and her dances are exceptionally clever and graceful. Miss Norah Walker ably seconds Miss Hanman as Antic, the other twin fairy of mischief. Mr. George Barrett makes an excellent part of Timothy Jacks. He acts very naturally in a certain quaint style, and never strains for effect. The ballet, chorus, and a large corps of extra ladies and gentlemen do their work efficiently, and they are all appropriately costumed.

The synopsis of scenery include Exterior of Village Alehouse, The Cobbler's Shop, The Village Green, Mother Hubbard's Front Door, Mother Hubbard's Cottage, The Chestnut Grove, The Fairy Dell, Grand Hall in Cronmartie Castle, In the Basement, On the Scotch Moors, Lost on the Mountains, The Shepherd's Shanty, Exterior of Cronmartie Castle, and Good Luck. All these are fine examples of the scene-painter's art by Mr. George Jackson, with the exception of The Chestnut Grove and Exterior of the Castle, which are finely painted by Mr. E. H. Ryan and Mr. Julian Hicks respectively. Some fine electric ballets have been introduced, and the final scene, Good Luck, is one blaze of electric lights. Very appropriate music has been composed and arranged by Mr. George Chapman; the costumes, all very fine, designed by Comelli and executed in the theatre by Miss Shapcott, Mrs. Bristowe, and assistants, Simmonds and Co., London, and Alias, London and Paris; machinery and mechanical effects by Mr. H. Wilson; properties, &c., by Mr. H. Momber and Mr. F. Labhart, London; electric lighting and dioramic effects by Mr. Arthur Bowen; and the wigs by Gustave, London, and Mr. H. J. Webb, Bristol. Miss Leah Hanman has displayed both taste and skill in the arrangement of the ballets and incidental dances; and much credit is due to Mr. Henry Turner for the admirable way in which he has produced the pantomime, which is also stage-managed by him with the assistance of Mr. David Fisher, jun. The entire production has been under the personal supervision of Mr. James Macready Chute.

"ROBINSON CRUSOE" AT BRISTOL.

This pantomime was produced on Dec. 27 to a crowded house. The "book" is written and arranged by Mrs. Ernest Carpenter, the new and elaborate scenery is by Mr. W. J. Cox, the appropriate music selected and composed by Mr. Edwin Jacobs, costumes designed by Miss Clarence, mechanical effects by Mr. Harry Blake, properties by Mr. S. Miller, electrical effects by Mr. George Brummell, and the entire pantomime was produced under the personal supervision of the late Mr. Ernest Carpenter. Much credit is also due to Mr. Charles Lake for his able stage-management. The plot follows much on the accepted lines of Robinson Crusoe pantomimes, and it is worked out with a synopsis of scenery representing Davy Jones' Locker, Portsmouth Hard, The Parlour of the Hair of the Dog, The Deck of the Bristol Queen, The Raft, Under the Sea, The Realms of Aphrodite, The Island, The Sea Shore, Crusoe's Hut, Another Part of the Island, and The Palace of the Princess. The scenery is all very fine, and special mention should be made of The Realms of Aphrodite, in which a pretty ballet of sea nymphs is introduced, and Crusoe ascends in a brilliantly illuminated diving-bell. The concluding scene, The Palace of the Princess, is elaborate in a stately style, and the dresses of the principals, chorus, ballet, and extra ladies are rich, tasteful, and imposing.

The first performance went remarkably well, the large audience being most enthusiastic with their applause. Miss Kitty Upton acts cleverly as Robinson Crusoe, and infuses plenty of "dash" into the part; Miss Blanche Marion is pleasing and refined as Polly Hopkins, and she both sings and dances well; Miss Jeannette Albert and Miss Rosie Albert both do excellently in their respective parts of Captain Lanyard and Sally, and they also score with speciality songs and dances; Mr. Charles F. Martell and Mr. John R. Bennett are really amusing as the Bo'sun and Mate, their comic skits and dances all obtaining appreciation; Mr. Edwin Garth is entertaining in a quaint, dry style as Mrs. Crusoe; Miss Judith Espinosa makes up capitally as Friday, her dancing is exceptionally fine, her dumb show is expressive, and it is only to be regretted that she has not more to do; Mr. Frank Dunlop gives a good, sound performance of Will Atkins on accepted pantomime lines; Mr. Dave Jenkins is imposing as Davey Jones, and sings "The Storm King" and "Revenge" acceptably; Miss Aida Knibbs acts effectively as the Princess Arawanha; Miss Rita Emson and Miss Kitty Emson do well as Bob Mainstay and Susie, their song and dance specialities obtaining appreciation; Miss Violet Maude speaks clearly the lines allotted to Aphrodite; and Miss Minnie Lake is an effective exponent of Tom Bowline. Some excellent dancing is introduced by the Four Sunrays, the Misses Kitty Victoria, Lily Knight, Belle Hanson, and May Desmond.

"DICK WHITTINGTON" AT CARDIFF.

Dick Whittington is the story around which Messrs. Milton Bode and Robert Redford have built up the wonderful production which on Boxing Day was presented to crammed and enthusiastic houses at the New Theatre. The book has been once again specially written for this theatre by Mr. J. Hickory Wood, and the music, which is undoubtedly one of the prettiest features of the performance, is by Messrs. Henry W. May and Knight Pearce, and the whole presentation has been produced by Mr. George Rowlands, under the personal supervision of Mr. Milton Bode. The outstanding sets are Highgate Hill by Mr. J. Markwell Davis, and the Empress Palace, by Mr. Fred Storey, but every scene is refreshingly sweet and softly coloured. In the latter scene and Dick's Dream the costumes beggar description, but not one dress offends the artistic eye by too rich a colouring, but the entire representation at the conclusion of these two settings is a feast of beautifully blended and charmingly toned colours. Miss Isabelle Dillon, the Dick Whittington, is a handsome, delightful, and captivating principal boy, and proves quite irresistible. In her first song Miss Dillon makes a hit at once, and during the whole evening she holds the admiration of the audience. Miss Gladys Guy is a worthy supporter as principal girl, and as Alice she is positively bewitching. Her charmingly-rendered number in Scene 3, entitled "Pretty little girl from nowhere" quite fascinates the house. Miss Blanche Astley as Second Boy is an immense success, with far more work than is usually allotted to this position. She carries off high honours by her impersonation of the character of Tommy Trot. Miss Elsa McIntosh is the second girl as May, her chief attraction for such a position being a skilful and talented step-dance, which might be prolonged. Mr. Mark Lester as Idle Jack is most versatile, his amusing impersonation being simply delightful from start to finish. Mr. Phil Smith is another huge success, this genial comedian making the audience simply shriek at his humorous portrayal of Matilda. Mr. Arthur E. Godfrey is a great fun maker as Captain Scupper, and does remarkably well; Mr. Arthur Leslie as Bill Oakum is most quaint and droll, his impersonation being of the Wilkie Bard type, and consequently very laughable. Mr. Tom E. Sinclair as Fitzwarren completes the corps of merry men, who will certainly earn enviable reputations long before the final performance. Mr. Johnny Fuller is very skilfully made up as Mouser, the cat, his antics being a great delight to both young and old. Miss Minnie Duncan as Fatima deserves great praise for her rendition, and Miss Betty Herbert does well as the good fairy.

"MOTHER GOOSE" AT CARDIFF.

The Cambrian Theatres, Ltd., presented their first Christmas pantomime before a packed audience on Monday afternoon. The subject chosen is Mother Goose, and the management are entitled to congratulations on the result attained. The magnificent scenery is deserving of special commendation. The most stirring set is Primrose Dell, harmonious in colour, and creating a particularly pretty effect. The Abode of Avarice is mounted in realistic style. The company is a well-chosen one. The principal fun-makers are comedians of the first water, their unlimited patter and numerous funny songs contributing greatly to the success of the production. Miss Lillie Soutter is the principal boy, Lubin, and it is safe to predict for her wide popularity. She acts and sings well, and displays the amount of "go" necessary to the part. Her best songs are "I've been out with Charlie Brown" and "I can picture Polly hanging up the holly," both rendered in fine, dashing style. In Miss Marie Wall we have an ideal principal girl, her charming personality and vivacious manner endearing her to the audence. As Daisy, the belle of the village, Miss Wall gives a winsome rendition, her song "The pretty little girl from nowhere" being sweetly rendered. To Mr. Alfred Donohoe as Mother Goose must be accorded first honours among the comedians. He is the life and soul of every scene, and at an early stage sets everyone in a good humour, his droll sayings being irresistibly diverting. Mr. Harry Karr as Squre Close contributes largely to the fun of the evening, and, in conjunction with Mr. Walter Kooney as the rascally Lawyer Parchment, this comical pair contrive many funny situations and sing positively side-splitting ditties. Another comedian who can claim distinction is Mr. Mark Heaton, who makes a great hit as Mother Goose's nephew, Billy. He is full of quaint mannerisms, and is excruciatingly funny throughout. Three members of the Force—Robert, Timothy, and Clarence—respectively Mr. Dan Lawley, Mr. Hugh Brady, and Mr. Bert Allen—all keep the fun going fast and furious. As the Squire's daughter Annabel Miss Marie Elsie appears to advantage, and does exceedingly well in her one song "I'm so particular." A more graceful Fairy Queen than Miss Roberta Svendsen could scarcely be found, her difficult song in Part 2 being rendered in a melodious voice which called forth loud approbation. The large chorus discharge their duties with marked ability, and the two special dances, "Ballet of Flowers" and "Ballet of Jewels," are ample evidence of the excellent services of Sylvester Stewart, by whom the dances have been arranged. The music throughout is tastefully rendered, and, under the baton of Hugo Frantz, the augmented orchestra add their share to the general success. Mother Goose is full of sparkle and fun from rise to fall of the curtain.

"ROBINSON CRUSOE" AT CHELTENHAM.

To place the production of this year's local pantomime in the experienced hands of Mr. and Mrs. John Walters certainly promised success, but the flattering reception accorded to Robinson Crusoe on Monday must have startled Mr. Redford's most sanguine anticipations. The "book," by Mr. Albert Ruttley, has been brought slap bang up to date by Mr. Walters, and the result is a pleasing story of Crusoe, Polly Perkins, and Bold Will Atkins, on rather novel lines, always brightness itself, artistic, and distinctly refined. The staging and mounting are excellent, realistic scenery and effects, charming dresses and charming ladies to display them to advantage. The principals are proof of Mr. and Mrs. Walters' discerning power of selection, genuine ability being apparent in all parts. Miss Florence Carlile is a dashing young Crusoe, and her rendering of "Let the world go by" and "The dearest land of all" appealed to one and all. Miss Kittie Liske sings and dances brightly in the rôle of Polly Perkins, her rendering of "I used to sigh for the silvery moon" catching on with the audience, who are encouraged to take up the refrain with the assistance of a giant sheet of music on the stage, pretty faces popping through in the place of notes—a very novel effect. The second boy and girl are Miss Rena Rees, who sings "The very first girl I see" with plenty of aplomb, and Miss Elsie Naish, a very dainty little dancer. Two other clever young artists are Miss Violet Thorne, who puts a great deal of go into the part of Jack Harkaway, and Miss Florence Parkinson, who is charmingly natural in an Irish song and dance. Mr. Ally M. Benson as the redoubtable Mrs. Crusoe again proves himself to be one of the best pantomime dames; and Mr. Tom Lewis does yeoman service as the bold, bad Atkins. Mr. W. Bland puts some really clever business into the part of Billy Crusoe; and Mr. Dan Belmore as Julius Cutpurse and Mr. J. Randolph Sutton as Ebenezer Jongeye, complete the quintet of excellent comedians, the latter gentleman's rendering of "Down the Strand" and "The girl in the clogs and shawl" being among the best things. The dusky King of the Cannibal Islands is fearfully and wonderfully impersonated by Mr. T. Daniels; Mr. Jack Green does well as that monarch's Generalissimo; while the amorous Princess Piccalilli is ably represented by Miss Eugene, a lady possessing an almost pure baritone voice. Two smart knockabout acrobats, Messrs. Dytum and Dale, appear as Pongo and Bumbo, animals remarkable and grotesque; Mr. Harry Daniels quaintly impersonates Man Friday, introducing an amusing "shovel" dance in the Hut scene, a cute little canine comedian assisting in this as also in an earlier scene, causing roars of laughter. The Spirit of the Ocean and the Fairy Liberty are represented by Miss Hilda Hemus and Miss Kitty Chester, both of whom have really good voices, Miss Hemus in particular. Smart speciality dances are given by the Tivoli Trio and Walters' ballet troupe of eighteen dancers do capital work. The grand ballet and transformation scene, The Gardens of the Sea, is wisely placed in the middle of the production, a very charming and effective piece of stage-management and mounting, and the usual interval is utilised for a short harlequinade, a commendable arrangement. Mr. Albert Rigby directs the music.

"CINDERELLA" AT CREWE.

Mr. James Kiddie's pantomime Cinderella commenced its career on Monday night at the Opera House, and judging from the reception it received will be a huge success. The libretto is by Mr. J. L. Barry and the music by Mr. George Burton. The pantomime comprises eleven scenes, and the gorgeous dresses and pretty electrical effects make up a brilliant spectacle. Good wholesome fun and catchy songs are provided in plenty, and the Snow Ballet is a prominent feature. The cast is an excellent one in every respect. Miss Edie May makes a dashing principal boy, and her vocal powers are displayed in several good songs. Miss Kitty Avey is a charming "Cinders," her graceful acting gaining much admiration and her song "Post cards" being a big hit. Miss Lily Ennis infuses plenty of "go" into the part of Dandini, and sings with success "Seaside" and "I've been out with Charlie Brown." Miss Fanny Douglas, who possesses a cultured voice, is a pleasing Fairy Sunbeam; Miss Ada Tyrrell as Lord Stiff proves to be an expert dancer; Miss Annie Casey is suitably placed as the Marquis de Cadie; and Miss Pollie Kiddie is a commendable Viscount Nappe. As the Baron Mr. Leslie Hawkins' quaint humour appeals to all; Mr. W. G. Wesley, whose drollery establishes him a favourite at once, and Mr. Harry Bliss, who is also very amusing, play the Ugly Sisters. Mr. Harry Huttin is a host in himself as Pimples, and tickles the audience with his original and witty sayings. Mr. Bert Melrose is good as Malicio. Specialities by the Lisando Brothers, the Sylphide Troupe of Continental dancers, and Little Violet conclude a most enjoyable performance. Great credit is due to Mr. George Burton and Mr. Leslie Hawkins for the smoothness with which the production went, to Miss Ada Tyrrell, who is responsible for the ballets, and to Mr. Machine, who wields the bâton.

"DICK WHITTINGTON" AT DUBLIN.

The new management of the Gaiety Theatre are to be congratulated on their pantomime, successfully produced by Mr. William Clark, under the direction of Mr. Frederick Mouillot. Mr. F. Leslie Moreton's book brings out in a clever and interesting manner the story of Dick Whittington. The opening scene is Aldgate in ye Olden Time, where we meet all the principals and the market folk. The choruses are particularly good, the opening number, "Oh, haste to the market!" being exceptionally fine. In a Room in Fitzwarren's House and the Alderman's Kitchen we have plenty of amusing incidents, and the first part concludes with a capital scene, On the Hill at Highgate.

The second part opens with scenes, Down by ye Olde London Docks, A View of Morocco, The Palace at Morocco, Exterior of the Guildhall, and the final, Dick's Triumphal Entry into London, is a most elaborate spectacle, the effect of the gorgeous dresses providing a coup d'œil of art and beauty. Miss Kathleen Gray, who scored such a tremendous success here last year, makes a dashing Dick Whittington. She has a prepossessing and attractive appearance, and her singing of "Just Some One" and "One of the Girls" is excellent. She captivated every one on the opening night by her alluring performance. Miss Adela Crispin, in the part of Alice, acted and sang artistically. Miss Gwen Francis was admirably suited as Lord Slightall, and her singing of "The Kiltie Boys" was warmly encored. Miss Daisy Stratton gave an effective portrayal of the Princess Almida, and as sunshine Miss Ethel Mann was exceedingly good, and acted the good fairy very well. Miss Ethel Burns was most successful as Mary (Georgie's Nurse). Master Wee Georgie appeared as Alice's Brother, and his imitations of music hall artists proved to be extremely clever, his burlesque Salome dance bringing down the house. Mr. Jack Cosgrove made a capital Emperor of Morocco, and Mr. Herbert Matthews as his Vizier did very well. Alderman Fitzwarren was in the capable hands of Mr. Chas. J. Cameron, while Messrs. Naughton and Gold did capital work in their respective parts as Captain Starboard and Ben Bobstay. Mr. Julian Mack was very popular and caused much amusement as Selina, and Mr. Percy Cahill was capital as Idle Jack. Last, but not least, there is the exceedingly clever and amusing cat of Mr. Ernest Selig.

In the ballet Mr. Mouillot has brought over specially from Paris M. Louis Sans and Signorita Delirio, who execute several clever and graceful dances, including a castanet dance (the Gitana), and Apache dance, which was heartily encored. A word of praise is due to Mr. John Moody, who has composed and arranged the music and ballets and dances, and to Mr. M. P. Byrne for the local and topical allusions. Miss Kate Brandon arranged the dances.

"BABES IN THE WOOD" AT DUBLIN.

For the first time after twelve years, we have again pantomime appearing at this popular theatre. Mr. Theodore Adge has specially written Babes in the Wood, which was successfully produced on Boxing Day. Messrs. Cullen and Carthy, with their great and comic pantomime, are responsible for all, for which they deserve the highest credit, and, judging from the crowded houses, it has proved to be one of the funniest and amusing played here. The story is familiar, and well carried out, the scenery is artistic and effective, the music is tuneful, the selection of songs is most popular, and the dresses are pretty.

The company is a very strong one, and the specialities are well above the average. Miss Bessie Cohen is splendid as Robin Hood, and her songs are rendered in a fine and dashing manner, which are warmly encored. As the two robbers Messrs. Cullen and Carthy are the mainstay of the whole production; they do some excellent work, and bring down the house with their clever singing of "Has anybody seen Kelly?" Little Cluley has a style of his own, and he plays the part of Bantam capitally. He sings "Down the Strand" exceedingly well. Maid Marion was charmingly portrayed by Miss Maudie Ford; and as the two babes Miss Dollie Cullen and Miss Elsie Jordison are both particularly good, and their duets and dances are clever and warmly appreciated. Miss Kitty Kearns is pleasing and effective as Phyllisa, and her singing is greatly admired. Mr. Tom Drew has plenty of scope to display his abilities as Dame Peggy, which he does right well, and causes no end of laughter. Mr. Arthur Stratton makes a good Baron. Miss Violet Ray as Marjorie, Miss Una Ellis as Dorcas, Miss Marie Fern as Venus (Fairy Queen), and Mr. Tom Waters as Hearne the Hunter, all do their best in their respective parts.

The Granda Quartette of Lady Dancers is a feature of the whole pantomime; they execute some really fine and graceful dancing, and they deserve great praise for the Apache Dance, which was excellent.

The whole pantomime finished with a grand Shadow Pantomime, which was heartily enjoyed.

"RED RIDING HOOD" AT EXETER.

The twenty-first pantomime is this week produced at this theatre, which was opened in 1888. The appearance of Red Riding Hood was anticipated with much enthusiasm, and the production proved very enjoyable. The story is told by Mr. Frank Ayrton, the music composed, arranged, and orchestra conducted by Mr. Geo. D. Fox, and the pantomime is produced and stage-managed by Mr. Chas. R. Stone, an old Exonian. The story has been excellently treated by Mr. Ayrton, and reflects much credit upon local talent and ingenuity, the scenery is effective, the dresses extremely pretty, and the music and singing very captivating. Miss Mabel Lamont, a youthful artist, portrays the title-character charmingly, both in her acting and singing, and is an accomplished juvenile actress; her sister, Miss Lily Lamont, is a child of about fourteen, who establishes herself a favourite as the Fairy Glowworm. Miss Gertrude Branscombe, a clever young actress, who comes of an Exeter family, makes a dainty Miss Muffett; and Miss Marie Dowsing a lively and enticing Marjorie Daw, the latter with Mr. Dan Seymour, who is so comical as Simple Simon, being responsible for an exceptionally clever rendering of the Apache dance. Miss Lilian Rutherford makes a dashing Boy Blue, and in the scene with the fully equipped boy scouts—a most attractive feature—she renders, amidst much enthusiasm, the swinging song, "B.P. Scouts"; whilst Miss Branssombe gives very tastefully "Dolly Dear." Miss Madge Campbell makes a noble Prince Charming, and her songs also meet with success. Mr. E. W. Amery, another old Exeter favourite, is as good as ever as Dame Trott, and throughout keeps the house in a jolly mood, his songs, "Is anybody looking for a widow?" and "An up-to-date slavey" being very popular. Mr. J. Templar Ellis, who portrays Baron Badlot, is a comedian full of eccentricity and wit. Some smart trap-door work is done by Mr. Steve Asher as Lupus, the wicked wolf, and Mr. McClusky as the Poodle and the Donkey; whilst Messrs. Frank Strathan as Johnny Green and Mr. Joe Clark as Jimmy Stout, do exceedingly well their part of the comic business. The ballets and dances by Miss Emily London's troupe of eight child vocalists and dancers, are very pleasing. The reappearance again of the old-fashioned harlequinade, invented and arranged by Mr. Steve Asher, a lively Clown, is very popular. He is assisted by Mr. Joe Clark as Harlequin, Miss Letine as Columbine, Mr. Frank Strathan as Pantaloon, and Mr. Mike McClusky as Policeman.

"BABES IN THE WOOD" AT GATESHEAD.

One of the best pantomimes ever presented to Gateshead audiences was produced at the Metropole Theatre on Christmas Eve by Mr. Charles Barnard, and it is safe to assert that the ever-courteous Messrs. Elder and Dixon will have their "hands full" of patronage during the fourteen days' run. On the opening night a full house witnessed the production, and the final "curtain" fell amidst prolonged whole-hearted cheering, which must have been very gratifying to artists and management alike. When it is remembered that the pantomime is for touring purposes, one marvels at the all-round excellence of the scenery, that of The Fairy Bower being particularly pleasing. The songs include a number of the latest successes, sung by permission of Messrs. Francis, Day, and Hunter, Feldman and Sons, Witmark and Co., Star Publishing Co., &c.

Mr. Barnard has been fortunate in the selection of his company. First in point of popularity comes Miss Gracie Grahame (Robin Hood), whose reputation for vivacity and charm is well sustained. Miss Grahame's presence is pleasing, and she won much applause for a clever rendering of the song "Let's all go down the Strand." Another popular item well exploited by Miss Grahame is "I can picture Polly," whilst "Ship Ahoy" is easily the best-liked song in the cheaper parts of the house. "I do like to be beside the seaside" also gives Robin Hood an opportunity to shine. A charming Maid Marion is presented by Miss Violet Nunn. Her song "Good-night, Mr. Knight" goes with a rare swing, and is highly praised. The Sisters Du Cane as Will Scarlett and Daisy Buttercup act with sprightliness, and their duet "Alpine dress" earns them much applause. Will Scarlett is also to the fore with "I used to sigh." The Fairy Content receives excellent treatment at the hands of Miss Ethel Payne. In comedians the production is exceptionally rich. That clever pair Nash and Noel are ever in the van working hard for success which they certainly achieve. They have two excruciatingly funny duets named "We don't care a button if it snows" and "We're carrying on the good work." In the duel scene they make one of the hits of the pantomime. The wicked Baron, Sir Rupert, boasts a most creditable exponent in Mr. Dan Daley. He sings with good effect a parody on 'Asleep in the deep." Mr. Charles Lilburn as Wilhelmina Wilkins has only a small part, to which he does infinite credit. Sally Slop and Percy Perkins are an entertaining pair as played by Cadwell and Verne. Mr. Dan Weldon makes a praiseworthy Demon. Misses Ena Corelli and Mabel Reeve present a charming and intelligent pair of Babes. Their sweet simplicity appeals to everyone, and Miss Reeve's rendering of the beautiful song "Somewhere" was heartily applauded. Miss Corelli, too, made a success in the song "I wonder," and danced on the sand with much grace. The Twelve Damozels present some pretty dances, and the ballets are a pleasing memory. The effects and general staging are of the best, and success will surely be the verdict along the touring line. Mr. W. Stevenson is the musical director and Mr. Frank Eden the company manager.

"CINDERELLA" AT GREAT YARMOUTH.

This year's pantomime at the Aquarium is Cinderella, produced under the direction of Mr. Graham Falcon, and the enthusiasm which greeted the first performance on Boxing Day augurs well for its future success. The book, by C. S. Oswald, is both witty and topical, and the scenic artists have scored a triumph, the Fairies' Bower being one of the finest sets that have been placed on the Aquarium stage. The costumes are gorgeous and harmonise with the delightful settings. Chief honours fall to Cinderella, captivatingly pourtrayed by Miss Cecilia Gold. Her dainty acting, charming singing, and graceful dancing has established her a big favourite. Miss Maude Nichols is a dashing principal boy, and her song "Let's all go down the Strand" goes with a delightful swing. Miss Lilian Drake is a vivacious Dandini, and her song "Molly and her organ" secures well-merited encores. The Ugly Sisters are humorously played by Mr. Albert Lawrance and Mr. Wal Lesby, who keep the audience in a continual ripple of laughter. Mr. Jack Waller is excellent as the Baron, and his cat duet with Cinderella is one of the hits of the evening. Miss Rene Willoughby is a big success as the Fairy Queen, her fine presence, coupled with a charming voice, making her a big favourite. Messrs. Jack Harley and Joe Hardon as Slip and Slop are a couple of excellent knockabout comedians. The amusing antics of the Cat (Mr. Will Telford) delight the juvenile patrons. Mr. Glen Alva is very funny as Billy Buttons, and does well with his song "I don't care." Miss Beatrix Maude is a pleasing Margery, and executes some capital dances. The smoothness of the first performance reflects great credit on Mr. Arthur Evremond, the stage manager, and Mr. Arthur Meredyth ably directs the orchestra.

"ROBINSON CRUSOE" AT HANLEY.

Mr. Chas. G. Elphinstone has made arrangements with Messrs. Dottridge and Longden to produce this season's pantomime at the Royal, and a magnificent start was made on Boxing Day, when two gigantic houses went in raptures over Mr. H. Flockett-Foster's version of Robinson Crusoe. Artistic scenery has been painted by Mr. H. O. Richardson, the best being The Coral Cave, a perfect picture. The plot is run on traditional lines, but the libretto is really smart. The singing and dancing are of high excellence, and the numerous specialities are clever and well placed. Miss Maude Mortimer is a vivacious and sprightly principal boy, and her welcome is tremendous. Her songs are charmingly rendered, including "Charlie Brown," "Ship Ahoy," "Sea, sea, sea," and a duet, with Miss Yolande Noble (Polly Perkins), entitled "Kiss, kiss, kiss." The latter lady is very dainty and pleasing. She sings "Swank" and "Polly and the holly" with great favour. "Kelly," sung by the dame, Mr. C. J. Fixott, was a big hit, and his rendering of the part was particularly good. For wholesome rollicking fun, Mr. Arnold Richardson, who plays Billy, could not be beaten. He instantly installed himself first favourite, his "Football" song coming in for special commendation. Will Atkins (Mr. Charles Heslop) is capitally played; and as the cannibal king Mr. Charles North succeeds, singing "The Mighty Deep" well. Miss Rita Vincent, a sweet daughter of Neptune, is heard in "Somewhere," rendered charmingly, and her whole impersonation is an artistic effort. Mr. H. Flockett-Foster as Captain Cuttle works hard and with excellent results. Messrs. Elton and Elma have much to do towards the success of the panto., for besides playing Bill Starboard and Tom Mainbrace, they introduce a clever speciality on the bars. One of the greatest treats in the pantomime is provided by Mlle. Pauline Rivers, whose grand children's ballet, entitled "In the Merry Winter Time," is clever and original. The Pauline Sextette and Bert Rolfe's Quartette also supply capital special numbers. Mr. George Ess controls the orchestra, and is also responsible for the arrangement of the panto. Mr. Fred G. Evison is acting-manager, Mr. H. Flockett-Foster admirably manages the stage, and Mr. J. Kelsall is successful as his assistant. The pantomime runs for five weeks.

"THE BABES IN THE WOOD" AT LEEDS.

Mr. Francis Laidler, the new proprietor of the Theatre Royal, produced on Boxing night his first pantomime in Leeds, which bids fair to become most popular. The "book" has been specially written by Mr. Arthur Field, and the music composed, selected, and arranged by the capable conductor, Mr. Harry Rushforth. An ideal pantomime favourite has been secured in the engagement of Miss Florrie Forde as the bold Robin Hood. From her first entrance she acts with great vivacity, and the manner in which she renders her various songs and her clear enunciation of same, which requires no effort to hear every word uttered, is highly appreciated by the audience, judging by the applause accorded her. Miss Forde seems very lucky in her choice of songs, which eventually are sung throughout the land. In latter years we have had "Bull and Bush" and "Antonio," and this year's song, "Has anyone seen Kelly?" will prove equally popular. Although we have heard a lot about Kelly during the last few months, fortunately the song has not been sung before in Leeds, so that it comes with a freshness that will last during the reign of the pantomime. Another favourite song sung by Miss Forde is "I do like to be beside the seaside," which will prove equally as popular. Other songs rendered by her include: "If you should see a little soldier," "I can picture Polly," and "One of the girls." Miss Susie Belmore as Maid Marion acts delightfully, and her prettiness and youth make her a big favourite. We are sorry that she does not occupy the stage so much as we should like her to. She renders one song, "It is the Alpine dress I'm wearing," in a bewitching manner, and we hope that she will quickly have one or two more songs allotted her. In Mother Hubbard we have the favourite comedian, Mr. Bert Byrne, whose make-up is really funny, and whilst he occupies the stage the audience is kept fully amused. He sings two very good songs, viz., "Brown looking for a widow" and "Choose her in the morning early." Will Lindsay as Sammy runs Mr. Byrne very close in popularity, his broad Yorkshire talk standing him in good stead, and he sings "I wish you a merry Christmas" in a funny manner. Burley and Burley extract plenty of fun as the robbers. The Baron is in the capable hands of Jimmie Pullin, and Marie West is good as the Baroness. The Florodoras sustain their rôles with satisfaction, and the low comedy of Miss Victoria Cross is fully appreciated. Mr. J. W. Hughes ably plays Simon the Cellarer, and his fine voice gains him much applause. The Babes are represented by Tiny and Mite, who excel in a step-dancing act. The new scenery is particularly pretty, and there is a good corps de ballet. The Queen of the Fairies is capitally played by Miss Issa Steel.

"SINBAD" AT LEICESTER.

A packed house on Boxing night greeted the production of Messrs. Thos. McKenzie and C. St. John Denton's pantomime, Sinbad the Sailor, at the Opera House. The dresses are costly and pretty, and several scenes, notably the Orange Grove, the Diamond Valley, and the Palace, are beautiful examples of the scenic artist's craft. The pantomime is written by William Wade, and there is sufficient plot to give a connective story throughout. The company prove themselves capable and give a bright and merry entertainment. The principal boy is Miss Jessie Wilton, who will no doubt become a great favourite. She has a good voice, and goes well with her songs, "Such beautiful eyes" and "Let's wander down the Strand," which are given with much vivacity and vim. Miss Cindy Asche makes an attractive principal girl, and scores a well-deserved hit with her song, "Somewhere." Miss Madeline Rossiter as Princess Zorilda dances exceedingly well, and her song, "I used to sigh for the silvery moon," is enthusiastically received. Miss Marie Leigh sings and plays the part of Adventure, the Fairy, in a most acceptable manner, and Miss Cissie Brand is capital as Heesaloph. Mr. Will Johnson gives a mirth-provoking impersonation of Mrs. Sinbad, and scores with his songs "Is anybody looking for a widow?" and "Oh, for the days when I was young." Mr Sydney James, a favourite with Leicester people, in the part of Binbad displays his well-known versatility to the greatest advantage. Messrs. Walton and Lester get every ounce of comedy out of the parts of the First and Second Mates, and create endless amusement. Mr. G. W. Desmond is also deserving of praise as Captain Bowling. Specialities are introduced by Messrs. Walton and Lester (the world's worst wizards), Miss Madeline Rossiter, Mr. Sydney James, and Mr. G. W. Desmond. The pantomime has been produced for Messrs. McKenzie and Denton by Mr. J. A. Howitt, to whom praise should be meted for the manner in which he has carried out his work. The augmented orchestra and chorus are under the direction of Mr. Ernest Irving. Mr. F. J. Richardson is the general manager for Mr. Denton's pantomimes.

"CINDERELLA" AT LEICESTER.

"A rattling good show" was the verdict of the packed house at the Pavilion Theatre on Monday afternoon, when Mr. H. Leslie Bell's fairy operatic pantomime Cinderella was presented for the first time. It literally teems with funny business, and there runs throughout a great number of pretty melodies and the very latest song-hits, which caught on immensely with the audience, who were so enthusiastic at the termination of the "show" that Mr. Joseph Lawrence, the manager of the theatre, had to appear before the curtain and thank them on behalf of the artists. The pantomime is in seven scenes, and is to be run on the two-shows-a-night system, which is quite an innovation in Leicester. Miss Daisy Silcock makes a dashing and smart Prince Charming, and has already won great popularity with Leicester audiences. She has some good songs, which she renders in a captivating manner, her most successful number being "Polly hanging up the holly," which was vociferously encored. Another favourite with Leicester audiences is Miss Lily Pearl, who makes a dainty and charming Cinderella, her big song, "My Little Teddy Bear," in which she is assisted by a number of auxiliaries, meeting with a well-deserved encore. Dandini is played in a spirited and clever style by Miss Annie Craig, whose melodious voice is heard to great advantage in the hunting song "Yorick, away." Miss Daisy Rhyl is good as the Fairy Sunshine, who sings well a pretty song, "The Golden West." Miss Iris Ray makes a capital Phyllis. To the comedians of the show we must offer special praise on the way they work together, and the vast amount of merriment they get out of their parts, these being Mr. Barry Bond as Baron Shiftalot, Mr. Tom Veronique as Billy Buttons, and Yost and Yost as the Ugly Sisters. Mr. Barry Bond, in his song "Don't take me home," in which he has some really funny by-play with a lady in the audience, who eventually fetches him off the stage, creates endless laughter. Yost and Yost also have some mirth-compelling numbers, the one in which the local Fosse football team is introduced being especially popular. Mr. F. Donaldson both sings and acts well as Talicio; and Mr. Lew Towers does well as Filario. The concerted numbers of the comedians are all good, and are well rendered, "Let's all go down the Strand" being especially noteworthy. The duet and dance of Miss Daisy Silcot and Miss Lily Pearl, "Mr. Man in the Moon," is done in a captivating manner, and earns hearty applause. The Kitina Dancing Girls introduce a number of well-executed dances, and specialities are also given by Yost and Yost and Lew Towers. There is an increased orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Whittington, who is to be complimented on the way in which he handles them.

"RED RIDING HOOD" AT LIVERPOOL.

Mr. Robert Arthur's fourteenth pantomime at the Royal Court Theatre, Liverpool, bearing the title Red Riding Hood, was produced on Monday afternoon, and promises to prove a decided success. At all events, it contains all the elements necessary to make it such. Mr. Frank Dix has written a smart book; the music, composed by Mr. Jullien H. Wilson, and the well-known conductor of the orchestra, Mr. J. O. Shepherd, is tuneful and light, well befitting the theme; from the point of prettiness it would be hard to excel the dresses; while the exquisite brushwork by Mr. Stafford Hall and Mr. G. E. W. McKie, particularly the former, is as fine as any of previous years, which is saying a great deal. Mr. George Corney was well to the front with some excellent properties. The pantomime was produced by Mr. Alexander Keith, and Miss Madge Martin is to be complimented upon having had the ballets in a thoroughly trained condition. The book is remarkable for two special feautres—first, that it contains a deal of the spirit of the nursery, beloved by the little ones; and, secondly, the up-to-date allusions, political and otherwise, are such as to be appreciated by the grown-up members of an audience. Those who were responsible for the rehearsals are deserving of credit for the surprisingly smooth manner in which everything was gone through at the initial performance, a fact which was particularly noted by the crowded and delighted house. Briefly, the story is that the Squire of Dingle (a local spot) desires to gain the lands and fortune of Red Riding Hood, who is in charge of Mother Hubbard at Liverpool, "a peaceful village close to Warrington," and in order to do so makes a compact with the King of the Wolves to destroy her. At the village we find that Boy Blue, while out hunting, has captured King Wolf, and placed him in a cage for the amusement of the holiday-makers. The creature, however, is secretly released by order of the Squire, who sends him to Mother Hubbard's cottage, which is about to be visited by Red Riding Hood. The old trick of the wolf simulating the grandmother in bed and attacking the child is repeated, but Boy Blue comes on the scene and rescues her. After further adventures the Squire is condemned to marry Mother Hubbard, and Red Riding Hood comes into her own. As before mentioned, some excellent brushwork is shown on the stage. The Village of Liverpool, The Glade (a delightful woodland scene), The Ice Palace, The Squire's Garden, and The Marble Palace are wonderful examples of the painter's skill, and Mr. Stafford Hall well maintains his position as one of the finest artists of the present day. The naturalness shown in each and all of them met with general admiration. Mr. McKie is also to be complimented upon his several interiors, and Wolf's Lair. Then there are many pretty dances introduced, notably one amid falling snow by children dressed to represent cobwebs, and another by a company of pretty girls clad in winter attire. Regarding the artists engaged, the Court this year has been fortunate in securing Miss Violet Lloyd, who, as principal boy, at once jumped into favour. Possessed of a pleasing, musical voice, winning manner, and graceful movement, she is an ideal Boy Blue, and received flattering recognition for her efforts. Her songs, "I used to sigh for the silvery moon" and "The sea, sea, sea," called forth great applause, and she was compelled to accede to frequent encores. Miss Maud Thorne made a charming principal girl, and pleased very much with her several numbers, which included a catchy one dealing with nursery rhymes, and having a swinging chorus, and a pretty duet, "Homeland," in which she was assisted by Miss Lloyd. Miss Lily Hill, a young lady of fourteen summers, was the Red Riding Hood, and, although her labours were not onerous, she acquitted herself to everyone's satisfaction. Miss Florence Ray looked lovely as the Fairy Queen; Miss Josie Farrington and Miss Anita Edis were Jack and Jill, the latter having a cordial reception for her dancing and her song "I'm looking for Mr. Wright"; Mr. Horace Lane, an actor of ability, handled the part of the scheming Squire with tact, his ditty, "Don't take me home," causing much laughter; the Sisters Jerome filled the minor rôles of Magnolia and Virginie; Mr. George Cockburn as King Wolf was a striking figure, and spoke his lines well; and Mr. Frank Zeitz made a lively dog, full of amusing pranks. The Poluski Brothers (Johnny Stout and Willie Green) were undoubtedly the main strength of the pantomime so far as comedy was concerned, and their antics constantly kept the audience in a merry mood. Nothing could be funnier than the duel in the wood, a familiar idea worked on fresh lines, and there were moments when the dialogue could not be heard for the shouts of laughter which the comedians provoked. Of course, a Budget song, concerning taxes, must be introduced; as Dr. Cook and Lieut. Peary they provided a capital little front cloth turn; while other equally humorous items were an alleged duet, "Yes, we have," "Oh! what a happy land," and "The Alphabet." Mr. Phil Ray was well to the fore as Mother Hubbard, one of his best efforts being the Dame's School, which also contained new matter, while among his several songs was that of "The tramcar." Throughout the pantomime he kept the ball rolling in merry style. Mr. Peter Bermingham extracted a deal of humour out of his Sandy McPhun; some charming dances were given by the Eight Mascottes; and "The Babies' Park Parade" chorus, in which a number of nursemaids, with perambulators and soldier followers, participated, was highly appreciated. In conclusion, Mr. Arthur Lawrence, the acting-manager of the theatre, is to be thanked for his superintendence of the whole production, which, as before stated, was at the initial performance given with such completeness and smoothness.

"DICK WHITTINGTON" AT LIVERPOOL.

The Liverpool Shakespeare Theatre is this year welcoming Dick Whittington and His Cat from the Theatre Royal, Birmingham, and, judging by the manner in which it was presented on Monday afternoon last, Mr. Wentworth Croke is to be congratulated upon having got hold of what looks like a winner. Bright, clean, artistic, and crammed with amusement, there is every prospect that this popular theatre will add still another to its long list of pantomime successes. Messrs. Philip Rodway and Douglas Buchanan are responsible for the clever book; Mr. Guy Jones has composed the harmonious music; and the producer is Mr. Herbert Cottesmore, whose handiwork reflects great credit upon him. The beautiful costumes have been supplied by the well-known firm of John Harman and Co. All the scenery is particularly fine. Mr. R. C. McCleery submits a charming forest glade at Highgate Hill, a picturesque view of Old London Docks, with vast merchantmen alongside ready for departure, and another showing Ratcliffe Highway, all of which do him honour. Mr. W. R. Young has also achieved wonders with his belfry of Bow Church, Fitzwarren's Stores, Palace of the Emperor, and the Guildhall Interior. Scene 1 shows us the belfry where "King Rat plots against Dick Whittington because a party bearing the same Christian name has dared to kill a rat." Consequently, at the stores, where he is employed, Dick is accused of theft and discharged. He journeys to Highgate Hill, attracted by the sound of Bow Bells, and, on arriving at the docks, is induced to make a voyage to Morocco, where he secures the Emperor's goodwill through his cat ridding the palace of vermin. The sailing of the vessel, and the rapid change showing the disconsolate Alice standing alone on the quay as the craft gradually disappears in the moonlight is as fine a stage picture as could be imagined. Eventually he returns to London, where he is proclaimed Lord Mayor, and also wins the hand of Alice, Fitzwarren's daughter. The happy termination of his adventures is celebrated by a grand procession of Guilds, which make an exceedingly attractive finale. Miss Carrie Moore, who five years ago occupied a similar position in one of the Shakespeare's huge successes, was the principal boy, and afforded the utmost delight by her charming manner, vivacity, and melodious voice. The artistic abilities of Miss Moore since her former appearance at this theatre have ripened, and she appeared to be as great a favourite as ever. It was especially a treat to hear her rendering of several songs, among which were "The girl in the clogs and shawl," "Bow Bells," "It's no use taking a girl there," "All the nice girls love a sailor," "Come over the garden wall," and "Poor old John," the last-mentioned containing references to many current topics, such as the Budget and Suffragettes. Miss Ethel Negretti is another popular artist, who looks the part of the loving Princess Rosydawn, her rich voice being heard to advantage in the touching ballad "Somewhere the sun is shining." Miss Violet Hollom as Alice acquitted herself admirably, danced nicely, and pleased with the chorus song "Sun-bonnet"; Miss Frances Earle made the most of Tommy Tapes, a dandy; Mr. St. John Hamund infused a deal of spirit into the rôle of the Alderman; Mr. Fred Whittaker played the Cat in most natural manner, and provided the younger portion of the audience with plenty of reasons for laughter; Mr. Eric Campbell, being very tall, was an imposing Emperor, a character which he presented in most finished style; Ted and John Foy held the small parts of Hymn and Mee; and Mr. Lupino Lane did everything required as Bottles the office boy, his acrobatic dancing being a feature. The principal comedians were always at it, and certainly worked hard. Mr. Harry Randall was the female cook, bent on love-making, and displayed great versatility. His skit on the feminine Spanish dancer was one of the happiest things of the evening, and called forth shouts of laughter; the song "Beside the sea" received much favour, and his Suffragette stump oration with the interfering small boy was delivered in true Randallian fashion. Among those who shared a large portion of the honours was Mr. Tom Foy, a Lancashire comedian, whose dry drollery caused the audience to almost explode with mirth. Included in the several songs he rendered was "My girl's promised to marry me." One of his finest hits was the introduction of a live donkey, whose movements under his guidance were screamingly amusing, especially the efforts to get it on board ship. It was certainly a capital piece of fooling. A couple who provided a vast amount of fun were Drew and Alders (Captain Barnacle and his Mate), whose every appearance was welcomed. They indulged in a continuous round of amusing antics, their resources for provoking laughter being inexhaustible. Mr. Edward Delfosse acted ably as King Rat, and Miss Violet Baynton looked pretty as the Spirit of the Chimes. Prominent among other dances were those by the Marigny Troupe of ladies.

"CINDERELLA" AT MANCHESTER.

The traditions of the Theatre Royal, Manchester, are worthily upheld by the latest pantomime production, which retells the story of Cinderella. The very authorship of the book, which is by A. M. Thompson and Robert Courtneidge, is an assurance of something a little higher in quality than the usual exposition of a pantomime theme; and though the same book was exploited several years ago before Manchester audiences, touches here and there that bring it up to date, combined with new scenery, dresses, and cast, produce a sufficiently agreeable effect of freshness. The scenery is absolutely beautiful. Nothing more charming could be imagined than Mr Conrad Tritschler's first scene depicting the heart of the forest, where verdurous beauty meets the eye at every point and in every nook and cranny, where stage artifice is cunningly exhibited in a change from winter to spring, and realism is prettily touched by the appearance of live rabbits from their burrows in cool shadow, with sunlit distances beyond. Again, in the Toilet scene—a subject lending itself to different and more fanciful treatment—the same artist scores a great success in delicacy of tinting and device. There are other magnificent sets, contributed by Messrs. W. R. Coleman and R. McCleery, the latter's final scene, however—the Fairy Wedding—being omitted on the opening night. Equal praise may be bestowed upon the dresses, which have been designed with extraordinary taste and neatness by Wilhelm; and made under the direction of Mrs. Browne; while the electrical effects, ballets, incidental music, and other appurtenances, are all on the scale of first-class pantomime, and contribute appreciably to the success. Miss Ouida Macdermott appears as Prince Rudolph of Sylvania, and leaves nothing to be desired on the score of refinement and ability. Her singing of "I used to sigh for the silvery moon," a popular number, is dainty and enjoyable. In conjunction with her, the Cinderella of Miss Phyllis Monkmann is pretty and engaging throughout, though vocally not very strong; while the secondary parts are in the capable hands of Miss Dora Langham and Miss Louie Beckmann as Princess Roxana and Gaston respectively. Humour, however, is the leading element, and the opportunities are well distributed over a competent cast of comedians. Mr. Lionel Victor plays the diminutive Archibald, Baron Lacklands with commendable spirit, in physical contrast to the commanding figure of Daisy, the Baroness, whose peculiarities are exploited with excellent effect by Mr. John Humphries, a comedian of amusing personality. The humour of Mr. Jay Laurier is well suited to the rôle of Choddles, the baronial retainer, who is indefatigable in his endeavours to make the part (as indeed it is) a marked success. The possibilities in Dandini, a straight rôle, are not great, though the part is naturally handicapped by the conditions of pantomime; but Mr. Chas. Macnaughton's efforts in the delineation of this comedy character are attended with tolerable success. Added to these are the daughters of the Baroness, Mopsa and Arethusa—the former sparkling and vivacious, the latter in tragic vein. Miss Esta Stella makes capital play with her chances as Mopsa. She is chic and sprightly, and she is well equipped with songs that she can sing, notably "The girl in the clogs and shawl, a big favourite with the audience; while Miss Marie Rignold adequately fulfils the burlesque requirements as Arethusa. The smaller parts are all in good hands, and a song worth noting among others is "I do like to be beside the seaside." Incidentally, some delightful dancing is done by Miss Vivienne Tailleur, and the full London chorus and augmented orchestra are under the direction of Mr. Theo Wendt.

"LITTLE HANS ANDERSEN" AT MANCHESTER.

Fairy Play, by Basil Hood and Walter Slaughter, Produced at a Matinée on Monday, Dec. 27.

One of the most charming ideas in Mr. William Greet's stage precentment of the fairy tales of Hans Christian Andersen is the prevision of them by little Hans himself, the future romantic, typical of quiet, wondering children who dream fantasies. The notion, set as it is in the home of Hans' father, the poor shoemaker, is calculated to stimulate the imagination of the children, and even of the adults, who see it by way of illustration of the well-known stories. Always in a state of wonder, little Hans is there, watching the things occur that some day he will write about for the entertainment of other children, thanks to the magic of Ole-luk-oie. Nothing more delightful could be conceived for children young and old than these cleverly amalgamated tales of fairy adventure. The story, divided into two acts and seven scenes, depicts the coming of Ole-luk-oie with his wonderful umbrella for Hans to see; shows how Karen, the selfish, was condemned to dance all over the world in her red shoes until she found the Christmas rose; how Hans was taken by the Dream Fairy to the Palace of the Emperor who loved new clothes; how the Princess loved the Prince who pretended to be a swineherd; and so on to the pathetic little story of the Mermaid who loved a Prince in vain, and became a beacon light for mariners whom the Sea Witch would have lured to destruction. Then in a strange country Hans sees the Copper Castel in which the Princess was kept shut up, and the two wooden soldiers who guarded her; then the Enchanted Forest, where the real soldier is persuaded by the Witch to go down the hollow tree, with the sequel of the tinder box, the big dogs, and the averted beheading of the soldier. The return of Hans to his home, the finding of the rose by Karen, and the departure of Ole-luk-oie, precedes the happy ending of it all. Lenton Murray fills the rôle of Little Hans in quite an engaging fashion, and A. T. Gullifer is well suited by the part of Ole-luk-oie, while a very good rendering of Hans' father is given by Mr. Arthur Bravo, who has a pleasing vocal gift. Karen has a very graceful representative in Enid Meek, whose dancing is a pleasing feature, and also an unexpected accomplishment in the eyes of those who know her as a member of Miss Horniman's company, among whom dancing would surely be a novelty. In the part of the Emperor, and afterwards as Mayor, Huntly Gifford shows an adequate sense of humour; George Ruff is very properly consequential as the Lord Chamberlain; and an impressive Royal Butler is seen in Percy West. In the dual rôle of the Prince and the Real Soldier brisk and tuneful work is done by Percy Carr; while Rudolph Lewis, clever at first as the Royal Footman, makes a much bigger success as the Witch, one of the most effective characters in the piece. Capital fun is forthcoming from Will Hindson and Christmas Grose, who are amusing enough as the Professors, but whose work as the mechanical soldiers is really smart and laughable. Many others assist to make the performance enjoyable, chiefly Florrie Bond as the Princess and Rosa Wynford as the mother of little Hans. But beside all these the performance of Ellaline Mills (who appeared on Monday for the first time on any stage) must be singled out. She is ten years of age, and appears as the Doll; she is a pupil of Alexandra Genée, and her dancing is something to be seen. It is not precocious, it is simply charming, and never anything but beautifully childish, and as delightful as her tiny personality. The scenery is by Mr. Harford Raphael and others, and the piece has been produced under the personal direction of Captain Basil Hood. Mr. Walter Slaughter's music is dainty and suitable, and the augmented orchestra is under the capable direction of Mr. Percy E. Fletcher. A successful run is assured.

"JACK AND JILL" AT MIDDLESBROUGH.

Messrs. J. Chas. Imeson and John Tiller's pantomime of Jack and Jill; or, The Hill, the Well, and the Crown, by Messrs. John Tiller and Chas. Fletcher, has been launched at the Opera House on what promises to be a most sucessful run. The first performance at a matinée on Boxing Day must have been most gratifying and encouraging to all responsible for the production, for from start to finish the pantomime went with a swing and smoothness hardly credible in an initial effort. A large and appreciative audience welcomed Jack and Jill, and the general opinion expressed was that the fare provided for the festive season and some weeks afterwards was bound to meet with unqualified approval. The principal boy is Miss Marguerite Broadfoote, who as the dashing Prince Fearnought at once commanded commendation. Possessing a fine stage appearance, and her singing and acting being equally pleasing, her success was most pronounced. Miss Ethel Edwards was a pleasing Fairy Queen, and the part of the Wicked Genius was ably portrayed by Mr. Sidney Rennef. Dainty and effective were the Misses Cissy Iris and Nelly Grimshaw as Jack and Jill; and the Princess found a competent exponent in Miss Moyna Hill. Any amount of innocent rollicking fun was provided by Mr. Ernest Rees as the widow, Mr. Fred Walmsley as the Baron, Mr. Will Lytton as Ginger, the Page, and Messrs. Stanley Aubrey and Barney Dixon in the respective parts of General Biff and Private Baff. Additional enjoyment was derived from the capital speciality turns of the Twelve Manchester Mites, dainty, neat, and pretty; the Eight New Cocktails, a clever troupe of girl dancers; and the Eight Superba Serenaders. Two fine ballets are beautifully arranged, the chorus is numerous, powerful, and tuneful; the orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Peter Flitcroft, is worthy of much praise; the dresses are elegant and elaborate; and the scenery, by several eminent artists, is of a high order. When the curtain fell on the first performance the verdict was that Jack and Jill was stamped with the hall marks of merit and success.

"CINDERELLA" AT NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE.

Mr. Robert Arthur and all concerned are to be heartily congratulated on the brilliantly successful opening performance of the thirteenth pantomime under the Arthurian regime, which took place on Monday last. The book, by Frank Dix, and the music by Julien H. Wilson, are sufficient guarantees for the all-round excellence of the panto, and the production has been under the personal supervision of Mr. Robert Arthur. Whilst keeping to the lines of the charming and ever fresh nursery tale Cinderella, there are, of course, ample opportunities for the numerous specialities incidental to the up-to-date pantomime. The curtain rises on a scene in the Baron's Garden, in which the Fairy Godmother (Miss Jessie Jones) sings sweetly amidst a bevy of pretty maidens. The demon Aconite (Mr. Frank Melville) then appears, his splendid voice being heard to advantage, and after several fine choruses Dandini (Miss Meg Hamilton) makes her début. This sprightly lady at once instals herself a prime favourite, with a tuneful number which is followed by the appearance of the prince (Miss Cressie Leonard), who, in spirited manner, sings "Let's all go down the Strand." The rest of the principals are quickly introduced, and the pantomime is in full swing. Mr. Harry Brayne and Miss May Lilian Levey as the ugly sisters Anona and Bedelia are well contrasted, and make an exceedingly funny couple, their first song "Sweet seventeen" being rendered in unison, in a most diverting style. The Baron (Mr. George Hughes), Pickles, his page (Mr. J. Alexander), and the Baroness (Mr. Johnnie Schofield) keep the fun going fast and furious, the former couple (the Baron and Pickles) in the second scene (The Armoury) introducing a mandoline duet to the accompaniment of most amusing cross-talk and banter. The advent of Cinderella (Miss Iris Hoey) was responsible for quite an ovation, and this dainty little lady at once becomes a favourite, her singing and acting being alike charming and natural. Bedelia (Miss Levey) works in a few good topical allusions, and sings "Has anybody here seen Kelly?" in capital style. In the third scene (the Kitchen) the Baron and Pickles entertain very cleverly on the concertinas, working in, at the same time, any amount of good, wholesome comedy. Following this Pickles and Cinderella provide an amusing scene, whilst the duets between the Prince and Cinderella are rendered in a taking fashion, the Prince (Miss Leonard) also singing "Love makes the whole world June" admirably. The dressing of the Ugly Sisters and the Baroness for the ball is very laughable, and Johnnie Schofield's (the Baroness) lesson in ballet dancing is one of the funniest items in the pantomime. The Fairy Courtyard, which brings the first part to an end, is a wonderfully pretty stage picture, being alike artistic in design, most beautiful in colouring and effect. The second half is, perhaps, not so full of fun as the first, but still there is abundance, especially outside the palace gates, and in addition there are many strikingly beautiful ballets, accompanied by well-rendered choruses and graceful dancing, the solos of Miss Jessie Jones and Miss Hoey being especially fine. The ballroom is a beautiful picture, and the wedding card, which is ingeniously converted into the wedding cake, provide the two closing scenes leading up to the grand finale. Johnnie Schofield sings Wilkie Bard's song, "I cannot get that top note," with quaint humour, and the Prince and Dandini each render tuneful melodies. There is no particular outstanding feature in the production, opportunities for personal successes are equally distributed, and the result is that the entire company work harmoniously together, which at once makes for the entire success of the pantomime. The scenery, with its beautiful colouring and dazzling electrical effects, is by Stafford Hall and G. E. W. M'Kie, and the ballets have been arranged by Miss Madge Martin. Whilst the pantomime has been in course of preparation, extensive alterations have been carried out at the rear of the dress circle, a cosy tea-room and elegantly furnished lounge have been constructed, and further additions to the existing cloak-rooms have been made, the whole being a most decided improvement.

"LITTLE BO-PEEP" AT NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE.

This production, which has been in the able hands of Mr. John Tiller, a name well known in pantomime in Newcastle and elsewhere, was presented on Monday last to a crowded and enthusiastic house. The pantomime has been built upon a medley of juvenile rhyme and story—"Little Bo-Peep, Who Lost Her Sheep," "Little Boy Blue, Whose Love was True," and "Old Mother Hubbard and the Empty Cupboard." The constructors have done their work admirably, and the spirited efforts of a capital company provide enjoyment and humour incessantly from beginning to end.

Much, of course, depends upon the company, and in this case the company is excellent. One would have to travel very far to find a better principal boy than Miss Nancy Hearne makes in her impersonation of Boy Blue. Miss Hearne is quite young, and plays with an unaffected vivacity that is quite delightful. With a charming manner and a good voice, winsome and dainty, she is the very ideal of a principal boy, and captures all straight away. Miss Lizzie Hay, the Bo-Peep of the pantomime, too, is happily vivacious; with a sweet voice she sings two or three songs admirably, and is a wonderfully skilful dancer. Mr. Fred Danvers is exceedingly entertaining in the character of Mother Hubbard, and has one trick of speech which never fails to provoke laughter. The landlord and his wife are capitally impersonated by Mr. Fred Warwick and Miss Gertrude Harrison. The three principal comedians are Mr. Harry Kirk (the Baron), Mr. Edgar Driver (Peter Piper), and Witty Watty Walton (Jack Horner). They have much entertaining business, well suited to the audiences that assemble in the Grand Theatre. Mr. Gaston Morel is the Dog; and Miss Cissy Gilbert, Miss Mary Guthrie, Miss Marjorie Barrie, and Miss Frances Allen all add to the success of the entertainment.

The special features are all good. The music, which is, of course, an integral part of the pantomime, is under the direction of Mr. William Denham, L.R.A.M., and is very bright and catchy, embodying all the liveliest tunes. The Continental comedy act of Hooc and Pauly provokes boisterous merriment; and the Imperial Quartette is one of the musical features of the pantomime. Yesterday the Quartette got one of the genuine encores, and they deserved it. One of the most attractive and popular features at suburban pantomime has always been the dancing; and, having full regard to Mr. Tiller's reputation in this respect, it may be said that the dancing was never better than it is in Bo-Peep.

"MOTHER GOOSE" AT NOTTINGHAM.

The conventional story of Mother Goose is more or less adhered to at the Grand Theatre by Mr. J. Hickory Wood, and some bright and attractive music composed and arranged by Mr. Aubrey Kennett helps in a large measure to make the pantomime attractive. The general management and stage direction are in the experienced hands of Mr. Guyton Heath, and the success on the first night is doubtless largely due to his indefatigable work, and the work of his able assistants, Messrs. Harry Renolds and Richard Hamilton, must not be forgotten. The genial manager of the house, Mr. Harry Upton, must feel highly elated at the generous measure of applause which a house packed to the fullest extent meted out on Boxing night, and the interpretation of the music by an enlarged orchestra under Mr. H. Harrington was evidently highly appreciated. The scenery is worthy of special commendation, the two scenes The Land of the Fairy Geese and The Palace of Feast and Song being especially notable. The dresses used for the pantomime are exceedingly pretty, and have been evidently selected with great care. The dressing of the large chorus and ballet is on a most gorgeous scale, and the tous ensemble when the stage is fully occupied is very pleasing to the eye. The speciality turns are very good ones, the dancing by the Berlin Belles being of the highest order, and the aerial electric dances of Miss Maude May Murray are novel and pleasing; whilst great fun is caused in the comic efforts of the funny men to progress in an opposite direction to that in which a moving stage is revolving at the rate of twenty miles per hour, the electric motor and service for this novelty being supplied by Messrs. W. J. Furse and Co., the well known local electricity contractors. After all, however, the real and permanent success of a pantomime, may it be never so well written, staged, and dressed, depends upon the artists who have to present it, and in the selection of their cast the management are to be congratulated. At the head of the laugh-producing department is Mr. J. T. Macmillan, an old favourite here, and it is not saying too much to assert that the smoothness and success of the first night were in a large measure due to the skill, experience, and resource of this well-known comedian. Very dainty and altogether delightful is Minnie Love, and she wins the hearts of all her audience very early; whilst Miss Elsie James, no less charming in herself, acts up to Miss Love in a helpful and skilful manner. Miss Laura Wright is entrusted with the Dutch character, and manages her sabots in a delightfully charming way. Misses Ethel Monks and May Davis do very good work as Lord Scattercash and Lady Wideawake respectively. The usual comic acrobatic work is undertaken by Stevens and Brett, and their antics are so thoroughly comical that their very appearance is sufficient to cause a ripple of laughter, and their every movement to produce roars of merriment. Mr. Jack Lennot as Jack is very quaint, and the characterisation of the impecunious dude by Mr. Fred Seymour is extremely laughable; Mr. Harry Reynolds demonstrates the possession of an exceptionally good voice in the rôle of the Demon Discontent, and Miss Claire Pierse sings very satisfactorily as the Fairy Serena. Mr. Richard Hamilton materialises as the King Goose, and two very clever studies are those of Messrs. Laurence Sheridan and W. A. Harvie as the Goose and the Horse respectively. There are some catchy songs, amongst which may be mentioned "Can't you hear the bagpies calling?" "She's a pretty little girl from nowhere," "Back to the land," and the universal "Has anybody here seen Kelly?"

"JACK AND JILL" AT NOTTINGHAM.

Mr. Robert Arthur's thirteenth pantomime, produced at the Theatre Royal on Boxing Night, had success writ largely upon it from the start, judging by the enthusiastic manner in which the crowded audience applauded most of the items. Mr. Arthur's penchant for operatic pantomimes has given excellent scope to Mr. Jullien H. Wilson and Mr. John Armstrong, the musical-director of the theatre, and between them they have evolved some musical conceptions of a distinctly high order. The scoring of Mr. Armstrong is amongst his best work, and the "Spring Song" and "Bee's Wedding," in the Butterflies' Ballet, were given a warm reception. We cannot speak too highly of the scenic artists' work, especially the Village of Rhymeland, a delightfully painted piece from the brush of Mr. G. E. W. McKie, in which is depicted the poultry farm of Mother Goose, the house of the Crooked Man, the house that Jack built, and the garden of Mary, Mary, quite contrary. Mr. McKie also contributes a fine interior of the Palace of Old King Cole and the Palace of the Goose, the latter being a magnificent piece of stage-craft, while Mr. Stafford Hall is represented by a charming and picturesque setting of The Magic Well and Fairy Glade. The costumes, too, are on a most elaborate scale.

In devising the story of Jack and Jill, Mr. Frank Dix has utilised a couple of waifs, who are conducted by Father Christmas and the Fairy on a trip through Rhymeland. Mr. Dix introduces us to most of the familiar figures in the nursery rhymes. Jack and Jill are in love with each other, but the course of their love does not run smoothly, owing to the antagonism of the schoolmaster, the cantankerous father of Jill. Jack has been adopted by Mother Goose, who is unable to pay her rent, and is about to be turned out of her cottage. Simple Simon comes to the rescue with a golden egg, laid by the goose he has purchased from the Wise Woman. Old King Cole—a really merry old soul—arrives on the scene, accompanied by his fiddlers, and hearing of the wonderful capacity of the bird for laying golden eggs, promptly decides to marry Mother Goose, and is as promptly accepted. One of the golden eggs contains a parchment scroll, which can only be deciphered by washing it in the Magic Well. The Wise Woman gives directions as to where the well is to be found, but, in the meantime, the parchment has been stolen by the wicked old Schoolmaster. One of the waifs, however, has been spying on the Schoolmaster, and it is discovered that Jack is the long-lost son of King Cole. In the part of the principal boy Miss Constance Hyem is certain to become popular. She has a fine appearance, dances neatly, sings acceptably, and makes the most of her lines. A scouting song is given with spirit, and a delightful rendering of the duet "In the silvery moon" with Jill arouses great enthusiasm. Miss Queenie Essex makes a dainty figure as Jill. She dispenses her smiles all around, and acts with untiring vivacity. Miss Essex possesses a melodious voice, which she uses with skill in several numbers, notably in "Fairy Land," a sweet little morceau, and one more exacting entitled "No, no, no." Miss Florence Hersee makes a most engaging Bo-Peep, and her song "Waiting at the gate" is sweetly given. Miss Nathalie Ralph proves a capable vocalist as heard in Behrend's song "The Gift." The comedians are a strong combination, headed by that versatile artist Mr. Willie Garvey, whose Mother Goose is sure to be remembered for a very long time. He is invaluable in the comic business, and having a capital voice, he reels off his songs "Eggs," "Kelly," and "I can't reach that top note" with excellent effect. Mr. Kenna Lawson is thoroughly entertaining as Old King Cole, and gives valuable assistance both in song and patter. With so talented an impersonator of the Goose as Mr. Albert Felino, it goes without saying that this wonderful bird will have heaps of admirers. It is a marvellous make-up, and Mr. Felino scores throughout. Mr. Wylie Watson provides plenty of fun as Simple Simon, and is duly rewarded, while Mr. Harry Benson displays all the necessary comic pepperyness in the part of the Schoolmaster. Quite a feature of the pantomime is the skilful dancing of the Fiddlers, Messrs. Moon and Morris, which is received with rounds of applause; but their other work is as quaint and humorous as could be desired. The "Apache" dance of Miss Florence Hersee and Mr. Wylie Watson is a capital performance, and fully deserves its rousing reception. Specialities by Mrs. Victor's Comedy Twelve, including Miss Butler and Master French, who play the two Waifs, and their imitations of famous music hall artists, are cleverly given. A most efficient chorus of good-looking girls give the concerted music due effect. The Martini Sextette dance gracefully, and a "pas seul" by Miss Gwen Zalska is an attractive item. The Butterfly Ballet is an exquisite spectacle, and hearty praise is due to Miss Madge Martin for her arrangement of the dances. Mr. George Franklin is the responsible stage-manager, and deserves credit for the smoothness of the first night's performance. The popular acting-manager of the Royal, Mr. Howard Finney, is to be congratulated on his successful superintendance of so charming a pantomime.

"ROBINSON CRUSOE" AT PLYMOUTH.

Encouraged by the brilliant success which attended last year's pantomime, constituting, as it did, a record for Plymouth, the executive of the Theatre Royal have again entrusted the Christmas attraction entirely to Mr. J. Bannister Howard, and the latter has spared no time or expense in rehearsals, engagement of artists, mounting and scenic effects to satisfy the multifarious tastes of pantomime patrons, and to maintain his well-established reputation in the theatrical world. The choice has this year fallen on Robinson Crusoe, and whilst the original story is carefully adhered to, some very smart side effects dealing with current events, social and political, are judiciously interwoven, thereby making the performance really interesting to both young and old alike. The first scene (there are fourteen altogether) opens with Davy Jones' Locker, the part of the wicked Old Man of the Sea being skilfully interpreted by Mr. Scott Russell, and after some commendably short introductory business the curtain promptly rises on Scene 2, depicting The Ancient Port of Hull. A very pretty stage picture is here produced. Mr. E. Harvey White as Mrs. Crusoe is in this scene honoured by obtaining the first encore for his rendering of "Does anyone want a widow?" which has a most catchy refrain, and will in a short time prove one of the most popular numbers of the show. Messrs. Woodhouse and Wells, last year's favourites, make their initial bow as the Captain and Mate, and score heavily with a song dealing with matters observed on Plymouth Hoe, whilst their amusing by-play is rewarded with roars of unrestrained laughter. Scene 3 depicts the lower decks of the Saucy Sally, and opportunity is afforded Mr. Daley Cooper in the rôle of Will Atkins of proving his ability as a comedian, and this capable artist makes full use of the opportunity afforded; indeed, it would be difficult to conceive a more humorous bit of work than is here portrayed by Mr. Cooper's depiction of a sea-sick land lubber, his facial contortions and general demeanour being irresistible. Miss Mabel Lait (Robinson Crusoe) and Miss Lucy Coventry (Polly Hopkins) are also given a very tasteful little duet which goes very well, the former, moreover, is admirably suited for the part, her fine presence, vivacious manner and clear enunciation making her an ideal exponent of the rôle. Scene 4 portrays the Deck of the Saucy Sally, in which a sailor's hornpipe—always popular in a naval port—is excellently performed by Miss C. Zalmarino, accompanied by eight juniors. After a short scene dealing with the open sea and some very laughable business introduced by the four comedians on the raft and in subterranean ports, the curtain rises on a veritable stage picture, The Nymphs' Garden Beneath the Sea. In this number some finished ballets, arranged by Miss Ettie Sismondi and led by Miss Zalmarino, are performed by the chorus, whilst the reflections in the background of live fish provided by a cleverly-arranged contrivance are a source of great speculation as to "how it is done." The second part opens with The Island of Golden Palms, and opportunity is here given to Mr. Scott Russell, in his second part of the Sultan, of providing the audience with a rich vocal treat, his rendering of "The silvery moon" being superb and deservedly encored. In Scene 10 a very funny ballet sketch is introduced, the principals having life-like disguises as well-known politicians, and the roars of laughter heard on all sides is striking testimony to the success of the venture. In Scene 11—Crusoe's Hut—some very clever evolutions are performed by Mr. Leon Dubois as Jack the Monkey on a vertical rope, whilst some amusing business is again introduced by the comedians in Scene 12. The last scene, The Sultan's Palace, is quite a blaze of colour, and makes a very fitting termination to a splendid production. In addition to the artists to whom reference has already been made, particular mention must be made of the excellent dancing of Topsy, which in the second part is an entertainment in itself. Before the curtain Mr. Geo. H. Hall works hard as the musical conductor, and has brought his musicians to a high pitch of excellence, whilst the arrangements made by Mr. J. M. East, who is deputising for Mr. Bannister Howard locally, give universal satisfaction.

"DICK WHITTINGTON" AT SHEFFIELD.

The Alexandra Theatre, Sheffield, has added another success to the long record of spectacles that have graced its spacious stage. For ten months in the year the patrons of famous "Tommy's" stand loyally under the flag of melodrama, but at midwinter they love the glitter, the fun, and the lively music of pantomime, and the genial and energetic Mr. W. D. Forsdike, like the thorough man of business he is, gives them what they want. For the artistic side of the business the valuable services of Messrs Dottridge and Longden have again been enlisted, and judging from the enthusiasm that pervaded the crowded auditorium on Boxing Day Dick Whittington will be as big a success as the same firm's fine productions of The Forty Thieves and Robinson Crusoe at this theatre. The present version of the grand old Whittington legend has been done into rhyme and burlesque form by the expert librettist, J. J. Hewson. The story is faithfully followed with plenty of witty dialogue, and a highly commendable absence of political allusions and "patriotic" fustian. There are ten scenes, all remarkable for cleverness of design and artistic colouring. Olde Chepeside is a very pleasing and effective depiction of what that famous thoroughfare might have looked in the good old times. A delightful picture is presented when the foreground is crowded with citizens, 'prentices, serving-wenches, and nobles and their ladies, all gaily apparelled. The illusion is rudely dispelled, however, when a party of very modern nursemaids appear with babies, followed by a dozen smart young "bobbies." They all join in a lively song and chorus, and dance off amid hearty applause. In this scene the principal characters are all introduced, and the action gets well under weigh. Fitzwarren's Shop is a big set scene, full of careful drawing and minute treatment of architectural features. After a beautiful front-cloth representing a fine view from Highgate Hill, the most charming scene of the annual is revealed. This is the old road on Highgate, with the famous milestone. The traditional scene of Whittington's vision of his future greatness has been treated under many aspects on the Alexander stage, but never with more artistic care than in the present instance. The general conception of the scene, the natural building up of the middle distance, the wonderful gladelike vistas seen between the tree trunks, combined with splendid brushwork and effective lighting put Mr. H. O. Richardson's scenic creation on a high plane of excellence. A pretty ballet and a spirited concerted finale bring down the act-drop on a lovely and animated tableau. In the second part of the annual there is a complete change in the character of the scenic surroundings, for all the characters have now voyaged to Morocco, and here amid the gorgeous verdure of sunny Africa and the picturesque sunlit Mauresque palaces and minarets Dick finds the royal road to fame and fortune; and after a succession of glittering spectacular pictures, the culminating point of magnificence is reached in The Emperor's Palace, a set filling up the whole of the big stage, and glowing with Oriental colour and refulgent glory. There is an inspiriting march of the Emperor's Amazon guards, graceful dances by Mr. Herbert Harwood's troupe of dancers, and finally all ends with a lively Offenbachian chorus and dance.

Messrs. Dottridge and Longden's knowledge of Alexandra audiences has served them in good stead, for they have secured some local favourites to fill important parts, and others who are not so well known locally will soon be highly popular here to judge from the encouragement given to them at the opening performance. Of course, as principal boy Miss Florrie Gallimore comes first. It is some years since Miss Gallimore captured the affection and regard of Sheffielders as "the pretty little Tyrolean vocalist and dancer." The promise of those early days has been amply fulfilled, and the columns of The Era have repeatedly recorded pantomime and variety successes of a lady who is as estimable as she is talented, as kindly as she is earnest in her vocal contributions. Miss Gallimore acts with distinction as Dick, and her songs, "The girl in the clogs and shawl," "Kelly from the Isle of Man," "Nora, Nora, come to the Pole," were loudly applauded. Miss Vera Vere ,a pretty brunette, acted with much vivacity as Alice, and she sang and danced her way quite into the affections of the audience. Miss Rose Tilley made a tall and handsome representative of Viscount Piccadilly, and her catchy chorus song, "Ruby from Palestine," was taken up by the house and cheered to the echo. Miss Edith Dottridge was a sweet and melodious representative of the fairy queen, and her songs were enthusiastically received. Miss Dolly Crown made a piquant little Mollie; Miss Gertie Warwick was a shapely and pleasing Ralph, and Miss Florence Ellis was a lively Polly. As the irrepressible Idle Jack Mr. H. O. Wills was full of fun and agility, and in song, gag, and comic business generally he was evidently the right man in the right place. A roar of welcoming applause greeted the familiar voice of Mr. Will Lorenzi, one of Sheffield's old and firm pantomime favourites. Mr. Lorenzi as Captain Tarpaulin was as full of natural drollery as an egg is full of meat, and there was not a dull moment when he was on the stage. Mr. J. H. Ellis acted the part of Alderman-Fitzwarren on approved burlesque lines. Mr. Fred Lloyd was a firm success as Sarah the Cook, and his comic ditty, "Boiled beef and carrots," was received with hearty plaudits. Mr. John Doran appeared successfully as the Emperor; Mr. James Rallis was in great favour as Tommy the Cat; Mr. Sam Rallis was a vigorous and active Captain Maintop; Mr. Jack Chester acted dramatically as King of the Rats, and Miss Hettie Hertz as the Princess was delightfully naïve and graceful. The chorus and ballet were good, and several specialities were done by Harwood's talented juvenile troupe of vocalists and dancers. All the scenery has been specially designed and painted by Mr. H. O. Richardson. The music has been selected and arranged by Mr. Fred Eplett, and the electric effects are by Mr. Hough. The annual has been produced by Mr. Herbert Harwood, stage-manager, and there is every sign that prosperity awaits the career of Messrs. Dottridge and Longden's latest pantomimic venture.

"JACK AND JILL" AT SHEFFIELD.

The Theatre Royal, Sheffield, for many years was noted for its excellent pantomimes. Messrs. Chas. Pitt, William Gomersal, "Joe" Eldred, L. J. Sefton, dear old Richard Younge (the famous Eccles in Caste), Romaine Callender, and latterly F. W. Purcell and J. F. Elliston, are a few of the notable producers here of veritable feasts of fun and fancy. These worthy managers, some, alas! departed from the world's stage, have a splendid successor in Mr. John Hart, whose refined and artistic taste in all matters pertaining to theatric effect was demonstrated to the local public by his series of beautiful and humorous annuals at the Lyceum Theatre. Mr. Hart also deserves some credit for having, with the help and connivance of the inventive literary chef, Mr. J. Hickory Wood, concocted a Christmas dish which is decidedly novel in title and plot to Sheffield's younger pantomime-goers, for it was on these historic boards that Jack and Jill was last seen in a local theatre, when it formed the subject of Joseph Eldred's 1872-3 annual, with Annie Howard, a sweet singer; Angelina Claude, the popular Strand opera-bouffe actress; and the celebrated Mme. Ramsden, principal dancer, in the cast. Mr. Hickory Wood has kept close to a definite story, and again shows his judgment and sympathy with the juvenile section of the audience by his apt treatment of a subject that is brimful of the spirit of fairydom. Every opportunity has been given for spectacular display, funny interludes, songs, concerted finales, gags, &c. There is plenty of "variety" business, but everything is nicely kneaded into the story, and there is no irritating suggestion of lugged-in "specialities." The ballets are always a big feature in Mr. Hart's annuals, and there are some scenes replete with quaint humour and catchy songs, many of the latter (notably the popular ballad "Somewhere") being enthusiastically encored by the crowded audience on Christmas Eve. The story follows the usual lines of all fairy tales. There is the gallant, but poor youth, Jack, the son of Dame Horner, who is beloved by the lovely little Jill, who has been spirited away when an infant from the castle of His Royal Nibs, King Thomas the Twoth. There is a delightfully wicked Demon—one Gloom—whose scheming is constantly being checkmated by the charming Fairy Sungleam. The comical episode of "fetching a pail o' water" is treated in the typical Wood style, for the well at the top of the hill is a Magic Well, situated in Poppy Land, and the affecting incident is quite dramatically treated. Of course, all ends happily for all, even the discomfited Demon King being forgiven, for pantomime audiences must have out-and-out happy endings at the season of universal goodwill. The scenery is all effective, and reflects credit on Messrs. D. G. Hall and R. G. Oldham, the talented artists. The King's Kitchen is a fine built-up set of the baronial sort, with admirably painted details, suggestive of Gargantuan repasts and mighty carousals. A Sylvan Glade describes itself, though the title does not do justice to the breadth and fidelity with which the artist has treated a bit of Nature in its most delightful aspect. The Village Emporium is a set scene specially suited to the tastes of the youngsters, and well adapted for the introduction of any amount of good, honest, practical fun. The culminating scenic triumph of the first act, however, is Poppy Land, which is really an edition de luxe of the old transformation scene, minus the suspended fairies and red fire. The first change is to the Fairy Well. By a clever change this exquisite conception dissolves into the Lily Dell, a lovely study in white flowers and cool greens. After an exquisite dance of animated lilies, the scene changes to the Sunflower Glade, in the Realms of Fairy Sungleam. For poetic conception, technical skill, and richness of colouring, this beautiful picture is quite up to Royal traditions, and the beautiful Sunflower ballet, which ends the act, proved a triumph for Mr. Hart, Mme. Louie (the talented ballet mistress), M. Comelli (the designer of the coryphée's exquisite dresses), and Mr. Finn Doyle (the stage-manager). The principal scenes in Act II. are The King's Palace, a brilliantly painted set; and The Forest, a beautiful depiction of autumnal foliage, tree-trunks, and bosky undergrowth, realistically built-up and treated with loving fidelity. The bright costumes worn here stand out well against the verdant background, and a most charming Watteau-like effect is realised. The final scene is The Hall of the Knights, a grand interior, extending the entire depth of the stage. This is a fine example of Messrs. Hall and Oldham's cleverness in design and executive skill, and when the hall is filled with the Royal guests, magnificently attired for the wedding festivities of Jack and Jill, the ensemble is a picture of glittering jewels, sartorial display, and artistic colour, that will live long in the memory.

Mr. Hart has secured a company of artists all "good in their business." Individually and collectively they know what to do, and they do it, and the result is merriment and general harmony. Miss Ella Retford's pretty face and bright, attractive personality, soon made her Jack a popular personage with all sections of the Royal audience. She looked the ideal fairy-tale hero in her becoming costumes, and her singing, dancing, and acting were marked by her accustomed and well-known earnestness, grace, and vivacity. Her songs were encored, and she made a big hit with "My dear little girl up North" and its concluding clog dance. A more dainty and piquant Jill than Miss Josie Delaine could not be desired, and her spirited vocalism and elegant dancing were enthusiastically applauded. Miss Connie Haydon looked handsome as the stalwart Prince Horty, and bore herself right royally. Miss Nellie Bindon as the Fairy pleased all the children as the ideal good spirit of the play, and she made one of the big successes of the opening night by her sympathetic rendering of the charming ballad "Somewhere," the chorus being lustily taken up by the entire house. Mr. Albert Le Fre acts with characteristic humour as Walker. He is full of quiet drollery and up to every little trick for causing laughter. He made a hit vocally with "I've struck a chorus" and other comic songs, and, on the whole, reflected credit on the family prestige. Mr. Jack Cromo made a portly Dame Horner, and without any vulgarity caused hearty laughter by legitimate low-comedy methods. The Haytors are experienced pantomime drolls, and they worked hard and with their usual success as Snap and Shott. The management did well in securing that great Empire favourite, Mr. Charles Norton, for the part of the King. Mr. Norton acted on light comedy lines, and in a racecourse scene he worked in his well-known mimetic sketch, Pros at the Races. Mr. Fred Hudson gave quite a dramatic distinction to the character of the demon Gloom; and Miss Winnie Haytor made a smart little Patty. Mr. Henry Dean, who has done the music for many noted annuals here, was loudly applauded on taking his old seat at the conductor's desk. Mme. Louie has cleverly trained the graceful ladies of the corps de ballet; Mr. Finn Doyle has stage-managed in a thorough manner, the result being a credit to himself, to Mr. John Hart, to the good old Arundel-street playhouse, and its active and courteous manager, Mr. J. E. B. Beaumont, and his trusty henchman, Mr. Henfrey Aldred.

"BABES IN THE WOOD" AT SOUTHPORT.

The Yuletide fare at Mr. Percy Hutchison's Opera House is capitally provided by Mr. J. F. Elliston, whose pantomime, The Babes in the Wood, was produced on Boxing Day to a crowded and appreciative audience by Mr. Walter McEwan. The varying phases of the well-known fairy story are unfolded amidst brilliant spectacular displays, excellent songs, and dainty dances. The principal artists depicted their various rôles in a highly creditable manner, prominent amongst them being Mr. Fred Roma as the Baron Tweedledee, who submits a highly humorous and grotesque impersonation; the principal boy has a charming and talented representative in Miss Mabelle Morgane; Richard the Ruthless and William the Soapless have whimsical and mirth-provoking exponents in Mr. John Sims-Woolley and Mr. Willie Le Brum respectively; Slippy, the Baron's page, has a smart and clever delineator in Ruhart; mine host of the Purple Pig is played with becoming levity by Mr. Charles Harvard; Mr. W. H. Howarth is highly amusing and humorous as Friar Tuck, the merry monk; Miss Donna Rita is to be credited with a clever and quaint impersonation of the Baroness; Miss Edith Cornish is a dashing and piquant Little John; Miss Dolly Ross is smart in every way as Phyllis; the Babes, Reggie and Cissie, are admirably represented by the Sisters Herbert; Miss Lilian Pollard essays the rôle of Maid Marian with marked success; Marjorie Daw and Will Scarlet have effective representatives in the Sisters Darnton; the Fairy Queen is played in a praiseworthy manner by Miss Maud De Velin; and other good characters are ably represented by Miss Dot Herbert, Miss Mamie Stuart, Miss Madge Phillips, and Mr. George Belrose. The specialities include the Harvard Sextette, Lecardo Brothers, and the Coreen Girls.

"ROBINSON CRUSOE" AT ST. HELENS.

Robinson Crusoe is an old but ever-welcome subject for pantomime, and Mr. Elderton's production is by no means behind its predecessors in interest and beauty. The book is written by T. E. Worth, and the dialogue is bright and racy. Robinson, always ready for adventure and fortune-seeking, is accompanied by pretty Pollie Perkins as a cabin boy; Mrs. Crusoe, his frolicsome mother; Billy, his naughty little brother; Will Atkins and his two merry assistants, Dick Dogknot and Peter Porthole, the villain of the piece. Misfortune falls upon the Crusoe family in the usual way, and the act ends with a magnificent scene Under the Sea, haunting in its weird beauty of multicoloured shells and corals and glittering mermaids with golden harps and the gorgeous display of costly dresses worn by pretty attendants in a burst of effective brilliancy.

Act 2 depicts the fortunes of Robinson on the desert island, accompanied by his man Friday and the tropical scenery is finely painted. His friends are captured by King Ki Koko, whose daughter Princess Popsy Prettything does a lot of capturing too. They are rescued by Robinson, and now having made his fortune still under the guidance of the good fairy, Crusoe's career is brought to a close in another glorious display of scenic splendour. The company, to which this delightful pantomime is entrusted, is well chosen and worthy of all praise for the way all work to make it a success. Miss Nita Clavering is a fine Robinson Crusoe, and acts with brightness and dash. She has a sweet voice and renders her songs in a most acceptable manner. As Polly Perkins, Miss Isa Gibson bids fair to become a favourite, her singing is excellent, and her dance as the little Dutch girl deserves the hearty applause which it wins. The duet with Robinson in the first act is most pleasing. Miss Nellie Stuart as the Princess is captivating and clever, and Miss Maud Hastings is a beautiful fairy queen and sings delightfully. Miss Nina St. Elmo makes a charming Captain Kettle, and Miss Ivy Boulton a sweet Dolly Dimple. Of the comic element everything that is good can be said. Roars of laughter greet the efforts of Mrs. Crusoe (Mr. J. H. Booth) and her little boy Billy (Mr. Teddy Worth), and their work is of the best, and the same may be said of Mr. Fred Boulton (Will Atkins), and Messrs. Will and Harry Elton (Dick Dogknot and Peter Porthole), whose success is assured. Mr. Carson Hicks is capital as Friday, his coon dancing and singing being greatly admired. Mr. Theodore Jones (King Ki-Koko) has an excellent voice, and uses it admirably, and Mr. Percy Wright (King Neptune) is also much applauded for his singing. An attractive feature is the graceful dancing of the Lottie Stone Troupe of Dancers; they are decidedly charming. Specialities are given by the Three Eltons, who appear in a clever bar act; Carson Hicks, coon delineator and dancer; Miss Bartinelli, whose wonderful contortions are performed with daintiness and grace; and the Marblesque Trio, in living statuary, all exceedingly good. The musical arrangements are in the hands of Mr. E. Blackster, L.C.M. The pantomime is produced by Mr. J. H. Booth and the whole has been carefully supervised by Mr. Elderton and our worthy and popular manager, Mr. McLeod Loader, to whose united efforts may be attributed a pronounced success.

"DICK WHITTINGTON" AT SUNDERLAND.

The King's Theatre, in deciding to produce its own pantomime this year, is to be congratulated fully and heartily, for its venture has been rewarded with a huge success. From the moment of raising the curtain on Boxing Night there was no doubting the success of Dick Whittington. It was obvious from the first that Mr. S. F. Davidson had spared no expense to please his patrons, the pantomime being produced on a most elaborate scale. Scene 1 is Old Cheapside, and a veritable study in the art of scene painting. It opens with bright music and chorus. Here Fitzwarren (Mr. Will Evans) introduces himself with great animation, and proves a very admirable alderman indeed, and the very essence of energy. Eliza, his cook and boon companion (Mr. Dan Crawley) is not long in following him, and they beguile the time with idle but none the less witty banter. Idle Jack (Mr. Chris. Baker) makes a rather ignominious entry, being hauled on by watchmen, with a jeering crowd in the rear, this concluding with a clever gag. Alice (Miss Gertie Gavagan) then makes her bow with a song, "Pretty little girl from nowhere," which she renders in a truly charming manner, finishing up with a graceful dance. Captain Bobstay and Bosun Ben (Bros. Ethairian) are the next to enter grotesquely arrayed, and are a very amusing pair. Now comes Dick Whittington (Miss Margaret Ruby) in a typical costume of the period, and immediately following, the indispensable "Thomas" (Donald Mackay). He opens his part with a song, "Somewhere," in a crisp, clear voice. The coast being clear Dick loses no time in making up to Alice, and it is undoubtedly a case of love at first sight. The scene concludes with rousing chorus. Scene 2 is the Kitchen at Fitzwarren's, which the Cook and Jack open with lively argument, and is concluded with a plot of Jack's to accuse Dick as a thief, and win Alice for himself. Will Evans and Dan Crawley also introduce a clever gag into this scene, "Tuning the pianoforte." Highgate Hill then appears into view, whereupon the Fairy (Miss Hilda Playfair) enters and renders "Carmena dreaming" in good style. The Ethairian Bros. introduce another of their speciality acts, which gives a quarter of an hour's amusement. The greater part of Scene 5 is devoted to business done by Will Evans and Dan Crawley in their speciality, "Building the Chicken House," which proved extremely diverting. Scene 5 of the second part is the Guildhall Festival, a truly gorgeous spectacle, and considerably enhanced by the procession of the ballet and chorus in bright and harmoniously blended dresses. Here Dick and Alice are ultimately united, and all ends "happy and glorious." Mr. Will Evans' Fitzwarren is an unqualified success, the audience making him at once a favourite. Mr. Dan Crawley as the Cook was every bit as popular on his own particular lines. Miss Margaret Ruby possesses all the attributes of a successful Dick, and her histrionic ability and singing won the highest admiration. Mr. Chris Baker as Idle Jack never lets things flag for a moment while he is on the stage. The Bros. Ethairian also contribute by no small extent to the success of the piece with their rollicking humour. Miss Gertie Gavagan, as Alice, won all hearts with her sweet voice and charming manner. Miss Hilda Playfair, as the Fairy, was also vociferously applauded for her beautiful singing. Misses Constance Clive as Dolly, Violet Trevenyon as Zobeida, and Lilian Bishop as Dalmah all did excellent work in their respective parts. Mr. Davies Massey is deserving of great praise for the exceptionally tasteful scenery, all of which was designed by him except the Port of Tangier, for which credit is due to Mr. T. F. Dunn. The music, arranged by Mr. Frank Barnard, conductor of the King's orchestra, is also of good quality. The Lottie Stone Troupe of dancers are responsible for much graceful work, and the chorus throughout was good. The whole thing goes with a swing, and Mr. Lloyd Townrow, who is responsible for the production, is deserving of the highest eulogy for such a cleverly staged work. The "book" is written by Mr Fred Boxyer. It is to be sincerely hoped that by the combined efforts of the management Mr. Davidson's pantomime will have a good run throughout the season.

"ROBINSON CRUSOE" AT WEST HARTLEPOOL.

Mr. Harry Burns is to be heartily congratulated upon the successful pantomime which he produced at the Grand on Monday. Robinson Crusoe is brimful of fun, capital songs, smart dances, and taking music. Consisting of some eleven scenes, it is an entirely new version of the story, and is written and produced by Henry Curwin.

The initial performance was in every way successful, some of the dresses being particularly rich and bright, and the scenery especially effective. Miss Minnie D'Aubyn is particularly good as the dashing Robinson. Several of her songs are rapturously encored, "I can picture Polly" being received with marked favour. Dainty little Miss Fanny Harris, always a favourite here, is charming as Polly Perkins, her singing and dancing being very attractive. Miss Lillie Hayes is a naive and lively Bessie Barr; and a dashing Tom Bowline is presented by Miss Gertrude Martini. Mr. Arthur Aiston as Will Atkins has abundance of opportunity for fun-making, and avails himself of it to advantage, for he has his audience roaring with laughter the whole of the time he is on. Those old favourites, Tray and Rich are also responsible for much of the mirth, and acquit themselves with credit. Mark Stuart as Dame Crusoe is a typical character, and contributes considerably to the fun. Others who assist the success of the pantomime are Dan Hendy as Man Friday, H. Henderson as Billy Crusoe, and Mr. Bernard Cox as Davy Jones.

Bert Coote's troupe of Yankee Doodle Girls are a great attraction, their smart dancing gaining for them a considerable share of the applause.

At present the performance is on the two houses a night principle, and it is wonderful how such an amount of work has been packed in a two hours' show, but we understand that when on its tour, which commences next week, the pantomime will be played in its entirety as a one house show.

MR. WALTER MELVILLE'S company, in A Girl's Cross Roads, is delighting crowded houses at the Court Theatre and Hippodrome, Bacup. Mr. Harry Cane as John Meadows makes a typical country farmer, and is very entertaining as Jack Livingstone; Mr. Norman B. Cannon is excellently placed, as also is Mr. Edward Valentine as Dr. Weston. The humour of the piece is in the capable hands of Mr. Fred Hodson as Toby Turvey; as Barbara Wade Miss Ethel Griffies is effective; as Constance Cornell Miss Muriel Dean is excellent; and as Tilly Vane, the maid, Miss Maggin Byron appears to advantage.

MR. LEWIS GILBERT and company are at the New King's Theatre, Kirkcaldy, with A Daughter of the Sea. The rôle of Mark Glensdale receives admirable treatment by the author, Mr. Lewis Gilbert; Ken. Moreland is capitally played by Mr. Paul Neville; Mr. Edward de Vere is a breezy Captain Ben Morrison; and Mr. Sutton Taylor is a versatile member of the cast. Johnny Chippendale creates much amusement by his interpretation of Billy, the village idiot; Mr. Ashmore Vincent is very successful as Dan Glensdale; Miss Florrie Green exhibits a high standard of acting in her portrayal of Sunshine; and Miss Mattie Everett is a dashing Mollie.

MR. JOHN DREW was thrown from his horse whilst riding in Central Park, New York. His collar-bone was broken, but he is making good progress towards recovery. The accident interrupted the successful run of Inconstant George at the Empire Theatre, and kept the house in darkness until Christmas night, when Miss Maude Adams began her annual engagement there, appearing in Barrie's comedy What Every Woman Knows.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

Mrs. F. G. Kimberley, the authoress of Her Path of Sorrow, has had considerable experience as a writer for the stage, several of her pieces having had successful tours, notably Was She to Blame? Her Secret Lover, The Power of the King, and Bound to Win. This, her latest play, is an excellent specimen of the drama beloved by a popular audience, containing, as it does, an abundance of telling lines and exciting situations, leavened, of course, by plenty of laughable comedy business. The action of the story opens at the Old Farm, in Lamster, a country village situated some forty miles from London. Farmer Rayne is firmly resolved that Nellie, his daughter, shall marry his trusted assistant on the farm, a big, honest son of the soil named Richard Burfield. Nellie, during the course of her education at a private high school, has met a dissolute scoundrel, Guy Lowther, who has deceived her, under a promise of marriage. He wishes to marry Pauline Ferrars, the daughter of Markham Ferrars, a rich gentleman, who was the friend of Guy Lowther's father in their young days, when they were clerks in the office of a large city firm. A theft was discovered, and Ferrars was suspected of being the guilty person. The mother of Ferrars, however, came to his assistance, and repaid the money, and the matter was hushed up. Guy Lowther has somehow obtained information regarding this theft, and informs Ferrars that if he does not give him his daughter Pauline's hand in marriage, he (Lowther) will make a scandal. Ferrars is terribly afraid, and persuades his daughter to accept Lowther. Burfield, who loves Nellie Rayne, asks her to become his wife. She refuses, and informs him she cannot be the wife of an honourable man. Richard is cut to the heart, but says he will marry her to save her honour. Her father, who has entered unobserved, overhears their conversation, and orders her to accept Richard at once. Nellie declines, and her father drives her from the farm.

In the second act we find Lowther flirting with a French girl, Lucille (Pauline's maid previous to his marriage with Pauline). After the ceremony is over Pauline is confronted with Nellie, who is now destitute, and who tells her (Pauline) of Guy Lowther's treachery. Ferrars appears with a letter from Lowther's father in which the writer confesses that it was he, and not Ferrars, who committed the theft at the office. Pauline, on learning this, takes off her wedding ring and says she will be Guy Lowther's wife only in name. We see Nellie living in a bare garret, without any money to buy food for her ailing child. The doctor tells her the child would be better dead, as also does the landlord, and when Lucille appears and gives Nellie sixpence to buy poison, she rushes off and, obtaining it, administers a dose to the baby. Richard, who has been searching London for her, obtains her address, and arrives on the scene in time to restore her. Nellie says she has killed her child, but Richard takes the guilt on his shoulders. He is taken to prison. Pauline learns the facts of the case, and implores Nellie to confess to the crime, which eventually she does. Richard is released, and promises her to keep her vacant chair waiting whenever she may return. On the same evening, whilst walking in the woods at midnight, Richard comes upon Pauline, who has received a letter from Lionel Heathcote, a former lover, whom she gave up on marrying Lowther. She informs Richard regarding this, and he suspects a plot of Lowther's. Richard conceals himself and watches. Heathcote has received a telegram supposed to have come from Pauline, asking him to meet her. They exchange confidences, and are observed when parting by Lowther, who wants to compromise Pauline. He draws a revolver from his pocket, and says he will fire if she does not accede to his demands by signing a cheque for £5000. She consents, and Lowther, having placed the revolver in his pocket to fold up the cheque, Richard abstracts it, and compels Lowther to tear it up. A struggle follows, and Richard is accidentally shot by Lowther, who is arrested for attempted murder.

In the last act, after five years are supposed to elapse, we learn that Lowther has been acquitted of the charge of shooting Richard, and that Nellie has been given five years' imprisonment for the murder of her child. Richard, who had to undergo an operation to his head, is at the old farm in a weak state. He is being cared for by Ferrars and his daughter Pauline. A letter arrives from the prison authorities stating that Nellie will be released on the morrow at eight o'clock, six months before the expiration of her sentence. Pauline decides to go and meet her, and Lowther, obtaining this information, writes in Burfield's name, asking the officials to liberate her at seven o'clock, one hour earlier. He then, accompanied by Lucille, his partner in crime, goes to the prison, and takes her to his house. He is followed by Lucille, who, in the absence of Lowther, tells Nellie of his intentions. Lucille then writes to Pauline at the Old Farm, notifying her of Nellie's whereabouts. Lowther appears in search of Nellie. Lucille stabs him in the back, and he shoots her and then himself. Pauline brings Nellie back, and seats her in the vacant chair Richard has so long kept vacant for her, Pauline being free to marry Heathcote.

The company responsible for the production is an extremely capable one. Mr. Charles Draycott, who delivered his lines in an excellent manner, displayed much dramatic power and energy as Richard Burfield. Mr. Frank Eaglesfield submitted a most praiseworthy representation of Guy Lowther. Mr. Frank Etheridge as Lionel Heathcote had not many chances to distinguish himself, but the little work he had to do was done in a masterly manner. Mr. Theo Balfour made a good impression as Markham Ferrars. Mr. Chas. Reyne was very satisfactory as Farmer Rayne. Mr. Will Hook was mirth-provoking as Tommy Onions, and was ably assisted by the clever work of Miss Daisy Carlton as Polly. Mamselle Lucille was played effectively by Miss Nellie Freeland. Nellie Rayne was enacted with much delicacy and feeling by Miss Fay Garnet-Vayne, who was responsible for a large share of the success; and Mrs. Charles Draycott, who is gifted with high histrionic ability, gave a charming impersonation of Pauline Ferrars. All the other rôles were capitally sustained. The drama was well mounted, and the elaborate scenery by H. O. Richardson was very picturesque.

MR. HALDANE CRICHTON'S company is at the New Theatre Royal, Whitehaven, in The Cingalee. Mr. Frank Barclay is well cast as Harry Vercker; and Mr. Grafton Williams is good as Sir Peter. Mr. Hylton Warde is most amusing as Chambuddy Ram; and Mr. Frank Lennard makes the most of Boobhamba. The part of Nanoya has a pleasing exponent in Miss Isa Bowman; and Mr. Herbert Franklyn as Bobbie and Miss Ray Anderson as Lady Patricia are entertaining.

Mr. Arthur Collins's annual, as usual, "beggars description." It is hopeless to attempt to do justice to its myriad beauties, or to even suggest, in cold print, the dazzling glories of its splendid spectacle or the artistic effects of its exquisite enchantments. What are exactly the shares in the preparation of the "book" that have been taken by Sir F. C. Burnand, Mr. J. Hickory Wood, and Mr. Arthur Collins it would be hard to say; it is with the result that we have to do, and the result is immensely successful. Mr. J. M. Glover may always be relied upon to supply pantomime music of the most appropriate and enlivening sort, and this year he has not been wanting in musical skill and judgment; Mr. Ernest D'Auban and Mr. E. Spiller have well attended to the stage management; and Mr. Collins's all-inspecting eye has made weak places in the production impossible. The lovely costumes are designed by the clever Comelli; the beautiful ballets have been prepared by M. Jean Pratesi; Mr. John D'Auban has attended to the incidental dances; and the famous Tiller Troupe have been engaged for the run of the pantomime, which is an undeniable success.

Aladdin is a story which gives excuse for artistic, as well as elaborate spectacle. The Chinese locale is pleasantly bright and sunny, and Chinese royalty and aristocracy are traditionally sumptuous. We first realise this in the Market Place scene, in which a Royal Guard, splendid in crimson and gold uniforms, precedes the palanquin of the pretty Princess, a magnificent litter, with deep red hangings. Aladdin makes her Highness's acquaintance very promptly, and in the next scene, on the sea-shore, he disguises himself as a bathing-man of the French sort, in order to attend the Princess in the water. The "cloth" is raised, and a scene, very skilfully contrived, shows the Princess and her attendants amidst the surf. Big waves in perspective fill the whole of the proscenium opening with a moving picture of water and foam; and amidst the boiling surf, we see the heads of the handmaidens, who seem to be enjoying their bathe immensely. This clever illusion, which has been patented in England by Mr. Frank D. Thomas, is both picturesque and slightly puzzling. An artistic scene on the mountains leads up to the Cave scene, which is most originally conceived. Abanazar and Aladdin descend amidst shades to a mysterious cavern, from which the way leads to the garden, where the lamp is; but whenever Aladdin starts to seek it, quaint ghosts, shaped like asparagus-stalks, suddenly appear and appal him. Deserted by Abanazar, he finds his way to the Temple of the Gods, where there are some striking effects of scenery, and where he meets the Slave of the Lamp and his myrmidons. Then comes Mr. Henry Emden's beautiful Garden of Light. On an eminence at the back is seen the Magic Lamp, and here a ballet, most exquisitely arranged, takes place. The colour-scheme includes bevies of ballerine, respectively attired in orange and light-blue, and another contingent wears very cleverly designed dresses of greenish-blue, with quaint wings and curious headgear. The dances take place to weird "crooning," mysterious music, and there is a great deal of effective marching and posing. Then Aladdin becomes the centre of light, as he snatches the lamp from its glittering eminence, and the curtain descends on a picture of supreme brilliancy and beauty.

Very gorgeous indeed is Mr. Bruce Smith's scene of the Widow Twankay's rich house, in the second part, with its solid-looking pillars, its clever trick-changes of furniture, and its elaborately ornamented architecture. There is opportunity here for a liberal display of dresses and uniforms. The Emperor enters with his brilliant suite; a troop of beautiful maidens bring in baskets of jewels as described in the story, and the pomp of Chinese royalty is done full justice to. But the splendours of this scene pall before the striking beauties of the same accomplished artist's Palace Gardens set, which comes later. Its manifold beauties are dazzling, and the scene is well worthy of Mr. Bruce Smith's well-established reputation. In the end Aladdin lends the Princess the Lamp, Abanazar obtains it by trickery, and the gorgeous palace flies away in the air, diminishing in the distance to a mere speck. Abanazar then abducts the Princess to the North Pole, where they find Esquimaux living in a smart snow hut, with a brass knocker and an electric bell. There is a good deal of fun created by allusions to the Cook and Peary business, and the Pole becomes so crowded with explorers that Abanazar calls it "The Margate of the North." By using a coke furnace he helps a hen-penguin to hatch an egg, and teaches the chick which emerges to skate. Eventually, the Princess, longing for her Aladdin, and unpleasantly chilly, rubs the lamp, and brings him to her side, while Abanazar sinks through a "demon trap" to the realms below. The concluding set is Aladdin's Palace, a very fine scene supplied by Mr. R. McCleery.

There are comparatively few speaking parts; and that these are filled by artists of approved excellence. The Widow Twankay is a rôle which has had many exponents, and is capable of an infinite number of variations. Mr. Wilkie Bard gives a very clever and characteristic rendering of it. His peculiar humour well suits the personage, and his jokes and comicalities are irresistible. With him, as the lawyers say, is Mr. George Ali as Bolo, the most absurd and amusing of dogs. It is a treat to see the Widow Twankay attempt to disown her faithful canine dependent when the police call to enquire if she has taken out a dog licence and to witness the failure of her attempts to escape the tax. So connected are Mr. Wilkie Bard's efforts with those of Mr. George Graves as Abanazar, that it is impossible to deal with them apart. It is with Abanazar that the Widow joins in an ingenious bit of practical trickery. They draw designs of chairs, tables, lamps, &c., in chalk on a gigantic blackboard, and the outlines immediately "materialise" into objects. The effect is startling, especially when a clock, which has been thus evoked, persists in loudly ticking. The debates between Abanazar and the Widow are immensely droll; and her little laundry act is very comical and curious. Again, Mr. Bard has a large sheet on which the words of a new song "Kate" are written, partly in symbols, and, with the aid of a pointer, he teaches the audience the tune. Altogether Mr. Bard's performance is extremely humorous, without a touch of vulgarity or exaggeration. Mr. Graves's idea of Abanazar is that of a tragic actor of the old school, mellifluous in voice, elaborate in gesture, and florid of speech. He wears a Panama hat and a fur-collared coat, and his jests are unctuously amusing. When he begins to gag the audience begin to grin; and, as he proceeds, the auditorium works up into a roar. Mr. Graves may be trusted to increase his success—and his embellishments—week after week. Miss Marie George would seem to have been born to play Aladdin, so round and roguish is she as a boy; and the sly impudence of her air and the way in which she resists the tyranny of Abanazar, makes love to the Princess, and takes a header into the sea disguised as a bathing attendant is one of the delights of the "annual." At present she has no song quite equal in promise of popularity to her "Coming home in the dark" ditty, but her numbers are all agreeable and effective. Miss Ida René is a fascinating Princess Badroulbadour, and acts with grace and delicacy and sings with charming taste and skill, and; Miss Truly Shattuck is a fine, handsome, and imposing Prince Pekoe. Miss Nellie Stratton bewitches all by her fascinating freedoom and artless activity as Itti Sing, and is one of the most charming features of the cast. Mr. William Downes supplies a graphic portraiture of the Emperor of China, and Mr. Ernest Langford's tall, willowy form gives droll dignity to his embodiment of the Grand Vizier, Mr. Arthur Conquest being capital as Kassarac, and Mr. Salambo and his assistants doing marvellous things in the way of blowing flames from their mouths and extracting electric sparks from strange apparati. Miss Mena Brae is delightful as Sau-Cee, and Miss Doris Trevelyan is comely and distinct of delivery as the Spirit of the Ring. Miss Jimmie James makes a pretty figure as the Imperial Town Crier; and, as we have already indicated, Mr. George Ali is the most absurdly quaint and irresistibly amusing of pantomime dogs, every canine idiosyncracy being studied with marvellous care and cleverness. Mr. Bert Monks and Mr. Fred Penley work well together as Bam Boo and Bob Bi; Mr. Edward Morgan is capital as Corki Waxi; and Mr. Harold Belcher is a good Olrac. The corps de ballet is both comely and expert, and the crowds are especially well marshalled. Nothing indeed is wanting to complete the success of Aladdin.

A sense of profound sadness accompanies the task of recording the success of this year's pantomime at the Lyceum, when one realises that the hand that was the primary cause of the triumph achieved is still in death. In response to the insistent demands of a delighted house on Thursday, Dec. 23rd, it was announced from the stage that Mr. Ernest Carpenter was seriously ill, and could not be present to return thanks for the enthusiastic reception that had been given to his production. Unhappily, the illness referred to proved fatal, and almost as the words were spoken to the people by whom he was held in such esteem the popular manager was breathing his last. The theatre was closed on the following day, but re-opened on Monday.

A vision of beauty and elegance is supplied in Aladdin's opening scene of Fairyland, from which Snowdrop in a prettily-conceived scene is banished for her grumbling propensities, and condemned to act as the Slave of the Lamp. In the Market Place of Pekin, where pigtailed natives busily ply their trades among an animated crowd, Aladdin first meets with the Princess, and dares to woo her. For his temerity he is ordered to be arrested by the Emperor, but king and courtiers alike are hypnotised by Abanazar, who thus secures the willing assistance of the hero in his search for the wonderful lamp. After a brief visit to the Imperial Baths, where the comic characters revel, we are transported to the Wistaeria Grove, a charming set, with an abundance of that delicate bloom interlacing overhanging boughs and branches. Another superb view is presented in the Golden Cave, a massive set, with monster stalactites made of the precious metal, upon which the effect of a glint of the sun is cleverly caught. A striking spectacle is presented by the entry of the Fairies of the Cave, who defile down the rocky paths to execute a series of manœuvres in which winged fays flit about in symmetrical movements. The Slave of the Lamp also does a bewitching dance, and has an affecting interview with Aladdin, who thus gains his freedom. The golden rocks light up, and the hero is seen at the top of the cave grasping the lamp, which has become magically illuminated.

A realistic set representing a gigantic Willow Pattern Plate is displayed in Widow Twankey's Laundry, which opens Part II., and the Emperor's Tea House, which follows, is a pretty reproduction of the fantastic designs which are seen on the cases imported from China. The glories of the Gardens of Aladdin's Palace, fitted with a golden throne, are next revealed. Myriads of Chinese lanterns in variegated design depend from the roof, and Aladdin's retainers crowd the stage in picturesque attire with fantastic head-dresses that produce a highly fascinating effect as their wearers move in a mazy dance. The sensation of the scene is the sight of the aeroplanes, realistic in every detail, which float across the stage at full speed, rising and falling in a way that secures a sense of their reality. It is in one of these machines that Abanazar soars away with the magic lamp, which he has induced the unsuspecting Princess to surrender. There is an excellent service of airships, however, and Aladdin is soon in hot pursuit of his wicked relative. The chase is a long and stern one, for Abanazar directs his steps, or, rather, his flight, towards the South Pole, where a gorgeous sunset and a realistic rainfall are provided. To these icy regions also come Widow Twankey, her maid-of-all-work, Smut-tee, and others of her comic train, and a dispute over the finding of the Pole arises, in which a lifelike Polar bear figures. The scene, which is written by Herbert Shelley, is ingeniously conceived and carried out. The crowning spectacle is furnished by Aladdin's Garden Party, in which the ballet, bearing branches of chrysanthemums in every shade and variety, create an effect of dazzling beauty, while the principals, arrayed in variegated attire, complete the fascinations of the scene.

The company engaged in the representation is one worthy to maintain the traditions of the house. Miss Dorothy Craske keeps her place as principal boy. Handsome, gay, and buoyant, she was first favourite throughout, and a striking tribute to her popularity was a hoop of flowers within which burned a lamp of quaint design. Miss Craske dances with all her usual cleverness, and her voice, clearer and mellower than ever, sounded sweetly in several numbers. Her most decided success was obtained in the song "The Corsican Maid," one of Francis and Day's pantomime budget, which won an irresistible encore, the pretty refrain being tastefully sung. A principal girl new to the Lyceum was seen in Miss Eva Kelland, who invested the Princess Badroulbadour with daintiness and grace, qualities which were especially apparent in her dancing. Her most pleasing number was "Little Golden Daffodils," another selection from Francis and Day's budget, the effect of which was heightened by the appearance of a number of shepherdesses attired in costumes typical of the pretty bloom named. The success of the song was immediate and complete. Miss Kelland also won distinction for "My little pal." Miss Simeta Marsden early won favour as Pekoe, acting with much animation and skill. Her songs were admirably sung, and included "Ship ahoy!" and the ubiquitous "Charlie Brown," in which the vocal assistance of the house was enlisted. A particular favourite was seen in Miss Marie Free, whose prettiness and vivacity were conspicuous in the part of Pitti Sing. She obtained an insistent encore for her song of "Schneider," to which a skilful dance was added. Little Miss Marjory Carpenter again graced the production, and as the Slave of the Lamp witched the house with her dancing. She has acquired added grace and suppleness, and her evolutions were a delight to the eye. At the end of a specially charming dance she was loaded with flowers and chocolate boxes. Miss Victoria Sievers made a beautiful Genie of the Ring, and her rendering of Francis and Day's entrancing ballad "Love makes the whole year June" proved her possession of a sweet and cultivated voice.

The contingent of comedians is strong and resourceful. The importation into the cast of a special part for Miss Florence Smithers, the well-known low comedienne, is of inestimable value. She made the most whimsical character of "Smut-tee," the maid-of-all-work, her appearance being irresistibly quaint. An especially choice piece of drollery was her wordy warfare with a seaside landlady, while her husky shout of "'Elp" proved the funniest of pantomime catch-phrases. Mr. Scott Barrie, a comedian new to us, was a deliciously droll Mrs. Twankey. He made the Widow a pensive and simpering lady, whose slim figure was clothed in amusing travesties of stylish attire. He scored with the song "Has anyone here seen Kelly?" and with the lilting refrain "Let's all go down the Strand," another of Francis and Day's publications, he caused a furore, his peculiar gliding dance proving equally effective. Honours in the mirth-making also fell liberally to Mr. Arthur Poole, whose towering figure as Abanazar was comically conspicuous throughout. He was unfailing in his efforts to create laughter, and his purposes were attained in many a quaintly conceived situation, his share of a diverting interlude with Miss Smithers contributing greatly to the hit obtained. Excellent service was done by Mr. Archie Royer, whose antics as Wishee Washee were extraordinary, as some wonderful falls, a number of high-kicking feats, and marvellous somersaults from the knee served to prove. Mr. Frank Hemming made a grotesque and resourceful Emperor, scoring especially in a spelling duet with Miss Free; and out of a long cast Mr. Harry Gardner's realistic Polar Bear should be selected for warm praise. A feature of the Garden Party was the xylophone playing of the Lewin-Martel Duo, who rendered the overture to Auber's Masaniello on a couple of well-toned instruments, and though the hour was late won from the appreciative audience a hearty encore.

The story of the pantomime, which is again from the pens of the late Mr. Ernest Carpenter and Mrs. Carpenter, is interestingly told, and the music, composed and arranged by Mr. H. Sullivan Brookes, is melodious, characteristic, and dramatic. All the scenes are the work of E. C. Nicholls and assistants, who have won so many scenic successes at the Lyceum. Mlle. Rosa, by whom the ballets and evolutions are invented and arranged, had a special call on Thursday night and smilingly acknowledged it. The production was finely staged managed by Mr. S. Major Jones, assisted by Mr. Henry Armstrong, no hitch being anywhere perceptible. Mounted with magnificence, fitted with melodious numbers, and with fun that never languishes throughout, Mr. Henry R. Smith, the managing director, may be said to have in Aladdin a pantomime that is certain to exceed its predecessors in popularity.

Messrs. Stedman, the well-known theatrical agents, have every reason to be proud of their version of that hardy annual, Alice in Wonderland, the dress rehearsal of which on Wednesday in last week they invited hundreds of little ones and grown-ups also at the Court Theatre, prior to the revival on Dec. 27. Indeed, it was a kind of a huge Christmas party, and nearly six hundred children, many of them cripples, drawn from the charitable institutions supported by Sir William Treloar and Sir William Dunn, followed the fortunes of Alice with the keenest interest. Sir William Dunn and Sir William Treloar sat in a box and watched them with a father's eye, and the uproar of mirth that rose from the joyous youngsters was a thing to remember. Messrs. Stedman did the whole thing well, and provided tea, chocolates, Christmas trees, and toys for their guests, and it is not too much to say sent everyone home extremely happy.

Raynes have redressed the piece, and new scenery has come from the Hicks' studio, Buckland supplying new properties. We are told that the twenty-second birthday celebrations of Alice's first visit to Wonderland entailed an expenditure of £7,500. In the version witnessed by the public last Monday at the Court Theatre the play began with Alice asleep in a forest glade while fairies dance around her singing a dainty chorus. She wakes to find the White Rabbit, and there is a delightful dance of tiny white rabbits before we meet the Cheshire Cat and the Caterpillar. The King and Queen of Hearts appear. "Off with his head!" says the Queen on the Cheshire Cat's being impertinent, and the Executioner protests the painful difficulty of cutting off a head that has no body to it. The Gryphon introduces the Mock Turtle to Alice, and makes appalling puns, and chants the ditty of what the Whiting said to the Snail. There is a very fine dance of Lobsters—very charming girlie Lobsters in marvellous costumes. The Mad Hatter presides, as of yore, at that most famous of tea-parties with the Dormouse and the March Hare, with the trial of the Knave of Hearts and its many moving incidents. Charming as the first act is, when the curtain falls upon it "the best is yet to be." At the beginning of the second act Alice, in a quaint little song, asks "Why are you such a Mad Hatter?" of that curious person; and after that come the glorious humours of Tweedledum and Tweedledee. The scene changes to the seashore, and the immortals of the oyster feast appear before us. The seven maids with seven mops and the little oysters who went for that tragic walk are there. Even the butter and the bread and the vinegar come tripping over the sand. We see the vengeance that befell the Carpenter and the Walrus, and how the ghosts of the little oysters came and stamped upon their chests. Tweedledum and Tweedledee fight once more their historic fight. Alice is introduced to Leg of Mutton and Plum Pudding, and told that she must never cut people to whom she has been introduced. Then the scene changes from that gorgeous palace to the wonderful glade where first we found Alice asleep on the same mossy bank, and she once again rubs her eyes and says: "What a dream I've had!"

There were many elderly critics present, but the real sages were the little girls in the stalls and elsewhere. Miss Ivy Sawyer as Alice quite took their fancy. She played the part very creditably, suggesting the precocious child very winsomely. This young lady in four previous years has played the Dormouse, and her promotion this year to the name-part is fully deserved. Miss Ivy is a very clever young lady, and is undoubtedly in the front rank of London actresses, whether juvenile or grown-up. Her dancing and singing were dainty contributions. Dan Leno's son played the Caterpillar in the first act, and an eccentric, irascible old gentleman he was, not at all a bad character study, while his quaint dancing tickled the small members in the audience. Young Dan has also to sustain the character of the Red King in the second act. A word of praise is due to Franklyn Vernon as the Mad Hatter, and to Miss Yvonne Schofield as the Cook. The music is light and tuneful, and the conductor, Miss Marjorie Slaughter, claimed a share of attention, for she is the daughter of the composer. She was obviously nervous, but her handling of her dead father's music reflected the highest credit on her. The Bunnies were deliciously quaint, and the Mock Turtle sent the audience into roars of daughter with his tearful stories and elephantine gracefulness. This part was splendidly taken by Mr. Tom Graves, who later on in the afternoon was seen as Tweedledum, with a staunch and energetic supporter in Mr. Edgar Favelle as Tweedledee. We have pleasure in referring to Miss Ada Danks, a pretty Fairy Queen in Act 1 and the Lily of Act 2. The possessor of a powerful and well-trained soprano voice, Miss Danks was recalled again and again for each number she sang. The cast is such a long one that it is impossible to give all the praise we should like to do to each individual member, but we think Messrs. Stedman are to be heartily congratulated on the way in which they have presented their version of Lewis Carroll's immortal classic. The chorus is undoubtedly made up of the pick of the profession. It is an all-round pretty and shapely one, and it is a treat to listen to the young, fresh voices rendering the many familiar numbers. Our dear old friend Marshall Moore, whose work at Drury Lane and the Coliseum all remember, is responsible for the entire production, and he is to be especially complimented on the evident care he has taken with the mounting of the piece. Mr. Archibald Benwell is musical director for Messrs. Stedman, and he, too, has exercised a masterly jurisdiction in dealing with the delightful old numbers. Alice in Wonderland is assured of yet another long and successful run at the Court Theatre, and so may it always be.

"CINDERELLA" AT THE STRAND.

On Tuesday Afternoon, Dec. 28, a Fairy Play, in Three Acts, by Mr. Austin Fryers, Music Composed by Master Moritz Lutzen, entitled "CINDERELLA."

Prince	MISS ROSIE FITZGERALD
Dandini	MISS CLARA COOPER
Baron	MASTER HARRY DEAN
Orynthia	MISS MABEL WALL
Ermyntrude	MISS MINNIE DEAN
Chamberlain	MISS CYNTHIA ECKERT
Fairy Godmother	MISS AGNES GLYNNE
Cinderella	MISS MARY GLYNNE

On Tuesday afternoon, Mr. Harry Lambart presented at the Strand Theatre the above charming little fairy play, which was performed in the prettiest, daintiest manner by a clever company of juveniles. Miss Mary Glynne, so well known to fame by her delightful performance in The Merry Peasant, was the Cinderella, and her ingenuous and intelligent acting won the approval and the admiration of all. Miss Rosie Fitzgerald played the Prince pleasantly and well; and Miss Agnes Glynne was good as the Fairy Godmother. Miss Mabel Wall and Miss Minnie Dean deserve praise for their performances as the Ugly Sisters; and Master Harry Dean enacted the Baron with much ability and aplomb, Miss Cynthia Eckert being efficient as the Chamberlain. To Master Moritz Lutzen, advertised as the "youngest child composer," the agreeable music of the pantomime is attributed, and he conducted his score with an amusing air of authority and earnestness. The "screaming harlequinade" which followed the fairy play was cleverly produced by Mr. Arthur Ricketts, who played Clown cleverly, Mr. Fowler Thatcher as Harlequin, Miss Violet Sellers as Columbine, Mr. J. W. Bradbury as Pantaloon, and Mr. Chas. Seymour as Policeman, all rendering valuable service. A marionette show in the second act by Mrs. Victor's "We are Seven" company of juveniles was greatly enjoyed; as, indeed, was the whole entertainment, by the many little people present, Messrs. Helmsley and Leolyn Hart's scenery deserving warm praise. In the Palace scene, Master Lutzen played a pianoforte solo nicely; and he and Miss Mary Glynne were presented to Princess Henry of Battenberg, who occupied the royal box, and warmly congratulated by her Royal Highness.

"HUMPTY DUMPTY" AT THE KING'S, HAMMERSMITH.

King Sollumm	MR. J. F. MCARDLE
Humpty Dumpty	MR. CHARLES GOFF
Martha	MR. STRATTON MILLS
Bison Bob	MR. WILLIAM ROKEBY
Brick and Brack	MESSRS. TOCH AND TARD
King's Jester	MR. GEORGE DENNIS
Princess Aurora	MISS RAY WALLACE
Prince Spriteley	MISS OLIVIA ELTONE
Cherry	MISS DOROTHY VINE
Soaro	MR. GEORGE FISHER
Claribel	MISS MAY RAWLINSON
Rudolph	MISS EDNA MORGAN

Mr. Mulholland need have no fear as to the success of his eighth "annual." It is an unequivocal triumph, and the huge Boxing Day audience showed their appreciation at the finish by the loudest of cheers for all concerned. Humpty Dumpty has been treated for the occasion by that clever writer Mr. J. Hickory Wood, who has ingeniously elaborated the nursery rhyme into a most interesting story, wherein Humpty, after his fall, is given six wishes to make the most of, either for good or evil. Unfortunately he uses them in selfish fashion and comes to grief. He enters the kingdom of King Sollumm, a very doleful mortal, in fact, so melancholy that he has offered the hand of his daughter to anyone who can make him laugh. Up to now no one has succeeded, and Rudolph, a harlequin, having seen and fallen in love with the lovely Princess Aurora, determines to win her. Humpty also determines to make her his bride, but she shuns him as being of unknown birth. Humpty wishes for a mother, and Martha claims him as her son. Still he fails, and he then wishes to be the son of a king, so as to be of royal birth. King Sollumm, to his own surprise, marries Martha, thereby carrying out Humpty's wish. The King imposes the further condition that his daughter's hand can only be given to the finder of a diamond ring which he has dropped into the sea. The suitors thereupon descend into the sea, and eventually Rudolph, aided by the spirit of generosity, discovers the ring. A beautiful and most effective tableau of Under the Sea, with the various denizens of the deep, brings Part I. to a conclusion. How Humpty, in revenge, banishes the King, and instals himself on the throne, and afterwards repents, is tersely told, and in consequence everything ends very happily in the beautiful Land of Heartsease. As King Sollumm, the smileless monarch, Mr. J. F. McArdle is most successful in creating laughter, and his characterisation is very clever and laughable. Mr. McArdle's singing of "Don't take me home," was deservedly appreciated, and in his political duet with Martha about the Budget, "A sighing and a sobbing," more verses will speedily be necessary, so numerous were the encores. Mr. Stratton Mills's impersonation of Martha will make a stir, it is so full of mirthful energy, keeping the audience in continual roars of laughter. As Humpty Dumpty Mr. Charles Goff is exceedingly good, and lends the necessary serious tone to the proceedings. Mr. William Rokeby is a typical Bison Bob, the circus proprietor, who, with our knowledge of his powers, will soon make himself a popular favourite. Brick and Brack, played by Toch and Tard, are two funny acrobatic pantomimists, whose wrestling match caused great amusement. Miss Ray Wallace made a most fascinating Princess Aurora, singing and acting very daintily. Her capital imitations at the piano of the leading variety artists were much admired. Rudolph was a handsome and energetic young man in the personage of Miss Edna Morgan. Refined and graceful she won all hearts by her style, and settled down before the day was over into an assured success. Miss Morgan's songs, "A little soldier" and "The girl in the clogs and shawl" were cleverly rendered. Miss Olivia Eltone made a dashing and neat Prince Spriteley, singing and acting spiritedly. Cherry was delightfully played by Miss Dorothy Vine. Mr. George Fisher and Soaro, the Spirit of Ambition, acted as tradition required, and showed himself the possessor of an excellent baritone voice. Miss May Rawlinson made a very prepossessing fairy Claribel, the Spirit of Generosity. Her songs received well-earned encores. There is a full operatic chorus, which gives a good account of itself. The ballets, under the direction of Mme. Rose Lupino, are most artistic, and the augmented orchestra is judiciously conducted by Mr. Horace Middleton, who has neatly composed and arranged the music. A word of praise is due to the famous Tiller "Superba" Quartette, who give some delightful dances. The scenery is of the most gorgeous description, notably Under the Sea and the Land of Heartsease, and does great credit to the unnamed painter. The dresses are greatly to be praised, none finer having been seen at this theatre, and that is saying a good deal. The whole production has been produced under the stage management of Mr. Charles Goss, and it speaks volumes for his ability when it can be said that the pantomime went with a swing and without a hitch on the first performance. The King's annual may be trusted to draw all London.

One forgets the passing of the hours in the delightful companionship of The Babes in the Wood, who kept two audiences at the Marlborough enraptured and full of jollity on Monday, when the seal of success was set on the latest Holloway pantomime, which has been so admirably produced under the direction of Mr. Fred Fredericks. From beginning to end laughter reigned supreme, the company worked well together, and the scenery and dresses provided a wealth of colour and a revel of fantasy. Especially is this the case in the Fairy Aviary in Lovebird Land, a pavilion of silver sheen lifting to a vista of eternal summer, whose climatic conditions can only be governed by the meteorological office of the Kingdom of Make Believe. This picture, which will delight the fancy of childhood, completes the first part of the story, which reaches finality in A Bower of Roses, a set of stupendous horticultural magnificence, possible only in the fancy of the scene painter, whose name, by the way is not mentioned on the bill.

The babes of the nursery tale have had various protectors and friends in the pantomime versions that have been staged during the last quarter of a century, and we may accept Colin, the miller of the Dee, as one of the most chivalrous and breezy. He it is who offers to teach Dickie the boy babe, his trade, so that he may escape grinding poverty by grinding corn. But need we go on with a story so delightfully familiar and so amusingly told in every particular by the anonymous author concealing his identity under the phrase "Iam Query." Of course, the comic songs and the choruses of the year are utilised, and the fulness of the popularity of each will be attained if we may judge by the hearty way in which the vast audience on the occasion of our visit took up the refrains of some of the numbers. Especially was this the case of "D-o-u-g-h," sung by Mr. Lew Leslie as the villainous Squire Stubble. A really admirable speciality is being presented at each performance by Mr. Tom Morton and Miss Maggie Bowman. The gentleman takes the character of a chawbacon, and plays it not only consistently and without exaggeration, but is quite restrained. He lets himself, go, however, in a remarkable policeman dance, and also in a soldier and sailor dance, the success of which he shares with Miss Ethel Ashton, the chief danseuse and representative of Rosie Dimple, a village coquette. Mr. Morton also joins Miss Maggie Bowman, an actress of singular charm and versatility, in a burlesque of melodrama, which is one of the cleverest things of the kind we have seen. The gifted pair have much amusing business, and of every opportunity they take the fullest advantage.

Mr. Arthur Stigant, a droll farceur, as Dame Julia Durden knows how to be funny as the old woman of pantomime without being in the least degree vulgar. It is really a sight for the gods and pit to see this dear old lady in a wedding dress of window curtains with a horseshoe worked on skirt and bodice, the costume being completed by a wonderful creation of millinery—a hat with a remarkably ingenious ornament that goes bobbing around at every movement of the head. Mr. Stigant has the usual schoolroom scene, where the fun is of the most uproarious kind, and he scores most unmistakably, too, in his song "What a pity she lived so long ago." Miss Hester Reeve, an interesting and attractive girl babe, has several duets with Miss Maggie Bowman, one—"The land of the Eskimo"—being particularly tuneful. It is followed by a dance, which results in demands for an encore, which was wisely not conceded on the occasion of our visit. Miss Ruth Lytton is a neat, elegant, and pretty representative of Colin, the gallant young miller, whose happy-go-lucky disposition is sufficiently suggested by the popular refrain of "There was a jolly miller once." Miss Lytton strikes one as a particularly jolly lad, and therefore every boy in the audience is at once in touch with her, and the bond of sympathy established on her first entrance is never loosened. She has a great success in "I've been out with Charlie Brown." Miss Daisy Wood, whom we remember in her early teens as an adorable Cinderella, is the principal girl Phœbe, and plays with a distinction, charm, and winsomeness all her own. Phœbe is a mischievious and facetious little rogue, who takes a rise out of the wicked squire and rejoices thereat in her own vivacious way. Miss Wood sings "Who'll take me for a walk," which is quite a favourite number by this time, but has greater dramatic opportunities in "To be continued in our next," in which she assists most ably Mr. Hal Forde, an excellent comedian, who plays the penny plain and tuppence coloured villain in the most diverting manner possible.

Mr. Eric Mayne, a droll performer as the pusillanimous robber, occupies a high position as a funmaker, and this happily-endowed humorist, who has played the part mentioned with great success on a previous occasion, may always be depended upon for an entertainment that bristles with drollery. Full of resource that can only come from an original and gifted comedian, his impersonation is quite in the vein of broad humour, and it embraces at least one speciality interlude worth recording. But it is in his general performance that Mr. Mayne is so strong. He works so admirably with others, and his quaint appearance forms an admirable foil to the other comedians, who play loyally and well together with the agreeable result that each is able to score.

A concluding word may be given in praise of the ballet so well arranged by the veteran Paul Valentine, with Miss Ethel Ashton a versatile and interesting première danseuse. Miss Ethel Oliver cuts a dainty figure as Sylvius, and the village coquettes have attractive representatives in Miss Betty Burdette, Miss Muriel Illington, Miss Edith Janner, and Miss Babs Johnston. Miss Daisy Webb wins the hearts of young and old alike as the Fairy Goodheart. The skilful stage-management of Mr. H. L. Pitman is everywhere apparent, but it is specially effective in the Fair scene. As business-manager to Mr. Fred Fredericks, Mr. Hugh Fleming is courteously active. Mr. J. Murray Herriot, the representative of the theatre management, has a specially hearty welcome for his friends, and he reports excellent business and prospects of its continuance.

Mr. Peter Davey, the energetic and enterprising managing-director here, always strives to go one better than his previous performances, and he has this year been true to the traditions of the house, for The Sleeping Beauty was acknowledged by all who saw it to be one of the most refined, ornate, and whimsical pantomimes produced at the Royal County. The dresses are a thing of beauty, the scenery is remarkably fine.

Princess Bonnibelle is the only daughter of the bankrupt King and Queen of Aradia, but the good fairies, headed by their Queen Regina, attend the court on the day of her christening, and promise her a happy life and more prosperous times for her insolvent parents. There is another fairy, however, named Siva, who, expelled from Fairyland for his wickedness, had set up in business on his own account, and, attending the christening festivities uninvited, thwarts the Fairy Queen's good intentions by pronouncing a curse on the babe, to the effect that when she reaches her eighteenth birthday her hand shall be pierced by a spindle and she shall die. The good fairies hold a Parliament, and, of course, the effect of the curse is modified, and, besides, in pantomimes malignant fairies always have to reckon with heroic principal boys.

The company engaged in the show this year is rich in talents. Miss Barbara Babington, a former Kingston favourite, makes a splendid principal boy as the Prince. With a dashing manner and remarkably fine contralto voice, she soon becomes a prime favourite with every part of the house. All her songs were loudly applauded, the more noticeable amongst them being "Somewhere" and "Let us all go down the Strand." A charmingly naive portraiture of the Princess was given by Miss Geraldine le Sage, her singing and dancing being received with great favour, and stamping her as a young artist of much promise. A very effective number was a duet, "Can't you see I love you?" in which she took part with the Prince. Miss Florence Cameron displayed a remarkably fine delivery and a voice of more than usual excellence in the part of the Fairy Queen, which she invested with an indefinable charm hard to describe. She quickly became a favourite in every part of the house. An equally favourable impression, though of a different kind, was created by Miss Clara Earle as the wicked fairy Siva. Miss Earle had many lines to speak, and all were spoken with a faultless elocution and impressiveness that leaves little doubt that this young lady has a bright future before her in other stage productions. A most satisfactory picture of the mannish Sufrigita was given by Miss Gladys Warren. Though there is much that is excellent in this year's Christmas show at Kingston, it will be remembered most for the wealth and excellence of the fun of the comedians. Principal amongst them was Mr. W. P. Sheen, who plays the part of the Princess's nurse, Gloriannah, with an irresistible drollery. Mr. Sheen, in a duologue over a cup of tea, along with Queen Caramelba, simply convulsed the house with his whimsicalities, and when he gave some patter about the husbands she had had and sang a song made up of the first lines of well-known ditties, he fairly brought the house down. In this direction his efforts were ably seconded by those of Mr. Henry Carlton as King Karuso, by Mr. Bobbie Hall as the King's general factotum, Criton, by Mr. Ewart Drake as Queen Caramelba, and by Mr. Arthur Carlton as the Prince's squire, Swank, the latter of whom was, if possible, more amusing than the others. Miss Marjorie Lawrence as the one male official of the Aradian Republic, Captain Dash, was loudly applauded for her singing in "The Boys of Digby," and for her dancing, which was graceful and clever. Altogether, it was a most happy crowd of artists, and their efforts to amuse met with a most responsive echo in every part of the house.

The chorus, which completely filled the stage, went through some pretty dances, in which they showed evidence of very careful training. The dancing of Miss Fifi Goddon's troupe of ladies was also a pleasant feature of the show, which was followed by an old-fashioned harlequinade, in which Mr. Bobbie Hall was the clown, Mr. Arthur Carlton the panteloon, Mr. Fred Laurier the harlequin, Miss Marjorie Lawrence the columbine, and Mr. W. Lazard the policeman. The entire production was designed and arranged by Mr. Peter Davey, and was produced under the direction of Mr. Frank Harding. The book, which was of more than usual literary excellence, as well as the lyrics, were written by Mr. Allen Taylor, whilst the music was selected and arranged by Mr. Hugo Rignold, the chef d'orchestre. The scenery was painted by Mr. Geo. Miller, the resident artist, and by Mr. A. G. Betts, Mr. W. Robinson, and Mr. F. O. Jones. The costumes were designed by Miss Peter Davey, and were made under her superintendence in the theatre wardrobe by Mrs. Morgan and her assistants, whilst the electrical effects, which in some instances were very clever, were by C. Dodman, jun. Miss Hill and Miss Silvey were responsible for the millinery, Messrs. G. Arnold and A. Scott for the mechanical effects, and Messrs. C. Dodman, C. E. Dodman, and E. Hedger for the properties.

"QUEEN OF HEARTS" AT KENNINGTON THEATRE.

On Dec. 27, the Pantomime, by Frank Dix, Music by Julian H. Wilson and J. O. Shepherd.

Kardallah I. .....Mr. Stephen Adeson
Queen of Hearts .....Mr. Arthur Rigby
The Knave of Hearts .....Mr. Harry Dent
Florizel .....Miss Violet Loraine
Estrella .....Miss Mabel Green
Armida .....Miss Elsie Evelyn Hill
Fortuna.....Miss May Sheridan
The Joker .....Miss Renee Reel
The Ace of Hearts .....Miss Ethel Buckler
The Ace of Diamonds .....Miss Mabel Vere
The Ace of Clubs .....Miss Eunice Gray
The Ace of Spades.....Miss Clarice Carley

When the curtain rang down on Queen of Hearts on Monday the verdict of the overflowing house was that it was one of the prettiest and one of the wittiest of pantomimes which has yet been produced at Kennington Theatre, and that nothing which ingenuity could suggest or enterprise furnish was wanting on the part of Mr. Robert Arthur, who had personally supervised the production, to make it one of his greatest successes. The story, which we need not describe in extenso, deals with the machinations of a certain sorcerer named Armida. Left alone for a few minutes with the tarts—the Royal tarts served on a golden dish and the courtiers' tarts on a pewter dish—Armida places a curse on the former and dowers the latter with every attribute of success. Unfortunately for the fulfilment of her schemes, the Knave, in a fit of jealousy, changes the Royal tarts from the gold to the pewter dish, and unwittingly secures for himself and his fellow conspirators the tarts which are anathematised as "Tarts of trouble and of woe." In the end, Armida is baffled, and the Prince, Florizel, presents to his people as his bride the charming Estrella, Queen of Hearts.

The curtain rises on the King's reception room (by Stafford Hall), in which there is a rattling chorus—and, by the way, the concerted numbers throughout are quite up to operatic standard—and the Knave (Mr. Harry Dent) puts in some excellent fooling. This is followed by Fortuna making her appearance and revealing the possession of a remarkably fine voice, the full range and compass of which finds ample scope in the song, "There is rapture." The second scene, The City of Kardallah, is an exceedingly picturesque set, into which Mr. W. T. Helmsley has put forth his most artistic efforts, and it forms a gay background for the pretty ballet by Miss Madge Martin's eight lively Sunbeams. Miss Violet Loraine, a dazzling and handsome Prince, makes tender love to a fascinating Estrella, in the person of Miss Mabel Green, and they join in a duet; but the sentiment gives place to merriment when Mr. Arthur Rigby (the Queen) and Mr. Stephen Adeson (the King) get to business, and the first-named's song "I am bound to be there," with a chorus the hang of which the gallery quickly gets, makes a palpable hit. Miss Violet Loraine also has a rousing number, "All the nice girls love a sailor." But the two outstanding features of this scene are the Ballet of Living Cards (one of the daintiest and most effective ballets Miss Martin has ever designed), and the Suffragette scene, in which the Knave figures most prominently. The ballet, in which all the cards as represented, is one of the most tasteful creations that can well be conceived, and elicited unstinted admiration. The Suffragette episode keeps all in roars. The Knave is dog-whipped by a Suffragette, who mistakes him for the Prime Minister, and, finding all egress barred, he, in despair, dashes into a lion's cage, when suddenly the lion's head comes off, and a woman emerges shouting "Votes for women."

In the third scene, The City Gates, a front cloth by Mr. G. E. W. McKie, both King and Queen get a lot of fun out of a burlesque on the carol, "Good King Wenceslas" and by their efforts to get off on their journey in a donkey cart; and then comes the great artistic effort by Mr. Stafford Hall, which is deserving of warm praise, the transformation scene with five sets, The Witches' Hovel, The Dragon's Pass, Love's Gate of Flames, The Frozen Plateau, and Poppyland, all beautifully done, and constituting quite a triumph for the painter's art. Estrella sings very sweetly the ballad "If I knew, if I knew," and Miss Renee Reel dances with great cleverness in these scenes, the closing one of which is brilliant in the extreme. The entrance of the dragon, with huge head and flaming eyes, in the second set of the scene, is also a remarkably good stage effect, which appeals with especial force to the youngsters.

In the second act, which opens with the Castle of Baba-Han, the music of Mr Julian Wilson, light and sparkling as it is, gives place to the melodies of Mr. J. O. Shepherd. The scene is notable for a wonderful mechanical change from a castle in all the pomp and circumstance which Mr. Stafford Hall can devise to a heap of picturesque ruins, in consequence of the malediction which has been laid on it by Armida. There is a good rustic chorus to send off the second act, and a fanciful ballet by the Sunbeams, whilst Mr. Stephen Adeson sings a darkey melody, "Tell the coons I'm coming," with chorus effects, in ripping style, and fairly brings down the house. Arthur Rigby also has a taking number, "When you are married, girls," whilst Miss Mabel Green's song, "I am looking for Mr. Wright," sung in dainty fashion, and accompanied by a chorus of girls, goes well. Miss Violet Loraine's rich contralto voice is heard at its best in "I used to sigh for the silvery moon," and then there is a pretty illuminated ballet amongst the castle ruins. Comic relief to this flood of melody and vision of gaiety is provided by Messrs. Adeson and Dent's knockabout duet, "The Brothers Malone," followed by an intensely amusing burlesque by the same gentlemen of a Salome dance. The Ticket Office scene, another effective front cloth by Mr. G. E. W. McKie, furnishes a big opening for Mr. Arthur Rigby, which he makes full use of with his "Top note" song, and he scores again very heavily with Mr. Dent in the Airship scene, a panorama by Mr. Fowler Hogg. In his Mr. Dent gets a full encore for his topical number "That's where I'd like to be," and after a full measure of merriment the scene changes to the brilliant finale, the Palace of Kardallah (another of Mr. Stafford Hall's triumphs) peopled with its gay and festive throng of brightly attired courtiers and people, where Estrella reigns as real Queen of Hearts. Enough has been written to show that the principals miss nothing in their endeavours to make the pantomime a great entertainment, and that they attain their object goes without saying. Mr. Arthur Rigby has added another laurel to his chaplet of honours by his impersonation of the Queen of Hearts, which is one of the cleverest efforts in the way of a dame part that has been seen for a very long time. He is a comedian of outstanding merit, and keeps the fun flowing. He is ably seconded by Mr. Stephen Adeson, whose representation of the King is unusually good. In the Knave of Mr. Harry Dent Kennington possesses quite a treasure, and these three comedians may well be trusted to keep the lamp of mirth brightly burning during the whole run of the panto. Miss Violet Loraine wins all hearts as Prince Florizel, interpreting the rôle with a good deal of vigour; and the Estrella of Miss Mabel Green is a winsome and charming study, besides which she has a silvery soprano voice. Miss Elsie Evelyn Hill is well placed as Armida, making quite a dramatic figure; and Miss May Sheridan is an excellent Fairy Fortuna, whose singing could scarcely be bettered. Miss Ethel Buckler, Miss Mabel Vere, Miss Eunice Gray, and Miss Clarice Carley are a bevy of attractive damsels as the Four Aces, and the graceful dancing of the Eight Sunbeams must delight the heart of their trainer, Miss Martin. The electrical effects of Mr. David Marshall, the mechanical effects of Mr. Harry Krot leave nothing to be desired, and the costumes well maintain the reputation of J. H. Harrison, Ltd., there being some wonderful dresses. The vocalisation of the chorus and the orchestration under the conductorship of Mr. Julian Wilson are two undeniably strong points in a pantomime towards the production of which the stage manager (Mr. P. F. Howley) and the business manager (Mr. H. B. Brandreth) have been unsparing in their efforts. Mr. Brandreth, especially, can lay the flattering unction to his soul that the theatre whose affairs he administers, under Mr. Robert Arthur's personal direction, with so much ability, has scored again with its pantomime.

"CINDERELLA" AT THE CRYSTAL PALACE.

Pantomime, Produced on Christmas Eve.

Prince Charming .....Miss Maisie Ellinger
Cinderella .....Miss Dorothea Clarke
Dandini .....Miss Alice Nixon
Peter Pepper .....Mr. W. H. Kirby
Phyllis .....Miss Maud Bower
Zena .....Miss Nellie Sheffield
Bill and Ginger ..Messrs. Stacey and Williams
Baron Buckshot .....Mr. Arthur Paterson
Queenie .....Mr. Paddy Dupres
Fairy Godmother .....Miss Cordelia Knight
Fairy Queen .....Miss Lillian Mildred
Footman .....Mr. Dutton Nicholls

The crystal slipper is set amid scenes of splendour at the Crystal Palace Theatre, where Mr. Bannister Howard presented his fourth pantomime to a crowded house on Christmas Eve. The piece is written by that experienced pantomime librettist, Mr. Fred Bowyer, and the music, arranged by Messrs. Leonard Gautier and Ernée Woodville, proves very melodious. A succession of scenes, in which fun, harmony, and spectacle are agreeably diversified, is begun in Fairyland, and is followed by a bit of Old London, where the principals assemble. Prince Charming is organising a dancing competition, in which Baron Buckshot, the Baroness, and her daughters compete. The palm is awarded to Cinderella, with whom the Prince duly falls in love. In the Woods is a wonderfully realistic bit of woodland, with live deer grazing by a running brook, and rabbits emerging from their burrows. A clever sunrise effect is here gained, the shades of early morning giving way to the full light, in a series of pretty tints of blue. Fun by the comedians and love-making by the Prince and Cinderella having been indulged in, the traditional meeting of the maiden with her Fairy Godmother takes place. Cinderella's rags are turned to silken raiment, and thus attired she departs for the historic ball in a crystal carriage blazing with a myriad of electric lights, and drawn by beautiful miniature ponies.

Spectacular excellence is carried still further in Part II., which opens at The Reception Hall, an artistically painted scene, giving way to the Ballroom, a gorgeous interior, peopled by Esquimos, Red Indians, Spaniards, and other nationalities, the picturesque crowd taking part in a stately measure. A diversion is here created by the appearance of a quartet of comedians attired in swallow-tailed coats and ballet skirts and tights. The Tradesmen's Entrance gives an opportunity to the comedians of which they avail themselves fully, the fun being continued in Gossip Lane, which leads to the Palace of the Prince, a scene of brilliant splendour, glowing with colour and movement.

Entire success rewards the efforts of the artists. Miss Maisie Ellinger is a commanding Prince, and carried herself buoyantly throughout. She sang vigorously, and enthusiasm was created by "Charlie Brown" and "Wake up, Britishers," for which she received a handsome bouquet. Pretty and demure is the Cinderella of Miss Dorothea Clarke, who has a graceful presence, a musical voice, and skill in dancing. She was heard most agreeably in her reverie by the fire, and in her love duet, "Kiss, Kiss," with the Prince, which drew forth lavish applause. Miss Alice Nixon is a dapper Dandini, and made a hit with "Has anyone here seen Kelly?" The leading spirit of fun is Mr. W. H. Kirby, whose drollery as Peter Pepper, the page, knows no bounds. He secured innumerable laughs by his resourceful humour, and hilarity reigned whenever he was on the stage. He has a droll scene in the kitchen, when Cinderella takes the part of a lady barber, and in turn supports that lady in her tuneful rendering of "Hallo! Mr. Moon Man," joining her in a quaint dance. Mr. Kirby also scores with "Don't take me home." A favourite of former years is found in Mr. W. H. Dupres, who makes a very substantial Baroness, lording it ludicrously over the Baron, played by Mr. Arthur Paterson, by whom the pantomime is produced. Mr. Dupres imports much individual humour into his performance, and is the cause of unlimited merriment. Laughter is also aroused by the broker's men, in whose eccentricities Messrs. Stacey and Williams revel. The Ugly Sisters are played by ladies, Miss Maud Bower making Phyllis a simpering puss, and Miss Nellie Sheffield investing Zena also with many of the attributes of the feline species. Both contribute to the mirth-making, Miss Bower singing "Is anybody looking for a widow?" and supplementing it with a quaint dance. The cast is completed by Miss Cordelia Knight, a prepossessing Fairy Godmother; Miss Lillian Mildred, an engaging Fairy Queen; and Mr. Dutton Nicholls, an imposing footman. Valuable aid to the effect of the piece is furnished by the XL Quartet of Glee Singers, whose rendering of the "Thuringien Volkslied" is very harmonious, and secured them an encore. A special troupe of dancers go through a series of novel evolutions, including a housemaid dance, in which dustpans take the place of tambourines. Fun and melody prevail at the Palace, and from its reception on the opening night the pantomime has a prosperous career before it.

"CINDERELLA" AT THE ELEPHANT.

Pantomime, Produced on Dec. 27.

IMMORTALS.

The Fairy Godmother..Miss Winifred Rochefort
The Dream Fairy .....Miss Nora Martyn

MORTALS.

Prince Casimir .....Miss Mary Ambrose
Dandini .....Mr. George Newburn
Hercules .....Mr. Freddie French
Tiny .....Mr. Ted Young
Cinderella .....Miss Lilian Errol
Araminta .....Miss Alice Inman
Elvira .....Miss Florrie Haydon
Capers .....Mr. Tom Poole
Duke of Whistbridge .....Miss Madge O'Neill

Mr. Charles Barnard has chosen for his second annual pantomime at this house the story of Cinderella, which is presented in a very interesting and amusing manner by a capable company of artists under the direction of Mr. Ernest Stephens and Mr. R. C. Buchanan. The story is unfolded in quite a simple manner, thus possessing added charm from the juvenile point of view. The Prince falling in love with Cinderella, and giving a ball to which he issues a general invitation in order that she may be present; his changing places with Dandini, his valet, in order to win the maiden's love as an ordinary individual; the Fairy Godmother befriending the poor damsel and arranging for her attendance at the ball; the transformation into a beautiful carriage and still more beautiful dresses of a pumpkin, mice, lizards, &c.; the instruction to leave the ball at twelve o'clock; the lost slipper and the usual happy ending—all these details are to be found in the present production, simplified and yet elaborated.

Miss Winifred Rochfort as the Fairy Godmother looks and acts her part to perfection, her singing of the song "Somewhere" being one of the features of the performance. Miss Mary Ambrose is a dashing Prince, and her rendering of "Ship ahoy" will not be easily forgotten. Mr. George Newburn was a rather boisterous Dandini. He is an excellent mimic, and gives a very welcome series of impersonations in the Ballroom scene His song, "A lass in Yorkshire," was well received. Mr. Freddie French is a decidedly humorous Hercules, Baron de Debtington; and Mr. Ted Young as Tiny, the Baroness (who has a habit of using long words which she evidently does not understand) is also a capable comedian. When we mention that Mr. Ted Young is about six times as big as Mr. French in stature the humour of the nick names Hercules and Tiny will be appreciated. Their scenes are really too funny to be described, quite the best being their return from the Ball at 4 a.m. The two daughters of the Baroness, Araminta and Elvira, are played respectively by Miss Alice Inman and Miss Florrie Haydon. Both do well in these two parts, which, however, do not as yet offer abundant opportunities. Mr. Tom Poole as Capers, the Baron's servant, introduces some funny songs and still funnier dancing, his duet with Cinderella in the kitchen scene being a huge success. Miss Madge O'Neill makes a fine "boy" as the Duke of Whistbridge, her song, "Molly O'Morgan," being one of the tit-bits in the pantomime. In the name-part of Cinderella Miss Lilian Errol is dainty and winsome throughout. She has a charming presence and sweet voice, added to which she is an excellent dancer, and what more could be desired for an heroine? Her principal songs are "Fairies have gone to bed" and "Silvery moon." Baby Wolf and Benn's Dutch Boys and Girls introduce some fine dancing. The chorus is good, and all the other characters are in capable hands. The scenery is excellent, the principal sets being The Glade, The Home of the Fairy Godmother (in which scene we see Cinderella and her wonderful electric coach drawn by two of the prettiest little ponies imaginable), The Royal Ballroom, and In the Spring Time. The music is catchy and tuneful throughout. The production reflects great credit upon the stage-manager, Mr. G. Cartwright.

"GOODY TWO SHOES" AT THE SHAKESPEARE.

Pantomime, Produced on Christmas Eve.

For his fourteenth annual pantomime Mr. H. G. Dudley Bennett has chosen Goody Two Shoes, and with a galaxy of star artists, magnificent scenery, and gorgeous dresses, the production easily surpasses all previous efforts. The author of the book is Mr. J. Hickory Wood, whose ripe experience has enabled him to evolve a pretty and concise story elaborated with witty and sparkling dialogues, the subject being treated in a manner that appeals to young and old alike. The various melodies have been skilfully arranged by Mr. Alf. J. Lawrance, who is also responsible for the pleasing incidental music, and the topicals are by Mr. T. F. Doyle. The pantomime is divided into thirteen scenes, and opens with the Magic Workshop, where the rival forces of fairies and demons are engaged making the shoes which mean good or bad luck to the wearer. In the next scene—the Village of Where, a pretty rural setting—acquaintance is made with the principal characters, who quickly work up the interest of the piece, and the next three scenes are whirled through with a mixture of haunting melodies and side-splitting witticisms. The final scene of the first part is the Butterfly Ball, where human butterflies dance a ballet amid wonderful electrical illuminations, which created a furore of applause. So far all has gone well, for the magic shoes worn by Goody have brought good luck to everybody. Prince Charming is anxious to share his throne with her, and the poor and needy Widow Niblick, who previously lived in a shoe, is now comfortably installed in a gorgeous mansion. The widow's rise to fortune is, however, only temporary, for Goody puts on the Demon's shoes and matters are reversed. The Fairies speedily put things right, and with the union of Goody to Prince Charming the pantomime concludes. The Prince's Flower Garden is a very effective scene, in which the elaborate dresses and a wealth of flowers provide a feast of colour.

Miss Queenie Leighton as Prince Charming heads a powerful cast, and her performance was a revelation to those who had not had the pleasure of seeing this talented artist at Drury Lane Theatre. Her fascinating personality proved irresistible, and the audience accorded her a warm welcome. Her chief songs were "Do you know Charlie Digby?" "Down in Paradise Alley," "For months and months," and "The Corsican maid," all of which were rendered in dashing style. A dainty and charming Goody was seen on Miss Gracie Sinclaire, whose sweet voice was heard to advantage in "Little Alpine maid" and "I used to sigh for the silvery moon." Her acting, too, captivated all hearts, and won her scores of admirers. Miss Irene Verona as the Baroness Bounder played a comedy rôle with success, and her song "Has anybody here seen Kelly?" was quickly proclaimed a favourite. Miss Minnie Mulvey was a sprightly Marjory, and her song and dance were well received. Miss Eva Reed as Jane made a droll appearance, and her comicalities caused much merriment. Miss Annie Wallace was an ideal Fairy Fortuna, and despite a tendency to sink her voice, acted satisfactorily. The song "Somewhere," allotted her, had a haunting chorus, which will soon be heard everywhere. There is a strong array of comedians, of whom Mr. Harry Pleon has the chief opportunities. His comical make-up as the Baron Bounder evoked considerable laughter, and throughout the evening he was in close touch with the audience. Possessed of a large amount of comic force, Mr. Pleon gave of his best, and nothing could be more funny than his rendering of "Don't take me home" and his skit on a coon song. He was ably seconded by Mr. J. J. Dallas, who, as the Widow Niblick, made a first-class comic female, and was untiring in his efforts to keep the ball of fun rolling, his ditty "What I suffer," being extremely comical. Another provider of mirth is found in Mr. Fred Mulvey, who played the part of Jack in the true pantomimical style, his breezy gags and numerous comicalities going far towards ensuring the success of the performance. As Rupert Mr. Roland Bottomley was all that could be desired and his excellent voice was greatly admired. His numbers included "I can't keep my eyes off the girls" and "Let's all go down the Strand." Mr. Walter Balfour was not a particularly spiteful demon, and he charmed all with a pretty song, "Cigarette." Mr. Bert Atherton as the postman and Messrs. Sando and Con Silo as flunkeys gave valuable assistance. Mlle. Dolli was conspicuous in several dances, which were executed with considerable skill and grace. A word of praise is due to the ballet, who were unflagging in their efforts, and also to a number of children, whose harlequinade dance was prettily carried out.

The production was under the stage direction of Mr. Ivan Capell, and the comfort of the audience was well looked after by Mr. Frank Seabrook, the acting-manager for the pantomime company.

"THE FORTY THIEVES" AT THE DALSTON.

Pantomime, Produced on Dec. 27.

Ali Baba .....Mr. Harry Maxam.
Cogia Baba .....Mr. Johnny Johnston
Cassim Baba .....Mr. Ted Wootton.
Ganem .....Miss Marie Reeve
Morgiana .....Miss May Otto
Mustapha .....Mr. Arthur Stevens.
Bossi .....Mr. Syd Raymonde.
Abdallah .....Miss Dora Frank Harvey
Hasarac .....Mr. H. Hughes
Hasarie .....Mr. J. Carney
Hajam .....Miss Greta Seymour
Hoolam .....Miss Gertie Webster.

When the curtain rose on the afternoon of Boxing Day on this season's pantomime at the Dalston Theatre there was not a vacant seat in the house, and all the available standing room was occupied. The subject chosen by Mr. Fred J. Little and Mr. Fred Darcy, who again present the pantomime here, is the well worn one of The Forty Thieves, and Mr. Frank Ayrton, who has provided the book, keeps as near to the narrative as possible. The music has been composed and arranged by Mr. Geo. D. Fox, and goes with a good swing, Mr. W. R. Parker being musical director. In the opening scene, the market place of Baghdad, domestic trouble commences when it is found that Ali Baba, the woodcutter, who has been afar, has brought home a beautiful slave, Morgiana, but the incident is soon closed, and throughout the progress of the piece Ali and his wife form the chief source of amusement. Ali and his son have an exciting time in the woods, near the cave of wealth, hiding up, in, and around a tree, from the forty thieves, who, like the proverbial bad penny, have a habit of coming back. The woodcutter, however, eventually succeeds in entering the cave and acquiring a deal of wealth, which fact serves once more to prove that riches are not accompanied by unalloyed happiness, for Ali has a good deal of anxiety as to the storage of his appropriations, and although everything ends happily, some of those most nearly related to him have some very narrow escapes, due chiefly to the alertness of the wily slave.

Ali in the cast did their utmost to secure a "go," and the performance "went" accordingly. Mr. Harry Maxam made Ali Baba, the woodcutter, a very funny character. Ali was at once popular, but he became a positive power with the juveniles from the moment when, in the course of a song, he announced himself as "King of the Dalston Scouts." He also sang "They're all beginning to sprout" in a very comical strain. The scene in the wood where, with his son, Ganem (Miss Marie Reeve) he loads the donkey, Bossi (Mr. Syd Raymonde) with the various bags of treasure stolen from the cave, created roars of laughter, especially at those stages of the proceedings where the badly-treated quadruped repeatedly collapsed. Miss Marie Reeve acted with considerable vivacity throughout, and Mr. Raymonde made Bossi a very intelligent animal. Mr. Johnny Johnston was a great source of amusement as Cogia Baba, Ali's wife, making a decided hit with the song, "It's old Mother Brown's canary." Mr. Johnston also pleased with his neat dancing, and in the course of a skating song demonstrated a variety of forms of coming in contact with the ground. The brother of Ali, Cassim Baba, has a vigorous representative in Mr. Ted Wootton, whose excellent voice aroused the Boxing Day audience to quite a pitch of enthusiasm. His principal vocal contribution was an old favourite which decidedly caught on, and Mr. Wootton, although time pressed somewhat just then, was compelled to respond to an encore. Morgiana, Ali's slave, as portrayed by Miss May Otto, was a charming young personage, and her song, "Come where the sun is shining" evoked a genuine round of applause. Miss Dora Frank Harvey is just suited in figure and style to the leading part of Abdallah, the Captain of the Forty Thieves, and firmly established herself as a favourite. Her fresh voice lent good effect to the rendition of the song "I do like to be beside the seaside." Mr. Arthur Stevens as Mustapha, and Miss Greta Seymour and Miss Gertie Webster as two of Abdallah's lieutenants did well, but special mention must be made of two other lieutenants, represented by Mr. H. Hughes and Mr. J. Carney, who were extremely funny, and caused quite a sensation from the humorous point of view by the introduction of an extravagant boxing bout. The Forty Thieves are really a fine set of outlaws.

There are a number of specialities to be noted. The performances of the principal dancers, Sydney T. Russell's Acme Quartette, greatly pleased those having an admiration for graceful movements, while the unique speciality, the Hadji-Mohamed Ben-Medani troupe of tumblers gave the audience an opportunity of noting what a number of grotesque forms the human body can be trained to represent. An old-fashioned harlequinade will be appreciated by many who glory in a scene of rough and tumble. The following is the list of those taking part in the harlequinade: Clown, Mr. Syd Raymonde; Pantaloon, Mr. T. Gill; Harlequin, Miss Marie Mitford; Columbine, Miss Minnie Cultiam; Policeman, Mr. T. G. Mountford. Mr. T. Wootten is stage-manager.

Hearty congratulations must be extend to Mr. Fred Melville for the great success of his third annual pantomime, which was started on its career on Boxing Day before an audience which filled the house from floor to ceiling. It has been specially written by Newman Maurice, who has closely followed the famous nursery story on which the pantomime is founded. The company engaged is one that any suburban theatre could be proud of. Miss Daisy James enacts the part of Jack, a character that suits her immensely. She quickly obtained the favour of her audience, who gave her a most hearty reception on her entrance, and her success was maintained throughout both in song or dance. The most popular items of her répertoire were "Ship, ahoy!" and "Let's all go down the Strand," both of which received encores. A graceful and dainty Princess Truelove is Miss Marie Moss, who is well remembered here for her performance in The Earl and the Girl. She is to be complimented upon a very charming portrait of the principal girl, her singing and dancing being carried out in a most fascinating manner that wins all hearts. Miss Dorothy Vernon is excellent as the Baroness D'Oofless, a character which is usually undertaken by a comedian. Its importance is greatly enhanced in the hands of such an experienced actress as Miss Vernon. Miss Grace Rosaire is a sweetly pretty Fairy Rosebud; Miss Dorothy Maurice is a graceful Cupid; Miss Stella Dewar as the Herald, Roderick, is very good; and Miss Dorothy Millar, Miss Marie York, and Miss Ruby Lester as Rosetta, Philomel, and Phyllis respectively are very attractive. The large array of comedians is headed by Mr. Newman Maurice, who in addition to writing the book and producing the pantomime, undertakes the arduous part of Mrs. Jack, and keeps the company present in a continual state of merriment. He is the life and soul of the pantomime, and scores a great success. Mr. Charles Leverton is a decided acquistion as Baron D'Oofless. He is a very versatile artist, and will become an immense favourite. Another pantomime favourite at Brixton is Nat Lewis, who gives two most mirth-provoking studies—first, that of a schoolboy scapegoat, and later as the Giant's baby, Mabel, his immense size adding considerably to the effect obtained. Mr. Pen Armstrong quite realises his responsibilities as Giant Gorribuster, and Mr. Victor Cannon is excellent as the Demon Discord. The popular Philippi Brothers render great assistance in the laughter-making by their clever impersonations of Fanfare, Blowhard, and Algar and Hubert. A promising young artist, and one who has an undoubted future before her, is Miss May Hill, who sings, dances, and acts equal to many an artist of greater experience. Her rendering of "Booby Boo" was received with tremendous applause. The pantomime is mounted in a most elaborate manner, some fine specimens of the scene painter's art being revealed. The Village of Sweet Delight and The Realms of Fairyland are really magnificent. The Magic Beanstalk, The Giant's Combined Room, and The King's Palace are received with delight. The music has been composed and arranged by Mr. W. T. Gliddon, and the pantomime should prove a great success both financially and artistically. Mr. W. Bellamy courteously attends to the comforts of the numerous patrons.

Mr. Humphrey E. Brammall's first pantomime at the Britannia must be recorded as a decided success. The theatre was crowded with an enthusiastic holiday audience, who insisted in joining in the choruses of the most popular songs of the annual, and encores were prominent. The mounting of the pantomime is most elaborate, notably Highgate Hill, the Deck of the Saucy Kipper—a very fine piece of stagecraft—The Feast of Wealth—a truly magnificent picture ablaze with electric lights—and the Guildhall, in which the entire company assemble in gorgeous array.

The powerful company contains some of the most popular artists. Miss May Beatty is an ideal Dick. Possessing a graceful figure and a tuneful voice, she carried all before her, and scored a great triumph both in singing and dancing. Her most popular items were "I used to sigh for the silvery moon," "Madeira," "Money don't make happiness," and "Somewhere." Miss Ruby Verdi is a delightfully bewitching Alice, her graceful manner and dainty ways adding considerably to her success, and she is an immense favourite. Miss Peggy Pryde as the Slavey makes the most of her opportunities, causing the part to stand out prominently, and in spite of a very bad cold from which she was evidently suffering sang "Blackpool" remarkably well, and was loudly applauded. Miss Millicent Cooper is an impressive King Rat. Princess Mi Young Man is played in a captivating manner by Miss Eileen Macarthy. There is an excellent array of comedians, who make the fun fast and furious throughout. At the head is Mr. Bob Hutt as Fitzwarren. He and Mr. Edward Lauri as Idle Jack keep the audience in a continual round of merriment. The songs and dances rendered by them are received with rounds of applause. "Seaside" and "Charley Brown" are sung in fine style by Mr. Lauri, who has scored a triumphant success. Mr. George Rapley renders admirable assistance in the matter of laugh-making as the Cook. He is amply provided with songs, one of his most successful numbers being "I'm the girl who took the wrong turning." The Captain and Mates of the Saucy Kipper are made a humorous trio by the combined efforts of Mr. Tom Birchmore, and Mr. Will Harris and Mr. Alec Fraser. Mr. Jack Hurst is a wonderfully realistic Cat; Master Leslie Perks deserves to be highly commended for his performance of the Midshipman, and also for his tuneful rendering of "Ship ahoy," a song which will become immensely popular. Miss Baby Elvie, a dainty little maid, plays the Fairy with an archness which is captivating. The apprentices are cleverly represented by the Reed Oetzmann Troupe. Mr. Tom Carpenter causes amusement as the Emperor. The Eight Elves and the Ten San Tan Girls render admirable assistance throughout the evening, the last-named troupe being well received for their deservedly popular scena, "An Eastern Slave." The music has been arranged and composed by Mr. J. Carter, the musical director, the whole pantomime being produced under the experienced direction of Mr. J. M. Jones and supervised by Mr. Humphrey E. Brammall. At the close of the evening performance Mr. Jones made the announcement on behalf of Mr. Brammall that his next year's pantomime would be Aladdin.

The "Drury Lane of the East" has always been noted for its pantomimes, many popular stars having graced its boards, and this season's Yuletide entertainment will compare very favourably with any that has been produced here. Mr. Alexander Leighton is responsible for the entire production, and has staged it in a very thorough manner, many of the scenes calling forth loud applause on Boxing Day, when a crowded house were evidently delighted with the entire "show." The book is specially written for this theatre by Mr. Ray L. Cody, who has done his work admirably; and the music, composed and arranged by Mr. Bernard J. Paterson, is also just what is required, most of the present-day "hits" being introduced. Very soon after the rise of the curtain the audience is put in merry mood by the ludicrous wooing of Baron Popham Hotstuff and Agnes Lizzie Snowdrop, a schoolmistress—a "faded flower" with one eye on the main chance and the other on the Baron. The Baron is, of course, anxious to be rid of the Babes, and enlists the services of the two "stony" villains, I Kill 'em and U Eat 'em, who manage to abduct the youngsters from the Schoolroom—a scene in which there is much laughter-compelling business between the schoolmistress and her pupils. Robin Hood and his sweetheart Maid Marion are, however, soon on the track of the "ruffians," and in Sherwood Forest—a particularly fine set—would rescue them, but are thwarted by the wicked demon, Herne the Hunter.

The first scene of the second half of the pantomime represents the Sands, Brightsun-on-Sea, where much amusing interpolated business takes place, the fashionably gowned seaside girls and their "Johnnies" and a number of damsels in dainty bathing costumes making a very attractive picture. Here Robin Hood and Maid Marion, disguised as a pierrot and pierrette, come to seek the Babes, who are "attached" to a troupe of entertainers presumably run by the Baron, and which also includes most of the other principals; and a very entertaining item is that in which they each give a "turn" after the manner of well-known music-hall artists. The evil one again prevents Robin and his sweetheart from rescuing the Babes, this time making his appearance in an airship, but, of course, the gallant outlaw succeeds in his mission ere the curtain is finally rung down on a pantomime crammed with amusing matter for both old and young.

The long cast is a hard-working and capable one throughout, and contains many really clever performers. The important part of Robin Hood has a handsome and dashing representative in Miss Winnie Browne, her fine figure and gallant bearing fitting her for the rôle admirably. She looks particularly well in a white pierrot dress, in which, in conjunction with Maid Marion, she contributes a pretty song and dance, and speaks her lines crisply and distinctly. The vocal numbers which fell to her share, including "One of the girls," were all well rendered, and she quickly became a great favourite. Miss Edith Harmer made an attractive and bright Maid Marion, also contributing considerably to the pleasure of the audience by her vivacious acting and tuneful vocalism. She also looks especially chic in her pierrette dress, and the couple were very happily associated. Miss Iris Norman and Miss Winnie Mylne were a couple of dainty and natural Babes, Miss Mylne contributing a pleasing rendering of "Shadowland"; and Miss Gladys Erskine and Miss Vera Sanders were also excellent as the second pair of lovers, Will Scarlet and Margery Daw, Miss Erskine's vocal numbers including a smart sailor song and dance, "Ship, ahoy!" and Miss Sanders scoring unmistakably with a well-rendered "Dutch" song and dance. The comedians of the cast are many, and all are responsible for much mirth-provoking business. The wicked uncle, Baron Hotstuff, has a droll and resourceful representative in Mr. Billy Harman, particularly ludicrous being his love passages with Agnes Snowdrop, the schoolmistress, a part funnily enacted by Mr. Reginald Edwards. "For months and months" and "Is anyone looking for a widow?" are amongst the many humorous songs for which this laughter-provoking twain were responsible, and they also devised and carried out many funny bits of "spoof" business which never failed in their appeal to the delighted audience. Prominent throughout the pantomime were Messrs. Barrett and Knowles, popular music-hall entertainers, as the two "ruffians" I Kill 'em and U Eat 'em, and their efforts in the cause of mirth always "told." Particularly funny was their "combat" in the forest, and their many songs, notably "Don't take me home" and "Has anybody here seen Kelly?" were loudly acclaimed, their success being very pronounced. Billiken, a page, also helped along the fun of the performance as portrayed by Mr. Laurie Aster, his song and dance "I do like to be beside the seaside" being amongst the popular numbers that scored; and Cynicus, a jester attached to Robin Hood, was excellently enacted by Mr. William Pringle, the versatile actor sharing in the success of the attractive "Top of the morning" song and dance with Robin and a little Irish colleen. Mr. John Sandbrook was a robust and characteristic demon Herne, the Hunter, doing full justice to his song "Revenge"; and the fairy Goodheart was ably represented vocally and otherwise by Miss Vera Vizard. The numerous other parts were all capably undertaken, and all contributed to the success of the production. The many terpsichorean evolutions of the Asturias Troupe of Dancers were also of immense value, and were all loudly applauded, notably the "bathing" interlude, and the toe solo of Miss Sylvia Rose was a clever contribution. The numerous and comely chorus sang pleasingly and acted intelligently, and had evidently been well trained, and the scenery and dresses were up to West-End form, and valuable embellishments of a production that should draw the wise men of the East and their women folk and offspring in large numbers for many weeks to come.

We have to chronicle another pantomime success at this handsome theatre, where pantomime is always warmly welcomed. Mr. Fred Karno is responsible for this year's production, which bears comparison with any of its predecessors for lavish mounting and handsome and costly dressing. The story is well and clearly told. The cast is an exceptionally strong one, including charming Miss Mina Green, whose Prince Opulent is what a pantomime prince should be, handsome and dashing, a fine vocalist, and a clever actress; Miss Ada Claremont makes a sweet Princess Prue; Miss Ida Valli as Jack was bright and vivacious, and soon made herself a warm favourite; Miss Maidie Scott is a delightful Jill, dainty and smart; as Tommy and Margery Miss Maudie Francis and Miss Gladys Nelson win all hearts by their charmingly natural performance, the latter giving a particularly clever "Salome" dance, and their rendering of their various numbers gave great pleasure to all present. Miss Elsie Skillings as Siren the Enchantress and Miss Maude Lake as Fairy White Heather are both fine singers and are heard to great advantage in the music allotted to them. Mr. Fred Emney is a richly humorous Dame, and his Mother Hubbard is one of the best acted parts in the production. He has a most amusing and clever partner in Little Fred Zola, whose Father Hubbard is deserving of the very highest praise. Mr. Syd Walker is quietly funny as the Squire of Whare, and in a night or two will doubtless be still funnier; Sam Poluski, jun., is a capital Cat; and the Brothers Obo give a highly amusing rendering of Ripp and Rapp, described as "gentlemen of leisure." Miss Kathleen O'Neill and Miss Amy Burton as Circe and Honey respectively are very attractive; Miss Lottie Stone's troupe of dancers are agile and graceful; the children are cleverly trained; and the chorus is remarkably strong, both in numbers and ability.

The music is arranged, and much of it written, by the clever conductor, Mr. Dudley Powell. Among the many popular numbers rendered during the performance we may especially single out for commendation "I don't care," "Flirt with you," "Don't take me home," "Let's all go down the Strand," "Has anyone seen Kelly?" "Little Miss Snowshoes," "Come over the garden wall," "Doch-an-doris," "I used to sigh for the light of the silvery moon," "Two of a laughing family," "Ship ahoy!" "Months, months, months," "Teddy Bear," "I'm looking for a girl like you," "Somewhere," "Everybody works but father," "Old Jack Frost," "A Girl in Berlin," "There's magic in her smile," and the fairy duet from Lohengrin.

Mr. James Leslie is Mr. Karno's business representative; Mr. W. H. Morgan is the producer; and Mr. Harold Wellesley the stage-manager, assisted by Mr. Louis Wigley. The scenery is very beautiful, and is designed by Mr. E. Grimani; the beautiful dresses designed and executed by Mme. Hinley and Mme. Day; and lastly, but by no means least, genial and popular Mr. Bertram Iles looks after the comfort of patrons with unfailing vigilance and courtesy.

The Fulham Theatre opened the pantomime season on the afternoon of Boxing Day with a house full from the front stalls to the uttermost part of the gallery. Mr. Robert Arthur has enlisted the services of Mr. Bannister Howard to produce this his sixth annual pantomime. The story is our old friend The Forty Thieves, and the author keeps very closely to the original. The first scene depicts a street bazaar in Baghdad, where acquaintance is made with the two chief laughter-makers, Mr. A. G. Spry and Mr. Alfred Passmore, as Mr. and Mrs. Ali Baba of Baghdad. We also see that very important personage Morgiana, charmingly impersonated by Miss Hettie Gale, in a most coquettish Oriental costume. With the appearance of Ganem the love interest gets a good start. Miss Lillie Lassah makes a sprightly and graceful boy as Ganem, and scores frequently with song and dance. The bold bad villain is represented by Abdallah, captain of "the Forty," who finds a handsome and dashing representative in Miss Grace Hampton. In this first scene Ganem and Morgiana have a pretty song, "Kiss, Kiss," and Abdallah sings a rollicking ditty, "Charlie Brown." Scene 2 is an interior—Ali Baba's home—in which ample provision is made for that very enterprising and remarkable quadruped Horace, the donkey, Mr. Ben Loan proving very comical in this capacity. Morgiana her sings a quaint little song on "Tommy," and follows it with some amusing stories about children. Next we get the sad story of the missing Kelly, with full gallery chorus and accompaniment. Into the peaceful abode enter Hassarac and Bassarac (the Passmore Brothers) bent on mischief. The Passmores are smart acrobats, brimful of gags and wheezes, and always keep the fun going. The third scene is a very pretty woodland set, on one side of which the entrance to the Robbers' Cave is depicted. The scene opens with a medley of well-known operatic airs, and is followed by some original and entertaining business by Ali Baba and his family, chiefly on the subject of "work-shyness." Ganem puts in a good song, "Let's all go down the Strand," and with the arrival of Hassarac and Bassarac there begins a lively picnic party, in which huge fun is got from disappearing dishes, and from the entrance of a fearsome spider. At length the Forty Thieves march on, in gorgeous dress and gleaming armour, making a fine stage picture. Abdallah sings a rousing martial song with a chorus, "Soldiers." As the robbers retire the Ali Baba family enter the cave and load up the patient ass with the spoils, not forgetting plentiful allusions to taxes and other topical matters. Scene 4 is Ali Baba's house, rather more ornate than his previous abode. The envious Cassim (Mr. C. Gifford) discovers the secret. The Bartholomew Sisters here contribute some good songs and dances, notably the "Alpine dress" song. Scene 5 is the Robbers' Cave, an elaborate set, with a wealth of colour. Morgiana is brought in by the robbers, and Cassim enters and is caught red-handed. His life is spared, but he is condemned to the awful punishment of having to tell funny stories and getting them capped by others. Miss Rosa Maie, a winsome little exponent of the art of the ballet dancer, here gives a pleasing specimen of her powers. Mr. Cordery also executes his wonderful trap act, appearing and disappearing in the most daring manner. The Queen of the Fairies (Miss Helen Hazel) intercedes for Cassim, and the scene ends very effectively with a final chorus, amid a shower of gold.

The second act begins with a street scene in Baghdad. In this appear the Melody Four, in an extraordinary parody of the Danse des Apaches, and Morgiana has a popular song, "I wish I lived next door to you," and a dance which proved great favourites. Ganem also hits the popular taste with a song, "I must go home to-night," another favourite, and quickly taken up. Mrs. Ali has some good patter and a cleverly devised medley of lines from popular songs. Ali Baba's umbrella, specially designed for occasions when it rains cats and dogs, arouses a roar of laughter. Mr. Spry, to be in the fashion, as he says, has a song after the manner of last year's "Seashells," in which Peter Potter and piccaNili and other things are gloriously mixed up. His interlocutor in the house carried out her part very smartly. Scene 7 is the Courtyard of Ali Baba's house, with the thieves in their jars, all ready. Ganem scores with the song "The Silvery Moon," and Mr. and Mrs. Ali and Ganem get much laughter from a very mad coon song. The Passmore Brothers again find scope for some absurd business, and finally the robbers are duly despatched with "low flash oil." Scene 8 is a street scene, with shops. Mr. and Mrs. Ali make fun of the inevitable interview, and a good topical song "If." The Melody Four then go through a ventriloquial interlude. Scene 9 is the Palace, a fine set, full of life, light, and colour, which does credit to the producer and the scenic artists. With a good rousing chorus and a graceful dance by Rosa Maie, the play comes to an end with all happy in the approved way.

Of the artists engaged Miss Hettie Gale and Miss Lillie Lassah acquit themselves ably. They look well, act with spirit, and are soon established as favourites. Miss Hampton is a fine Abdallah, and carries herself gallantly. Mr. Spry and Mr. Passmore work indefatigably throughout. Mr. Passmore is large and solid and smiling, with a penchant for eccentric head-dresses, while Mr. Spry is slender and persuasive in his methods, and develops his business very cleverly. Both comedians are full of fun, and steer clear of vulgarity. Mr. Gifford has not much to do as Cassim, but fits well into his place. The chorus sing unusually well, with plenty of vigour. The scenery is tasteful and appropriate, and the dresses harmonise well. The music is bright and skilfuly put together, and is led by Mr. Basil Horsfall, the composer. The stage-management is capable, the piece running quite smoothly throughout.

"ALADDIN" AT THE LYRIC, HAMMERSMITH.

Pantomime by Frank Ayrton, Produced on Dec. 27.

On Monday last Mr. Wentworth Croke must indeed have felt a proud and happy man. Never before has the capacity of the Lyric been put to such a strain; crowds large enough to have filled it many times over were turned away at both afternoon and evening performances. We very much doubt also whether such tumultuous applause has before been heard in this house. Always full of life, charming and sparkling throughout, the pantomime went with a "bang" from start to finish. It was a most successful opening, and we feel sure that Mr. Croke will regret the fact that he has only arranged for a four weeks' run here.

The story follows the usual conventional lines, clearly defined and well worked up by the author, Mr. Frank Ayrton. The first scene is the Market Place at Pekin, and here we see a real motor-car, most beautifully decorated and lighted with nearly one hundred electric lights. Aladdin goes through all the troubles he experienced in the old legend, and the play closes with a very pretty interior of the palace. Every scene is an artistic triumph, the first, the fifth (the Magic Cave, which makes the rather small stage look twice as large as it really is), and the last being probably the best.

The long cast is headed by Miss Kittee Rayburn as Aladdin. Last year Miss Rayburn scored such an instantaneous success here that Mr. Croke booked her for this year, and on Monday his policy received a most enthusiastic endorsement. Miss Rayburn's lively acting and tuneful rendering of her songs win for her a great popularity in Hammersmith. Miss Rayburn sang "Charlie Brown," "Meet me where the lanterns glow," "If I had a word to say," and "It's all over with the men," and it would be extremely difficult to say which was the most popular. The reference to the local M.P., Sir William Bull, in the third song fairly brought down the house.

Another great success was scored by Miss Nancy St. John. Miss St. John acts with great charm, and her song "The girl in the clogs and shawl" was one of the successes of the evening. Her duet with Wishee Washee, cleverly and humorously interpreted by Mr. Cecil Clayton, entitled "Pretty little girl from Nowhere," was another popular number. Miss St. John's Princess Badroul was altogether delightful. Mr. Manitto Klitgaard did well as the Emperor of China and used his fine voice with excellent effect in the song "Somewhere the moon is shining," to which additional charm was added by the chorus being sung as an echo by a sweet-voiced child in the auditorium. As So Slo, the Grand Vizier, Mr. Bruce Lindley was good. Mr. Harry Morgan's broad humour as Abanazar added considerably to the enjoyment of the evening, and his song "Let's all go down the Strand" was a decided hit. Carl and Carr as the two Policemen were exceedingly comic. The dear old dame Widow Twankey was invested with a large fund of quiet humour by Mr. Fred W. Graham, who in "Girls, study your cookery book" proved most amusing. Miss Iris Fox as Pekoe was a pert and vivacious second boy, and scored with "Do you want to buy any lavender?" Miss Violet Dupré was good as Ni-See. Miss Dorothy Erskine and Miss May Raymonde as Geni of the the Ring and Slave of the Lamp respectively did all that was required of them well. The special turns provided by Victor's troupe of juveniles, who sang, danced, and imitated music-hall celebrities, and the Nine Follilettes were amongst the most successful of the many pleasing items. The three particularly clever dances by the La Belle Trio also well merited the unstinted applause they received.

Mr. Wentworth Croke is to be heartily congratulated on a completely successful show, and great credit is due to him for the efficient cast he has chosen. Mr. Ashley Richards deserves great praise for his part in composing and selecting the music, and also for the way in which he has trained the chorus. Seldom has such a fine-voiced chorus been presented on any pantomime stage. To the producer, Mr. Thomas Barry, and to the general-manager, Mr. Fred S. Jennings, to whom the smooth working of the show was undoubtedly due, we offer our congratulations. Their hard work has provided excellent results. One last word must be said in praise of the dresses, which were most artistic and pleasing to the eye.

"TOM THUMB" AT THE WEST LONDON.

Pantomime, Produced on Dec. 27.

Jack Valiant .....MISS MABEL LOWE
Tom Thumb .....MISS BERTHA HANBURY
Queen of the Fairies ....MISS WINNIE BROOKS
Sophie Sunlight .....MISS VIOLET THOMAS
Marie Gold .....MISS LILY THOMAS
Susie Shy .....MISS ENID HARCOURT
Lottie Lightfoot .....MISS EVA SYLVESTER
Hans Goldberg .....MR. C. J. FOSTER
Gretchen ..... / Simple Simon } ....MESSRS. MCKIE AND MCKAY
Elvira .....MISS FREDA MURRAY

A two-houses-a-night pantomime is presented by Mr. William Bailey, with full stage sets and bioscopic effects, chorus, ballet, and a transformation scene of singular beauty. The pantomime is written by Mr. Ward Bailey, and begins by showing the exterior of Tom Thumb's home, the Village of Dingley Dell, an effective rustic set. Gretchen emerges from her cottage, and the entry of this sour-visaged dame, and her altercations with Hans Goldberg, Simple Simon (the village softy), and Tom Thumb's six little brothers make the fun fast and furious. Simple Simon accuses Tom Thumb of making game of him, and attempts to strike Tom, an effort which is only defeated by the timely arrival of Jack Valiant, who is quickly followed by Elvira, the village belle. Jack's courting is rudely interrupted by a terrible roar from the ogre, Giant Grim, whose seven-league boots are seen flying over the village house-tops. Jack vows to slay the monster, and departs with his friends, whilst Hans and Gretchen, in talking over the ways and means of keeping their large family of Tom and his six brothers, decide that the only thing to do is to lose them in the woods and leave them to the care of the good fairies. Tom overhears this, and resolves to frustrate the scheme. The screams of Elvira are now heard as she is carried off by the ogre and imprisoned in his castle, from which she can only be rescued by a little child. Tom Thumb merrily undertakes the task, and, with the help of his six brothers, all garbed as Boy Scouts, they effect an entrance into Castle Grim, where Tom steals the ogre's seven-league boots, and thus breaks the power. Finally, in the Realms of Enchantment, Jack Valiant is seen bearing the ogre's head as a trophy, and all ends happily.

As Jack Valiant Miss Mabel Lowe acquits herself gallantly and well. Possessed of an attractive personality and a bearing both comely and sprightly, she quickly becomes the sort of "boy" that the discriminating West Londoners love, and they take her to their hearts accordingly. All her lines are clearly and lucidly given, not the smallest point being missed, and her song "The lantern's glow," which brings down the curtain in the first half, is the gem of the pantomime. Miss Bertha Hanbury is full of life and go as Tom Thumb, and her success is at once assured. Mr. C. J. Foster contrives to present a typical embodiment of the rustic woodcutter, Hans Goldberg. Miss Freda Murray as Elvira sings and dances herself into popularity almost without an effort. Two of her prettiest numbers are "Do you want to buy any Lavender?" and "Drummer boy," both of which are deservedly encored. The onus of providing the fun of the evening falls on the shoulders of those capable comedians McKie and McKay, and, as Gretchen and Simple Simon respectively, they are never at a loss to crack a well-timed joke or perpetrate a wheeze appropriate to the occasion. That pretty and popular ballad "Somewhere" is so well known to the gallery boys that it enables them heartily to assist the Fairy Queen, Miss Winnie Brooks, in its rendering, a fact of which this experienced artist takes the fullest advantage. Special mention must be made of the neatly-tripped measures proffered by the well-trained dancing quartette Misses Violet and Lily Thomas, Enid Harcourt and Eva Sylvester. Allusion has already been made to the charms of the set the Village of Dingley Dell, and equally attractive scenes are the Road to the Forest and the Realms of Enchantment, all of which are noted for their warmth of colour blended with effective lighting, and the greatest credit is due to the stage-manager, Mr. Beresford Whitcomb, for his discerning supervision. The costumes, by John Hyman and Co., are bright and new; the dances, arranged by Miss Lily M. Mallineon, are ably carried out; and the scenery is painted in Mr. John Turner's best vein. The popular airs played by Mr. Ward Bailey's skilful orchestra reflect credit on Mr. Bailey for their arrangement and selection. Mr. William Bailey has our heartiest congratulations on the immediate success of his experiment, for a more cheery two hours' amusement it would be hard to find. In Mr. J. H. Shotter he has a courteous acting-manager, who carefully studies the comfort of all.

Woolwich is well catered for in the matter of Christmas entertainments, and especially is this the case at the newly-redecorated and now handsome and perfectly-equipped Artillery Theatre and Opera House, under the enterprising management of Mr. Jules Richeux. The subject chosen for the pantomime is the always popular one of Robinson Crusoe, and it is produced by the experienced Mr. Edward Marris, who has provided an "annual" that none will cavil at. The scenery and dresses are first-class; there is a large and attractive chorus; many popular songs and melodies are introduced; but the outstanding feature is the fun of the whole show—fun which appeals to both grown-ups and youngsters alike. Particularly appealing to the kiddies are the antics on the island of a couple of quaint quadrupeds which are harnessed to a trap tandem, the grotesque pranks, attitudes, and behaviour generally of these "fiery untamed" steeds, and their persistent terpsichorean efforts compelling continuous laughter. There is also plenty of funny business in the scene Between Decks, for the villainous Will Atkins, the flighty Mrs. Crusoe, and one of her sons, John Willie; and the Under the Sea incidents also make for merriment, particularly the love-making of John Willie and the alluring mermaid, Wavelet. The company is a well-chosen and capable one, every part contributing to the enjoyment evidently derived by the audience on the night of our visit. The hero, Robinson, has a dashing and handsome representative in Miss Maisie Jerrard, who looks particularly well in the costume she dons after she has been wrecked on the island. In this scene she won loud applause for her rendering, with banjo accompaniment, of "I used to sigh for the silvery moon," the chorus of Amazonian Guards largely contributing to the attractiveness of the popular number; and her performance throughout was an admirable one. Crusoe's sweetheart, the merry Polly Hopkins, has a bright and vivacious portrayal from Miss Mamie Iris; and the mermaid Wavelet, who is "longing for someone to love her," and is not particular whether it is the gallant Robinson or his brother John Willie, was charmingly enacted by Miss Nancy Taylor, who delivered her 'nes with praiseworthy distinctness, and also ved herself a vocalist of no mean ability by rendering of a duet with Father Neptune, the monarch of the deep being quite satisfactorily undertaken by Mr. Helier Le Maistre, whose fine voice was admirably employed in the part. Mr. Ernest Leon as the faithful servant, Friday, scored in the number "There goes Jack Frost," and a well-executed dance; and the terrible King Stewemandeatem was played with a ferocity one would expect from such a cannibal by Mr. Herbert Pearce, his song "Far away in Yokohama" evoking decided approval. The comedians divide the honours pretty evenly between them, Mr. Jimmy Danvers making a very grotesque and diverting Mrs. Crusoe, Mr. Jack Bland giving a droll portrayal of John Willie; and Mr. Harry C. Robinson being appropriately mock-melodramatic as Will Atkins. The trio proved themselves very resourceful in the invention of comic business, and speedily became great favourites. The dog Scraps was a very knowing and agile canine as impersonated by Mr. Archie Herbert, and the other parts were all satisfactorily filled. Appreciated specialities were given by Mr. Jimmy Danvers, assisted by Miss Maisie Jerrard ("Paderewski Up-to-date"), the Sisters May, Archie Herbert (the man monkey), George Mumford and Andy Marsh (leg-twisting comedians), and Little Levite and company in the "Tandem," to which reference has been made. By desire, a "real old-fashioned harlequinade" is presented at every performance.

For his fourteenth annual pantomime at the Stratford Borough Theatre Mr. Fred Fredericks has chosen the ever-popular Cinderella, which was produced at a "record" matinée on Boxing Day. The "book" is from the pen of that fertile playwright who elects to be known as "Iam Query," and follows the familiar fairy tale quite closely. Fifteen scenes embellish the story, many of which are exceedingly beautiful and picturesque. The Forest Glade, a scene of sparkling colour and animation; the Fairy Boudoir, wherein takes place Cinderella's preparation for the ball, and in which some clever simultaneous dancing is introduced in front of a huge "magic mirror"; Cupid's Bower, with Cinderella's gorgeous, electrically-lit chariot; and the State Ballroom, with its display of lovely dresses, are the most prominent scenes, and they evoke unstinted admiration. The pantomime proper concludes with Cinderella's betrothal to Prince Charming in the Royal Conservatory scene, and in lieu of the customary transformation a novelty is introduced in Maurin's Fairy Fountain Spectacle, which wins warm eulogiums. A further novelty supersedes the old-fashioned harlequinade in Horace and Olga's table troupe of cats and dogs, the intelligence displayed by these clever domestic animals pleasing the youngsters mightily.

In the title-rôle is Miss Ethel Ward, readily remembered as last year's Aladdin. Cinderella is daintiness itself, and prettily pathetic in Miss Ward's hands, and, although as yet no special numbers have been allotted to her, she shares in the success of several duets. Miss Madoline Rees is a handsome and dashing Prince Charming, who makes so gallant a lover, and she has some well-chosen songs. The ear-haunting refrain of "Molly O'Morgan," quickly taken up by the audience, is heard long after the singer has departed; "A girl in Berlin" is another prime favourite; and the popular "I've been out with Charlie Brown" wins plenty of applause. Miss May Garstang as Dandini is an outstanding success, her physical activity, distinct enunciation, and vivacity enabling her to do full justice to the part. Her rendering of "I used to sigh for the silvery moon" creates quite a furore, and "I want you to come to Madeira with me" will, if possible, enhance its popularity in her hands. Mr. Barney Armstrong as the Baron has the lion's share among the comedians. His is rather an unorthodox and nondescript Baron, but a none the less droll and entertaining personage, indefatigable in his efforts to amuse and always successful. His songs go wonderfully well, "Has anyone here seen Kelly?" being an instantaneous success, whilst Mr. Armstrong also scores heavily, with "Do take me home" and "Harry Lauder on the brain." In each of his numbers—and practically throughout—the Baron has an inquisitive, grotesquely attired, diminutive confederate, called Kelly, and this character, as impersonated by Jimmie Steele, is highly mirth-provoking, though rather too obtrusive at present. The Ugly Sisters, Thisbe and Clorinda, have capital exponents in Mr. Sidney Young and Mr. Fred Lincoln, the latter having played Dame here more than once before, and consequently being a local favourite. He also wins much success vocally, "I've got a little job to go to" being probably his most popular item. Mr. Harry Rogerson is a bustling and alert Page, and his speciality acts, "A One-Man Melodrama" and a three-legged "Manxman" ditty, are received with hearty applause. Miss Alys Eden is entirely successful as the Baroness; and others who lend valuable aid include Miss Bessie Herbert (Lord Chamberlain), Miss Ethel Verdi (First Equerry), Miss Flora Ernest (Second Equerry), Miss Agnes Ellis (Clarice), the Unites as the Horse and Servants, and Jeddah as a juggling Cat. The Good and Bad Fairies are appropriately played by Miss Emilie Holt (Witch Spiteful), Miss May Primrose (Fairy of the Slipper), and Miss Mabel Gordon (Fairy Godmother). The eight prepossessing damsels who comprise the Stella troupe of dancers contribute some very welcome numbers; and the Unites supply a speciality tumbling and bouncing act which is keenly appreciated.

The scenery is by Mr. George Dodson and Mr. Arthur Hillyard; properties by Mr. F. F. French; mechanical effects by Mr. George Saunders; and electrical effects by Mr. W. Woodward. Mr. Ben Barrow (the resident musical-director) is responsible for the refined and melodious music, which is quite a special feature of the production; and a word of congratulation must be passed to Mr. Will L. Clement, who stage-manages in exemplary style. Mr. Fred Fredericks should be fully satisfied with the splendid reception accorded his latest "annual" at the initial performance, which augurs well for the success of Cinderella. With the experienced and popular Mr. Frank Rothsay "in front," the patrons of the commodious Borough Theatre will find their comfort well studied.

"ALADDIN" AT THE THEATRE ROYAL, WOOLWICH.

On Boxing Day, Dec. 27, the Pantomime, Written by Joseph L. Barry.

Abanazar	Mr. Bert Harrow
Radia	Miss Margaret Story Gofton
Lumino	Miss Eileen Cross
Nanti Oof	Mr. Leslie Fane
Wun Lung	Mr. Chas. A. James
Aladdin	Miss Amy Bellwood
Widow Twankey	Mr. Happy Attwood
Prince Pekoe	Miss Jennie Hallworth
Princess Badroulbadour	Miss Beatrice Harris
Bossi and Wrong Un	Messrs. Bernard and Weston
Wishee Washee	Mr. Bert Rayburn
Saucee	Miss Hilda Zingari
Lardi Doo	Miss Marian Walker

Mr. Samuel Barnard may take full credit for having provided, through the medium of Fred Granville's Productions, Ltd., a pantomime that has in every respect met with the emphatic approval of the patrons of the large and handsome theatre of which he is the popular proprietor. The famous story of "Aladdin and the Wonderful Lamp" is not only brilliantly illustrated by a series of picturesque scenes, but there are numerous specialities introduced which, if they have little or no connection with the ancient Eastern tale, serve the more important purpose of adding considerably to the enjoyment of the audience. The hero in his travels and various exciting adventures is accompanied by some whimsical companions, who supply that comic relief without which no pantomime story is complete. Though Abanazar is described as a "malevolent magician" and "a black-hearted wizard," he is a villain who does very little real harm after all, and as he is always amusing his misdeeds are readily forgiven. It is true that he, a rank coward himself, induces Aladdin to encounter the unknown perils of the magic cave in order to obtain possession of the wonderful lamp, but even on this occasion his purpose is defeated by the astute youth.

This important character is played by Miss Beatrice Harris, whose many personal attractions quite easily account for Aladdin falling in love with her at first sight. Miss Harris sings "A tiny little coon" and other songs with much charm of manner, and she is also a graceful dancer, successfully emulating the skilful accomplishments of leaders of the ballet. Miss Amy Bellwood is a sprightly Aladdin; indeed, a better representation of the hero of the story could not be wished for. Amongst Miss Bellwood's most telling ditties is "I can't keep away from the girls," which is received with much applause. Abanazar is cleverly embodied by Mr. Bert Harrow, a capital pantomime comedian of unlimited resources in the way of providing abundance of fun. His catch phrase, "You are a-carrying on" is invariably most effectively employed, and his version of "Mary had a little lamb," with its laughable variations is one of the hits of the pantomime. He and Miss Marian Walker (Lardi Doo) in the seaside scena, "On the Prom.," are excellent in their burlesque representation of a masher with a comic moustache and a merry miss who meet upon the promenade and indulge in pleasantries. Mr. Leslie Fane does well as Nanti Oof, the impecunious Emperor of China, whose Vizier, Wun Lung, is ably embodied by Mr. Chas. A. James. As the Widow Twankey, the mother of Aladdin, Mr. Happy Attwood plays the part with a quiet unctuous humour that is extremely effective. Decidedly funny without being vulgar is Mr. Attwood's Dame, and his catch phrase, "It can't be done," will no doubt be a favourite saying with the youths of Woolwich for some time to come. Bernard and Weston as Bossi and Wrong Un, members of the Pekin police force, are very prominent in the scheme of amusement, and take a large share in the task of providing the fun and frolic. They speedily become warm favourites with the audience, and well deserve the cordial reception which is given them. One of their most amusing devices is to change their headgear at every available opportunity, and their well-rendered duets are also deserving of mention. Mr. Bert Rayburn is good as Wishee Washee, laundry boy to Mrs. Twankey, and scores with the quaintly sung ditty, "Hi tidley hi tidley hi," in imitation of Mr. Sam Mayo's method. Miss Jennie Hallworth is an appropriately pert Prince Pekoe, and her songs, "Beside the sea" and "I must go home to-night," are greeted with warm applause. Miss Marian Walker makes excellent use of her opportunities as Lardi Doo, the Prince's particular pal; and Miss Hilda Zangari is well suited as Saucee, maid to the Princess. Miss Margaret Story Gofton is an admirable representative of Radia, the lady of the Magic Lamp; and Miss Eileen Cross is pleasing as Lumino, her maid of honour. Some charming dancing is given by the Five Zingaris, and the chorus is well up to its work.

The principal scenes include Abanazar's (Black) Art Gallery, the Exterior and Interior of the Magic Cave, and Aladdin's Palace, in which the spectacular efforts are greatly admired. Mr. Dan Barnard as manager lends valuable assistance in front of the house.

THE DRAMA IN PARIS.

"UN CŒUR D'HOMME."

Play, in Four Acts, by Mme. Sarah-Bernhardt, Produced at the Théâtre des Arts, on Dec. 22.

Jeanne Valréal / Ninon	Mlle. Blanche Dufrene
Sabine	Mlle. Emmy Lynn
Mme. de Gerfaut	Mlle. Jane Méa
Berthe Laurino	Mlle. Seylor
Mme. Dubois d'Augeville	Mlle. Boulanger
Vauxienne	Mlle. Pascal
Paul Sarnois	M. Henry Rousselle
Jules Pigru	M. J. Normand
Timur Laurino	M. Deneubourg
De Gerfaut	M. Belou
Pierre Fourié	M. Lagache
Prince Darnidoff	M. Nirman

PARIS, Thursday, Dec. 23.—Truth compels me to say that the production of a play by Mme. Sarah-Bernhardt did not cause the slightest excitement in Paris. The correspondents of the foreign papers here tried to magnify it into a big affair, but we Parisians took no notice whatever of it. We love and admire our National Sarah, but we have long given up being surprised at anything she does. We have seen landscapes, supposed to have been painted by her. We have been shown sculpture whereon her name was engraved. We have read articles bearing her signature. But we are a polite people. We never made any indiscreet inquiries as to the origin of these works of art, and, as far as criticising these productions, such a thing never entered into anybody's head. Sarah is above criticism! I, therefore, will only describe the plot of her new play. According to the authoress, man is as fickle as woman, whose reputation for fickleness has long been established. Paul Sarnois, the hero in the play, is a young dramatic author. He falls in love with Sabine, a beautiful girl, he marries her, and, after three years of married life is tired of her. By way of diversion he starts making love to Jeanne de Valréal, Sabine's friend, fifteen years older than he; and as Jeanne repulses him he seeks consolation with the beautiful Ninon, a flighty actress, because this actress somewhat resembles Jeanne. The latter then decides to become Paul's mistress, hoping that by doing so he will tire of her and return to his wife. Her scheme proves most successful. Sabine, knowing that her husband is unfaithful to her (although ignoring with whom), turns her back on him, with the result that Paul falls in love with her anew. Jeanne happens to overhear a conversation between Sabine and her husband. Paul is pleading for her love, whilst Sabine demands the name of the woman for whom she has been betrayed. This name Paul refuses to disclose, whereupon Sabine leaves the room in a huff, vowing that she will find it out for herself. She then suspects Jeanne, who, in a pathetic tone confesses that it was all done "for the best," a theory which makes Sabine laugh. Sabine refuses to pardon Jeanne, who, in wild despair, rushes from the room, throws herself out of the window, thus putting an end to her life and to the play. The work was nicely acted, especially by Mlle. Blanche Dufréne, who really did wonders with this difficult and strange rôle. Mlle. Méa also proved very satisfactory.

"La Massiere," by M. Jules Lemaitre, has been successfully revived at the Porte-Saint-Martin, with M. Guitry in his old rôle when the work was launched at the Renaissance in 1905.

The dispute between M. Berstein and MM. Hertz and Coquelin in connection with the withdrawal of La Griffe whilst it was still drawing crowded houses, has been arranged to M. Berstein's satisfaction.

"MADAME MARGOT."

Play, in Five Acts, by MM. Emile Moreau and Charles Clairville, Produced at Réjane's on Dec. 23.

Mme. Margot	Mme. Réjane
Mme. d'Entragues	Mme. Munte
Marie de Médicis	Mlle. Avril
Mme. de Monglat	Mlle. Guertet
Mlle. du Tillet	Mlle. Reinhardt
Henri IV.	M. Garry
Cotton	M. Signoret
Concini	M. Castillan
Bellegarde	M. Chautard
Comte d'Auvergne	M. Monteaux
Sully	M. Varennes
Zamet	M. Barre

(From our own correspondent.)

PARIS, Thursday, Dec. 30.—One of the collaborators in the above play—M. Emile Moreau—is part author of one of Mme. Réjane's greatest successes, Madame Sans-Gêne; but it is not probable that Madame Margot will have such a phenomenal run as the former work. The heroine is no other than Henri IV.'s wife, Marguerite de Valois, known as "La Reine Margot," or simply "Margot." Margot consents to a divorce from Henri IV. in order that her lord may marry Marie de Médicis, because His Majesty is up to his ears in debt and Marie is very rich. Besides, the King needs funds for the advancement of France, and, therefore, Margot's action is, in a way, patriotic. But Margot still loves the King, and visits him at the Louvre, where she finds her niece, Marie de Médicis, in a violent dispute with Mme. d'Entragues, the King's mistress, by whom he has two children. Henri IV. is very angry with his mistress, whom he orders to respect the Queen or leave the palace. Henriette d'Entragues vows vengeance, and, with the help of a Jesuit priest, plots the death of the King and the proclamation of her son Gaston as Dauphin. But her little son has overheard the plot, and reconstructs it in play for the amusement of the other royal children in the nursery. Mme. Margot happens to watch the children at play, and, questioning the boy, is told by him that he heard his uncle and some other members of the Court talking about this in his mother's room. Margot turns to Bellegarde, a faithful follower of the King, and asks his aid. The next morning the plot is discovered, and the would-be assassins are thrown into prison. The play is very well written, but a little dull. Moreover, it gave Mme. Réjane not much scope for the display of her talent. The work, however, was well acted and beautifully mounted.

"LE DANSEUR INCONNU."

Comedy, in Three Acts, by M. Tristan Bernard, Produced at the Athénée on Dec. 29.

Berthe	Mlle. Alice Nory
Louise	Mlle. Goldstein
Mme. Tombelle	Mlle. Bussy
Léontine	Mlle. de Sivry
Jeanne	Mlle Creuze
Mme. Girant	Mlle. Ael
Henri Calvel	M. Andre Brule
Gauthier	M. Krauss
Herbert	M. Lefaur
Balthazard	M. Cazalis
Thibaudel	M. Callet

Le Danseur Inconnu belongs to the very light comedy order of plays; but, with a little more development, it would have taken a firmer hold of the public. As it now stands, the writing is full of quaint paradoxes and philosophy. The work is delicately humorous, but the plot is virtually told in the first two acts, leaving the third to wind up in a somewhat commonplace manner. Henri Calvel, an impecunious youth of good family, gains access to a wedding party given at an hotel. He neither knows the family of the bride nor the bridegroom, but starts a conversation with a pretty girl—to whom he has not been introduced—and falls in love with her. He is discovered by his friend Balthazard, a man living on his wits, who happens to be the guiding spirit in the household of the girl in question, a family composed of Berthe and her father, a rich landowner. Balthazard then conceives the plan of representing Henri as a wealthy man and marrying him to Berthe, with the understanding that Henri signs two drafts of one thousand pounds each, which Balthazard will discount as soon as the marriage is announced. Henri agrees. The young couple are formally introduced, and Berthe's father invites Henri to his house. In the second act we witness Henri's discomfiture on being accepted as a fiancée, and his ultimate decision to acknowledge the deception he has practised on the girl he loves. He writes a letter to Berthe's father, telling him he has neither money nor position, whereupon the girl leaves the room crying. In the last act Henri has found employment at a furniture dealer's, and here his ex-fiancée comes to make some purchases for her new home, as she will be shortly married. Henri and Berthe meet, and their love outweighs all questions of money or honour. As in La Petite Chocolatière, Berthe, the spoilt child, obtains her father's consent to the marriage in the twinkling of an eye, and the curtain falls. M. Tristan Bernard is a very witty and charming writer. The public laughed at all his jokes, but a little more backbone and a little less commonplace dénouement would have been more satisfactory. Mlle. Alice Nory was a graceful Berthe; M. Brûlé kept the rôle of Henri well under control; and M. Cazalis as Balthazard, and an efficient company, rendered valuable service.

The incident of the threatened strike of the ballet dancers at the Opéra has been misrepresented in the papers on your side of the water. This is what occurred: The male dancers, after conferring with the other trade unionists employed at the Opéra—including the chorus, orchestra, scene-shifters, and electricians—handed the managers an ultimatum in the middle of the performance, stating that unless they received increased salaries and modifications of the conditions of their work they would immediately go on strike. At the same moment members of the other unions represented at the Opéra presented a collective letter, in which they affirmed their solidarity with the ballet, and demanded the recognition of the dancers' Trade Union. After an animated discussion with the delegates, the managers promised to receive the representatives of the dancers and discuss their grievances. The dancers then consented to leave their dressing-boxes, and the curtain was rung up for Coppelia, after an entr'acte which had lasted half an hour. The dancers who threatened to strike have the support of the Fédération du Spectacle, which consists of ten thousand members. As regards pay, male dancers at the Opéra receive from £60 to £70 a year. They ask that these amounts be raised respectively to £112 and £120, on the ground that their work at the Opéra has increased so much that they are no longer able to add to their incomes by taking private pupils. MM. Messager and Broussan have now had an interview with the delegates of the Ballet Dancers' Union. The claims advanced by the latter were examined in detail, and several of the dancers' grievances were admitted to be justified. The management have pledged themselves to remedy the grievances complained of, and to let their staff know the steps they intend to take to remedy the present state of things.

THE QUEEN'S THEATRE.

Alterations and improvements in The House Opposite and the provision of a new curtain-raiser make the programme at the Queen's a remarkably strong and attractive one. One character—that of the child Sybil—has entirely vanished, and with the episodes more closely contrived and the dialogue rendered more terse and connected the play becomes thoroughly engrossing. Mr. H. B. Irving has perfected his performance of the libidinous Richard Cardyne, an enigmatical character, who revels in his iniquities, acting throughout with an ease and sangfroid that veil the difficulties of the part. Artistic indeed is the way in which the clever young actor allows the better nature of the cynic gradually to arise when the voice of conscience, inspired by his little "code of morality," speaks out; and Mr. Irving's impersonation retains a firm hold on the audience. Miss Eva Moore in her clever portrayal of Mrs. Rivers again wins admiration, the anguish of the woman who stands on the threshold of disgrace being vividly depicted. Miss Muriel Beaumont makes a singularly fascinating character of Mrs. Calthorpe, and the Lady's Maid of Miss Dora Barton remains a finished exposition. The difficult character of the Right-Hon. Henry Rivers is still sustained with unerring judgment by Mr. Herbert Waring, who maintains a very effective impassiveness. Although Rivers' attitude towards his erring and self-confessed wife is still by no means clear, there is a reassuring pat on the shoulder and an appreciative smile on Mrs. Rivers' face that seem to indicate that all is forgiven.

The new playlet, produced "by arrangement with Mr. Frank Richardson," is an "Episode of the Terror," taken from the story of Honoré de Balzac, and is entitled

"FOR THE SOUL OF THE KING."

The Stranger	Mr. H. B. Irving
The Abbé de Mayral	Mr. Henry Vibart
Mlle. de Langeais	Miss Ruth Maitland
Mlle. Michalet	Miss Dora Barton

The new piece is picturesque rather than dramatic, time being expended in creating an atmosphere of mystery that serves only to overpower the real interest. It is, however, well, and even poetically, written, and contains several poignantly effective moments. To a house in the Faubourg St. Martin, Paris, where two nuns and a priest have sought refuge in the Reign of Terror, comes a crimson-coated individual, who has terrified one of the inmates by following her about for days. He is, however, no enemy, but desires to beg a favour. It is that the priest shall say a Mass for the repose of the soul of the King, who has just been guillotined. The stranger is sure it was the King, for he was close to the victim when the knife fell. He noted the rush of the crowd for relics of the dead, but they are the perquisites of the executioner, and none but he may touch them. The man is evidently deeply moved, and seems indeed to need the ministrations of the Church more than the martyred monarch. The priest attempts in vain to get his visitor to disclose his identity, and it is not until he hands him a handkerchief dipped in the royal blood that he realises that he is no other than the headsman. The room is prepared for the ceremony and the priest, stoled and vested, takes his place at the altar as the stranger leaves. An apotheosis gives a view of the guillotine with the King engaged in prayer and the headsman standing grimly by.

Mr Irving's personality dominated the piece, and his performance was both startling and affecting. His suggestion of the remorse which afflicts the man of blood who has been instrumental in depriving the King of his life was intensely real, and the agony of mind which the headsman undergoes was eloquently expressed. Mr. Henry Vibart was a calm and venerable priest, delivering his lines in well-measured tones. Miss Dora Barton thoroughly indicated the terror which the presence of The Stranger inspired in the breast of the nun, and her more daring sister was played with power and effect by Miss Ruth Maitland. Mr. Irving had repeatedly to appear at the conclusion in acknowledgment of enthusiastic calls.

Mr. Evelyn A'dell's company in The Old Home played to a packed house on Monday at the Theatre Royal, Loughborough. Mr. J. H. Clyndes as Daddy Dean filled the rôle of the Fisherman in an excellent manner; Miss Nina Blake-Adams as Hazel Dean played with great power; Mr. Evelyn A'dell made a capital clergyman; Sam Adams was well played by Mr. J. Edward Swinton; and Mr. Horatio Sinclair made a realistic villain of Lord Avondale. The scenery was excellent, and the incidental music very tuneful.

As a matter of fact, the "bad girl of the family" is more sinned against than sinning, and after following her thrilling adventures through four acts and eighteen scenes the packed audiences found at the Aldwych twice daily this week have gone home absolutely head over heels in love with the Bad Girl as played so delightfully by Miss Violet Englefield. Mr. Melville stretches points to get good curtains, and even situations, but he knows his audiences, and his fare satisfies them from start to finish. It does more—it gluts them. What matters it that some of the situations are on the verge of the impossible: the audiences like them—so why argue? The weirdest things happen, and such are the vicissitudes, the vagaries, the happenings, and the melodramatics of this four-act drama that no sober pen can describe the story. The drama has one outstanding scene, reckoned by the standard of sensationalism—the Bedroom scene—in which a number of shop girls who "live in" attack and utterly rout a trio of policemen with pillows, bolsters, and what not.

The story, briefly repeated, shows how Bess Moore falls a victim to the wiles of Harry Gordon, the manager of a large draper's establishment. Gordon refuses to marry Bess because he wishes to wed Gladys, the pretty daughter of Lord Erskine, who has got into the clutches of old Gordon, a Jew moneylender, and is compelled to consent to sacrifice his child to save his estates. Gladys has a lover, Lieut. Richard Marsh, who is unacceptable by Lord Erskine as a husband for Gladys. Dick has to rejoin his ship for foreign service, and Gladys is kept a close prisoner at Erskine Hall, her father being determined that she shall marry Gordon. Worn out by her father's persistent commands, Gladys at length consents to marry young Gordon, and is already dressed for the ceremony when Bess, who has escaped from custody, appears armed with a wedding dress exactly like the one in which Gladys is arrayed. A hurried consultation is made, the changes are ingeniously rung, the bride goes to the altar, and after the service is completed Gordon finds that it is Bess, and not Gladys, that he has espoused. Having received news of Gladys' peril, Dick leaves his ship and forces his way into the hall on the wedding night, which is also selected by a burglar named Jerry Holmes for a nefarious expedition. Dick and Lord Erskine meet, and the latter tries to shoot Dick, who manages, however, to get hold of the weapon, and in the struggle Lord Erskine falls mortally wounded. Dick is charged with the crime, and sentenced to death. He is visited in the condemned cell at Dartmoor by Gladys, and the prison chaplain appearing opportunely on the scene, the convict and his betrothed are made man and wife. Subsequently Dick and Jerry make a daring escape from prison in a provision cart, and secure the train to London, where Dick makes his way to Gladys' home. Gordon call in the authorities, and Jerry confesses that it was his revolver that killed Lord Erskine, and is thereupon stabbed by Gordon, who is taken away by the police.

Miss Violet Englefield (the famous burlesque artist from Wyndham's and Apollo Theatres, as Bess, "the bad girl of the family," has made a thorough study of her part. She is a splendid actress, ever on the alert for points, and she gets to the hearts of the people in a way there is no disputing. Miss Marie Wright as the leading comedienne is pert, pretty, and causes no end of merriment. Mr. D'Arcy Kelway is very good as Jerry Holmes. Mr. Guy Hastings as Lieut. Dick Marsh is a dashing naval officer, who looks and acts the part. His forceful acting may be in the conventional style that is expected of the hero, but he gives the audience what they want, and consequently they never really have enough of him. A first-class villain, Mr. H. Lane Bayliff as Harry Gordon surely must have been delighted with the thoroughness of the way in which he was hissed. Very good, too, was Mr. Herbert Landeck, an impersonator of Jewish character, as Barney Gordon. Mr. Pat Waddock is a good comedian of the pantomime order, and his Sammy Snozzle was well played, and delighted everyone. Miss Maud Linden as Gladys Erskine (the heroine) and Miss Marie Clavering as Honour Moore both merit commendation for contributing excellent parts.

THE popular musical comedy, The Gay Gordons, is drawing crowded houses to the King's Theatre, Seacombe, this week. The costumes and scenery are excellent, and the music sparkling and tuneful. The hero, Angus Graeme, is capitally portrayed by Mr. William Green; and Peggy Quainton finds a charming exponent in Miss Clarice Lockstone. Mr. Edward Carlton causes plenty of fun by his smart playing of Nervy Nat; and Mr. W. H. Desmond does some excellent work as Edmund Siddons. Miss Mabel Dent is seen and heard to great advantage as Victoria Siddons; and Miss Ada Mellon does well as Janet McLeod. Miss Florrie Groves as Charlotte Siddons and Miss Teesa D'Alberti as Mary McLeod, are both good in their respective parts. Lady Graeme is ably depicted by Miss Marie Selma; and Lady Millicent Graeme is well looked after by Miss Violet Morene.

THE Royal County Theatre, Bedford, reopened on Christmas Eve with the pantomime Bo-Peep, presented by Mr. Graham Falcon's company, and during the week the excellent production has drawn crowded houses. Miss Flora Morris, an accomplished artist, is a popular Bo-Peep; Miss Ruby Carter is a charming Prince Pastorelle; Baron Budget, in the person of Mr. F. G. Royde, is the centre of great interest; Miss Dorothy Douglas as the fairy, Sylvania, sings pleasingly, and acts with much grace; Mr. Jack Selway as Simon causes endless amusement; and he has an able partner in Mr. Harry Howe as Dame Durden. Miss Mabel Kessler as Boy Blue makes a hit with each of her songs, especially with "Kelly"; Bi Bash (Mr. Ernest Hans) and Chris. Crash (Mr. Will Lux) are two clever knockabout turns; and Mr. Gavin Wood as Lemuel Lea sings several songs in a rich baritone. The last scene of the pantomime is a glittering vision of azure and silver, with cunningly disposed electric bulbs, while the dresses are a triumph of Mrs. Graham Falcon's skill. Among the specialities in the final scene is a graceful dance, "Pour Eveiller Pierrette," by Miss Rosie P. Stevens.

DEATH OF ERNEST CARPENTER.

The saddest event of the theatrical year took place last week, just as The Era had gone to press, in the death of Mr. Ernest Carpenter, the well-known and greatly respected manager of the Lyceum. Taking place as it did at the zenith of Mr. Carpenter's career, and just when a goodly run of successes had made a feature yet once again of Lyceum first nights, the news came as a great shock to all who knew him.

By a tragic coincidence Mr. Carpenter was operated on for hernia on the night of the production of his successful pantomime Aladdin. Nobody thought the result was likely to be of a really grave nature. Unhappily, any hopes of a favourable issue were doomed to disappointment, for just as the first performance of his pantomime was drawing to a close Mr. Carpenter passed away.

Little Marjory Carpenter, his talented daughter, had danced her way delightfully through the Lyceum pantomime on Thursday night, had been called before the curtain time after time, and had scored for the second year in succession a very striking success. Then she heard the huge audience shout "Speech! Speech! Speech!" and had watched while the crowds in the auditorium waited for her father to come forward and make a few remarks of thanks. Instead, she saw Mr. Major Jones, the stage-manager, come forward, and heard him say: "I am sorry, but Mr. Carpenter is not in the house." So little Marjory, brimming over with childish pride at the applause which she had received, went home to tell her father how the people had called for him.

Mr. Carpenter was just forty-one. He was only sixteen when he made his first appearance as an actor, and although in this particular field he held his own fairly well, it was as a manager and producer he was eventually destined to succeed. His early ventures were all marked by shrewd business instinct and far-seeing prudence. In 1893 he made a start in management at Darwen, in Lancashire, and a twelvemonth later took over the Royal at Bristol. Subsequently he carried his theatrical enterprise into Swindon and Brighton, always showing a businesslike readiness to secure a profit when the opportunity occurred. His connection with the Lyceum Theatre began in March, 1907. His partner was Mr. H. R. Smith, and together they revived the popularity of the Lyceum with melodrama. Mr. Carpenter was an untiring worker, and was responsible for the productions, including Thursday night's pantomime. It may be safely said that no single manager has ever made so abiding an impress upon London's theatrical world in so amazingly short a time as Mr. Carpenter. To watch him at rehearsal was to recognise to what an extent he himself was the source of the wonderful vitality of the Lyceum's curiously varied productions. Patient with others, but unsparing of himself, he seemed positively to pump energy into his actors. To use his own phrase, he made them "throw themselves into it." He knew personally every detail of theatrical production, and during his management the Lyceum has made all its own costumes and properties. He had himself acted every kind of part, from Shakespeare downwards. It was largely due to his public-spirited enterprise and courtesy in the immediate offer of the Lyceum Theatre that the great meeting for the promotion of a National Theatre came to be held last year, with such substantial results.

Personally, Mr. Carpenter was one of the most genial and courteous of men. His manner at rehearsal was quiet and persuasive, but he invariably contrived to get full value out of every line and every situation. In less than three years Mr. Carpenter made the Lyceum the playhouse of the masses. Opening with Her Love Against the World, he produced The Midnight Wedding, a popular adaptation of The Christian, The Prince and the Beggar Maid, Pete, The Prisoner of the Bastille and The Proud Prince, among other good honest melodramas. More than that, he popularised Shakespeare, producing Romeo and Juliet, and even Hamlet. Aladdin was his third pantomime at the Lyceum. Mr. Carpenter claimed to be the first man to put Mr. Wilkie Bard at the top of the tree. This occurred at Hanley, when Mr. Wilkie Bard and his wife were paid £8 a week.

Outside his theatre work, Mr. Carpenter has for some years past taken a great interest in municipal affairs. He was a member of the first Town Council at Swindon, and two years ago he was elected to a seat on the Town Council of Brighton. He was mainly instrumental in organising the Municipal Orchestra which has proved such a boon to the town. Mr. Carpenter was an owner of racehorses on a small scale. Under the "nom de plume" of "Mr E. Lythe," he owned a few moderate animals, which were trained by J. East, at Ilsley. The only one to carry the scarlet, silver stars, scarlet sleeves, and cap successfully last season was Cassius, who won the two-year-old sprint selling at the Newbury spring meeting.

It may be of interest to recall a chat The Era representative had with Mr. Carpenter at the time The Midnight Wedding was produced. "There would be less talk about the decadence of the drama if there had been of late years a greater supply of practical producers," he said. "You cannot get that strong dramatic effect which grips an audience unless you have the capable producer to supervise everybody and everything. One sees dramatic scenes so often played in a disjointed manner. You will realise that a producer is in the position of a general of an army. He must not bow down to the individual likes and dislikes of the various units he is supposed to control. The fact that a certain artist thinks that such-and-such a scene should be played in such-and-such a way does not concern me in the slightest, for I recognise that it is my business to consider the tout ensemble, and that alone." Mr. Carpenter aimed at high things. He realised that management required constant and close attention if it was to prove profitable, and that the man who tried to keep too large a number of theatrical strings in his hand was bound, sooner or later, to let some of them slip through his fingers.

On Friday last the Lyceum was closed, and on Sunday the remains of Ernest Carpenter were interred in Harefield Churchyard, situate in the old-world Middlesex village of the same name and midway between Dunham and Northwood. The beautiful floral tributes were so numerous that special cars were provided on which to bear them to the Lyceum manager's last resting place. Among those who sent wreaths were Mr. Carpenter's mother and brother; Mr. Henry Smith, managing-director; Mr. W. F. Crowe, business-manager; Mr. and Mrs. Sullivan Broone; Mr. and Mrs. Major Jones; Mr. Ben Cart, general-manager, the Grand, Brighton; Mr. and Mrs. George Chapman, Bristol; Mr. and Mrs. Horace Livermore, of the People's Palace, Bristol; Mr. and Mrs. Alty, and staff of the Theatre Royal, Bristol; the Robinson Crusoe company, Bristol Theatre Royal; the Lyceum staff; Mlle. Rosa, ballet mistress; the Theatrical Managers' Association; Miss Dorothy Craske; the Lyceum Aladdin; the Lyceum chorus, ballet, and children; and Mr. Charles Pond.

Many well-known theatrical people were present at the graveside, among the number being the deceased gentleman's partner, Mr. Henry R. Smith, Mr. Fred Carpenter, Mr. Charles Lord, Mr. S. Major Jones, Dr. Richmond, Mr. Alfred Smith, Mr. Stanley Lindwall, Mr. W. F. Crowe, Miss Dorothy Craske, Miss Florence Smithers, Miss Eva Kelland, Miss Marie Free, Miss Victoria Sievers, Mlle. Rosa, Mrs. Martell, Mr. Scott Barrie, Mr. Arthur Poole, Mr. Frank Hemming, Mr. Archie Royer, Mr. Harry Gardner, Mr. Eric Mayne, Mr. Frederick Ross, Mr. Henry Armstrong, Mr. Herbert Blackmore, Mr. Espinosa, Mr. Bannister Howard, Mr. William Vant, Mr. Herbert Weldon, Mr. Fred Reeves, Mr. Tom Pacey, Mr. Fred Karno, and Mr. David Crombie.

Mr. Fred Carpenter, the only surviving brother of the late Ernest Carpenter, and chairman of the Lyceum Company, stated to The Era representative that he regretted it was quite impossible to reply to the hundreds of extremely kind messages—many of them lengthy cables—that had been received from all parts of the world. But he desired to thank very gratefully through the columns of The Era those dear, big-hearted professional friends who had sent so many kind and comforting messages to the widow and her little girl. Mr. Fred Carpenter went on to state that all his dead brother's plans would be carried out by his company. This included no fewer than five productions, the first of which—The Fighting Chance—would be put on when the run of Aladdin finished at Easter.

THE THEATRE ROYAL, WORTHING.

The Theatre Royal, Worthing, was reopened on Monday after the rebuilding which has been carried out. The building, which is now the most palatial on the South Coast, has been considerably enlarged, and will now accommodate some 900 people. The whole of the interior was destroyed, and to allow for a 5ft. slope in the floor some 700 cartloads of earth were taken away. A sliding roof has also been fixed in, and the gallery, which before was joined to the back of the dress circle, has now been placed above it. The proscenium has also been greatly enlarged, and the whole building has been reupholstered in green plush, whilst on the floors throughout green carpet has been laid.

The lessee, Mr. C. Adolf Seebold, had invited Lady Aubrey Fletcher to perform the opening ceremony, and, despite the fact that the weather was very bad, her ladyship drove over from Ham Manor to fulfil her promise. The Mayor of Worthing, Councillor J. G. Denton, presided, and supporting him were the majority of the members of the town council, whilst the auditorium was filled with a number of the leading townspeople, who had been invited to meet her ladyship.

The Mayor, after a brief allusion to Lady Aubrey Fletcher's kindness in coming to perform the ceremony, said that they were all aware what Mr. Seebold had done to that building. Some of them remembered it in a different aspect some ten or fifteen years ago, when it was altered from an old assembly room into a theatre. Mr. Seebold afterwards had the idea that the time had come when he should accomplish what they saw that day, and he was sure that they were all indebted to him for his enterprise in bringing the theatre up to the pitch of excellence at which they now saw it, and he now thought that Worthing could boast of as fine a theatre as there was on the South Coast. It was nothing fresh for them to have a theatre, for its first one was, he thought, opened in the year 1807. That theatre was carried on for fifty years, and he had read that there were as many as seventeen coroneted carriages waiting outside at one time.

Lady Aubrey Fletcher, in declaring the theatre open, said that she was sure that Mr. Seebold deserved the gratitude of the town and neighbourhood, for when she remembered the theatre as it was and saw it now she marvelled. The reward for Mr. Seebold was that on all occasions the theatre ought to be crowded. (Applause.) When she left home that morning the last words that Sir Henry said to her were, "Mind you congratulate Mr. Seebold for me, and apologise for my not being able to accompany you."

Her ladyship was then presented with a shower bouquet by Miss Olga Seebold, daughter of Mr. Seebold.

After Lady Aubrey Fletcher had been thanked for her kindness in delaring the theatre open, the lessee, in response to calls, made a happy little speech, in which he referred to it as a good omen that Lady Aubrey Fletcher was able to be present, and he hoped that it would bring him luck.

The work of reconstruction has cost over £3000.

"THE LOVE OF THE PRINCESS" is being performed at the New Theatre, Consett, by a company under the direction of Mr. C. Watson Mill. Miss Dorothy Haigh as the Princess is charming; and as Sister Constania Miss Josephine Lee is well received. Lady Irene is in the capable hands of Miss Maude Steeple; Mr. Frank Harvey as the heroic Prince Conrad wins loud and deserved applause; Mr. Richard Vane as Count Dacillo makes a daring villain; and as Duke Scarfe Mr. Francis Serle does well. Mr. Beckett Bould is a capital Lieut. Orlans; and as Josef, King of Illania, Mr. John Burton is quite at home.

MR. FREDK. MELVILLE'S company, in Her Road to Ruin, is the attraction at the Grand Theatre and Opera House, Doncaster. Mr. Dane Clark as the Bishop made a good impression; and Mr. Charles Dickens as Frank Temple shows ability. Mr. Kendrew Milsom as Tom Wells is an effective hero; and Mr. Alex. Bradley makes a villainous Philip Hardy. Miss Ada Champion is deservedly applauded for her portrayal of Jess Willoughby; and Miss Maud Gill as May Willoughby is both pleasing and sympathetic. The comic element is in the capable hands of Mr. Harry Talbot as Billy Boots; and Miss Grace Emery as Jenny Cackling and Mabel Coleman as Mary Dawson (the girl who went astray) was responsible for emotional acting.

MR. LEONARD BOYNE'S company is on a week's visit to the Theatre Royal, Canterbury, with that Comedy Theatre success, Raffles. Mr. Reginald Dance undertakes the title-rôle, and handles well the thrilling incident of the meeting of the amateur cracksman with the Bill Sikes order of burglar in Crawshay. As Crawshay Mr. Oswald Griffiths is decidedly clever; and other quite successful interpretations are those of Mr. E. W. Thomas as Curtis Bedford and Mr. Arthur Fitzgerald as Viscount Crowley. As Mrs. Vidal Miss Molly Tremaine is entirely successful; and Miss Frances Titheradge gives sympathetic treatment to Gwendoline Conrad.

DEATH OF META ILLING.

We regret to announce the death at Frankfort-on-the-Main on Sunday last of Mme. Meta Illing, the actress who did so much to popularise English drama in Germany, and who steadily pursued the aim of establishing an English theatre in Berlin. At a meeting at the British Consulate-General in Berlin on April 3 a limited liability company was formed with Mme. Meta Illing as managing director to found and carry on an English theatre in the German capital. Mme. Illing formed a company of English artists in London, and on May 17 gave an opening performance in the Royal Playhouse at Wiesbaden, of Mr. R. C. Carton's play, Mr. Hopkinson. The German Emperor and Empress were amongst those present, and the piece had an enthusiastic reception. Oscar Wilde's drama A Florentine Tragedy was afterwards given at Frankfort, and Mr. G. B. Shaw's Candida at Darmstadt, Cologne, Dresden, and other German towns being also visited. On Dec. 8 the company appeared in Berlin at the New Playhouse in She Stoops to Conquer. Mme. Illing was then lying ill at Frankfort, and eventually she died there of pneumonia.

Mme. Illing was herself an actress of note, having been a prominent member of the famous Lessing Theatre company at Berlin for some years. She also toured the provinces with success, playing Magda, Hedda, Gabler, Nora, Rebecca West, Therese Raquin, and Mme. Sans-Gêne. In the United States—where she gave all her rôles in English—she created the utmost enthusiasm.

Mme. Illing, says a correspondent, had a great admiration for the British people and character, and she considered that it was necessary to show them as they really are to the immense number of Germans who know English sufficiently well to be able to appreciate a play. She had a great belief in and admiration for the clean and healthy literature of the modern English stage. Her experience of the German taste in this direction was interesting. Such plays as only required a knowledge of modern English—Mrs. Dane's Defence, for instance—were welcomed. Merely Mary Ann did well. But She Stoops to Conquer was a complete failure. The dialect was inintelligible to Germans.

Our Berlin Correspondent writes:—"The sudden and altogether unexpected news of Frau Meta Illing's death, came with a sad shock to everyone in Berlin. The famous artist was only thirty-seven years of age, and up to but a few days before her death was full of plans for the future, chief among which was her new enterprise, the English Theatre in Germany. Mme. Illing took a severe cold when with her English company at Frankfort, and was unable to come on with them to Berlin. After a few days she seemed to be better, when rapid pneumonia set in, and she died, in a private hospital, on the night of Christmas Day. Dr. Merzbach, her husband, was with her, and performed the sad task of having the body conveyed to Berlin, where the funeral took place on Friday. Mme. Illing—whose personality was one of the most delightful—will be long and sincerely mourned."

Meta Illing was born Feb. 27, 1872, at Bernburg, not far from Halle. Her father was a simple master wheelwright, who gave her the best education he could afford. At fourteen Meta left school and entered a shop in the little town. She was industrious and conscientious, and a favourite with all. She had her ambitions, and read all the classical works of her native country that she could obtain, as well as translations of great authors. Shakespeare and Gœthe were her favourites. She remained three years altogether in business. Once she astonished her master by asking if she might recite him something from Gœthe's Faust. He permitted it, whereupon the seventeen-year-old girl acted an entire scene with such an amount of intelligence and "temperament" as could leave no doubt regarding her real vocation in life. After diligent study, Fräulein Illing made her début at Ulm in 1891 as Agnes in Ernst von Wildenbruch's fine patriotic play Die Quitzows, in which she had a great success. From 1894 to 1896 she was engaged at the Schiller Theatre in Berlin, and then went to the Lessing Theatre, where she took the town by storm as Magda. Fräulein Illing remained a member of the Lessing two years, and then joined the company of the Thalia Theatre at Hamburg. After 1900 she took no settled engagement, but carried out a long-cherished plan of touring the States of America. In the meantime the clever artist had mastered the English language, and in the large cities across the Atlantic she met with an enthusiastic reception, playing her best rôles in English. On returning to the Fatherland Meta Illing became the wife of Dr. Merzbach, a well-known Berlin surgeon. The motives which prompted the organisation of the English Theatre in Germany are known to everyone. It was not a money-making project, but to extend the knowledge of good and pure English drama in Germany and to aid in the good understanding between the two countries she loved so well. What will become of the enterprise now is not yet definitely decided. I am told it is not unlikely that it will be continued by a society at Frankfort."

Mme Meta Illing, in her earnest endeavour to introduce English plays to the German public, supplied engagements to many artists, amongst whom were Mr. Cecil Ward, Mr. Richard Lambart, Mr. George Desmond, Mr. Edward Bonfield, Mr. Wm. Armstrong, Mr. Herbert Greville, Miss Violet Greville, Miss Grace A. Noble, Miss Marion Ashworth, Miss Rosalind Ivan, Miss Gertrude Ascot, Miss Ethel Dane, Miss Mayne Young, Mr. Stanley Logan, and Mr. Dalziel Heron. She was very popular with her company, whom she treated with great kindness and consideration; and they deeply regret the loss of so thoughtful and sympathetic a manageress.

AMERICAN AMUSEMENTS.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

NEW YORK, DEC. 15.—The Lottery Man has brought a genuine success to the Bijou Theatre after a series of failures. Billed as a comedy, the play has been correctly classed as a "screaming" farce by the newspapers. It was written in three acts by Rida Johnson Young, the lady author of Brown of Harvard, who fills her plays with incidents and characters that are nothing if not diverting. Of the characters there are only nine, but of the incidents there are far too many to describe. Certain doings that convulse one with laughter seem to lose their humorous flavour in cold print. The mainstay of the fun that never stops while the curtain is up is an unattractive spinster known as Lizzie Roberts. Unattractive is a mild word to use, but one has to be careful in dealing with the peculiarities of the fair sex nowadays. Recall, if you can, the appearance and facial expression of the pessimistic Miss Hazy in Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch, and then imagine something far worse. The comparison is made because the same clever artist—Miss Helen Lowell—originated both characters. Lizzie is nominally a "companion," but really a maid to Mrs. Peyton, a lady who has had the misfortune to take on too much flesh and spends most of her time in trying to reduce her circumference. Per contra, Lizzie has the contour of a toothpick, and no wonder, for Mrs. Peyton tries all her patent medicines on her maid before she takes them herself. Not only that, but she has to handle the dumbbells, swing the clubs, and toss the "medicine ball" in company with her employer, and indulge in violent exercises that threaten to dissolve her into nothingness. But relief comes before it is too late, for Lizzie wins a prize in a lottery, and the subservient maid quickly transforms herself into a "lady," with a long train and a fan and an imperious manner that makes the audience scream with laughter. Poor Lizzie! Her dream is short, but while it lasts she makes the most of it. Then it turns out that the winning ticket belonged to the cook and that Lizzie found it. The cook's sweetheart, who runs the elevator, proves this, and Lizzie's pride has a bad fall. All the airs she has been putting on were based on the expectation of becoming the bride of Jack Wright, the "lottery man," a good-looking young fellow whose real feelings toward Lizzie are expressed in the "face" he makes every time he looks at her. Until the discovery is made that Lizzie is not the rightful owner of the ticket it seems reasonably certain that young Wright will have to marry her, for he is the prize that belongs to the holder of the winning number. He is a reporter, and having got into debt has found it necessary to raise $1,000. This he does by putting himself up as the prize in a marriage lottery, in which scheme he is aided and abetted by the newspaper that employs him. So he finds himself in a very unpleasant predicament, for apart from the fact that Lizzie is utterly impossible, he is very much in love with Mrs. Peyton's niece, Helen Heyer, who has bought numerous "chances" in the lottery, only to see the prize go to a servant—the odious Lizzie. Their love affair, with its tiffs and misunderstandings, enlivens the play at intervals, and, of course, ends happily after Lizzie has been eliminated and the cook has been "bought off."

Mr. Cyril Scott, a graceful comedian, with an adroit method that is very effective in plays of this sort, scored an emphatic success as Jack Wright. Miss Helen Lowell drew a picture that will hang beside her Miss Hazy in the gallery of stage caricatures. Miss Janet Beecher was charming as Helen Heyer, and Miss Ethel Winthrop was amusing as the stout lady, Mrs. Peyton.

"THE LILY," a drama in four acts, adapted from the French of MM. Pierre Wolff and Gaston Leroux, was produced by David Belasco on the 6th inst. in Washington at the Belasco Theatre. Le Lys was the title of the original French play, and it was first produced at the Vaudeville Theatre, in Paris, on Dec. 18, 1908. The principal characters are the Comte de Maigny, a broken-down nobleman, who has brought himself to the verge of ruin by extravagance and dissipation; his two daughters, Odette and Christiane; his son, Vicomte Maximilien de Maigny; Georges Arnaud, an artist; Emile Plock, a cotton merchant; and Plock's daughter, Lucie. Odette de Maigny, the elder daughter, who has reached the age of thirty-five, is a sort of upper servant in the household, her girlhood having been sacrificed in keeping up appearances for her father. Years ago she gave up the man she loved, and she has never ceased regretting it. Her sister Christiane is a high-spirited girl of twenty. She meets Georges Arnaud, and an attachment springs up between them. At first she is not aware that he has a wife, but it turns out that he is married, although he has not lived with his wife for ten years.

Christiane has known no happiness in her girlhood. Her father is strict to the point of cruelty, and while she is forced to pretend that she is satisfied with her way of living she is at heart rebellious. She has no hope of marrying, for the Comte beat her when a youth called on her. So, with her sister's fate in view, when a chance of happiness presents itself Christiane refuses to let it slip through her fingers. Arnaud is painting in a ruined monastery when she first encounters him, and she afterwards meets him clandestinely. Christiane's brother, Vicomte Maximilien, is about to wed the daughter of a rich cotton merchant, and the Comte is eager for the marriage to take place, for the money that Lucie Plock will bring as her dowry will establish the family fortunes once more. But the cotton merchant hears of Christiane's affair with the artist, and at the eleventh hour refuses to allow his daughter to enter the de Maigny family.

Vicomte Max and his father are furiously angry with Christiane, quite as much on account of losing the money as for the disclosure of her disgrace. But Odette tells the Comte a few plain truths about his treatment of his younger daughter, and questions the right of a father to spoil the lives of his children for his own selfish ends. "Anything is better than the gnawing loneliness of an old maid's life," she cries. "It is your 'honour' that is killing us. It has only succeeded in making of me a woman pure, but desperate and broken hearted. Go Christiane; go towards life, towards love. . . . . I have paid the ransom for you." Thus ends the third act, the play having followed the original French version up to this point.

In the last act Mr. Belasco has modified the play to suit American audiences. The "union libre" existing between Christiane and Arnaud is not depicted as an exalted state, as in the French version; nor does the heroine win happiness and contentment by her rejection of the principles of morality and her defiance of society. On the contrary, the course she takes brings her sorrow, although there is a promise of future happiness being gained when Arnaud obtains a divorce and marries her.

Mr. Charles Cartwright appeared as the Comte de Maigny, and his embodiment of the French nobleman, tyrannical and depraved, was praised very highly. Miss Nance O'Neil played Odette, and the scene, in which she defends her sister and exposes her father's selfishness was powerfully acted. Miss Julia Dean won approval as Christiane, and the other principals in the cast were Messrs. Aubrey Boucicault, Alfred Hickman, Bruce McRae, Leo Ditrichstein, and Dodson Mitchell.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP.

SIR HERBERT TREE is busily engaged in rehearsals of The O'Flynn, the new play by Mr. Justin H. McCarthy, which he will produce at His Majesty's early next month. Love and war form the pivot of the piece, the action of which is laid at the period of 1685. Sir Herbert will have the part of a dashing Irish soldier of fortune who, having distinguished himself in the wars of Flanders, returns to Ireland, where he takes up arms in defence of his native country, and wins the love of a beautiful lady. The last-mentioned character will be played by Miss Evelyn D'Alroy, and the cast will also include Mr. Henry Ainley, Mr. William Macintosh, Mr. Edward Sass, Mr. Shiel Barry, Mr. Hubert Carter, Mr. Nigel Playfair, and Miss Elinor Foster.

THE successor to Sir Walter Ralegh at the Lyric is to be a new play by Mr. C. M. S. McLellan, entitled The Strong People. The piece deals with a conflict between Capital, represented by the head of a great American trust, and Labour, led by a "daughter of the people," and the strong situation is reached when the former, bitterly opposed to the methods of the "trust," and the latter, who goes among the oppressed workers in the guise of a journalist, fall in love. Mr. Lewis Waller has also in contemplation a revival of The Rivals.

THE Adelphi has evidently found a strong attraction in Sir Arthur Conan Doyle's House of Temperley, which was produced there on Monday, and is unmistakably in for a long run. Its successor has nevertheless been arranged for, and will be found in a new musical piece written by Mr. Maxwell Bailey and composed by Mr. Michael Faraday, entitled The Islander, which will be produced under the ægis of that widely-experienced manager Mr. A. F. Henderson. The new piece is in two acts, and is laid partially on an island in the Persian Gulf. A notable member of the cast will be found in Mr. Nell Kenyon, the popular Scotch variety comedian, who will have the part of a Persian grandee. Mr. Kenyon's success as the Baroness in the Drury Lane pantomime Babes in the Wood two years ago will be well remembered.

MISS MARY RORKE and Mr. Owen Roughwood will join Mr. Martin Harvey's company for his spring tour. The former will appear in the character of Queen Margaret in his revival of Richard III., and the latter in that of the Duke of Clarence. To Mr. Charles Glenney has been allotted the part of the Duke of Buckingham, and Miss de Silva will, of course, appear as the Lady Anne. Rehearsals have now commenced, and the revival will form a conspicuous feature of Mr. Harvey's London season, which will commence in April.

MR. CYRIL MAUDE'S next production at the Playhouse will be Miss Tommy, a play by Mr. Michael Morton. The piece is the result of a curious arrangement between Mr. Morton and M. Paul Gavault, by which each author was to write a play independently on the same subject. The result in the French author's case was La Petite Chocolatière, while Mr. Morton's production saw the light in America. It is from the combined material of the two plays that Mr. Morton is evolving Miss Tommy.

MR. EDMUND PAYNE, who has been seriously ill, was recently the victim of an impudent robbery at his house at Clissold Park. On Dec. 22 Mr. George Grossmith, jun., Mr. Payne's old associate at the Gaiety, commissioned John Gainey, who is one of the "hangers-on" at the theatre, to take a sympathetic letter to Mr. Payne. The man was left alone in the dining-room for a few minutes, and after he had left, Miss Alice Payne, the comedian's daughter, found that her handbag, which had been left on the dining-room table, and which had contained £17 10s. in gold, had been tampered with, and that £10 only remained.

SUSPICION fell upon Gainey, who was arrested. Prisoner told various stories, but ultimately said that he had taken the money and used it to provide for the needs of his young children, who were in a home at Ealing. Subsequently the greater part of the money was found on him, and he then said that he was on his way to Ealing when he was arrested. A detective-sergeant informed the magistrate that Gainey had been employed for several years as a billposter by different theatres, but recently he had given way to drink. Prisoner, who said that when he went to the house he had no intention of taking anything, but saw the gold and took some, was sentenced to a month's hard labour.

M. HENRY BERNSTEIN, the eminent French dramatist, who a few weeks ago fought a duel with the dramatic critic of the Figaro, going out in the rain to be fired at, and disdainfully declining to return his adversary's fire, has evolved a singular point of law. La Griffe, which was revived some weeks ago at the Porte-Saint-Martin, was very successful and appeared to have a long run before it; but now the managers of the theatre announce that they are taking off La Griffe and replacing it by La Massière, by M. Jules Lemaitre.

THE committee of dramatic authors and composers, considering it "unjustified and unjustifiable that a manager should have the arbitrary power of taking off a play, the profits of which are largely superior to the expenses," has offered to back M. Bernstein in a legal action against the managers, and thus encouraged M. Bernstein has thrown down the glove. The managers, MM. Hertz and Coquelin, are said to be quite prepared to argue the matter in the law courts.

MR. FOSTER COURTENAY, a well-known actor, passed away, after a long illness and serious operation, on Monday, Dec. 20. The deceased gentleman was connected with George Edwardes's companies, the Wheeler South African Co., and the old Strand Theatre. He has left a widow and child, who deeply mourn his loss.

WE regret to learn of the death of Miss Madge Avery, which took place in New York last Sunday, where she was fulfilling an engagement with Mr. Forbes Robertson's Passing of the Third Floor Back.

MISS AVERY sailed for America last September with Mr. Forbes Robertson's company, but was unfortunately taken ill after a few weeks' appearance at the Maxine Elliott Theatre, New York, and compelled to undergo an operation; and although there was every prospect of her speedy restoration to health, she suddenly took a turn for the worse and succumbed.

MISS AVERY'S stage career has been a long and useful one. Starting many years back under the ægis of the late Miss Sarah Thorne, she long was associated with the earlier musical pieces, such as Falka, Pepita, and other companies then toured by Messrs. Van Biene and Lingard. She was nearly three years with Mr. C. P. Levilly, playing Mme. Hilarius in La Poupée; also over three years in the part of Mme. Pinglet with Mr. E. Lockwood's A Night Out company. She played Moira in Peggy Machree, was several tours with Mr. Robert Courtneidge in The Dairymaids as Mrs. Pyechase, and played many other parts too numerous to mention.

MR. PERCY HUTCHISON, owing to indisposition, was unable to appear on Monday last at the Opera House, Blackpool, with his company and take up the part of Monty Brewster in Brewster's Millions, the part in which he has made so conspicuous a success both in London and the provinces. Brewster's Millions was at the Opera House last Whitsun, and the gross returns for that visit, which were very big, have been quite eclipsed on this return date. The "House full" boards were hung out soon after the early doors were opened on Monday and every succeeding night this week. On Monday next the company open at the Opera House, Southport, and the advance booking there is very heavy consequent on the fact that it is the first visit of Brewster's Millions since Mr. Percy Hutchison became lessee and manager.

THE friends of Mr. Alfred H. Williamson will be glad to hear that he is making a rapid recovery from the injury caused by being accidentally thrown out of a motor car. Mr. Williamson was at the time working the outdoor advertising department of the Lyceum management. For nearly fourteen years, it may be remembered, he was agent-in-advance for Mr. William Greet's Sign of the Cross company. Mr. Williamson hopes to re join the Two Little Vagabonds company as advance representative in the course of a week or two.

MR. SIDNEY BLOW and Mr. Douglas Hoare's enlarged edition of Queen of the Fairies, with Mr. Ed. Jones's assistance in the music department, is being successfully presented by Mr. Ernest Norris's powerful company at the West Pier Theatre, Brighton. The two shows every day are packed, and everybody is delighted. At the termination of the initial performance there were loud calls for Mr. Norris, who came forward and warmly thanked the audience for their appreciation of the production.

MR. AND MRS. WILFRID COMPTON (Miss Miriam Holt) have had a busy and interesting year. During 1909 they have played Mr. Kershaw and title-rôle in Jane, Doctor Halroyd and Mrs. Fritchley in The Sportsman, Colonel Fishburne and Reeve in Dear Old Charlie, Jack and Eva in My Lady Help, Frank and Eva Perry in Are You a Mason? and Hawtree and Esther in Caste. Mrs. Compton also undertook the rôle of Mrs. Pixton and Lucy in Jane and Agnes in Dear Old Charlie during emergencies, and in addition played six weeks with her husband on the Barrasford tour.

MR. ALLAN WILKIE to-day enters on the sixth year of his tour. Mr. Wilkie's tours are tours in the ample sense of the term; that is, they last forty-eight weeks out of the fifty-two in the year. It is interesting to recall the fact that Mr. Wilkie started with a small company of fourteen and one load of scenery. His company now numbers thirty-six and eight loads of scenery. With few exceptions in the spring of 1911 his bookings now extend until May of that year.

THE Kingsway Theatre is shortly to be placed on the active list again, Mr. Herbert Trench having arranged to transfer Mr. Rudolf Besier's comedy Don to that admirably-appointed house on Friday, Jan. 17. The entire cast at present playing at the Criterion will go with the production.

"NICK CARTER, DETECTIVE," by Arthur Shirley and Ben Landeck, has been licensed by the Lord Chamberlain, been produced, and is shortly to be toured by Mr J. Forbes Knowles. It is already booked at several principal drama theatres.

APPLICATIONS for tickets for the Passion play at Ober-Ammergau continues, and over 20,000 Americans have already secured places. Anton Lang, the Christus of the play, has personally undertaken to shelter 1,000 visitors during the months of June and July. Prior to 1850 the Passion Play was practically unknown to the outside world. In that year it was virtually discovered as a wonderful old relic of mediævalism by Herr Devrient, a member of the famous German actor family.

A NEW opera which Mascagni is now writing will be first performed in America, and the composer will go to the United States to direct the rehearsals and to conduct. The title of the new opera will be Ysobel, and the scene will be laid in England, the story being based on Tennyson's poem "Godiva." Mascagni has pledged himself to have the new work ready in October, in order that the first performance may take place in New York at the beginning of December, 1910.

THE season of opera at Covent Garden will be opened by Mr. Thomas Beecham on Feb. 19 with a performance of Strauss' Elektra. The chief members of the cast will be Miss Edith Walker, Fräulein Mildenburg, Miss Frances Rose, and Herr Wiedemann. Included in the programme will also be the English production of Debussy's L'Enfant Prodigue, and revivals of The Wreckers, Tristan and Isolde, Carmen, Hansel and Gretel, and Ivanhoe.

MOSS' EMPIRES, LTD., have scored a solid success with Cinderella produced by Messrs. Ernest Stevens and R. C. Buchanan at the Alexandra Theatre, Stoke Newington. The Press acclaim its beauties, and the local public have been so overwhelmingly eager to witness the performance that money has been turned away at both matinées and evening shows. A record run would seem to be in perspective for this perfect pantomime.

EASTBOURNE has gone well-nigh wild with excitement over the pantomime produced by Murray King and Clark. Much was expected, but the wonderful scenery and dresses amazed all. Added to this the book was found to be one of the funniest written on the Dick Whittington adventure, and even on Christmas Eve the pantomime went with one long shout of laughter. Mr. Murray King as Idle Jack was voted immense. The Devonshire Park Theatre has been packed twice daily the whole of this week.

THE opening ceremony of the newly-devised Worthing Theatre was duly performed on Boxing Day morning by Lady Aubrey Fletcher. The weather was far from propitious, but the leading representatives of the town turned up in full force. The Mayor, who was present, gave unstinted praise in his remarks, re-echoing the sentiments of all present, to Mr. Seebold in his new venture. Lady Aubrey Fletcher, in a dainty opening speech, referred incidentally to the improvement in the box accommodation compared with years gone by. Mr. Hargood, J.P., also made eulogistic references to what Mr. Seebold had done to the town in supplying such an excellently up-to-date theatre.

To demonstrate again the care that should be taken in the use of firearms on the stage, what might have proved a serious accident was only just averted at Aberdare last week, where A Soldier's Romance was being played. There is a scene in which the comedian has to fire a shot into the wings, and by a grave error the revolver was loaded with ball cartridge instead of a blank one. The shot struck the floor and bounced up, just grazing the hand of Mr. Alexander Loftus, who was standing about two yards away reading, with another revolver in readiness should the one on the stage miss fire. Had the weapon been aimed a couple of feet higher the result must have been fatal.

MR. NORMAN V. NORMAN, who has been very hard worked lately, and is in consequence rather run down, went for a few days' shooting in Christmas week in the West of England. Miss Beatrice Wilson spent Yuletide with friends in South Devon.

ON Tuesday, Mr. Albert Vernon, the orchestral conductor of Mr. Robert Macdonald's Dairymaids company, now playing at the Gaiety Theatre, Hastings, received a wire in the afternoon summoning him to his wife's deathbed at Cardiff. At the evening show Mr. Thomas Hilton, the resident-conductor, directed the music.

MR. CHARLES R. STONE is to be congratulated on having produced a pantomime within the short space of seven days. The company met for the first time at the Theatre Royal, Exeter, on Thursday, Dec. 16, and on the following Friday night a dress rehearsal was given of Little Red Riding Hood, which went without a hitch. All the artists had two clear days' rest (Christmas Day and Sunday) previous to the initial performance on Monday afternoon.

MR. AND MRS. FRANK BERESFORD (Miss Dorothy Milne) are concluding their third starring engagement as Lawrence Gray and Geraldine Lucas in Convict 99, under the management of the Melodrama Production Syndicate, and have been engaged for the Lyceum tour of Two Little Vagabonds to play George and Marion Thornton, opening at the Court Theatre, Warrington, on Jan. 3.

THREE London pantomimes, to the success of which our columns this week testify, will be available for reproduction next year or for sale after the present run. They are Babes in the Wood at the Marlborough, Goody Two Shoes at the Shakespeare, and Cinderella at the Borough, Stratford. Mr. Fred Fredericks, of the Borough Theatre, is associated with each production—a guarantee of excellence in mounting and effects, and that gentleman is prepared to entertain applications as to their disposal.

MR. CHARLES WINDERMERE was presented by the members of his Where is William? company at Luton on Dec. 23, the anniversary of his birthday, with a handsome silver-mounted mirror, as a token of their appreciation of his friendship and esteem as a manager. Where is William? has scored a great success on its first visit to Scotland, and is drawing crowded houses at the Opera House, Perth, this week.

CHRISTMAS week at the Prince's Theatre, Horwich, was devoted to entertainments on behalf of the poor children of the town. The scheme was organised by local teachers, and Mr. Durie lent the theatre, and the orchestra and staff gave their services. Mr. Harry J. Maule organised an excellent sacred concert on Sunday, when several members of the Lyric Amateur Operatic Society and the whole of the Amateur Orchestral Society rendered full aid, and a very substantial fund was established. A huge Christmas tree was provided, and the various teachers worked well in dressing it with an abundance of toys. Councillor Slade presided at the distribution of toys, and on behalf of all concerned thanked Mr. and Mrs. Durie and the teachers.

MR. HENRY AINLEY, in his recent very interesting lecture to the Playgoers' Club, gave some information with respect to the status of actors in different countries. He said: "Actors originally appear to have banded themselves into secret societies for the preservation of mystic rights and of furthering their religion. That they were exclusive there can be no doubt, for a certain tribe in New Britain made a point of killing and eating anyone who even inadvertently intruded upon their proceedings. But I am very happy to tell you that, thanks to the indefatigable investigation by the Censorship Committee, most of our actor-managers have abandoned this principle.

"IN China, actors as a class occupied a very low rank. The theatre was no established institution, and although their repértoire was to all intents and purposes a replica of the history of the country, there was a law which forbade the sons of actors, barbers, and undertakers to enter for public examination. According to an old statute, actresses were looked upon with shame to such an extent that public feeling triumphed, and women were not allowed to appear on the stage, all the female characters being interpreted by men. This happened hundreds of years ago in a civilised country, and however fond the Chinese may be of the theatre, even to-day they do not take it seriously, or really look to it for refined or intellectual influences, and, as far as one can judge from their treatment of the actor, I should imagine they get the form of entertainment they want, lack of sympathetic relationship in this instance, bringing with it a lack of a sense of the dramatic.

"In Japan the actor was more advanced, but, officially the social position of the actor was not any better than in China. They belonged to the lowest class of society, but, not being treated with that callous indifference to which their Chinese confreres were subjected, there must have been a relationship, however slight, between the actor and the public, for the actor enjoyed some consideration and was appreciated—almost idolised by the general public. There are even a few instances of actors being mourned after their death, and laid to rest with great pomp and ceremony, at the public expense. Gross exaggeration seems to have been their method. A French traveller once asked the famous Japanese actor, Sodjuro, why he exaggerated. He replied: 'If we behaved on the stage as people do in real life, who could see that we were heroes.' Until quite recently, women were not allowed on the stage, and it is interesting to note how quickly they have reached an equal footing with the men.

"IN India the statements are contradictory as to the social status of the actor. Some of them tell us how highly they were considered, how frequently they belonged to the highest caste (the Brahmins), how well to do they were. Others say that they stood outside the castes like wild swine, serpents, and reptiles. One of their names was Kûçava, meaning a person of bad morals, and, in a record of the seventh century, we read that 'butchers, fishers, actors, hangmen, and scavengers are turned out of the town, and shown a place where they may live. When entering or leaving villages, they must keep to the left of the road.' It is evident that there were two classes of actors in India, and there can be no doubt that the better-class actor held a higher position in India than in other Asiatic countries.

"IN Greece we find that actors, as a class, enjoyed high consideration, although Æschines, the orator (originally an actor), according to Demosthenes, was so bad that once, when playing in Thyestes, the audience first hissed, then drove him off the stage, and finally, was on the point of stoning him. Æschines wisely chose another career! A dramatic performance was a religious act, and those who took part in it were considered as the servants of religion, as a kind of priest. If the Greek actor was unfortunate enough to add, or forget a syllable, or break the rhythm of the verse, with a mistaken accent, the audience would protest with a storm of disapproval. As Grecian audiences easily numbered 30,000 people, and as it was a favourite proceeding to show disapproval, by throwing stones at the actor, I think we may safely assume that the Marathon race was undoubted glorification of some wretched actor, trying to escape from his persistent audience!"

MR. ROBERT ARTHUR is giving at the Coronet for the holiday season a revival of The Private Secretary, with Mr. Stanley Cooke in the rôle of the Rev. Robert Spalding. Forty performances will be given of Charles H. Hawtrey's popular and perennial farce, of which some 20,000 representations have been reached and for which the public have paid quite a million pounds.

MR. EUGENE CORRI, who, at the request of the Daily Mail, has witnessed The House of Temperley, Sir Conan Doyle's new sporting play at the Adelphi Theatre, is a recognised authority on boxing in this country. Most of the important contests at the National Sporting Club are refereed by Mr. Corri, who by his firm and impartial application of the rules of boxing has done as much as anyone to raise the standard of boxing as a sport. The following are Mr. Corri's impressions of the boxing in The House of Temperley:—

"THE spirit of chivalry pervades the whole of The House of Temperley at the Adelphi Theatre—the spirit which animated the old-world professors of 'the noble art,' and the same spirit which has placed boxing, as it is understood at the present day, in the proud position which it holds among the sports of the world. Everyone who holds manly actions as the chief distinction of a man should see this play. There is a good deal more than a mere realistic boxing display to be seen. There is the fine manly sporting instinct, the true chivalry in everyday dealings with the world as well as in sport, which is the mainspring of the plot. But that is not my province. I want to deal with The House of Temperley as a boxing display.

"I MAY say at once I have never seen boxing on the stage more faithfully reproduced. It is a curious but nevertheless admitted fact that actors as a class do not practise boxing to the same extent as they do fencing or dancing, and yet as a study to procure freedom and grace of action it is unexcelled. With this in mind, the 'sparring' to be seen in the second act between Mr. Edmund Gwenn and Mr. A. S. Homewood is really admirable, especially when it is remembered how difficult it is to 'act' at boxing. Mr. Gwenn shaped as to the manner born, while Mr. Homewood fell at the end of the contest as if really 'knocked out.' Again, in the combat on Crawley Downs attention to technical details is really remarkable, and not a fault could be found on this head.

"In the contest, which is supposed to be a real old-world 'knuckle-fight,' Mr. Charles Maude (as Captain Jack Temperley) and Mr. Reginald Davis (as Gloster Dick) put up a really stirring combat, full of ever-changing incident and warranted to deserve the cheers which came from the admiring crowds on the stage itself and mingled with the genuine applause of the audience in front. Captain Jack, in the two rounds which are vouchsafed to the audience, evidently thoroughly deserved his victory, while his opponent, though defeated, was not disgraced.

"ALL sporting London should see this play. It has evidently been carefully staged by those who understand its technical side, and in that way it should delight the dilettanti of the boxing world; while to those who have never seen a boxing contest—and the ladies are included in this category—it affords some insight into the grand principles of sport which underlie the noble art of self-defence."

MME. KATE FLINN is properly proud of her little pupil Millicent Le Hay, who went on at the Hippodrome without a rehearsal last week and played Miss Zena Dare's part in the sketch with Mr. Maurice Farkoa. The clever little maid looked the part to perfection, and both her singing and acting were really a credit to her and to her instructress. Miss Le Hay, it should be added, has never studied with anyone else but Mme. Flinn, and her youth and prettiness should speedily secure her a permanent place on the London stage.

T. EDWARD WARD'S new production, His Real Wife, met with gratifying success on its initial performance on Monday last at the Royal Court Theatre, Warrington, where all the scenery and effects have been made. The play is unfolded in a sequence of fourteen scenes, culminating in a powerful dénouement, and vast audiences have manifested their approval of the thoroughness of the production.

MR. J. A. CAMPBELL'S principal company in From Convent to Throne appeared at his own theatre at Grantham on Thursday and Friday of last week to crowded houses. At the close of the performance on Thursday Mr. Campbell was invited to step upon the stage, when Mr. Graham Woods, on behalf of the company, publicly presented a very handsome bust of Shakespeare and a pedestal as a mark of esteem and respect for Mr. Campbell as author and manager.

YULETIDE has been seasonably kept by the company. On Christmas Eve over 500 poor children of Grantham were entertained by Mrs. J. A. Campbell (Miss Mary Fulton) to a picture matinée, after which each child received a toy, sweets, and an orange. On Christmas night the entire company of From Convent to Throne were entertained to supper on the stage of the theatre, bringing a very happy visit to a close.

MR. J. B. MULHOLLAND has written to the Referee as follows:—"Sir,—In last Sunday's Referee you published a resolution in favour of the 'One Licence' passed by the Theatres Alliance, and prefaced it by saying that that body had been 'stirred up' to action by a resolution to the opposite effect passed by the Music-Hall Managers' Association, the previous week. I beg to inform you that our resolution was passed at the ordinary meeting of the Alliance without reference to the attitude of any other association, and is merely in consonance with the views which it is well known we hold. In support of this, permit me to quote from the 'proof' of evidence given before the Censorship Committee on behalf of the Alliance:—'Our present position is intolerable, and its continuance will wipe out the majority of the remaining suburban theatres. We are unanimously in favour of preserving our establishments as theatres, but this we can only do if the law as it is be operative. Alternatively we are unanimously in favour of 'One Entertainment Licence.' Under this we would be on something approaching even ground. As it is, a premium is put upon evading or breaking the law, and the theatre manager is compelled to fight a highly organised and aggressive opposition with one hand tied behind his back.'

"THIS proof was sent in on Aug. 17, and that the Committee attached some importance to it is, I think, proved by the following excerpt from the Report:—'The second alternative—viz., to legalise the performance of sketches in places licensed for music and dancing—we regard as unjust to the proprietors of theatres. They ask that, if the existing law, which ostensibly protects their interests, is not to be enforced, they shall at least be allowed to meet their competitors on equal terms, and, if they so desire, during a part of the year, or, it may be, as a portion of their entertainment, to present performances other than stage-plays. This cannot but be regarded as a reasonable demand.' It is noteworthy that this weighty paragraph, which goes to the very root of the whole sketch question (and, incidentally, which justifies so fully the attitude of theatre managers), has never, so far as I am aware, been published in any newspaper.—I am, Sir, yours, &c., J. B. MULHOLLAND, Hammersmith, Dec. 23, 1909."

"THE TWO LITTLE VAGABONDS" having recently terminated at the Marlborough Theatre, Holloway, a most prosperous autumn tour, have been taking a brief rest, but will resume operations at the Court Theatre, Warrington, on Monday, Messrs. George R. Sims and Arthur Shirley's evergreen play having been booked for a long spring tour. As heretofore, Mr. Edward Beecher will pilot the company. Miss Helen Grenville, Miss Ivy Millais, and Mr. Charles Ludlow will resume their successful impersonations, and the company has been further strengthened by the acquisition of Mr. Frank Beresford, a leading actor of tried reputation.

WILSON RAE, thirty-eight, described as an electra-therapeutist, lately in business at New Oxford-street, who had been committed for trial at West Ham Police Court on a charge of obtaining jewellery by false pretences from a pawnbroker, was on Tuesday further charged with bigamy. Evidence was given of the marriage of the accused to Annie Maria Pratt at Southsea in January, 1900, the witness being her sister. Olive Louisa Prosser stated that she married Rae on Nov. 13 last, when he described himself as a bachelor, at the Staines Registry Office. She had known him only three weeks.

CROSS-EXAMINED by Mr. G. W. Davies, she said the prisoner had treated her very well; he had spent a good deal of money on her, giving her clothes and expensive jewellery. She first met him at the Berkeley Arms, Cranford, which was practically her home, as she had been adopted by the landlady, whose daughter she assisted in the house. She was, however, an actress, and knew Mr. Malcolm Scott, who on the day of the marriage suggested to her that she had not known the prisoner long enough and was marrying in a hurry. In the register she described herself as a spinster, and that was correct; she had never been married before.

RE-EXAMINED: She was under contract at Glasgow at the time of the marriage and had broken the contract, for which she had been threatened with legal proceedings. The accused, on this charge, had nothing to say, and was committed for trial, bail being allowed, the accused himself in £1,000 and sureties in £500.

WHAT is the pay of a sociétaire of the Théâtre-Français? Sociétaires are remunerated in three distinct ways. Each sociétaire is entitled to £40 a month under any circumstances. A fee of £2 is paid to each for every performance in which he or she acts. Each sociétaire receives at the end of the year a proportionate share of the profits of the joint stock theatrical business in which he or she is a partner. The sum brought in by "twelve-twelfths" of a share will amount this year to about £720. The total income of a sociétaire acting three or four times a week, barring annual leave, thus reaches about £1,500 a year. Holidays are generously accorded, and in a few short tours a sociétaire with a good manager can easily double his income.

AT Scott's Theatre, Maritzburg, on Nov. 29, a copyright performance was given of a comedy entitled The Bachelor Girl, Mr. Eugen Benzon being responsible for the music, and Mr. R. F. W. Rees for the lyrics and book.

MESSRS. TILBURY AND FRIEDMAN'S Dutch burletta, in two acts, Happy Holland, was enthusiastically received by a large house at its first performance at the Grand, Blackpool, on Monday, and the attendance since has proved how favourable was the impression made.

AMONG the successful candidates who have obtained certificates for pianoforte playing in the Lower Division at the School Examination for 1909 of the Associated Board of the Royal Academy of Music and the Royal College of Music is Miss Beatrice Harding Macartney, who is a pupil of her father, Mr. Alfred Harding, the well-known leading actor.

THE Lord Mayor, Aldermen, and Sheriffs of London are entertaining a number of poor children at the Guildhall on Monday. Among the delights prepared for the youthful guests will be a scene of Alice in Wonderland from the Court Theatre, with Miss Ivy Sawyer as Alice, Mr. Tom Graves as the Mock Turtle, and Mr. Edgar Favelle as the Gryphon.

MASTER MORITZ LUTZEN, juvenile composer of the music for the children's pantomime at the Strand Theatre, is of Hungarian descent, but he has had much of his musical education in England. He is a gold medallist of Trinity College, and won there the highest prize for pianoforte playing. He has conducted orchestral concerts in Paris, Berlin, Vienna, and other principal Continental cities.

MESSRS. FAULKNER AND DE COURTSEY have arranged with Mr. Wallace Davidson to tour the well-known drama The Sins of the Fathers, commencing early in February. An entirely new plant of scenery is being prepared, and the firm will travel every article and property requisite for the complete presentment of the play, a clear stage only being required from the local management. The printing includes specially designed art posters by Sidney Ransom and Will T. True.

MR. HORACE STANLEY and his 10.30 Down Express company are not playing at Hetton-le-Hole, as erroneously announced in our "On the Road" column, but are providing the Christmas attraction at the New Gaiety Theatre, Houghton-le-Spring.

MISS ADA REEVE has been relating some of her experiences in Cassell's Saturday Journal. She says:—"I am a Cockney, and proud of the fact. But pride sometimes has a fall, and my complacence in my cockneyism once received a severe shock. While touring in Australia I engaged a dresser, a local product, who was quite a character. She was also very inquisitive, and she had scarcely been with me an hour before she asked me whether I was English. 'Yes,' I replied, proudly, 'I am a real old Cockney.' 'Oh, are yer?' she retorted. 'Well, you needn't put on frills about it, anyway. I've known lots of people what came from Cockney, and there wasn't none of 'em any good.' Dismissed on the spot.

"FOR good or for ill, I was born within sound of Bow Bells, and I went on the stage in the most natural manner possible, both my parents being already there, and well-known members of the stock companies of those days. I fancy I played many 'thinking' parts as a baby, but the first rôle of which I have any distinct recollection was that of Little Willie in East Lynne.

"I WAS the first girl to turn a 'catherine wheel' on the music-hall stage. In my waif and street-arab parts at the Pavilion, Mile End, I had often turned 'wheels,' and one day it struck me that it might be a good idea to introduce them on the 'halls.' Greatly daring, I put the idea into execution at the Cambridge Music Hall, and it met with instant success. Indeed, ever afterwards the audience used to greet me with shouts of 'Over, Ada!' This was pleasing, but it was not so pleasant when one night as I was going 'over,' the padlock of a bracelet I was wearing got under my hand and buried itself in the flesh; the pain was most appalling, and when my 'turn' was over I had to have the wretched thing cut out; but I had been taught to keep a smiling face in all circumstances, and the audience suspected nothing."

ITEMS OF INTEREST.

Too Many Theatres.

MR. DAVID BELASCO was recently quoted as saying that this was the most disastrous theatrical year ever known in New York. "And," he added, "the springing up of new theatres means that it will be still more disastrous. There are too many theatres both in New York and throughout the country. Theatres are now built in New York as factories for the manufacture of any old thing to send on the road. But the day has gone by when a play can make a successful tour on the strength of a New York run. The manager who forces a run here makes a mistake. The legitimate drawing power of the greatest success is exhausted here in twelve weeks. By that time all the New Yorkers who go to the theatre regularly have seen the play, and they're looking for something new. First-nighters, of course, don't miss anything. The torture of the author and the suffering of the actors seem to have a strange appeal to them."

Unofficial Interrupters.

IT seems that the men who, because they rise in the theatres to protest against Suffragette jokes by the comedians, have been christened "suffragents" are unknown to the Women's Social and Political Union. "We have no knowledge of them at all," declares Miss Christabel Pankhurst, "and it looks as if the managers of the theatres themselves had hired the men to advertise the plays."

First Joys.

"As a child, what was your first joy?" asks the French paper La Quinzaine of a number of eminent persons in France. The answers include the following:—M. Henri Houssaye, the Napoleonic historian.—When Rachel toyed with my golden locks at the Théâtre Français. M. Edmund Rostand.—A stick of sugar candy. Mme. Sarah Bernhardt.—I was given a patch of garden in the playground to share with another little girl when we were at school. My first great joy was when I bought her part of it for seven pins, two reams of ruled paper, and my lizard box with three lizards, one without a tail. I was now the sole queen of my garden. M. Jules Lemaitre.—It was followed by indigestion. Mme. Jane Hading.—In Provence, where I was born, it was the custom to have a crib in every house at Christmas time. It was lit by an oil lamp for forty days, and morning and evening I used to kneel and say my prayers before it. That little light was the brightest spot of my childhood, and it was the first, and perhaps the greatest, of my joys.

OTHERS answering are:—M. Clarctie.—Doughnuts, which we used to get on a carnival day, and then to see them swell out in the oven. Mme. Réjane.—The day when my mother consented to take me to fancy-dress ball. I wore an Andalusian costume—it had always been the dream of my life—and as I walked down the boulevards all the passers-by went into ecstasies over the "little Andalusian." That day I knew joy—real joy—joy in every sense of the word. M. Jean Aicard (the latest member of the Académie Française).—When I was at school all the pupils knew the glory of the name of M. de Lamartine. One rainy day we were playing, when suddenly the games were interrupted. At the door of the courtyard stood our teacher, hat in hand, talking with a tall, emaciated man, who had a beautiful look of melancholy in his thin face. All the boys recognised him. "It is M. de Lamartine who wants you!" I was only ten, but great pride filled my heart. It was a joy of childhood never to be forgotten.

His Own Gazeka.

MR. GEO. GRAVES, who is playing Abanazar in Aladdin at Drury Lane, is highly delighted to hear of the proposed alterations in stage copyright. "I'm very hot on this subject," he said to a man of The People. "If they protect music publishers and writers, why don't they protect a man's brain-work on the stage? What I object to is that my brain should be made to feed four or five people. They cinematograph you, they photograph you, and they lithograph you, and off you go all over the world. The Gazeka, which I invented and introduced into a piece, was copied in all parts of the civilised world, although it was my Gazeka—the child of my brain," mused the comedian, proudly. "As a matter of fact," he proceeded, recovering his composure, "the law on the subject of any special business we may think out and introduce into a piece is as plain as it can be. It is a William IV. law, and is almost fatherly in its provisions. Only there is this trouble—I've got to go into my dressing-room and write it all out—the situation and the business I've invented to go round it. With regard to the dumb show, the copyright should be a blessing. At the present time a clever troupe of clowns might originate a show and open at a West End hall with it, and the whole idea might be cribbed and used by others, perhaps the very next night."

The Widow's Right.

MR. WILKIE BARD (the representative of the Widow Twankay) was also overjoyed to hear of the proposed change. He said that it would be an excellent thing for professionals if they could be protected from the people who sucked their brains and might very possibly appear before them in the same hall and take all "the ginger" out of their act when the curtain was rung up for them.

A Stage Counsel.

"WHO is the greatest cross-examiner in London to-day?" asks the Evening News. It is acknowledged that Sir Edward Clarke, Sir Edward Carson, Mr. Gill, and Mr. Rufus Isaacs have claims, but a hitherto unknown cross-examiner in the first rank is Mr. Henry Vibart, who has not yet been called to the Bar. Mr. Vibart stands alone in theatredom, conducting two cross-examinations at two different houses on the same night. His performances are remarkable, and the playgoer will find it well worth his while to see him in his two pieces. He appears first at the Shaftesbury, at 8.15, in The Factory Fire, a Dutch play, which portrays the preliminary examination so common in Holland before a trial. Mr. Vibart for three-quarters of an hour vigorously cross-examines seven different people, impersonated by one and the same, Mr. de Fries, in a case of arson. With keen magisterial inflexibility of purpose he gently puts leading questions, changes his manner in a moment, and accuses, bullies, threatens, without mercy. The natural forensic appearance of the actor, the adroitness of his questions, and the perfect modulation of voice hold a rapt and attentive house as surely no leading K.C. ever mesmerised a Court of Justice.

"Lights Out."

MR. VIBART immediately jumps into a cab and proceeds to the Waldorf Theatre for the third act of Lights Out. The scene is a court-martial. A woman is at the bottom of it, of course. A corporal is the prisoner. The villain—a lieutenant—is a witness. See the grey-haired, bewhiskered, benevolent old officer sitting in judgment. Not now do we hear the stern, pitiless, bullying tone, not now the rough driving home of a point on a disarmed witness, not now the relentless extortion of a confession from a man rudely broken down, but the sweet, kindly tones of the veteran with words distilling comfort, inviting confidence, and inspiring courage, from time to time mellowing into solemn fatherly warning that the words and oaths of the witnesses are fraught with the gravest consequences to a fellow-man. The two performances of Mr. Vibart are worth following as a contrast in versatility, and for lessons in cross-examination the Temple may look Westward with advantage.

"THE HOUSE OF TEMPERLEY."

A Melodrama of the Ring, by Arthur Conan Doyle, Produced at the Adelphi Theatre on Monday, Dec. 27.

Sir Charles Temperley	MR. BEN WEBSTER
Captain Jack Temperley	MR. CHARLES MAUDE
Sir John Hawker	MR. CHARLES ROCK
Jakes	MR. SPENCER TREVOR
Ginger Stubbs	MR. EDMUND GWENN
Lord Rufton	MR. STRATTON RODNEY
Duke of Broadwater	MR. A. S. HOMEWOOD

Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, encouraged by the success of his adaptation of his novel of the Nile, has drawn on "Rodney Stone" for suggestions for a spirited and exciting play of pugilism which was received at the Adelphi Theatre on Monday with enthusiastic acclamations, the author being called for at the close, and warmly applauded. Sir Charles Temperley, a nobleman of the days of the Prince Regent, has almost ruined himself by gambling; and the house of Temperley itself is in danger from the mortgagees. His brother, Jack, a Captain in the Army, tries to wean him from these extravagances, and makes him promise not to touch a card again, and an heiress, Ethel Morley, who is secretly in love with Jack, is willing to wed Sir Charles to save the estates. The baronet has been systematically cheated by a certain Sir John Hawker, who tries to swindle him by cutting a pack of cards for a high stake. A bookmaker called Jakes gets hold of the cards, and finds that the kings are marked. He blackmails Sir John, and gets him to sign a paper mentioning the price of his—Jakes's—"silence." Jack gets Sir Charles to consent to a match between a "novice" discovered by Hawker and a nominee of Sir Charles's, name unknown. This is Ginger Stubbs, Jack's soldier servant, an ex-pugilist; but just before the fight comes off Stubbs is kidnapped by a conspiracy between Jakes and Hawker, and Jack, who is a fine amateur pugilist, takes Stubbs's place, goes into the ring, and beats the "novice"; Hawker, in a rage, giving Jakes a sound thrashing. In revenge, Jakes charges Sir John with cheating, and the case is heard by a committee of Watier's Club, by whom, after a furious defence, Hawker is found guilty, and expelled from the club. As we learn in the last act, which takes place in the Peninsula, Sir Charles kills Hawker in a duel, and he sacrifices his misspent life to save his brother's in a storming party, leaving Jack free to marry Ethel.

A great factor of the success of the play was the admirable manner in which each character was thought out and enacted. In a very large cast, there was not a single case in which the personage was not carefully considered and rendered with rare finish and carefulness. Mr. Ben Webster, always excellent as a gentleman of high degree, played the dissipated Sir Charles Temperley with exactly the right feeling, making the spendthrift nobly chivalrous, in spite of his defects. The weakness of character, combined with a better nature, the impulses towards good and the degeneracy towards evil, were shown by Mr. Webster with great skill, and he threw over the whole picture a rich tone of aristocratic breeding. Mr. Charles Maude played the part of Captain Jack Temperley with much expressiveness, and quite sympathetically, and he was sufficiently athletic to make the victory of the amateur pugilist over the young professional not too improbable. A remarkably fine impersonation of Sir John Hawker was contributed by Mr. Charles Rock, who was most judiciously selected for a rôle which few actors could have filled so thoroughly. The vigorous, unscrupulous rascal was portrayed in very vivid and convincing colours; and Mr. Rock's rendering of Hawker's outburst in the Club scene, when his ostracism has been decided on, rose almost to the height of tragedy. Altogether, Mr. Rock's Hawker may be said to be one of the best things he has done for a long time. Mr. Spencer Trevor raised his reputation many degrees by his striking performance of the part of Jakes. He never once relinquished his hold on his audience or on the character, which he delineated with telling, yet subtle strokes, and with an energy of cunning and malignity which was very impressive and effective. Another admirable impersonation was Mr. Edmund Gwenn's Ginger Stubbs. Mr. Gwenn looked quite a possible prize-fighter, and acted the soldier-servant in his usual blunt, vigorous way. He deserves warm praise, too, for the energy he displayed in the boxing bout in the saloon in the second act, and we quite missed him from the play until his revival in the last scene of all, the comedy between him and Lucy—a personage represented with keen comic power and great energy and spirit by that excellent actress, Miss Pollie Emery, being very acceptable, and creating great amusement. The aristocratic "Corinthians" were differentiated with delicate skill, Mr. Stratton Rodney giving a firm and individual portrait of Lord Rufton, and Mr. A. S. Homewood's old school courtesy and polish as the Duke of Broadwater being exquisite. Mr. Frank Ridley contributed a neat sketch of Colonel Dacre, Mr. Arthur Burne was comical as Jerry, Mr. A. Corney Grain played George effectively, and Mr. Poyntz and Sir Charles Bunbury and Sir George Gascoyne were depicted with care and finish by Mr. Freeman H. May, Mr. H. Ford, and Mr. Archibald Forbes. Mr. A. G. Craig supplied a clever sketch of character as Mr. James Parton West; and Mr. Charles Combe, as General Crauford, in the last act gave a typical presentment of the hero of the Light Division. It was fortunate that Mr. Bassett Roe was available to represent the massive and manly Tom Cribb; he realised admirably the engravings of the doughty pugilist. Mr. Reginald Davis worked hard as Gloster Dick. Of the members of the Prize Ring, few had much to say, but all were carefully and correctly made up; but the belligerent Tom Belcher and the plucky Joe Berks had clever representatives in Mr. A. S. Homewood and Mr. Hubert Willis, and every one of the professionals played his little part well, if it was scarcely a speaking one. Mr. Charles Combe, Mr. Frank Ridley, and Mr. O. P. Heggie were satisfactory as servants; Mr. J. Byron was efficient as Sergeant Holden; Mr. Arthur Bachner was good as a stable lad; and Mr. George Shelley was capital as a Waiter, Mr. Geoffrey Hill making a smart Footman. Mrs. Russ Whytal's Lady Temperley had many merits; and Miss Dorothea Desmond was a painstaking Ethel Morley, Miss Joyce Francis being easy and ingenuous as the bar-girl, Mary, and Miss Hetta Bartlett giving a characteristic performance as Mrs. Barnet.

Warm praise is due to the way in which the piece was rehearsed and mounted, Mr. Herbert Jarman having produced it in splendid style. The fact that the fights had been arranged under the supervision of a professional boxing instructor, Mr. F. Binnington, accounted for the realistic manner in which they were carried through, and the actors did not spare themselves in carrying out his instructions, and took their "punishment" very kindly. The scenery, by F. L. Schmitz, was well painted, and the arrangement of the pugilists at the festive board in the second act and all the details of the business of the play were attended to most solicitously. All London will be drawn to the Adelphi to see a faithful reproduction of a phase of sport which now only exists in a modified and chastened form, and which has had a great influence on the destinies of England.

Many fine Shakespearean productions have been seen in Manchester during recent years. The latest, Much Ado About Nothing, was staged at the Gaiety Theatre on Monday evening, Dec. 27, under the direction of Mr. Iden Payne. No misgiving was felt on the score of the interpretation by Miss Horniman's talented company, nor indeed on any other ground, for things are done here with true artistry, and there are no failures with anything that will stand the test of an audience. Thus the curtain rose to high expectations, and these, taking the production as a whole, were by no means disappointed. Spectacular effect is one of the prime requirements in Shakespeare nowadays, and the pictures of Messina, in which the action proceeded, were beautiful to the eye, a city of flowers and sunshine, lapped by the blue Italian waters. There is nothing garish, from the highest light to the deepest of mellow shadows, from Leonato's garden overlooking the white town to the altar scene in the solemn church, which is impregnated with a quiet richness of light, as from dim stained windows, which even now admit strong yet subdued rays from the sun. The artist, Hugh Freemantle, has no less a genius for street scenes, and there is a most picturesque example in the scene before Leonato's house, which we see also by moonlight with quite lovely effect. The dresses harmonise with all this in the same spirit of moderate splendour. They are Italian of the early part of the sixteenth century, contemporaneous, in fact, with Matteo Bandello, the author from whom Shakespeare borrowed the story of "Hero." These have been designed by Norah Doyle, and executed by Ada M. Owen. Then there are dances of the period, arranged by Nellie Chaplin and directed by Madge Atkinson; the "Pavana" and the "Galliardo" in the first act, and the "La Volta" in the fourth, the latter a particularly spirited and effective movement. To complete the propriety of the setting of the comedy, there is an overture, "The King's Hunt," by John Bull, arranged by Granville Bantock; and the whole of the music incidental to the action has been selected and arranged by Dr. Henry Watson, and is entirely of English origin, while the arrangement of the dance music (William Byrd) is to the credit of Granville Bantock.

As for the acting, no one questions the all-round ability and well-balanced parts of this remarkable combination of players. For the most part, also, there is seldom a mistake in the casting. Whether an error or not has been made in one notable instance on this occasion remains to be seen. Meanwhile, one must confess to some little disappointment in regard to Miss Mona Limerick's interpretation of Beatrice. The fact seems to be that Miss Limerick's talent does not run in the direction of comedy, especially Shakespearean comedy, so much as towards tragedy. Her best work is introspective, and does not lie so much upon the surface as in suggestion, no matter the intrinsic value of the work on which she may be engaged. Nevertheless, there is no little charm in her appearance and her acting, and possibly she may be able to sink her personal temperament sufficiently to become the more lightsome Beatrice of the play than she was on the opening night. Mr. Ian Maclaren as Benedick gave a clear and vigorous rendering, and really excellent impersonations of Hero and Don Pedro were offered by Miss Hilda Bruce Potter (who is always charming) and Mr. Stanley Drewitt respectively. Fine work was added by Mr. Basil Dean as the sinister Don John, and by Mr. Frank Darch as Claudio; while competent renderings were given also by Mr. Henry Austin as Leonato, Mr. Stafford Dawson as Antonio, and Mr. Edward Landor as Borachio. Particularly good was Mr. Esmé Percy in the dual-rôle of Balthasar and Friar Francis, while Mr. Leonard Mudie played excellently as Verges, and Mr. Charles Bibby as Dogberry contributed beyond doubt the comedy success of the evening. Mr. Esmé Percy's singing of "Sigh no more, ladies," should be extolled, and a word of praise is due to the clever dancing of Misses Madge Atkinson, Hilda Davies, and Mercy Manners.

"THE TYRANT" is being presented at the Royalty Theatre, Llanelly, by Miss Marie Dagmar's company, which includes the charming and talented Miss Marie Robson in the part of Tisbe, which she enacts with much grace. The title-rôle is well taken by Mr. Roy Fortesque, he being very successful in the part; Mr. Percy Follis as Homodei is also good and works hard; Messrs. Wilson Summers and Fred Laurd as Victor and Nobbo do well, as also does Mr. Edward E. Louis as Prince Rudolph. Mr. Charles E. Warne as the Dean of St. Anthony is also very good; as Lady Catherine Miss Jean Scott is satisfactory; and the Misses Lailah Shelton and Emmie Burns are effective as Eulie and Daphne, Miss Katie Lever being lively as Reginelta. The piece is excellently mounted.

BERLIN, THURSDAY, Dec. 23.—A cordial reception was accorded to the first play from the pen of a well-known art critic, but it was more out of respect for the author than due to the piece's merits. The action passes—as might be anticipated—in artistic circles. Fritz Lassen is a painter of unusual talent, though he has not yet reached a very high rung on the ladder of fame. He has a young and pretty wife, Lisette by name, and he has a friend—Karl Jaeger—who is devoted to him. Jaeger, who is an art critic, helps Lassen in many ways, he believes in him, and is constantly admonishing him to great deeds. Yet Jaeger does not scruple about yielding to Lisette's fascinations, or, at least, his scruples always come too late. Lisette is an empty-headed little person, who serves her husband as a model; he does not get on quickly enough for her, and she passes away the time by throwing herself at the head of her husband's best friend. Jaeger finally—out of love for his friend, who he thinks will never reach great heights while bound to Lisette—is even willing to incite a divorce and marry Lisette himself. This very remarkable sacrifice does not come about, because Lisette, having provoked a quarrel between the two men, confesses, in a fit of rage, everything to her husband, and then takes her life. After a good deal of tall talk, the friends make it up, and Lassen promises to rise upon the stepping-stones of a sad experience to the heights Jaeger has so long desired for him. I do not think this enigmatical production will see many repetitions, despite an excellent cast.

UNQUESTIONABLY the greatest success the Meta Illing English company had during their brief season at the New Schauspielhaus was on the closing night, when Henry Arthur Jones' interesting play Mrs. Dane's Defence was in the bill. The house was full, the audience was an enthusiastic one, and the fine acting was deserving of the applause that followed. The rôle of the unfortunate heroine was admirably rendered by Miss Mayne Young, that of the famous judge—Sir Lionel Cartaret—equally well by Mr. Cecil Ward; Mr. Logan was good as the young lover Lionel, and Miss Armytage Noble was a quite charming Lady Eastney. In the part of the genial Canon Bonsey Mr. Dalziel Heron made a decided hit, Miss Ethel Dane completed her conquest of the Germans (which she began as Mary Ann) in the rôle of Janet, and the other characters were all satisfactorily sustained. The English Theatre will return after Christmas to give a season in the old Urania, to which event we are eagerly looking forward.

AT the Deutsches Theatre Shakespeare's Taming of the Shrew has been revived. It was announced with a flourish of trumpets, and knowing Herr Reinhardt's originality—to offer a mild expression—in the matter of Shakespearean productions our curiosity was not a little aroused. It may be said at once that from a classical point of view it was a distinct failure, and if the Immortal Bard turned in his grave it is not to be wondered at. On the other hand, if looked at from the standpoint of a circus display the piece was conspicuously successful. It was not a comedy, but a coarse burlesque played by clowns. And the Germans think they can teach the English how to act Shakespeare! It is only fair to state that the mounting was very effective and that the best Berlin critics were strong in their expressions of disfavour at the tone of the interpretation.

THE enterprising Bernhard Rose Theatre made an ambitious experiment on Saturday last. Goethe's Faust was put in the bill, and the performance was entitled in every way to respect, and at times even to admiration. The cast was good throughout. Director Rose gave the rôle of Faust himself, that of Mephisto was in the capable hands of Herr Beaurepaire, while Gretchen was admirably portrayed by Fräulein Ward, and Martha was well represented by Fräulein Schäffel The play was staged in a manner worthy of a larger theatre, and altogether the desire of Herr Rose to present Goethe's masterpiece to East End audiences was as successful as it deserved to be.

HERR SUDERMANN'S new drama Strandkinder was produced last night at the Royal Schauspielhaus with success.

FRAULEIN CLARA ZIEGLER, the once famous tragedienne of the Royal Schauspielhaus and one of the finest actresses in Germany, died at Munich on Sunday at the age of 65. The artist had long left the stage, and had suffered from an affection of the heart for some years, which was the final cause of death. Telegrams of condolence and wreaths were sent to Fräulein Ziegler's relatives by the Kaiser and many other Royal persons. The body was cremated at Ulm yesterday.

THE members of the German Actors' Association have sent in to the Reichstag a petition demanding an Imperial law for the protection of actors. Among other things they plead for a cessation of Sunday rehearsals and a limit to the duration of rehearsals at all times, especially when these take place on the day of performance. The Home Secretary is in favour of a Bill to this effect.

BERLIN, THURSDAY, Dec. 30.—We have been inundated with novelties during the last week or ten days, and not one of the least entertaining is the eminent Austrian author's latest play—a comedy in the most amusing sense of the word from start to finish, It was a complete success, and the same result was achieved at the simultaneous production at the Dresden Royal Schauspielhaus. That the piece first saw the light at the Lessing was a guarantee that it would meet with every justice. The cast was absolutely faultless, and foremost in it was Fräulein Elsa Lehmann as Frau Heink. The hero is full of faults and frailties, for which he is not altogether responsible. He is Gustav Heink, the world-renowned pianist, whose unrivalled art (aided by a handsome, flowing mane) causes all the women to fall in love with him. He cannot escape them, even if he would; his pupils force him into the rôle of a Don Juan, and his good wife has stood it with resignation twelve years. She loves her Gustav, with all his weaknesses, and knows he loves her; she knows, too, that someday—when an old man, and he is not young now—he will find a haven of rest in her affection and have done with these incidents. In the meantime, however, when too closely pressed by an infatuated fair one, Herr Heink retires for a day or two to his little châlet among the Alps, accompanied—nota bene—by the said fair one. It is then understood by the world that he is giving a concert. The latest flame is a particularly foolish little person, wife of a certain Dr. Jura, who is even more foolish than his girl-wife. Jura is of the opinion that everyone should sacrifice himself for the good of others, and he and Frau Heink concoct a plot He is really a tool in the clever hands of the latter, who is determined to give her Don Juan a lesson. The two arrive at the châlet—where nothing very bad is happening—and declare to the astonished "Meister" and his pupil that they will all change partners, when the legal formalities can be arranged. Now, nobody wants to do this, and so ultimately the rightful couples become united again, and we trust Gustav is cured. The bright play will assuredly enjoy a long and successful run.

AT the Royal Schauspielhaus Herr Sudermann's latest play—which was anticipated with the utmost interest—has not proved an unqualified success. Strandkinder (in four acts) is a vendetta drama, the action of which passes in the good old times, at Hela on the Baltic. It is more of a legend than anything else; two brothers have sought to be revenged upon the murderer of their father for fourteen years, finally demanding and obtaining blood for blood. The murdered man's daughter, Brigolla, suspects the brothers to be guilty and denounces them, but the judge—to end the feud between the families—insists upon a marriage between Brigolla and one of her father's murderers. The elder brother Gregor shudders at the thought, but the younger, Heimeringk, weds Brigolla. That there will be anything but a blessing on the union we at once divine. Brigolla and Gregor proceed to fall in love with each other in their wild manner, and decide that Heimeringk must be got rid of. An attempt made to wreck the younger brother's home-coming boat by means of false lights is frustrated by a "Strand-child," Melide, by name—a poor, but worthy maiden; the guilty pair are lost in the waves, as they well deserved to be, and Heimeringk—who has returned as a knight—tells the wonderful tidings that Melide is not the outcast she seems, but of princely origin. And so this good couple wed, and live happily ever after. The reception of the piece was a mixed one. After the second act there was a good deal of applause, and Herr Sudermann was called several times before the curtain; then, however, a gradual falling-off became manifest, until at the close some hisses mingled with the applause. The interpretation was admirable; Fräulein Poppe gave the passionate Brigolla in splendid style, and the Melide of Fräulein Ressel was a most sympathetic piece of acting; Herr Staegemann gave the rôle of Heimeringk and Herr Kraussneck that of the Danzig magistrate as well as any author could desire, and the mounting—under Dr. Lindau's capable supervision—was perfect.

LEHAR'S new operetta Der Graf von Luxemburg is, as was only to be expected, a complete success. The famous composer has not by any means written himself out, but has produced music as fascinating as that of the immortal Merry Widow. The book, too, by MM. Willner and Bodanzky, is capital. The work is drawing large audiences at the New Operetta Theatre, and will certainly do so for a long time to come.

THE CORONET.

On Monday, Dec. 27, the Farce entitled "THE PRIVATE SECRETARY."

Whilst pantomime reigns supreme in London, suburbia, and the provinces, Mr. Robert Arthur has decided to give his Notting Hill Gate theatre patrons a taste of stronger fare in the shape of the world-famous farce by Charles H. Hawtrey, The Private Secretary. The piece is now in its twenty-fifth year, and over 16,000 performances have been given, and yet it flourishes and prospers. Mr. Eugene Stafford presents a capital company in this revival, which is set down for a month's run. Mr. Stanley Cooke is admirably cast for the part of the ridiculous milksop, the Rev. Robert Spalding, and whilst extracting all the humour possible from the part, he never overelaborates or exaggerates the eccentricities of this remarkable creature, but allows the character to develop itself naturally and whimsically. Mr. W. Hargreaves is vastly amusing as the portly and tyrannical old uncle, Mr. Cattermole; Mr. James Gelderd sails smoothly along in the part of his nephew Douglas, so intent on "sowing his wild oats" in order to please his exacting avuncular relative. Mr. Frederick Tyrrell contributes a capital comic character sketch as the enterprising tailor from Bond-street. Mr. Francis Trevor is good as Mr. Marsland, M.F.H., and his pretty daughter and her friend are vivaciously and naturally impersonated by Miss Olivia Glynn, a very charming Edith Marsland, and Miss Mary Deverell, a bright and lively Eva Webster. Mr. Vivian Gilbert does well in the part of Harry Marsland, and Miss Cecily Wade is extremely droll as the perplexed landlady, Mrs. Stead, and Mrs. Alfred Davis contributes largely to the fun as the spiritualistically inclined Miss Ashford. Mr. Frederick Tyrrell is the stage-manager, assisted by Mr. Charles Wallace (who enacts the small part of a servant), and Mr. Francis Trevor is acting-manager. Mr. Eade Montefiore, the clever and genial resident-manager, as usual keeps a watchful eye on the interests of Mr. Robert Arthur and the Coronet Theatre.

Jewels Galore.

WHEN King of Cadonia was performed at the Empire Theatre, Calcutta, on Dec. 4, the actors and actresses in the Coronation scene blazed with £500,000 worth of jewels. The theatre celebrated its first anniversary, and in honour of the event the jewels were lent by Messrs. Rai Buddri Das Bahadur and Sons. Miss Beech, says the Statesman, had a diamond tiara with emeralds and rubies, an equally gorgeous diamond necklace, and a diamond collar. Mr. McGrath as the King wore an emerald and diamond belt over 150 years old, set with the largest emeralds extant, and worn by one of the ancient ruling princes of India. He wore besides numerous orders set with precious stones and a beautiful emerald and pearl drop neckband.

Wearing Wealth.

SOME of the jewellery worn by other members of the company is described below:—Miss Stewart.—Diamond and turquoise necklace with diamond and pearl collar-band and diamond and turquoise tiara. Miss Birkbeck.—Diamond and ruby necklace set with a huge Burma ruby weighing over 900 carats, diamond and ruby collar, and diamond and ruby tiara. Miss D. Gratton.—A magnificent ruby and diamond necklace, a pearl collar, diamond and pearl tiara. Miss Karkeek.—A magnificent diamond and emerald necklace valued at more than £50,000, a magnificent diamond, pearl, and emerald collar, and diamond and emerald tiara. Miss Annie Romaine appeared in a necklace of what looked like preserved fruits, but was actually a nine-gem necklace valued at about £20,000.

Shakespeare and the Suburb.

"DENMARK 'ILL!" bawled the porter, as the Crystal Palace train steamed into the station. And the Shakespearean scholar, comfortably ensconced in a first-class compartment, murmured to himself, "Something is rotten in the State of Denmark."

THE recent performances of The Mikado by the Bradford Amateur Operatic Society at the Theatre Royal, have resulted in a net profit of £250 for the city's charities.

THE COPYRIGHT COMMITTEE'S REPORT.

"The case of Sarpy v. Holland, 1905, Ch. D. 8, illustrates the anomalies which at present exist, and the futility of requiring English composers to print the notice above mentioned, which probably has to be in English, on every published copy of their musical compositions, while composers belonging to other countries parties to the Berne Convention have only to comply with Art. 9, par. 3, of the Berne Convention, which permits of notice being in a foreign language possibly unintelligible to many members of the community.

"Further, there seems to be no reason in principle why such a notice should be required in this particular class of publication, except for the protection of the public, and although at the time of the passing of the Act of 1882 it was thought right to put this obligation upon the proprietors of the copyright, it does not seem at the present day to be necessary to maintain it, the provision that the Judge shall have discretion as to costs and penalties being found sufficient to defeat any claims put forward in a harsh manner against persons who perform musical compositions without any intention of infringing the rights of the proprietor of the copyright.

"The Committee unanimously recommend the adoption of the Article, and that the necessary amendments should be made in the British law both for the purpose of conforming to the Convention and for intra-territorial purposes."

Article 12 of the Convention runs: "The following shall be specially included among the unlawful reproductions to which the present Convention applies:—Unauthorised indirect appropriations of a literary or artistic work, such as adaptations, musical arrangements, transformations of a novel, tale, or piece of poetry, into a dramatic piece, and vice versâ, &c., when they are only the reproduction of that work, in the same form or in another form, without essential alterations, additions, or abridgements, and do not present the character of a new original work.

"This Article," says the Report, "indicates certain reproductions which are unlawful, and may be restrained by the original author. At persent, under British law, transformations of a novel, tale, or piece of poetry into a dramatic composition by way of performance, and not by way of copying, are not forbidden, unless the author has first clothed his work with a dramatic character, in which case it would be protected under the Dramatic Copyright Act of 1833. It will be necessary that the law should be altered in this respect, in order to conform to the Revised Convention.

"It would seem that the Article, by implication, provides that copying a work of the nature of those enumerated, if the copyist has added new matter which would give it the character of a new original work, is not an infringement. This is not in accordance with British law. A work may present the character of a new work so as to entitle the copyist to sue any person who has copied his adaptation, &c., if such work of the first copyist has been authorised by the original author, and yet a similar adaptation without authority might still be a piratical one as between the original author and the adapter. According to British law, the presence of additions, however ingenious and novel, will not remove the taint of piracy, if any substantial feature or part of the original work has been copied. But see the cases of Wilkins v. Aikin, 17 Vesey, 422, and Spiers v. Brown, 1858, 6, W.R. 352. The above-mentioned implication presents a difficulty, for not only would the necessary alteration involve the abolition of a rule of law which is well settled in British Courts, but the adoption of the implication would raise questions of great nicety, and be the source of copious litigation.

"We do not consider that this implication, if it can be drawn, should be acceded to. We consider that the Article should not be treated as doing more than stating that the matters mentioned in it are to be unlawful productions as against the author, and that would not be inconsistent with conferring the protection contemplated by Art. 2, par. 2, which is given without prejudice to the author's rights.

"Subject to what we have said, we consider that the Article may be adopted and the necessary amendments made in the British law which will be required to give effect to it and to the suggestions which we make."

Article 13 runs:—"The authors of musical works shall have the exclusive right of authorising (1) the adaptation of those works to instruments which can produce them mechanically; (2) the public performance of the said works by means of these instruments.

"Reservations and conditions relating to the application of this Article may be determined by the domestic legislation of each country in so far as it is concerned; but the effect of any such reservations and conditions will be strictly limited to the country which has put them in force.

"The provisions of par. 1 shall not be retroactive, and consequently shall not be applicable in any country of the Union to works which have been lawfully adapted in that country to mechanical instruments before the coming into force of the present Convention.

"Adaptations made in virtue of pars. 2 and 3 of the present Article, and imported without the authority of the interested parties into a country where they would not be lawful, shall be liable to seizure in that country."

"This Article," says the Report, "alters the provisions of the closing protocol, number 3, of the Berne Convention, which is as follows:—

"'Closing Protocol.—§ 3. It is understood that the manufacture and sale of instruments serving to reproduce mechanically musical airs in which copyright subsists, shall not be considered as constituting infringement of musical copyright.'

"The first observation to be made on the Article is that its terms are confined to authors of musical works, and when this Article is read with the other Articles of the Convention, it is not quite clear whether under the provisions of the Convention authors of dramatic, dramatico-musical, and literary works would receive any protection against reproduction by means of mechanical instruments. It may be, in view of the terms of Art 2, that such protection is conferred, but having regard to the uncertainty which exists it seems desirable to make it plain that such is to be the case, and in any confirmation of the Revised Convention the Committee suggest that the necessary protection should be expressly conferred independently of Art. 13, and should also be conferred by domestic law."

"With regard to the adoption of the Article, and subject to the observations which will be hereafter made on the third paragraph, the Committee are of opinion that it may be accepted, and they recommend, therefore, that the author's of musical works should have protection against the adaptation of their works to instruments which can produce them mechanically, and against the public performance of the said works by means of such instruments, both under the Revised Convention and under British law, which should be amended accordingly.

"But with regard to the exercise of that exclusive right certain very difficult questions arise.

"On the one hand it has been urged by a number of the witnesses that composers having, as such witnesses contend, a new right conferred upon them, should, if they license any manufacturer to adapt instruments to the production of works mechanically, be obliged to grant a similar licence on similar terms to any manufacturer who chooses to demand it; in substance, they propose that the principles which have been adopted in the United States of America with regard to instruments serving to reproduce mechanically musical works, should be adopted in this country.

"What steps, if any, have been taken in other countries with regard to compulsory licence we have not been able to ascertain. It will be seen from the American Act that an owner of a musical copyright who permits the use of his copyrighted work upon the parts of instruments serving to reproduce mechanically the musical work is bound to permit any other person to make a similar use of the work upon payment of a royalty of 2 cents on each part manufactured. The proviso containing this provision does not extend to anything further than musical compositions.

"If the exact scheme indicated in he section should not meet with approval in this country, the contention is that some other provision should be made for a compulsory licence being granted upon equitable terms, so that all manufacturers of instruments producing a work mechanically and of the records required for the production should be placed upon an equal footing.

"The main contentions on the part of those who advocate the adoption in this country of a system of compulsory licence are based upon the grounds that a very large business has been built up under the present state of the law, in which authors have been considered to have no right to restrain the reproduction of their works by means of mechanical instruments, and that if authors have the right which Art. 13 proposes, there may be great danger of a monopoly being introduced, under which possibly one large manufacturing company would secure rights from authors to such an extent that other manufacturers might be practically excluded from the trade; and that it is desirable in the interests of the trade that all manufacturers should be left in the same position as they now are, with this exception, that they should be liable to pay to the author a proper compensation or remuneration for the right to reproduce his works. They claim that at present a manufacturer has a right to use compositions for adaptation to musical instruments, and maintain that if that right should be interfered with the result would be disastrous unless the principle of compulsory licence were introduced.

"The witnesses who supported these contentions urged in substance that the whole of the existing businesses have been built up on the principle that there is no licence or royalty to pay, and that if now licences from authors have to be obtained and payments made to them, small concerns will be absolutely unable to compete.

"On the other hand, there can be no doubt but that it is right in principle that authors of works capable of adaptation to mechanical instruments should have the exclusive right of authorising the adaptation of their works to such instruments—that it is in reality part of the literary property which they have in the product of their own brains. If they have this right it is maintained that it ought to be confirmed to them in such a way that they are perfectly free to exercise it in such manner as they think best by licensing one or more manufacturers entirely at their own option, or by declining to license at all; in other words, that they should have perfect freedom of action with regard to the exercise of their right.

"Those who maintain this view are not prepared to admit that it is proposed by the Revised Convention to confer upon authors any new right in the United Kingdom. The case of Boosey v. Whight, 1900, Ch. D., p. 122, was decided by the Court of Appeal in the year 1899, and it was there held that the plaintiff's copyright in certain sheets of music was not infringed by perforated rolls of paper, representing the musical score, sold for use in a mechanical organ. This case was not taken to the ultimate Court of Appeal, and there appear to be no further reported cases which touch the question, except, perhaps, Mabe v. Connor, 1909, 1 K.B. 513, where one of the learned judges does not appear to have been satisfied with the decision, and Newmark v. The National Phonograph Company, 23, Times L.R., p. 43, where Mr. Justice Sutton followed Boosey v. Whight. Authors were no doubt dissatisfied with the decision, and we gather that some doubt has been felt as to its correctness, but it has remained undisturbed for ten years, during which period there has been an enormous development of the manufacture of such mechanical instruments as are referred to and of the records used with them, the manufacture having commenced before that period.

"It may be added that composers put forward as a strong ground of objection to a compulsory licence that they ought to be able to control the mode in which their pieces are produced, and the character of the instrument which produces them, so that they may be properly and correctly reproduced without doing discredit to the composer.

"We have thought it right to state the two views somewhat fully, as there is no doubt about the importance of the questions which are raised by the article and the difficulty of dealing, not so much with regard to the right of the author, but with the exercise of that right, upon which we think we ought to make a recommendation, having regard to the fact that the adoption of the Article will necessitate the consideration of the reservations and conditions relating to its application (see par. 2).

"If the questions now raised had been raised at a time when authors could clearly have asserted a right to prevent reproduction of their works by mechanical instruments, it appears to the Committee that it would have been very difficult to maintain that any such systems of compulsory licence as those suggested should be brought into force, but the difficulty at the present time is in consequence of the fact that manufacturers of instruments for the purpose of mechanically reproducing works, have developed their businesses under the impression that they were within their rights in using the works of authors without making any compensation whatever to those authors, and that those rights would not be interfered with by legislation. Most of the witnesses who advocated a compulsory licence did not deny the justice of the author's claim to derive some benefit from the use of his works for mechainal reproduction, but they were afraid that the free exercise by authors of exclusive control over such reproductions would produce a monopoly which would ruin the businesses of a large number of manufacturers.

"We can hardly think that these witnesses are right in expressing such fear, and when the large number of composers that exist at the present day and the enormous production of, and demand for, these mechanical instruments are borne in mind it seems probable that the views of the witnesses are exaggerated as to the results of free rights being exercised by the author. It may be pointed out that manufacturers may at present secure the exclusive services of popu'ar artists, and indeed several of the trade witnesses maintained that the performer is of more importance to the manufacturers than the composer of the piece which the performer sings in order to produce the records, and thus manufacturers are at the present moment exposed to the danger of one class of monopoly.

"In this country it has generally been considerd that freedom of contract is most beneficial to the development of all kinds of industries, and the Committee are not aware of any analogous case in which compulsory licences have been imposed. The nearest approach to anything of the kind may be found in section 24 of the Patents and Designs Act, 1907, according to which, where the reasonable requirements of the public with respect to a patented invention have not been satisfied, any person interested may present a petition to the Board of Trade seeking to obtain the grant of a compulsory licence, but the case of a patentee can hardly be considered strictly analogous, for he is concerned with matters of commercial utility, and even the section referred to does not contemplate that he shall be under any obligation to grant a compulsory licence, provided he gives reasonable satisfaction to the requirements of the public.

"Further, we have found, on considering the subject very carefully, assisted by the evidence, that any system of compulsory licence leads to very considerable difficulties. Witnesses have pointed out that a fixed sum per record may produce hardship in cases of low-priced articles, and when an attempt is made to fix a royalty by percentage, it is found practically impossible to separate the values respectively of the manufacturer's work, the performer's work, and the composer's work, all of which contribute in varying degrees to the value of the article, and further, when an attempt is made to settle matters on the basis of an agreement, so that each manufacturer may come in on the terms agreed, difficulties are presented by such cases as where the composers themselves might manufacture the machines and records, or sell the whole of their rights to manufacturers, and there are other ways in which evasions might be attempted.

"The Committee, with one dissentient, have come to the conclusion that the author should have freedom of action with regard to the exercise of his right.

"It was suggested that some system of compulsory licence should be authorised for a limited term of years from the passing of any Act which should establish the provisions of the Revised Convention in this country, in order that the position of manufacturers might not be affected during that period except so far as making payment of remuneration to composers for the use of their works, but the Committee, with one dissentient, have come to the conclusion that the suggestion should not be adopted.

"Whether an author should have complete freedom of contract, or whether his freedom should be in any way limited by a provision as to compulsory licence, the Committee think that protection should be afforded by legislation to the manufacturers of discs, cylinders, rolls, and other mechanical devices, necessary to be used in the course of producing sounds, against piracy of these objects or their reproduction, either by means of direct copies or by means of copies produced by sound or otherwise. The grounds for this recommendation are that, as was pointed out in the evidence which has been placed before the Committee, these discs and other records are only produced at considerable expenditure by payments to artists to perform, so as to record the song &c., and by the expenditure of a considerable amount of ingenuity and art in the making up of these records; and that therefore the manufacturers are, in effect, producing works which are to a certain extent new and original, and into which the reproduction of the author's part has only entered to the extent of giving the original basis of production. Therefore, the Committee regard this as one of the things which can be the subject of copyright, and further recommend that public performances by means of pirated copies of these records should also be treated as an infringement of the rights of the manufacturer.

Princess Marie Louise of Schleswig-Holstein and suite witnessed the performance of the pantomime Cinderella at the Strand Theatre on Thursday afternoon.

A new opera house is shortly to be erected in Berlin. The building, which will be located in the west end, near the Kurfuerstendamm, will cost approximately £250,000, including the freehold purchase of the land on which it will stand.

Mme. Yvette Guilbert found that the Stuyvesant Theatre, New York, afforded a much better environment than the vaudeville houses for her ballad singing when she gave an afternoon performance there recently. Mme. Guilbert divided her programme into three parts—rustic balladry, ballads of yesteryear, and ballads of to-day. The audience was large and appreciative.

Mr. Harry Tilbury is paying a return visit to the Prince's Theatre, Horwich, with the drama His Dishonoured Wife, and had a rousing reception on Monday. Miss Belle Tilbury, in the title rôle, scored heavily; and Mr. Tilbury himself fairly revelled in the part of Micky Doolan. Messrs. A. G. Fry, Fred Owen, Gilbert Hall, Edward Brown, and Misses Arline T. George, Mildred Eversleigh, and Little Priscilla Barnard gave excellent representations of their respective parts.

The grandfather of Grimaldi was a dancer of great celebrity on the French and Italian stages, and was generally called, for distinction, "Iron legs," being considered the best jumper in the world. He once jumped so high that he broke a chandelier, a piece of which hitting the Turkish Ambassador, who was in the stage box, he considered it as a premeditated affront, and complained to the French Court of the outrage. A laughable accident is said to have befel him on his journey into Flanders; he and his troupe were attacked near Brussels by banditti. The baggage waggon was ransacked, their pockets turned inside out, and, according to their usual custom, the thieves were about to dispatch their prey. It should be known that Grimaldi, wanting money for his expedition, enticed one Flahaut, a bookseller, to follow his fortunes. Flahaut, having learnt Latin, took it into his head that it would be a good thing to introduce the ancient chorus on the stage, by way of explaining Grimaldi's dances. Grimaldi appeared to approve the scheme, but told him, as it was a kind of improvement that could only be brought about by degrees, he had better learn to dance first, which would make him immediately useful. Flahaut set to work, and Grimaldi promised to make him a capital dancer. In the end, he got as much money together as he could, left his family, and, as before said, followed Grimaldi. When the sabres of the banditti were drawn to despatch the troop of dancers, Grimaldi, who at the danger of his life would have his joke, whispered Flahaut to talk Latin to them. The enthusiast, Flahaut, began, and for a few seconds the sabres were suspended. Presently, loudly vociferating "dixi," one of them, aiming a blow at his head, cried "feci"—which blow, had it taken place, must have silenced the orator for ever. But the most extraordinary part of the adventure remains to be told. Grimaldi's partner, full of romantic heroism, just as the word "dispatch" had been uttered, stepped forward, and in a scream of despair implored the banditti to have pity on her comrades, offering that, if they would be merciful, she would yield herself up a sacrifice, and devote herself to their pleasure. She described how many ways she could be useful to them; that she could dance to amuse them, she could cook for them, and, to be brief, intimated, in the language of Deborah Woodcock, that she had no objection to any work they could put her to. In short, the thieves were appeased, and carried off the lady in triumph, but not till they had stripped the whole troupe stark naked, leaving them nothing but the refuge of what they had pillaged from the baggage-waggon, consisting of a few odds and ends of pantomime dresses. Grimaldi put on an old Harlequin's jacket, poor Flahaut contented himself with the trousers of Scaramouch, and in this plight they begged their way to Brussels.

HOW TO RUN A VARIETY HOUSE

Mr. Alfred Butt recently chatted to a Strand Magazine interviewer about the way a variety theatre is run:

"People who tell you it is impossible to get a hearing in London," said the young managing-director of the Palace Theatre, "don't know what they are talking about. I'm just as anxious to see them as they are to come, but it is dreary work. Still, there's always the hope of something fresh, always the fear that the thing you might decline to see is good, and may get snapped up by someone else and become a big hit.

"This letter is one of the usual sort, a communication from a suburban lady with a hypen name and doubtful voice, who had sung at an 'At Home,' and whose friends had said, perhaps sarcastically, 'Why don't you go on the stage?' So she writes to me, 'Let me sing!' If I say I will hear her she will come and warble 'Dear Heart!' (it's always 'Dear Heart!') in an indifferent drawing-room voice, and seem bewildered at the lack of enthusiasm. She will leave with an expression of resignation or indignation. She has done all that she could to make the fortune of the Palace, and she cannot be blamed now when the crash comes!"

The following is a sample of some of the amusing letters sent to Mr. Butt:—

"Port Elizabeth,
"Sept. 10, 1908.

"Alfred Butt, Esq.

"Dear Sir,—I would be very thankful to you if you would be kind enough and let me know if an actor must learn. Many people told me that I've got the gift to be an actor. As I am now in Africa, where there is no clever man to tell a person or to answer my question, I would be very pleased if you would correspond with me. I have no good friends and no parents. I am very young—only eleven years, and I would, if I had the chance, learn to be an actor. I hope you won't refuse answering my few lines.

"I remain, kind gentleman,
"With many thanks,
"Yours devoted,
"———.

"P.S.—Please don't waste time!"

The funniest yarn Mr. Butt can call to mind is an incident at the Palace Theatre which absolutely brought down the house. George Golden, the American story-teller, was the hero of it.

"One of his favourite stories was that of an Irishman who went to the Rocky Mountains to hunt for bears. He was alleged to have left George Golden by the roadside and proceeded to a part where bears were known to exist in comfortable quantities. Half an hour later, Golden used to tell the audience, a cloud of dust appeared on the horizon, and, as he watched, it took the shape of his friend, pursued by a couple of the best specimens of bears obtainable.

"The man's gun had disappeared, and he sprinted as no man ever sprinted before. Golden used to depict the scene in his own inimitable way. 'What's the matter?' he shouted to his friend Casey. But Casey only sprinted harder and yelled, 'It's all right, George; I'm bringing 'em home alive!' Such was the story, but the unrehearsed sequel was funnier still, as I think you'll agree.

"Golden was telling his stories one night, and the turn following his comprised some performing bears. Pretty little fellows, some of them, like over-grown puppies. In the middle of a story, one of the bears went with a rush across the stage. He had got loose somehow, and went across the stage like a flash of lightning. Golden jumped with surprise at first, but soon recovered his sang-froid and repartee. 'George,' he shouted, 'I'm bringing 'em home alive!'

"He had not told this particular story that night, but the audience literally rocked with laughter. They knew the yarn. He started one of his songs, laughed in the middle, broke down, and the house roared again. People could only think of that one line."

When Mr. Butt took over the management of the Palace, nothing would have been easier than to run it on the same lines as the other London music halls. "We should have been sure of a certain following and risks would be few. But we preferred to strike an original note, and, as you know, we did so with the introduction of all the prominent theatrical people to the Palace Theatre, such as Miss Marie Tempest, Mrs. Beerbohm Tree, Misses Evie Green, Ruth Vincent, Ellis Jeffreys, Lottie Venne, Louie Pounds, Fanny Brough, Mr. Lewis Waller, and Mr. Hayden Coffin, amongst a score of others, including Ellaline Terriss and Seymour Hicks. The Palace became the vogue for theatrical people."

Mr. Butt saw Miss Maud Allan first in Paris, and had with him on that occasion five English people well versed in theatrical and music hall matters. The scenic surroundings were not such as the Palace provided, but he was attracted by the grace and novelty of her dancing, and said that it had been decided to engage her for the Palace. They told me with absolute unanimity that in London she would be a failure. What did happen? Well, all London knows now. One man went to see her eighty-seven times, and a certain society lady has had thirty-two boxes to witness her performance.

"We get more new turns from America than anywhere," said Mr. Butt, in response to another inquiry. "I had the singular good fortune to secure there, in addition to Miss Marie Dressler, such sterling artists as Fred Niblo, Horace Goldin, George Fuller Golden, and Miss Rose Stahl, in The Chorus Girl. To show you what a London reputation does for one, I might tell you that the latter was not getting more than forty pounds a week with her sketch, but after a big success here, extending over three months, she returned to America at one hundred pounds a week, and the sketch was turned into a three-act play, which Mr. Frohman presented at the Adelphi with great success."

Mr. Butt considers that "French and American artists take more trouble over their performances, and spend much more time in inventing and developing new 'business' than our own."

The line at one time drawn between theatre and hall is gradually disappearing. Mr. Butt is a great believer in Free Trade. He thinks there should be one licence for both and no distinction in places of amusement. If Sir Herbert Tree likes to provide a music hall entertainment for his patrons the Palace has no objection, but claims an equal right to produce Hamlet if they want to do so. Not that they have any ambition to do so at present, but the time might come.

Mr. Geo. Arliss has been compelled by ill-health to terminate his engagement in Septimus at the Hackett Theatre, New York, and return to England. Having won his spurs by a series of notable characterisations, Mr. Arliss occupies an exalted position on the local stage, and we all hope that his forced retirement will be brief.

Indispensable! Rayne's "Pocket Date Book." Contents: Map (19in. by 10in.), showing the distance betwixt the various music halls at a glance. Will tell if one hall is within the barring radius of the other, thus saving fears, worry, and anxiety. All about artists' luggage, list of clubs, information about stamping contracts, foreign money table, London music halls and theatres, their telephone numbers, list of brougham proprietors, list and address of photographers, size of theatrical printing paper, names and addresses of theatrical railway managers, &c. Price 1s., post free. The proceeds from the sale will be divided equally amongst the two great charities of the dramatic and musical professions, the Actors' Benevolent Fund and the Music Hall Home Fund. The Era Buildings, 5, Tavistock-street, Strand, W.C.

"DICK WHITTINGTON AND HIS CAT" AT ILFORD.

Pantomime, Book and Lyrics by Dan Thomas; Produced on Dec. 27.

Dick Whittington	Miss Winifred Ray
Alderman Fitzwarren	Mr. H. D. Lyndon
Alice	Miss Olive West
Idle Jack	Mr. Jack Harris
Captain Kettle	Mr. Romeo Missouri
Bill Blower ... Tom Bowling ..	Messrs. Haverley and Homer
Hon. Bertie	Miss May Barker
Polly Prim	Miss Edith Laurie
Emperor of Morocco	Mr. Arthur Wade
Princess	Miss Lyda Floyd
Chopem	Jack Wellor
Cat	Mr. Pete Almonti
King Rat	Master Nipper Maher
Slipon	Will Norman
Slipoff	Cyril Stafford
Betsy	Mr. Dan Thomas

This evergreen story, admirably suited to pantomime, was splendidly produced at the above hall on Monday afternoon, and has throughout the week drawn large and enthusiastic audiences to each "house." Under the personal supervision of Mr. Dan Thomas, the story of London's first Mayor is excellently treated in eleven scenes of beautiful design and effect. The floral ballet in Scene IV., during "Dick's Dream," performed by twenty local children, arranged by Mme. Schmidt, was one of great beauty and grandeur, whilst in Scene XI., The Lord Mayor's Procession, the beauty of the performance was exquisite, including the smallest team of ponies in the world.

The costumes were on an elaborate scale, brilliant, and harmoniously blended, providing a rare continual feast for the eye.

Dick Whittington was capitally rendered by Miss Winifred Ray, a charming young actress, with a dainty voice and swinging style. Alderman Fitzwarren was cleverly portrayed by Mr. H. D. Lyndon; and Alice, his daughter, had a very capable artist in Miss Olive West. The amusement created by Mr. Dan Thomas as Betsy was unending; and the merriment was carried to a high pitch by Mr. Jack Harris as Idle Jack. Messrs. Haverley and Homer were exceedingly droll in the characters of Bill Blower and Tom Bowling, and the doughty Captain Kettle was excellently played by Mr. Romeo Missouri. The Cat was in the capable hands of Mr. Pete Almonti, and his antics greatly pleased the audience nightly. The Emperor of Morocco was capitally given by Mr. Arthur Wade; and the Princess had a talented delineator in Miss Lyda Floyd.

THE FIONI—LUCAS CASE.

At the request of Mr. James Fioni, we have much pleasure in publishing the above full report of the Fioni—Lucas case, a few particulars only of which were given in our last issue. The Liverpool Courier of Dec. 22nd said: "Edward H. Lucas and Mary E. Lucas (his wife), music hall artists, who are this week appearing at the Liverpool Empire Theatre in an act, entitled Scenes from Dickens, were the defendants yesterday in a Liverpool County Court case, whereby James Fioni, theatrical agent, of 21, Norton-street, Liverpool, sought the recovery of £5 10s. commission.

"Mr. Pemberton (Messrs. Nicholson and Pemberton) appeared for plaintiff, whose case was that the money was owing to him in respect of his commission at ten per cent. on engagements he had obtained for defendants in 1907 at the York Empire, and at the Gloucester and Porth Palaces in March and April of last year. The salaries were £15 for the York engagement, and £20 for each of the two others.

"The male defendant contended that he had booked the York engagement himself, and that when the engagements at Gloucester and Porth became due he was in America, and wrote to the manager, asking him to postpone them until his return to England, at the same time offering other dates, which he was perfectly willing to fulfil. In a case like the present defendant contended that it was the custom when an artist was abroad for the agent concerned to try and arrange other dates in lieu of those already fixed. Instead of that, however, Fioni wrote to defendant immediately upon his return from America, demanding his commission, and he sent a cheque for £2 (being five per cent. commission on the Gloucester and Porth dates), but Fioni returned the money. Defendant claimed that he had done everything in his power to bring about a settlement of the matter.

"His Honour Judge Thomas gave judgment in favour of plaintiff for £4."

George Lashwood has made a big hit at the Plaza Music Hall, New York, conducted by William Morris. Converted from a high-class German theatre into a temple of variety, and situated in a fine neighbourhood, the Plaza is one of the finest places of amusement in town. On a recent evening Mr. Lashwood sang no less than six songs, and was accorded a most enthusiastic reception. His engagement was then only three days old, but it was quite evident that he had already established himself as a favourite and that his songs suited the taste of his audience to a nicety. "In the twi-twi-twilight" went splendidly, the pointed "bits" provoking hearty laughter. The chorus has a melodious swing that would ensure its being taken up immediately by an English audience, but Mr. Lashwood found that a New York audience was too bashful to participate. In other words, he was no more successful in his attempt to make them sing the chorus than others have been before him. They were apparently quite willing to let him sing until he was ready to drop, but they wouldn't "join in." Delegates from the Society of the Sons of St. George gave Mr. Lashwood a hearty greeting on the day of his opening. On this occasion he sang seven songs and addressed the audience before he retired. He is now in his second week at the Plaza, and his popularity is increasing. In the language of the natives he has "made good."

Miss Nellie Wallace was in the Plaza bill, and her success was emphatic. Her grotesque make-up and extraordinary capers, to say nothing of her lively songs, provoked no end of laughter.

At the Carlton Theatre, Birmingham, just previous to Mr. Joe Ellis commencing his song "The bogie from Scotland Yard," a wee black kitten strolled on to the stage, and after fussing round Mr. Ellis's feet, making a complete circle round him, made a graceful exit. As the kitten seemed to have no owner, and had in some mysterious way wandered in from the street, Mr. Ellis has kept it, and it is now known among Miss Western's company as Little Bogie, and up to date seems very fond of its new master and its life on tour.

Mr. Fred C. Somerfield's company forms the attraction at the Theatre Royal, Tyldesley, in Geoffrey Langdon's Wife. Mr. Paul Beckett gives a fine performance as Felix Beverley; Jack Stirling is capitally played by Mr. G. Roberts; Mr. H. C. Hunt does well as Geoffrey Langdon; and Mr. C. Grier is a successful Colonel Myles. Miss Enid Edoni wins favour by her portrayal of the title-rôle; and Miss K. Magee shows ability in the part of Mrs. Sands.

MR. LANGDON LEE'S BENEFIT.

Mr. J. Langdon Lee, the popular manager of the Theatre Royal, Plymouth, had a very successful benefit recently, chiefly supplied by local amateur talent. The fine band of the Royal Artillery, under the masterly leadership of Mr. R. G. Evans, rendered the impressive overture to Tannhäuser and the dramatic "1812" of Tschaikowsky with grand effect.

The Stanley Trio gave a very clever trick performance, entitled "Paper Making Extraordinary." Miss Janie Crows, L.R.A.M., executed a Chopin's Scherzo in B flat minor with delicacy of touch and sympathetic expression. As an encore Miss Langdon Lee sang Tosti's "Good-bye." Mr. Will Foster (tenor) and Mr. Sidney Smith (baritone) won much applause by their rendering of "Soldiers and Comrades." The Premier Troupe of hand-balancers and tumblers did some fantastic feats. Miss Edris Coombs brought the house down by her singing and acting. As an extra turn, Miss King, from the Palace Theatre of Varieties, was very acceptable; her castanette dance was excellent. Lieut. J. V. Meredith, of the Leinster Regiment, gave an amusing performance of song, patter, and dancing, entitled "Puzzlers"; and a ventriloquial entertainment by Mr. J. Lincoln proved popular.

In an interval the orchestra of the Theatre Royal, under the baton of Mr. Stephen Blythe, played a pleasing selection. Staff-Sergeant Avery, the well-known R.G.A. gymnastic instructor, gave a very effective exhibition of sword manipulation. Miss Decima Field sang "The Corsican Maid" with effect. Miss Edith Nation played a violin solo, "Allegro and Andante, 7th Concerto, Ch. De Bériot." Mr. C. G. Pike handled the 'cello in good style in a solo by Saint-Saëns, "Le Cygre," and another by Hartz, "Der Schmetterling." Lieut. St. J. Ronaldson, of the Leinster Regiment, used a baritone voice to advantage in "Robin Adair" and "The Rosary." Mr. Eric Ward, in a recital, "Rubinstein's Piano Playing," evoked amusement; and Mr. T. H. Rolstone brought to a conclusion a memorable evening of enjoyment by a clever pianoforte entertainment.

Mr. Langdon Lee returned thanks in a few well-chosen words. He said that the benefit, which was a record in figures for the Theatre Royal, would remain as a life memory. It was his one lasting aim to render the Theatre Royal a profitable and attractive venture. Mr. Stanley White sang the opening verse of "God Save the King," which was taken up by the entire audience. Mr. Stanley White was honorary stage-manager of the benefit.

THE Boxing Night attraction at the Theatre Royal, Bury St. Edmunds, was a strong variety programme, headed by Geo. A. Street, warmly received, in a stirring sketch The Cattle Thief, and an elaborate military spectacle. Violet Durant is popular with illustrated songs. Other turns of exceptional merit are La Vie, in tinted statuary; Chas. Bradford, comedian; La Sylphe, kaleidoscopic dancer; the American Bioscope, &c.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

[We do not answer inquiries by post. In all letters the names and addresses of inquirers must be given as a guarantee of good faith. Initials only or pseudonyms will be used in the answers if so desired.]

JOHN GRUN MARX.—Address Kirkly's Apartments Register, 22, Tavistock-street, Covent Garden.

H. E. B.—Both houses hold the same kind of licence. In Scotland—at least in the West of Scotland—there is no such thing as a double licence. Magistrates in Glasgow, Paisley, and other towns in the West of Scotland, if not all over Scotland, have made a law unto themselves and grant the same licence to either house. There are no restrictions on one more than the other. One licence suffices, with the same conditions attached, whether for theatre or music hall.

BIRTHS, MARRIAGES, & DEATHS.

The charge for inserting in "The Era" an announcement of a Birth, a Marriage, or a Death, or an "In Memoriam" notice, not exceeding twenty-four words, is One Shilling and Sixpence.

As a guarantee of good faith, the name and address of the sender must accompany each notice.

IN MEMORIAM.

ADAMS. — In ever-loving memory of my darling mother, Sarah Ann Adams (Cicely Nott), widow of Saml. Adams, Esq., who fell asleep Jan. 3, 1900. Ever deeply mourned by her devoted daughter, ADA BLANCHE.

I lov'd her, ah, no tongue can tell,
How much I lov'd her, and how well.
God lov'd her too; He thought it best
To take her home with Him to rest.

ATKIN.—In ever-loving memory of my dear husband, John A. Atkin, who passed away Jan. 2, 1907.

CULLING.—In loving memory of Ada Clare (Mrs. Otto C. Culling), who passed away Dec. 31, 1903. Never forgotten by Georgie de Lara-Allen.

MELVILLE.—In loving memory of George Melville, the actor, who died Dec. 26, 1898.

"Why should our tears with sorrow flow
When God recalls his own,
And bid us leave this world of woe
For an immortal crown?"

Sadly missed by his loving daughter ALICE.

THE ERA

SATURDAY, JANUARY 1, 1910.

THE DRAMATIC YEAR.

The past dramatic year has not been remarkable for many prodigies, either in acting or playwriting; but the supply of new pieces has been interesting and adequate. One of the strongest plays of the intellectual order which was presented in 1909 was Mr. JOHN GALSWORTHY'S Strife, which was produced at the Duke of York's Theatre in March. It was, perhaps, unfortunate in being transplanted to the Adelphi, a house which was unsuitable to it; but, despite its short run, it remains an unforgettable and forceful work. But all else in the way of enterprise and experiment pales before Sir HERBERT TREE'S production of a translation of M. BRIEUX'S La Foi, tried at His Majesty's in September. Agnostic in tendency, but strangely and impressively dramatic, it was a most striking and memorable work. The same may be said of M. RENE FAUCHOIS' poetical Beethoven, which, through the advantageous medium of Mr. LOUIS N. PARKER'S scholarly translation, went to the hearts of all at His Majesty's in November. A play which dealt, with scathing satire, with certain contemporary abuses was Mr. JAMES BERNARD FAGAN'S The Earth, done at the Kingsway in April; and a strong drama was Mr. PERCIVAL LANDON'S piece The House Opposite, which had a very good reception at the Queen's Theatre. Sir A. W. PINERO'S Mid-Channel at the St. James's was a noble example of the philosophical play with a moral; and it is difficult to decide if the public resented the sermon or the unhappy fate of the heroine. It was a fine work, worthy of comparison with French masterpieces. Mr. R. C. CARTON'S Lorrimer Sabiston, Dramatist, at the same theatre, was another example of the difficulty of being both serious and successful; and a very intelligent, if slightly inconsequent, piece was The Head of the Firm, which was presented at the Vaudeville in March—an adaptation from the Danish of HJALMAR BERGSTRÖM. Amongst the intellectual dramas of the year must certainly be included Mr. RUDOLF BESIER'S Don, which is still running at the Criterion after a successful stay at the Haymarket; and the production of a translation of MAETERLINCK'S Blue Bird at the latter house is worthy of mention.

The list of dramas of a more theatrical nature was very well filled. Mr. ARTHUR BOURCHIER at the Garrick presented an adaptation of HENRY BERNSTEIN'S Samson, which made a deep impression; and a still more striking success was achieved with Mr. CLYDE FITCH'S effective and sensational piece The Woman in the Case. Sir ARTHUR CONAN DOYLE turned one of his novels into a thrilling play, Fires of Fate, which was produced at the Lyric in June; Mr. NORMAN FORBES, who had made of one of DUMAS the elder's novels a drama called The Prisoner of the Bastille, revived it at the Lyceum in May; and Mr. WILLIAM DEVEREUX, the author of the immensely effective and exciting Henry of Navarre, which was produced at the New Theatre in January, followed up his triumph with a second success in Sir Walter Ralegh at the Lyric in October. A very well-planned piece was Madame X, a translation of La Femme X, by ALEXANDRE BISSON, which proved affecting and attractive at the Globe; and Mr. JUSTIN HUNTLY MCCARTHY'S Proud Prince was deservedly prosperous at the Lyceum. A piece which created a sensation by its apropos appeal to patriotic feeling was An Englishman's Home, which made an immediate hit at Wyndham's in January; and The Whip at Drury Lane was more than up to the average of Mr. ARTHUR COLLINS'S marvellous productions.

There was no want of comedy and farce in the dramatic fare of 1909. Mr. MAUGHAN'S Penelope, with its droll situations, was a success at the Comedy, where the same author's clever satire Smith was, and is at present, extremely popular. In Mr. Preedy and the Countess at the Criterion, Mr. R. C. CARTON excelled himself in his delightfully original style; Mr. FAGAN'S Merry Devil at the Playhouse was an interesting imitation of old comedy; and a version of Les Gaietés du Veuvage, produced at the Royalty in March under the title of The Noble Spaniard, was amusingly reminiscent of a bygone form of entertainment. Mr. ARTHUR LAW'S Artful Miss Dearing was favourably received at Terry's in April; and Mr. F. ANSTEY'S Brass Bottle at the Vaudeville was voted very droll, Mr. MONCKTON HOFFE'S Little Damozel achieving success at Wyndham's in October. The lighter forms of musical entertainment were well represented. The Dollar Princess at Daly's had all the requisites of a popular musical play, and Our Miss Gibbs at the Gaiety was quite up to the high-water mark of that vivacious establishment. Mr. ROBERT COURTNEIDGE at the Shaftesbury in April made a triumphant opening with that clever and pretty piece The Arcadians; and at the Savoy we have had The Mountaineers and a pretty GILBERT-GERMAN opera, Fallen Fairies, bringing with it echoes from a pleasant past.

Nor has there been any want of supply of the serious and romantic drama. Two notable revivals were given at the Queen's Theatre by Mr. H. B. IRVING of The Bells and of The Lyons Mail, each proving intensely interesting and impressive. At the Haymarket, Mr. HERBERT TRENCH revived King Lear in artistic and reverent fashion, and a revival of Hamlet at the Lyceum in March was quite creditable and conscientious, and attracted much attention.

The experimental theatres teemed with productions by the various clubs formed for the purpose of giving novices a hearing. It cannot be said that any great genius was discovered; but there was much merit in some of the pieces presented.

In opera there were several novelties worthy of remark, SAINT-SAËN'S Samson and Delila, CLAUDE DEBUSSY'S Pélléas and Mélisande, and FREDERIC D'ERLANGER'S Tess—the libretto of the last-named founded on THOMAS HARDY'S famous novel—being all offered at Covent Garden in the course of the twelvemonth.

A feature of the year was the large number of revivals; and, though these unfortunately often indicated that a failure had preceded them, they were none the less acceptable, and often quite profitable to the managements.

The movement in favour of a National Theatre has been continued; and the special publication in this paper of the names of the trustees selected by the anonymous donor of £70,000, and of the bank at which the sum is deposited, may serve to assist the efforts of the projectors of a scheme which deserves the sympathy of all lovers of the drama and of our great national poet.

ACTORS' ASSOCIATION.

Minutes of the council meeting held at 32, Regent-street, on Tuesday, Dec. 28. Present: Mr. Clarence Derwent (in the chair), Mr. H. W. Mote (solicitor), Messrs. C. Hayden Coffin, Cyril Cattley, Frederick Morland, Lewis Casson, J. Poole Kirkwood, Gilbert Esmond, Clive Currie, Leonard Shepherd, Miss Agnes Imlay, Miss Rose Mathews, Miss Marion Lind, and Mr. D. Young (secretary).

The minutes of the meeting held on Dec. 21 were read and confirmed.

The secretary read a letter from Mr. Mote recommending Messrs. Barnes, Dunn, and Broughton as accountants, and the council directed him to arrange with that firm.

Mr. Hayden Coffin drew attention to an interview that he had had with Sir Herbert Tree, and the chairman read a letter from Sir Herbert relative to the return of the actor-managers. After prolonged discussion, it was decided that a letter in the following terms be sent to Sir Herbert Tree:—

"Dear Sir Herbert Tree,

"The council have before them your letter to Mr. C. Hayden Coffin, and, at his request, they reply to you direct.

"The objects and views of the Association, as expressed in the Articles, are unaltered from what they were when you and other actor-managers took an active interest in the Association.

"As you probably know, for the past three years there has been a party in the Association favouring "trades unionism," but the majority of the present council are strongly opposed to such a policy, and are in favour of actor-managers being members of the Association.

"They have sounded members as to their views, and they have every reason to hope that at the next annual general meeting the members of the Association will, by a large majority, extend a formal invitation to the actor-managers to resume their former interest in the Association."

The voting on the proposal was as follows:—For—Messrs. Cattley, Currie, Kirkwood, Miss Imlay. Against—Messrs. Esmond, Miss Lind, Miss Rose Mathews. Mr. Morland did not vote.

The following resolution was carried: "That it be a standing order of the council that no individual member of the council shall discuss, through the public Press, actions of the council not reported in the published minutes."

The secretary read a letter from Mr. Edward Terry, who kindly offered them the use of the theatre for the annual general meeting, on Jan. 25 next, and the secretary was instructed to write to Mr. Terry thanking him for his kindness, and on behalf of the council.

The hon. solicitor reported that he had an interview with a member on the subject of a verbal contract, and had written a letter on her behalf.

Mr. Esmond drew attention to "Emergency Exit" from the Rehearsal Room. It was proposed by Mr. Casson, seconded by Mr. Esmond, "That a fire-box indicating where the key was to be found, shou'd be placed in the Rehearsal Room, and attention be drawn to the fact."

The annual general meeting is fixed for Jan. 25 next, and the nominations for the council must be sent in not later than Jan. 4.

The following were elected: William G. Fay, Herbert Garthorne, and Beryl Forbes. The nominations were H. A. Saintsbury, Hamilton Deane, Harry Gerrish, Eva Balfour, Ethel Fifield, and Roy Byford.

THE home of the late James A. Herne, author of Shore Acres and other plays, at Southampton, Long Island, New York, was completely destroyed by fire on the 11th inst. The place was known as "Herne Oaks," and included eighty acres of land, being one of the finest estates on Long Island. Mrs. Herne and her son Jack were in the house at the time, and they had a narrow escape. The manuscripts of several plays were destroyed. The loss is estimated at $50,000, and is partly covered by insurance.

"CHARLEY'S AUNT" AT THE ROYALTY.

Revival of Mr. Brandon Thomas's Farcical Comedy, in Three Acts, on Monday, Dec. 27.

Colonel Sir Francis Chesney, Bart. ..... MR. C. F. COLLINGS
Stephen Spettigue ..... MR. ROY BYFORD
Jack Chesney ..... MR. HUGH ARDALE
Charley Wykeham ..... MR. ROBERT BURNETT
Lord Fancourt Babberley ..... MR. ARTHUR CHESNEY
Brasset ..... MR. SYDNEY COMPTON
Donna Lucia D'Alvadorez ..... MISS ELINOR FOSTER
Kitty Verdun ..... MISS VALERIE WYNGATE
Amy Spettigue ..... MISS ETHEL FIFIELD
Ela Delahay ..... MISS CHRISTINE RAYNER

Charley's Aunt bobs up serenely like Christmas roses to add its quota of seasonable fun at Yuletide. It has been at Terry's, the Comedy, and is now in its old home at the Royalty, where on Monday two packed houses gave it the heartiest of welcomes. From far Cathay to California, from China to Peru, Mr. Brandon Thomas's farcical comedy has exerted its cheery influence. We are afraid to state the number of languages into which its amusing dialogue has been translated, and we are not certain whether it has been done into Esperanto. Its frankly farcical spirit has not evaporated with the passing of years, and to hear crowded audiences laughing at its amusing situations, conceived and carried through in the broadest spirit, and its irrepressible fun, is a most refreshing experience. Its frolic and its gaiety are just of that robust order which appeals so universally to theatre-goers, and the cast at the Royalty acts throughout in the rollicking spirit of farce with the most successful results. The part originally played by the author, Mr. Brandon Thomas, is now assigned to Mr. C. F. Collings, a capital actor, who makes a most favourable impression by his hearty geniality as the retired Indian officer. Mr. Collings, indeed, is responsible for a highly-finished and well-balanced impersonation, and in his proposal of marriage to Babs this Sir Francis Chesney does not make the mistake of not being perfectly serious—an attitude quite necessary if the real strength of the comedy is to be brought out. To the proposal scene Mr. Arthur Chesney as Babs gives a most droll complexion, the assumed coyness of the supposed widow being delightfully funny, and the actor sounds the note of pure drollery in his delineation, which from first to last gives every excuse for laughter. Mr. Roy Byford as the grumpy guardian Spettigue makes that lovelorn creature an unctuous promoter of diverting business, which has a most exhilarating effect on the general representation of the comedy. Mr. Hugh Ardale as Jack Chesney is particularly breezy and alert, especially so in the first act, where the two undergraduates arrange the luncheon for the dear girls, and plays with a delightfully natural touch. Mr. Robert Burnett is also a lively and impressionable "young college gentleman," and as free-and-easy as one could possibly wish, giving a spirited embodiment of the character. Mr. Sydney Compton as Brasset, the college scout, repeats an impersonation that is in the vein of pure comedy. We suspect Brasset of a good heart underneath the veneer of self-interest at any rate as played by Mr. Compton, he is a diplomatist of the first water. Miss Elinor Foster, a most attractive Donna Lucia, is quite irresistible in her scenes, realising the complete unconsciousness of the part most adequately; and Miss Valerie Wyngate as Kitty Verdun and Miss Ethel Fifield as Amy Spettigue are fresh and winsome representatives of the two healthy-minded English girls beloved by the two undergraduates. The touch of romance in the character of Ela Delahay is well emphasised by Miss Christine Rayner. Mr. Cecil Barth is Mr. Brandon Thomas's courteous representative "in front."

THE A.A. ELECTION.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—As I have been nominated as a candidate for the Council of the Actors' Association at the coming election, I should be greatly obliged if you would kindly allow me space in your columns to place my views before the members. I am a trade unionist. By this I mean that I believe the Actors' Association should be organised as an association of wage-earners, for the purpose of maintaining and improving the conditions of their employment. With this end in view the association should endeavour to secure:

1. Payment for rehearsals and matinées.
2. A £2 minimum.
3. The systematic exposure of bogus managers.

These objects cannot, of course, be easily or quickly attained. One of the chief difficulties we have to surmount is the indifference and despondency of actors themselves. I think, therefore, that the Council should take advantage of the spacious new premises into which we have moved to organise lectures and discussions, by which these and other kindred subjects connected with the improvement of the actor's position may be brought prominently to the attention of the members.

While working on these lines, I believe it can, and should, be made quite clear that we are not acting in any spirit of hostility to managers.

In regard to the new premises, while I feel that the headquarters of the association should be made as comfortable for the members as our means will allow, I think the Council should always bear in mind that the association exists, in the first place, "to protect and advance the interests of the members and of the theatrical profession generally," and must not be allowed to become a mere social club.

The same argument applies to the agency. The Council should do all in its power to make the agency efficient, while never forgetting that the chief purpose of the association is to protect the interests of the members in their work, and not to provide them with work.

There is one matter which has lately attracted a good deal of attention, and which I can hardly pass over in silence, much as I should like to do so. Believing, as I do, that the association should be organised in the interests of wage-earners, it follows that I must believe it should not include employers of labour. I hold the same views on this subject as I did three years ago, when I was first elected to the Council. No attempt, however, has been made since 1907 to alter the Articles of Association with a view to exclude managers. I do not believe that any attempt in this direction would be successful. If the Articles of Association cannot be altered, my duty is to be loyal to them regardless of any personal opinions. I will be no party, therefore, to any policy which has for its object the exclusion of persons who by the Articles of Association are fully qualified for membership. Further, I see nothing in the step lately taken by the Council, supported by a large number of members, which is in any way open to the charge of disloyalty to the association. The question of what either the Council, or individual members of the association, are or are not justified in doing is to be decided by reference to the Articles of Association as they are, and not by anyone's views as to what the Articles of Association ought to be.

It only remains for me to remind the members that I am a provincial actor, and therefore cannot promise more than a regular attendance at Council meetings whenever I am in London. It would be a good thing if candidates could be found among those working in London who would adequately represent the views of the members. It is only in default of a sufficient number of such candidates being nominated that I can ask for any votes to be given to myself.—Yours faithfully,

FREDERICK MORLAND.

Mr. Hackett ..... MR. CYRIL LEIGH
Inspector Marston ..... MR. ERIC WILD
Clerk of the Court ..... MR. A. AUSTIN
Foreman of Jury ..... MR. BERT J. WILSON
Usher of the Court ..... MR. FRANK BARRETT
Mrs. Creele ..... MISS VERE HERBERT
Betty Tuttlebee ..... MISS CLARRIE YANDELL
Lady Sybil Welton ..... MISS ELAINE VERNER
Rose Avondale ..... MISS WARD

Brimful of interest and no impeachment of the human nature laws, Mr. Clarke's play had a capital reception at the leading house at Warrington on Monday afternoon. The author has not departed from the orthodox lines, but has done his work with much skill. There is always a true touch of sincerity in the development of the piece, which cannot fail to win admiration.

In the first scene we are at the home of General Barton, and the early phases of the play show that Herbert Barton, his son, is in love with Rose Avondale, an affection of which the autocratic father does not approve. Martin Avondale is a sturdy yeoman with a greatly loved daughter, Rose. Herbert Barton, a rising young barrister, son of General Barton, has promised to marry her, but his father, the General, intervenes, sends for old Avondale, and adroitly manages not only to separate the lovers, but to get his son engaged to the wealthy and proud beauty Lady Sybil Welton. At the end of the first act old Farmer Avondale is stricken with sudden blindness. Later, the loveless marriage of Herbert Barton and Lady Sybil turns out as badly as might be expected, the wife being jealous, passionate, and at times absolutely mad. Herbert finds consolation with his early love, whom he has not the courage to undeceive as to the fact of his marriage tie, hoping that before long he will be enabled to make Rose Avondale his real wife. Lady Sybil tracks down the couple, exposes the true state of affairs, and, in her violence, drives Rose out into the world with her baby, utterly friendless and in the deepest despair at her terrible position.

A blackmailing foreign rascal named Colombe, learning part of Herbert Barton's secret, steals Rose's child, substituting for it a dead baby he obtains from a tramp. Arrested on the charge of infanticide, the wretched mother begs to be allowed to see the body of her lost baby, and in a strenuous scene declares, on viewing it, that the dead child is not hers at all. This statement is, of course, unbelievable in view of the circumstances, backed up by the false statements of those who have conspired against her.

In Act III. Rose Avondale is found awaiting her case to come on, having first had a heart-rending interview with her father, who fails to recognise her voice, and then being placed in the dock to take her trial, she finds that the judge who sits to try the case is, by a curious but entirely reasonable combination of circumstances, the actual father of the supposed dead baby with whose murder she stands on trial for her life. Circumstantial evidence against her is so strong that nothing but a verdict of guilty can be returned by the jury. This leads up to the passing of a sentence of death, which her judge finds himself unable to complete, and the curtain falls after an impassioned appeal for mercy by a young counsel, on one of the most ingenious, pathetic, and dramatic situations ever devised. The last act in no sense falls away in interest. The erring but deeply wronged daughter is brought back to her sightless father, the mad wife of Herbert Barton dies, and he, now a repentant and broken man, proves his sincerity in the eyes of both father and daughter, whilst the stolen child is restored, the blackmailer arrested, and, upon a picture of prospective happiness, the final curtain falls.

Miss Ward as Rose Avondale was an immense success, the charm and grace of the character being given with excellent effect, the note struck in the emotional passages being true, deep, and sincere. Miss Elaine Verner won highest praise for her clever characterisation of Lady Sybil Welton; and in the lighter rôle of Betty Tuttlebee Miss Clarrie Yandell was a chic personage. Mr. Harding Thomas as the sturdy yeoman Martin Avondale imparted the author's conception of the stricken father with a fidelity which won the highest encomiums; Mr. Clifford Rean showed what a firm and strong actor he is by the power which he displayed throughout in the delineation of Herbert Barton; Mr. C. W. Spencer as the autocratic General Barton looked and acted the part to the letter; and Randal Meredith had a true exponent in Mr. Bernard Elliott. As the unscrupulous Colombe, Mr. Charles Yorke imparted plenty of dramatic force; and a good study of Alf Snickers was that of Mr. Walter Walmsley. Mr. T. Edward Ward was a typical mine host; and there was a professional air associated with Mr. Cyril Leigh's portrayal of Mr. Hackett, K.C. The remaining rôles were well filled, and the play was admirably dressed and mounted, the scenery, from the brush of Mr. F. Daie, of Warrington, calling forth words of admiration.

A Cruel Joke.

MR. HARRY NICHOLLS writes:—"The story you published in last week's Era of the actor and the cat at Drury Lane Theatre is extremely funny, and the incident itself was witnessed with the keenest enjoyment by those who had the good fortune to be present. What could be more excruciatingly comic than that a cat should stroll on to the stage and rub himself against the legs of the unfortunate actor who was delivering one of the most important speeches in the part of Macbeth? To be sure, it meant the shattering of every hope of success that the actor (William Rignold was his name) had cherished. But what of that? It was so funny! It had been the ambition of the dear old man's life to play Macbeth in a West End London theatre, and his opportunity came when he was called upon to support the great Italian tragedienne Adelaide Ristori in her performance of Lady Macbeth. And this is what came of it! Roars of laughter when the cat made its appearance—titters and murmurs of 'Where's the cat?' every time Macbeth came on the stage. When the play was over he laughed with the rest, like the sportsman he was; but is it not just possible that he may have left the theatre that night sick at heart, a sad and disappointed man?"

"Swift Succour."

A CORRESPONDENT writes: "I should like to make known, through your paper, a case of 'swift succour,' which is, I think, a record. An old actor, 'hard up,' was on his way from Glasgow to London. He had reached Middlesbrough, mostly on foot, in the late bitter weather—those who know the district traversed will appreciate the task—and was absolutely 'stoney.' He applied for help to the stage manager of the travelling company at the Theatre Royal, who referred the matter to the local manager. The latter wrote at once to an influential shipping friend. Please note: The first appeal was made at 7 p.m. In two hours the old fellow returned from the home of the steamship company's manager, beaming, with a free passage to London, a special note to the steward re food, &c., and permission to go on board over night, the boat sailing early the next morning. This was supplemented with pocket money collected by the real benefactor, the first aider, the giver of 'swift succour,' George Imeson, of Middlesbrough."

AMUSEMENTS IN AUSTRALIA.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

MELBOURNE, Nov. 22, 1909.—HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. J. C. Williamson; Business-Manager, Mr. E. J. Tait.—After a most successful run extending over four weeks, The Merry Widow was withdrawn on Friday night last. On Saturday evening The Lady Dandies was produced for the first time in Melbourne, and proved an instantaneous success. Miss Florence Young as chief of the lady exquisites did excellent work, her singing and acting throughout completely captivating her audience. Miss Florence Young's voice never fails to do justice to the music allotted her. A pronounced success of the evening was a vivacious duet with Mr. D. B. O'Connor, "Tell me that you are a bold desperado." Other numbers that met with genuine approval include "Not so silly as we look," quaintly rendered by Mr. Victor Gouriet and Mr. Fred Leslie; "I always come back to you," by Mr. Arthur Hunter; and a crowning trifle, "The coquette." The concerted pieces and the choruses are charged with lilt and swing, of which the performers make the most. The stage pictures are very attractive and florid, especially that of the Café du Caveau. The Lady Dandies will be continued till further notice.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees, Messrs. Carke, Meynell, and Gunn; Business-Manager, Mr. Arthur Levy.—The last nights of The Girl Behind the Counter, which has been drawing large audiences for the past four weeks, are announced. On Saturday evening next The Belle of Mayfair will be revived for a brief season.

KING'S THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. Bland Holt; Business-Manager, Mr. Simonsens.—That powerful drama, The Bondman, has been filling this theatre for the past two weeks, and on Saturday evening many people were unable to gain admission. Notwithstanding the popularity of the present production, Mr. Bland Holt is determined to keep faith with the public as regards frequent changes of programme, and Saturday evening next sees a special revival of The White Heather. Mr. Bland Holt's present season at this theatre terminates on Dec. 2nd next.

OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor, Mr. Harry Rickards; Business-Manager, Mr. Fred Aydon.—Packed houses are the order of the day at this popular place of amusement. New artists are arriving weekly, and Saturday evening saw the first appearance in Australia of Hassan, an Indian magician. His tricks included some clever conjuring done very cleanly. Hassan's turn throughout was watched with keen interest, and this artist is sure to become a popular favourite with Opera House patrons. Captain Winston's remarkable performing seals, which have proved a strong draw for some time past, will appear for the last time on Thursday evening next. Other excellent turns are provided by Blake and Granby, Chas. J. Johnston, Miss Athmore Grey, Gwennie Hasto, Walter Emerson, Rupert Cuthbert, Vaud and Verne, Tom Dawson, Baby Watson, and the Price Sisters.

GAIETY THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. James Brennan; Business-Manager, Mr. Harry Brennan.—Mr. Brennan is submitting a particularly strong programme to his patrons just now, and in consequence the house is filled nightly. On Saturday evening Deno and Campbell (pantomimists) made their first appearance, and met with a good reception; Vernon and Mack (acrobats and hand balancers) also appeared for the first time, and gave a neat and clever turn. The present programme includes Ella Airlie, monologue entertainer; Driscoll Brothers, patter comedians; George Dean, descriptive vocalist; Stella Ranger, balladist; J. P. Knowles, comedian, and many others.

MR. CHARLES FROHMAN intends to produce several American plays at the Répertoire Theatre, in London, including The Climax and A Woman's Way. Miss Grace George scored a conspicuous success in New York and other cities in the latter play.

FOR Boxing and two following nights the stirring drama Under Two Flags proved a huge attraction at the New Royal Theatre, King's Lynn. As Louis Victor Mr. Douglas Murray was excellent; Mr. Roy Jackson was an earnest Lord Rockingham; Mr. C. E. Johnson faithfully portrayed Black Hawk; Miss Elizabeth Dundas was a stately and beautiful Princess; and Miss Alice Defoe a characteristically vivacious Cigarette.

MISS MARY AUSTIN and Mr. E. Vivian Edmonds' company in The Cotton Spinner is proving a great holiday attraction at the Empire Theatre, Swindon. The title-rôle is powerfully portrayed by Mr. E. Vivian Edmonds; and Miss Mary Austin gives a sympathetic rendering of Mary Prescott. Mr. T. Roydan is a good Lord Northbury; Arthur Northbury finds a capable exponent in Mr. Geo. Porteous; Mr. Dashwood as Nobbs and Miss Nellie Hayes in the part of Smirk are amusing; Mr. W. H. Dewhurst is well placed as Major Stratton; Mr. W. Thornton makes an excellent Foster Cuningham; Miss Florence Hamilton a successful Lady Charlotte Needy; and the Constance Harrington of Miss Ethel Vinroy is ably sustained. The one-act play, The Reward, precedes.

AT the Crown Theatre, Eccles, Mr. James Kiddie's company is presenting the story of The Forty Thieves. The scenery and dresses are much above the average to be found in a travelling pantomime. The part of Abdallah has a capital representative in Miss Rose Pareezer, whose songs were well received; Mr. Mark Merry was responsible for much merriment as Kaderick; Mr. Arthur Burton as Cassim Baba gave a humorous performance; Mr. Reg Amber as Mustapha contributed largely to the success; and chief among the funmakers was Mr. Percy Curry, who, as Ali Baba, made the most of every opportunity and caused many aching sides. Miss Elsie Steadman as Ganem quickly won the good graces of the audience with her winning style; as did also Miss Lyle Jeffries as Morgiana, her singing and dancing being one of the successes of the night. Messrs. Fame and Fortune as Pitchett and Poppit worked well together, and their various scenes went admirably.

"THE WEDDING DAY," a play produced at the Hackett Theatre, New York, at a special matinée, dealt with a "slip 'twixt the cup and the lip" in the sense of the old saying, but the "slip" in this instance was caused by a cup, with fiery contents, reaching the lip too often. The scene of the play is laid in New York at the present time, and the action takes place between midnight and noon of the following day. Genevieve Lawrence on the eve of her marriage indulges in a little jollification with her friends at a restaurant and becomes intoxicated. Fearing to return home in such a condition, she calls on Forrest Nixon, a friend of the man she is about to marry. Nixon, very much astonished, sends her to the home of her aunt, Mrs. Estey. He tries to persaude her to tell her fiancé, Edward Leaming, of her mistake, but she is unable to muster up courage until the wedding guests are assembled and the ceremony is about to begin. When Leaming learns the truth he renounces her. Nixon, who has loved her for a long time, defends her and makes her a proposal of marriage, which is rejected. Then Leaming forgives her, and declares his willingness to go on with the ceremony. She declines, however, and the guests are dismissed. She will marry no one until she has shown that she has some strength of character, in the meantime avoiding wine suppers. The play was well acted by Messrs. Walter D. Greene, Sheldon Lewis, Forrest Winant, and Miss Jessie Bonstelle and Miss Jane Darwell.

VARIETY GOSSIP.

THE fourth annual general meeting of the Variety Artists' Federation will be held at the Bedford Head Hotel, Maiden-lane, Strand, W.C., on Sunday, Jan. 16, at 6 o'clock prompt. Mr. Fred Russell, who will preside, will give the chairman's address, and the general secretary, Mr. W. H. Clemart, his report. The V.A.F. balance-sheet up to Dec. 31, 1909, will be submitted, and a discussion will be initiated on the General Federation of Trade Unions.

A MEETING of the cinematograph trade will be held at the Holborn Restaurant on Wednesday next, at 2.30 p.m., when everyone interested—manufacturers, factors, hirers, and showmen—are earnestly requested to attend. The questions to be discussed are vital to the interest of all, viz., the proposed regulations of the London C.C. and provincial governing bodies.

RUMOURS are rife in regard to that combine, and a nearer rapprochement of the Barrasford and De Frece interests is said to be imminent. Mr. Will Collins, formerly London district manager for the Moss-Stoll Empires, who has been responsible for the bookings of the Barrasford tour for the London Theatres of Varieties and Barrasford, Ltd., has, it is understood, relinquished that position, and rumour again places him with Mr. de Frece.

MISS VESTA VICTORIA, who has just recovered from her indisposition of last week, and who is heading the bills at the London Pavilion and Hippodrome, Balham, was asked by the directors of the Syndicate halls to deputise for Miss Marie Lloyd at the Tivoli on Monday and Tuesday last. Needless to say, the popular comedienne met with a very flattering reception. It is some considerable time since the Tivoli audiences have had the opportunity of seeing her at that house.

MISS VICTORIA is introducing two new numbers, one entitled "Skating; or, the same place every time," the second being "The Arcadians," which promises to be one of the finest numbers she has given. She sang no less than twenty-two songs on Monday, playing five turns and matinées. She will now appear in London for some considerable time to come.

YOUNG CHARLES COBORN enjoyed himself immensely at the Old Folks' Dinner, given by the Variety Artists' Benevolent Fund to the veterans of variety who have passed the limit of life assigned by the Psalmist. He writes: "What a party of 'grand old men' and, but no—nothing shall tempt me to apply so ungallant an expression to the members of the fair sex who graced the festive board. True, there was one lady who even claimed the acquaintance of some eighty summers, but her brightness and vivacity must have caused the most trustful of her word to question the correctness of her arithmetic. Then there was young Amy Ellis, whom some of us remember, shining brightly as the 'Northern Star.' If some of the 'serios' of to-day had heard her sing her song amout the perambulator, they would have been forced to allow that they could profit much by observing such style, force, and elegance. My word, she did make a hit!'

"BUT just a word on our president, dear 'Old Joe' Elvin. He was a regular Christmas fairy. Not only did he contribute to the feast liberally, but presided at the commencement of it, and slyly left a New Year's gift for each of the poor old guests. With a 'God bless you all,' he ran away, so as not to jeopardise his health and business (he then suffering from a cold), and left affairs in the capable hands of Mr. Fred Herbert, the chairman of the committee. Later on Fred made an excellent speech in eulogy of the president, which was received with the wildest enthusitsm, and later still, another in responding to the toast of his own health, wealth, and prosperity, which was proposed by young Coborn, who was trying all the time to keep secret the fact that he was in the last month of his thirty-fourth year in the business.

"OH, but he was a mere boy compared with some present. Amongst the speech-makers, and by no means the least worthy, was our young friend Billy West, with his seventy-seven years. Ralph Edgar, too—no spring chicken—gave his quota to the flood of eloquence; James Lenton came and sang—and sang well, so did Albert Devoy, Bob Gates, and others of the guests, and the committee were well represented by Pat Carey, T. C. Callaghan, Fred Herbert, C. Coborn, H. Cory Woodrow, and two kindly and charming lady visitors—Miss Florence Raynor and Miss Violet Murray. But the one who took down all our numbers was good old Nat Emmett.

"ALTHOUGH Nat owned to being in his eightieth year, the vigour, point, and elocutionary excellence with which he rendered a charming little recitation, 'The Pen and the Press,' formed an object-lesson in the way in which it should be done, and none hesitated to allow that his contribution was the gem of the occasion. Time and space fail me to dilate upon the excellence of the fare and the splendid assistance rendered by Mr. Harry Sutch (the best and most accommodating of pianists), who was the very spirit of music and harmony."

MR. NEIL KENYON, whose sketches of the "Bostie of Dunrobin" and other characters have stamped him as the first Scottish comedian of the day, is by way of entering the ranks of musical comedy. He has been secured by Mr. A. F. Henderson for the chief comedy rôle in a new musical piece, entitled The Islander, written by Mr. Maxwell Bailey and composed by Mr. Michael Faraday, who was responsible for the music of the successful Egyptian opera Amasis. The Islander will find a home at the Adelphi, possibly at the conclusion of the run of Sir Arthur Conan Doyle's successful piece, The House of Temperley.

THE Scots humorist will play the part of a Persian grandee, but whether he will be an "islander" or an "Highlander" time alone can prove. It is but a few years since Mr. Neil Kenyon made his début in town at the London Pavilion, having been given his first engagement there by Mr. Frank Glenister, an astute judge of comedians from North of the Tweed; for it was he who brought Harry Lauder for the first time to a West-End house; and Jock Whiteford is another of his finds.

KITTIE RAYBURN seems to have scored another big success as Aladdin at the Lyric Theatre, Hammersmith, and to have been fortunate enough to secure a clever comedy topical song, entitled "If I had a word to say," which bids fair to be as popular a success as her great topical song "He's a bloke as I'd like to go out wiv." The boys of the Thames-side suburb, and the girls as well, give it hearty welcome.

MR. ERNEST SHAND is singing a new song entitled "Nelson and Me," written by Mr. Bertrand Davis. The make-up has never been attempted on the music hall stage since Charles Godfrey played the great sailor at the Oxford, and is therefore in the nature of a novelty. "The Agitator," written by Tom Wick—author of many of Mr. Shand's successes, such as "Bachelors," "The last pub," The Territorial sailor," &c.—is going extremely well.

MR. FRANK DANBY'S charming and successful comedietta Love in a Coffee Shop has been well booked up, and he opens next Monday his provincial tour at the Grand, Birmingham (Messrs. Moss and Stoll). He will be supported by Mr. Edward McLean and Miss Isa Cresse.

MR. G. H. ELLIOTT is scoring a great success in pantomime at the Prince's Theatre, Bristol. In a letter to his agent, Tom Pacey, he says:—"I made a record hit on the opening night. On my first entrance, in scene three, I was greeted with a tremendous reception which lasted fully a minute. My first song, "How d'yer do, my baby?" stormed the house, which cheered to the echo. In scene six I sang 'I used to sigh for the silvery moon'; this stormed them just the same. They simply cheered me to the echo. I concluded the first scene of the second part with 'Good-night, number one,' and after an encore I had to take calls in the following scenes before the pantomime was allowed to go on."

MR. FRED CONNOR'S circus opened its winter season at the Crystal Palace on Boxing Day, giving three performances to crowded houses. The general verdict is: The best circus seen at the Palace for years. Mr. Connor has every reason to feel proud of his two children, Mona and Douglas, whose riding exploits quite captivated the huge audience at each performance.

THE seating accommodation of the orchestra stalls at the Palace Theatre, Plymouth, has recently been greatly improved, presumably as a Christmas gift to the patrons of that part of the house, the seats now being arranged in semi-circular fashion, and the flooring recarpeted. The alterations and additions have given universal satisfaction, and materially add to the comfort of patrons.

THE local entertainments at Herne Bay have done well this Christmas under the able direction of Mr. Arthur J. Barclay, who is running them for the Urban District Council. Miss Grace Warner, who is playing this week at the Town Hall Theatre, has decided to extend her stay two days, Monday and Tuesday next week. Miss Warner has with her an excellent company. Ruffell's Bioscope is also doing well at the Pier Pavilion.

MR. SAMUEL LLOYD, the energetic and popular manager of the Pavilion, Glasgow, is at present seriously ill with an attack of pneumonia. In the circumstances the employees naturally postponed their annual Christmas supper and dance, which was due for Dec. 24. Our latest advices were that Mr. Lloyd had taken a decided turn for the better, though still very weak.

No little sensation was caused in Blackpool at the end of last week by the startling announce- that the Blackpool Tower Company had acquired the Grand Theatre from Mr. Sergenson, the original proprietor. Of course, it has been known for some time that the property was in the market, an advertisement to that effect having appeared in our columns, but no one suspected for a moment that it was likely to pass into the hands of the Tower Company, of which Mr. George H. Harrop is the general manager.

UNIVERSAL regret is expressed that Mr. Sergenson should have retired from management, as he has been the means of introducing all the best London companies to Blackpool; but we have not the slightest doubt that Mr. Harrop will not be found wanting in this respect. This is not by any means his first plunge into the legitimate, for in the days of his youth he was intimately associated with many theatrical ventures; but that is another story.

As will be seen by our advertising columns, the theatre will be closed until the Easter Holidays, during which time it will be thoroughly renovated. When this is done, it will probably not be surpassed in beauty and comfort by any theatre in the provinces.

THE second anniversary of the opening of Barrasford's Hippodrome, Sheffield, was celebrated last week, and on the Friday night, at the close of the second performance, the whole of the staff, members of the orchestra, and the artists appearing during the week had a pleasant gathering on the stage, presided over by the popular manager, Mr. Frank Poole, who in a short speech spoke of the great success which had attended the house since its opening. In conclusion Mr. Poole referred in appreciative terms to the loyalty of the staff, and the good feeling which prevailed all round.

THE recent matinée at Barrasford's Hippodrome, Sheffield, on behalf of "Sheffield's Poor Children," realised the magnificent sum of £222 15s. 2d. This constitutes a record for Sheffield so far as charity matinées are concerned.

THE death was announced in our columns last week of August (Harold Griffin), a clown of considerable popularity in the ring, and a partner in the combination, August and September. Mr Griffin, to the deep regret of his many friends in and out of the profession, passed away after a short illness. For a number of years he had been connected with the Tower Circus, Blackpool, where he and his partner were very popular. He broke down at Oldham in November last, and was only laid up a fortnight.

OF notable interest was the wedding which took place on Thursday, Dec. 23, at Christ Church, Lord-street, Southport. The contracting parties were Mr. Sydney Milton Tootal, of Baxenden, and Miss Violet Abra Palfrey, late of The Merry Widow company, Apollo, Paris, where she made such a success last year. Having sat for over 1,500 photographs, she looked very dainty and pretty—quite a picture, and fully deserved the reputation she has gained of being one of the beautiful women of the present day. Her gown was of real old Brussels lace, the train composed of ivory satin, clouded over with chiffon, and draped with the lace. She wore a magnificent rope of pearls, the gift of the bridegroom, and a large picture hat with huge plumes completed her attire. Her bracelet, earrings, and pendant, composed of real old scarabæ of historic value, were the gift of Wissa H. Eheid, Consul de France. Mrs. Eric Wyld, who attended the bride, wore blue, and looked very charming. She carried lilies of the valley and violets.

MR. EDGAR DAWSON, of Blackpool, acted as best man, and his gift was a beautiful solid silver tea service. Mrs. Eric Wyld presented the bride with a valuable toilet set. The ceremony took place at twelve o'clock, and Canon Hardy Honeyborne officiated. After the ceremony the happy couple and friends motored to the bride's residence, where the wedding breakfast was held. The presents were numerous and costly. The bride's travelling dress was of elephant-grey and white satin, over which she wore a beautiful full-length sealskin coat handsomely bordered with real skunk fur, and carried a muff to match. The dresses were made by Paquin, Paris. The happy couple will reside in Southport after the honeymoon.

JOHN LAWSON'S latest production, The Miracle, will be seen at the Holborn Empire on Monday next. It was a success at the Olympia, Shoreditch.

MISS LOUIE TRACY, the Dapper Dandy Boy, commences on Monday next, at the Palace, Bath, a nineteen week's provincial tour, returning to town on May 15, for a short season, prior to her departure for South Africa, in July.

MISS LOUISA PEACH'S American episode, The Settler's Daughter, has been very enthusiastically received at the Palace, Bow, this week. She will be at the Middlesex with it next week, and at Mr. Raymond's Hall, Walthamstow, Jan. 10 and 17.

THOSE famous musical clowns the Brothers Webb finished on Friday a five months' Continental tour, and are exclusively engaged from Monday next for eight weeks at the Empire.

FOR the production of the sensational dramatic episode The Russian Princess, by Frederick Maxwell, the talented actress Miss Lois du Cane has engaged a particularly strong company. The jewelled head dress to be worn by Miss Du Cane as the Princess Claudia was presented to her specially for the part by her friend, Miss Victoria Monks. The sketch will be produced at the Empire, Camberwell, on Monday next.

SWAN AND VESTA produced a clever little sketch at Greenwich Palace last week. The story is of three people—viz., a coster, his wife, and child. The man is obsessed on the subject of Limericks, and while parting with everything he possesses, lives on the hope of winning £50 in a Limerick competition. His wife and child are greatly distressed at his persistence; but just as things are at their worst and hope is almost gone, he wins the £50, and the curtain falls on a joyous family making plans as to the investment of the money so opportunely won.

MISS ROSE DEARING, who is well known on the halls as a single turn, has, in conjunction with Miss Ely Helene, scored an emphatic success in her new duologue, We Dine at Seven, being played at the Shepherds Bush Empire this week, and has already received several offers for future bookings. It is a distinct novelty, and goes with a yell of laughter from start to finish.

THE 640th meeting of the Executive Committee of the M.H.A.R.A. was held at the offices of the Association on Wednesday afternoon, Mr. Fred Herbert in the chair. The financial statement, showing thirty-three new members and a cash total of £39 6s. was passed.

MISS MABEL MAVIS, the talented lady musician, is continuing her triumphal career through the Stoll tour by scoring heavily this week at the Hackney Empire. Next week she will make magic melody for the delight of the patrons of the sister hall in Holloway.

MISS DOROTHY WARD, the well-known musical comedy artist, who is playing with such enormous success the part of principal boy at the Prince of Wales's Theatre, Birmingham, is taking a great interest in the welfare of the poor children of the city, she having been born in Birmingham. She has forwarded the following letter to Mr. J. Stevenson, the superintendent of the school attendance officers of the Birmingham Education Department:—"I shall esteem it a great favour if you and your officers will kindly arrange to provide a tea and entertainment for about a thousand poor children in Birmingham as early as possible in the New Year. I enclose a cheque to defray cost, and shall endeavour to be present, and hope to have the support of several fellow-artists. My object in doing this is to brighten the lives of some of Birmingham's poor children, if only for a few hours, and that the affair will be successful is the sincere wish of a Birmingham girl."

IN South London there are many kind hearts, and the efforts made by music hall managers to lighten the burden of life among the very poor in the mean streets of Southwark are worthy of every encouragemnt. At the Surrey on Thursday, the 23rd ult., Mr Roy Cochrane and his loyal and enthusiastic staff welcomed four thousand of South London's poorest little ones at a special matinée. Each kiddie, on entering the house, had placed in its delighted hands a package containing sufficient material for a good meal, and the big crowd soon became busy with the eatables. The band soon livened them up with popular choruses, and Punch and Judy, conjuring, kinematography, and illustrated songs passed the happy hours away. The house had a festive aspect, with its Yuletide decorations.

MR. COCHRANE continued his self-imposed charitable labours on Friday (yesterday), when he entertained 2,000 of the aged poor from the neighbouring workhouses. The fact that the sum of £56, to be spent on these charity functions, has been collected in pennies and halfpennies in answer to appeals from the stage of the Surrey proves once again the truth of the saying that it is the poor who help the poor.

MR. WILLIAM PAYNE, manager of the South London, is not to be outdone by his neighbour across the road, and to-day gives his annual treat to five thousand children, who will assemble this afternoon at the house he so ably manages to enjoy a New Year's free treat. The performance will be under the distinguished patronage of the Mayor of Southwark, the Rev. Canon Horsley, a leader of social reform Sir William Treloar, the cripples' friend, the Right Hon. R K. Causton, M.P., and the Aldermen and Councillors of the borough.

MESSRS. HENRI GROS, HENRY TOZER AND JOSEPH DAVIS head the list of the committee and donors, among which are the chief musical and dramatic agents. Kindly salesmen of Covent Garden and the Borough Markets have arranged to send on plenty of fruit for the boys and girls, and a right royal entertainment, specially constituted to appeal to the heart of a child, will be given.

MR. JOSEPH SOMERS AND MR. GEORGE JOHN STEBBINGS (both of Briff, Braff, and Broff) were initiated into the mysteries of the Terriers' Order on Sunday last. The ceremony was performed by Terrier Ben Whiteley, P.W.T., assisted by Terrier Harry Gribben, V.T. Terrier W. L. Murray officiated as Organist. Messrs. W. J. Makey, Andrew T. Wright, Richard Edmondson, and James Hare, candidates for membership of the Terriers' Association, have successfully passed the ballot.

A SMOKING concert was held on Sunday last after the usual meeting of the Terriers' Association, at the Three Stags Hotel, Kennington. Terrier W. L. Murray occupied the chair. The following artists appeared with their customary success, viz., Terrier T. C. Callaghan, "Oh, what a lovely dream"; Terrier C. C. Cornish, "The preacher and the bear" and "Swanee River"; Terrier Alf. Norton, "Twankidillo"; Mr. A. Bracey, "Vanity Fair"; Terrier Barney Hyams, "Wait till my ship comes home"; Terrier Arthur Were, the Dream Scene, from The Bells; Terrier Harry Gribben, "Fluttering in the breeze" and "The Bowery Boy." Terrier Callaghan acted as musical director, and Terrier J. Chas. Moore was the accompanist. A ladies' concert will be held on Sunday next at the Three Stags Hotel at 8.15 p.m. All Terriers in town are earnestly requested to attend the usual meeting, which will commence at 6.45 sharp.

MISS RENEE RALPH, daughter of Ted Young, has made a great success in William Watson's pantomime, Robinson Crusoe, at the Hippodrome, Rotherham, in which she is playing second boy. Her song, "The girl in the clogs and shawl" is the hit of the production.

MR. ARTHUR AISTON received the wire announcing the birth of his son just as he was making his first entrance on the stage at the Grand Theatre, West Hartlepool, where he is playing Will Atkins in Mr. Harry Burns's production of Robinson Crusoe. He was so elated with the good news that he went on and scored an enormous success.

LA BELLE MORGAN, Australia's charming musical comedy artist, created a sensation at the Opera House, Southport, on Boxing night as Robin Hood in J. F. Elliston's pantomime, Babes in the Wood. So charmed and delighted was Mr. Elliston with Miss Morgan's performance, that he immediately offered to engage her for his next year's production. La Belle Morgan has only been a short time in this country, and after her performance in the above pantomime, she will take her place as one of the most brilliant pantomime principal boys.

MR. G. RHODES PARRY, recently the manager of the Palace, Grimsby, took up a similar position on Monday at the Crouch End Hippodrome. Mr. Parry has had previous London experience in managerial positions at the London, Shoreditch, at Collins's, and at the Crystal Palace, and has been associated with the Palace, Leeds, the Palace, Manchester, and the district managership of the De Frece circuit.

MR. BERNARD MERVYN produced on Dec. 22 at the Variety Theatre, Hoxton, for the first time on any stage, a new and original playlet, entitled Nick Carter, the Man from Pinkerton's, written by himself and Ivan P. Gore. Although originally booked to open on Jan. 3 at the Palace, Bow, it has been found necessary, owing to the heaviness of the production, to postpone it until the 10th inst., when it will be seen at the above house.

ON Monday night the Lyric, Hammersmith, pantomime, after being accompanied with roars of laughter and cheers throughout, was at the close given such a hurricane of applause that Mr. Wentworth Croke appeared on the stage and publicly thanked the audience, the artists, and his staff, specially mentioning his appreciation of the hard work performed by Miss Rayburn, the principal boy; Mr. Fred S. Jennings, his general-manager at the Lyric; and Mr. Thos. Barry, who produced the pantomime. His remarks were loudly applauded by the audience.

PATRONS of the Hippodrome, Rotherhithe, will have an opportunity of hearing that celebrated soprano, Miss Nellie Brierley, who is playing in G. W. Blythe's musical scena, entitled The Toilers. The business arrangements of The Toilers are in the hands of Beecham and Wheeler, through whose office these artists have secured contracts with Moss' Empires, Barrasford's Tour, &c.

MR. ALFRED BUTT has engaged for the Palace Theatre next Monday a troupe of Chinese artists. From their description it would appear that these could provide a whole variety entertainment by themselves. The Tschin-Maa troupe are stated to be marvellous Asiatic magicians, juggiers, contortionists, dancers of the Pagoda, equilibrists, conjurers, and acrobats—truly a good list for an entertainment to be crammed into twenty-five minutes.

MR. CYRIL MAUDE and Elise Craven appear at the Coliseum on Monday in Mr. Jellicoe and the Fairy. Another important item in the programme is the Slaviansky Russian Choir, who appear for the first time in England. The singers are dressed in the picturesque national costume. The conductor is Mlle. Slavianski, who is said to have inherited the musical talent of her father, the founder of the choir.

MR. CHARLES COBORN is repeating this week at the Paragon the splendid success he achieved lately at the South London. Numerous recalls testify to his popularity at that colossal establishment. The large foreign element welcome with delight his chippy little contributions in German, Dutch, Hebrew, &c., in the chorus of "Two lovely black eyes," which he has reproduced by desire. By the way, it was for the Paragon that Mr. Coborn wrote the now world-famed song in the spring of 1886.

FEW men in the variety profession have had such a varied experience as Mr. Fred Reeves. Though still a young man, he can point to strenuous years as a performer, as a proprietor, and as a manager. With his brother he ran the Gaiety, Leicester, in the eighties, the firm being called Reeves and Verdo, and he signalised his management of the Palace, Hammersmith, by initiating special anniversary entertainments that lasted a week. With such experience and such excellent business qualifications Fred, as he is generally called by his legion of friends, was marked out for a career in which the commercial side is uppermost, and a few years ago he joined Mr. Tom Pacey. He soon, however, commenced on his own, and his clientèle has grown by leaps and bounds. Just lately Mr. Reeves has taken into partnership his son Horace, a most apt pupil and a keen hustler, and the Cedars, Grove-road, Brixton, has become a busy centre.

To Mr. John Lawson, who is playing in The Miracle this week at the Shoreditch Olympia, the following "telegram" has been sent by post:—"The members of 'Zion' (Association of East London Zionists) have much pleasure in presenting this insignificant token of tribute to one of the best and noblest sons of their race (J. Lawson, Esq.), with deep gratitude and Zion's greetings for his true Jewish and kind references to our cause before the public." Mr. Lawson is asked to kindly accept this sincerely-meant message per post instead of a "telegram"—the word that heads it. It was "handed in" on Thursday.

WILLIE ALBERT, forty-four, described as a music hall artist, of Southampton-street, Camberwell, was charged on Tuesday before Mr. Baggallay with begging at Waterloo-road. Police-constable 304 L said the prisoner was stopping people and asking for money toward the cost of a night's lodging. The Prisoner: I am an old clown, and have played at theatres from Drury Lane downwards. I might have thought I knew the people I stopped. Mr. Baggallay: You must not perform in the street. One day's imprisonment.

MR. ARTHUR BOURCHIER'S humble opinion is that "the one-act play is dead, so far as the regular theatre is concerned. People will not come in for it, and if you attempt to play a short sketch as the last item of the programme they seem to conclude at once that your main play is not a success, an assumption very damaging to the bill as a whole. Further, the conventional happy ending, which has been so much discussed of late, is not necessary if the sketch be played at a variety house. The reason for this is that, however deeply the feelings of the audience may have been harrowed, the tragic or pathetic trifle is certain to be followed by a comic 'turn.' By this means the author is able to express himself properly without making rubbish of his play by giving it the 'conventional happy ending.' Candidly, I hold to my opinion that the office of Censor should not be abolished, although there might be modifications now that the line of demarcation between the regular and the variety theatre has practically disappeared."

CAICEDO has recently visited Salt Lake City, heading the Orpheum bill there in his unapproachable wire act, which invariably tops the bills.

MR. BRANSBY WILLIAMS leaves Euston at eleven o'clock this Saturday for New York. He will reach Liverpool at five, sailing thence for New York by the Carmania. He will open at the American Theatre on Jan. 8.

MR. NORMAN PARTRIDGE, who played juvenile lead at the Lyceum during Messrs. Smith and Carpenter's first year of management of that house, is by way of producing, at the Royal Standard on Monday a new dramatic episode entitled Man and the Woman. The actor will be supported by Miss Zana St. George.

MISS EDIE ANDERSON has suffered a severe bereavement in the death of her father, who passed away on Thursday morning, the 23rd ult., succumbing to an attack of bronchitis. Miss Anderson, who has been much touched by the messages of sympathy sent by her friends, whose kindness she desires to acknowledge.

CECIL MERRIE begs to thank sincerely the following gentlemen, who very kindly contributed to his testimonial concert: Messrs. H. and M. Rayne, David Day, W. Dean, Will Dunkley, Harry Barnard, G. P. F. Burgess, Andie Caine, Harry Conlin, Tom Wootwell, Douglas White, Chas. Pratt, John Leopold, Ted E. Box, Geo. Hood, Julian Mack, Walter Stanley, S. N. Salter, W. Hawkins, Geo. Skipper, Oswald Trigg, Harry Calver, Barney Hyam, T. C. Calaghan, C. Cornish, C. Douglas Stuart, and B. Woodger; also those who took part in the concert. There are still a number of tickets out. Would the ladies and gentlemen who have received them kindly communicate?

THE Polar bears enjoyed their rehearsals of the Hippodrome spectacle, The Arctic even more than the actors. Twice every day the seventy animals have had a dive and a dip in the Hippodrome lake—the old arena, now turned into a realistic frozen sea. Mr. Hagenbeck, the biggest animal collector in the world, states that it has taken him twelve years to get the company together. Time was when Greenland whalers used to shoot the old white bears for the sake of their glorious fur, but they allowed the cubs to escape. It was believed that it would be impossible to train the polar bear, but when Mr. Hagenbeck proved this to be an error, he asked the whale hunters to bring him any cubs they could obtain. They are, therefore, Polar by birth, if not by education. The eldest is a great bear in his fourteenth year; the smallest a frolicsome youngster of two.

EVEN as tiny cubs, mere balls of fur, Mr. Hagenbeck has to pay whalers a very high sum for their capture. He can seldom buy a baby bear for much less than £100, while, trained as they are, this collection is worth over £15,000, and no amount of money would persuade the owner to part with them. The trouble is that as the true white bear is to be found only in polar fastnesses, the whalers may return home year after year with not a single cub. The past season brought not a solitary addition to the Hagenbeck menagerie. The big animals were brought from Hamburg to Tilbury, encased in seven gigantic steel cages bigger than any pantechnicon, by a specially-chartered steamer.

MR. EDOUARD JOSE, whose powerful acting in The Strike has firmly established him on the variety stage, has obtained from Mr. Cayley Calvert the sole rights of a successor to that sketch, which proceeds along novel lines, and in which he sees wide and varied scope for the exercise of his dramatic powers. Mr. José will produce the new piece in London as soon as ready.

AT Camberwell on Tuesday Mr. G. P. Wyatt held an inquest concerning the singular death on the South-Eastern and Chatham Railway, in the early hours of Wednesday morning last, of Thomas Taylor, aged thirty-five, a well-known musician and soloist in the Alhambra orchestra, who was in partnership in the firm of Wells and Taylor, nurserymen and florists, of Sydenham.

THE deceased, who left a widow and three children, resided at Sydenham Park, and was returning home by the 11.42 train from Victoria on Tuesday night. On the arrival of the train at the Crystal Palace the window of the carriage was found smashed. A search along the line led to the discovery of Mr. Taylor's body a few yards inside the tunnel near Lordship-lane Station. Mr. Taylor was a season-ticket holder on the line, and usually got home about one o'clock in the morning, after his duty at the Alhambra.

DAVID NAVARRO, musician, and secretary of the Alhambra orchestra, said Mr. Taylor was in a very good position, and, as far as witness knew, had no troubles of any kind. On Tuesday he and deceased were together from 1.40 in the afternoon until eleven o'clock at night. They took part in a school concert at Wimbledon in the afternoon, and then in the orchestra at the Alhambra. Deceased was cheerful and in his usual health, and left to catch his usual train for home. He had been paying out money for some time to members of the orchestra and had a bag of money on him. The jury returned a verdict to the effect that Mr. Taylor was found on the line, but that there was no evidence to show how he came to get out of the train.

THE Secretary of the Music Hall Home desires to thank Mr. W. H. Boardman, Pavilion, Newcastle-on-Tyne, for box collection of 17s., and Leonard Charburn's Young Stars for donation of 2s. 9d.; Dekarro, 6s.; and V.A.B. Fund, 15s. received. C. C. Mannering has sent his annual subscription of £1 1s.

THE old performers in the Home had a most enjoyable time on Christmas Day, and they wish to return their best thanks to the president, vice-president, and committee; also the ladies and gentlemen who so kindly helped to make it so, especially Mr. Joe Elvin (who has never missed sending large Christmas puddings, cakes, tobacco, and cigars).

On Christmas eve, Miss Kitty Colyer and Mrs. Lewis Isaacs visited the inmates, and brought a useful parcel of warm clothes, tobacco, and a Christmas pudding. Mr. Ted E. Box and daughter and Miss Ray Maskell called again with presents for each inmate. Mr. Harry Blake and his brother called late on Christmas Eve, and presented each one of the inmates with a box containing tobacco, pipe, two cigars, matchbox, and a tobacco pouch. Mrs. O'Brien, of "Rule's," Maiden-lane, kindly sent a number of tins of tobacco and a large Christmas pudding. Harry Barnard sent half a gallon of Scotch whisky; and many thanks are due to Mr. George Bush and friend, who contributed music and song, well supported by the old performers themselves. A most enjoyable day was spent, and the old 'uns wish everybody a Happy New Year.

MRS. FRUIN (matron) worked very hard studying the comforts of her large family of old performers. Many thanks for pictorial Christmas cards received from Mr. and Mrs. Harry Bawn, "My Fancy," Arthur Elvy, and many others.

A COMMITTEE meeting will be held at Empire, Camberwell, on Thursday, Jan. 6, at twelve noon. Men's old clothes and boots, always very acceptable, should be sent to the Music Hall Home, 31, Wilson-road, London, S.E.

SONGS, WRITERS, AND SINGERS.

THE representative of a big foreign firm—who has been sojourning in London on business not altogether unconnected with dance music, and who had plenary powers to obtain from the English house of origin if possible the publishing rights for his country of two of the greatest waltzes of the present century—was so struck by the sheaves of telegrams of congratulation relating to panto-mime successes that reached Messrs. Francis and Day's establishment in the course of a single day—telegrams that had arrived from almost every town and city in Great Britain where Christmas annuals are in evidence, that he openly expressed his admiration and astonishment at the number of "winners" emanating from one house for one pantomime season.

HE was the same evening given an object lesson in the magnitude of the celebrated London firm's extensive range of song successes by being taken to a music hall, a house selected haphazard from a list of first class theatres of variety. It chanced to be the Tivoli, and now the intelligent foreigner is convinced that Messrs. Francis and Day's establishment is a kind of Woolwich Arsenal for songs, and that the Tivoli is a sort of "Government proof house," where more "hits" are recorded to the firm's credit in a single evening than even a gun crew supervised by Sir Percy Scott could lay claim to.

AT the Tivoli on the night in question Mr. Frank Harwood sang "Send them along to me"; Mr. Charles Whittle, "Let's all go down the Strand" and "Come and have a drink with me"; Miss Madge Temple, "I'm looking for Mr. Wright" and "I used to sigh for the silvery moon"; Mr. Walter Johnson's fine orchestra played Warwick Williams's grand selection of Francis and Day's melodies, entitled "Christmas Dreams," which was received with acclamation; Mr. George Formby gave his inimitable "Joha Willie: Come on"; Miss Jennie Benson (of King and Benson) gave "If you want to be popular, girls"; and Mr. Gus Elen sang "The coster's pony" and "You've made a fine old mess of it!"

WHEN the programme of one first-class variety theatre alone, out of the large number of such in London and the suburbs, includes no fewer than ten items of great popularity from Messrs. Francis and Day"s catalogue, what would the aggregate number amount to could the vast multitude of provincial houses be reckoned in and a census taken on any night the year round! Small wonder, then, is it that theatrical managers year after year seek the house where sterling successes are looked for as a matter of course, and are—as they have been for more than a quarter of a century—always obtainable

THE London and suburban pantomimes literally bristle with the songs of the famous firm. Like some huge octopus, Pantomime, with Drury Lane and the Lyceum under its body, has stretched out its tentacles, and embraced at all points of the compass to the remotest outskirts, the people's places of amusemnt, and the strong hold it will maintain for many weeks to come is due to and by reason of the many songs obtained from 142, Charing Cross-road—songs which grip and hold like the suckers on the arms of the real giant devil-fish of the Indian Ocean.

PANTOMIMES of the big and little cities and towns all tell the same unvarying tale. All the selected numbers have more than realised expectations, and other ditties from possibly the hugest catalogue of the songs of a people in the world are momentarily coming to the front, "not in single spies, but in whole battalions." But this is only a matter of course with Messrs. Francis and Day, and little notice or surprise is evinced by them at a score of solid successes either in the summer time at coast resorts or at any other season of the year. It is simply with them as it was in the beginning of the house, is now, and will continue to be. The orders for copies of the songs sung in pantomime have already exceeded those for the corresponding period of previous years.

"CHRISTMAS DREAMS," Warwick Williams's great selection of popular melodies, has been featured, not only at every one of the Stoll houses, but by almost all the variety palaces of note throughout the kingdom, and applications for band parts are daily being attended to and dispatched in rotation by Messrs. Francis and Day.

MISS VESTA TILLEY'S reception nightly at the Palace Theatre has been a thing to see, hear, and remember, and it is whispered that the inhabitants of a certain great provincial city (a city which is proud of having been the birthplace of one of the greatest artists of the time) would be terribly jealous—that is, were they able to get into the magnificent temple of amusement that is an adornment to London. Miss Tilley's new songs are a joy to all, and the receptions accorded "Sydney's holidays are in September" and "Jolly good luck to the girl who loves a soldier" are such as only are given to songs of the absolute first class, sung by one who is unapproachable and alone in all she does.

MR. WILL BENTLEY has secured a new song by Maurice Scott, entitled "I couldn't look sorry to save my life." Among the songs of note with which Maurice Scott has been associated, and which have been published by Messrs. Francis and Day during 1909, are the following:—Miss Marie George's "Hello! you fellows!" Gus Elen's "You 'ave made a fine old mess of it!" Ernest Shand's "Rooty Tooty," Vesta Tilley's "That's the time a fellow wants his ma," Mr. Harry Randall's "I'm using Sunday language all the week," Miss Florrie Forde's "What ho! Otto!" Miss Dora Lyric's "Two can live as cheap as one," Mr. Billy Williams's "Here comes Oxo!" and "My old arm-chair," and Miss Rose Elliott's "Shake hands"

MISS VESTA VICTORIA'S new song, "Our little garden's Arcadee; or, leading the simple life," has been causing roars of laughter at the London Pavilion. It is really funny, reflects great credit on author and composer, and is sung in the popular lady's best style—which is saying much.

MISS CARRIE MOORE, who is an established favourite with Liverpool audiences, is scoring a tremendous success with "It's no use taking a girl there" and "Poor old John!" the latter the topical song-hit of the Shakespeare pantomime. It is also a big success at the Theatre Royal, Manchester. Both songs are published by Von Tilzer's.

MISS GERTIE GITANA is featuring, with her usual success, a new song, entitled "You do look well in your old Dutch bonnet." This dainty little number has been secured by the Von Tilzer Music Co.

THE Poluskis, at the Court Theatre pantomime, Liverpool, have in the topical duet "John Bull's Budget" a humorous satire, which promises to become quite the hit of the pantomime; not by reason of its political argument, but by virtue of its whimsical ingenuity. Von Tilzer's are experiencing a tremendous demand for the song, which they are publishing in their sixpenny edition.

MR. NEIL KENYON is making a great hit with Jack Smiles' original song, "For months and months and months," at the Grand Theatre, Glasgow. This song is the hit of all pantomimes.

KITTEE RAYBURN
AS ALADDIN.

LYRIC THEATRE, HAMMERSMITH.
(2nd year Wentworth Croke, Esq.).
Successful Production of her New Comedy Topical Song,
"IF I HAD A WORD TO SAY,"
By J. P. Harrington, Frank Brighten, and Edie Barnett.

CHORUS OF PRAISE.
DAILY TELEGRAPH.

"A popular hero this season is Aladdin, and at the Lyric Theatre, Hammersmith, he is to be found embodied in vivacious Miss Kittee Rayburn. . . . Upon Miss Rayburn's shoulders, as has already been said, fall the responsibilities of the 'principal boy,' and she bears them to good effect. Her song, 'If I had a word to say,' was one of the chief successes, earning four encores, and the audience cheered her vociferously."

MORNING POST.

"Miss Kittee Rayburn strengthened her claim on public favouritism, and sustained the name-part of the adventurous Aladdin with charm and grace."

DAILY MAIL.

"Miss Kittee Rayburn proved greatly acceptable to the audience."

STANDARD.

"Miss Kittee Rayburn as Aladdin is very successful."

EXPRESS.

"Miss Kittee Rayburn is a charming Aladdin."

MORNING LEADER.

"Miss Kittee Rayburn is a vivacious and fascinating Aladdin, and achieved a distinct success."

MISS LYDIA YEAMANS
IN BIRMINGHAM.

THE EMPIRE.

Regular holiday crowds visited the Empire Palace. At the three performances the audiences were in an hilarious mood, and thoroughly enjoyed the entertainment. One of the most effective turns was supplied by Miss Lydia Yeamans. Accompanied on the pianoforte by Mr. F. J. Titus she sang "Sally in Our Alley" splendidly. The popular ballad appealed to the visitors, who cheered the vocalist and deservedly encored her. Miss Yeamans, besides being very successful in this song, also displayed much variety in her programme. She gave a capital imitation of an Irish colleen. Then she appeared as a mimic of children and their ways, and her imitation of a little girl singing a song for the first time in public was delightfully quaint. Altogether, Miss Yeamans created a great impression.—Birmingham Daily Post and Journal, Tuesday, Dec. 28, 1909.

Mirth and good humour pervaded the atmosphere at the Empire last night. Big audiences and a big programme were the order, and so splendidly varied was the programme that there was something to suit all tastes. Lydia Yeamans, the popular Australian actress and vocalist, repeated her old favourite, "Sally in Our Alley," with undiminished zest and success, and afterwards displayed her peculiar gifts as a mimic of people and their ways.—Birmingham Evening Despatch, Tuesday, Dec. 28, 1909.

"LOVE IN A RAILWAY TRAIN."

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—I have to ask you to courteously allow me space in your columns in which to express my sincere regret that, having been, as I am now convinced, erroneously informed that when the sketch Love in a Railway Train was produced at the Waldorf Hotel, my name was published in connection with the authorship, and mistakenly believing the said sketch to have been founded on a story of mine, which had previously appeared in a well-known weekly illustrated paper, I communicated with the managements of the Metropolitan and Euston music halls, at which the said sketch was announced for production, thus causing its withdrawal, and loss and damage to Mr. Laurence Broust, W. F. Stayton, the author of the piece, and other persons concerned, to all of whom I desire to tender profound apologies.—Yours faithfully, CLOTILDE GRAVES.

SONGS, WRITERS, AND SINGERS.

TRULY, the Feldman successes this pantomime season have come "not in single spies but in battalions." Never before, perhaps, in the history of the great Arthur-street firm, have so many and such sterling successes been in evidence in one single year's pantomimes. Many of these productions each contain no less than six or seven of the Feldman songs; and to quote only a few "plums" from a truly exhaustive list, the following may be mentioned as having achieved all that was expected of them—and more:—"Somewhere," "I do like to be beside the seaside," "Molly O'Morgan," "I must go home to-night," "Pretty little girl from Nowhere," "Have you seen Charley Digby?" "Alpine dress," "Come over the garden wall," "Sweet garden Queen," "Gates of your heart," "Don't you hear the bagpipes calling?" "Send me a picture-postcard," "Do you miss me in the dear Homeland?" and "I can't keep my eyes off the girls." Truly, a formidable list.

IN addition to the unparalleled success which Feldman's biggest winner, "Somewhere," is achieving at such London and suburban pantomime houses as the West London, Lyric (Hammersmith), Marlborough, Shakespeare (Clapham), Brixton, Elephant and Castle, Broadway, Royal County (Kingston), Royal (Edmonton), &c., Miss Ada Reeve is scoring an immense artistic triumph with this lovely ballad at the Theatre Royal, Birmingham. Miss Linda D'Amato is also sweetly singing it at the rival Prince of Wales; while, not to be outdone, Miss Florence Dudley "makes good" with it in "Brum" at the Alexandra Theatre. Manchester, Liverpool, Leeds, Bradford, Sheffield, Belfast, Cardiff, Bedford, Eastbourne, Coventry, Hull, Middlesbrough, Scarborough, Southport, and a hundred other important cities and towns have duly followed the worthy lead of Glasgow, Edinburgh, Aberdeen, Dundee, Paisley, &c., and have decisively made "Somewhere" their own.

THE next biggest success to "Somewhere" this year is indubitably "I do like to be beside the seaside," Feldman's great comedy number, by J. Glover-Kind. At the Britannia, Hoxton, Mr. Edward Lauri is making an enormous hit with this song, the same remark applying to Mr. Tom J Morton at the Marlborough and Mr. Arthur Sutcliffe at the Alexandra, to mention only a trio of this song's London pantomime exponents. In the provinces the artists who are singing this great song are legion. Miss Florrie Forde has made a notable success with it at the Theatre Royal, Leeds, and it is also going "great guns" in pantomime in Glasgow, Edinburgh, Aberdeen, Paisley, Nottingham, Hull, Eastbourne, Gateshead, Coventry, Middlesbrough, Darlington, Devonport, Southport, and countless other important pantomime centres throughout these isles.

MESSRS. E. W. ROGERS AND JOHN NEAT'S ear-haunting number "Pretty little girl from Nowhere" has "caught on" in Pantomime Land with astounding rapidity. Mr. Cecil Clayton, at the Lyric, Hammersmith, is most successful in his rendering of this delightful Feldman song. Miss Molly Wynne has created a perfect furore with it at the Alexandra, Birmingham; while at the Theatre Royal, Manchester, Miss Louie Beckmann is equally successful. Miss Gladys Guy, at the New Theatre, Cardiff, Miss Elsie James, at the Grand, Nottingham, and many others, including Miss Topsy Sinden, Grand Opera House, Belfast, have also won golden opinions with this charming song.

MESSRS. FRED GODFREY AND WILL LETTERS' comedy chorus song "Molly O'Morgan" has proved the pantomime success which every good judge anticipated it would be, and both in the theatres of the Metropolis and the provinces also, is nightly delighting many thousands of auditors. Miss Madoline Rees is particularly successful with it at the Borough, Stratford, nor is Miss Iris Fox less fortunate in her rendering of the same tuneful song at the Lyric, Hammersmith. Other London singers are Miss Minnie Mulvey, at the Shakespeare, Clapham, and Miss Madge O'Neill, at the Elephant and Castle. The list of provincial singers of the adventures of "Molly" is far too lengthy to give in detail; suffice it to say that the song is the absolute rage of Leeds; and that charming Miss Ella Retford, at the Theatre Royal, Sheffield, is making an even greater hit with it than she did when she originally sang it at the Tivoli, Strand.

No less than five of the Feldman numbers are being nightly sung in the County Theatre, Reading, pantomime, viz.:—"Somewhere" and "I do like to be beside the seaside," both sung by Miss May Poulton; "Come over the garden wall," sung by Miss May Poulton and Miss Carrie Harding; "Molly O'Morgan," sung by Miss Carrie Harding; and "I can't keep my eyes off the girls," sung by Mr. Chas. Preston.

IN both of Mr. Harry Roxbury's pantomimes, Mother Goose and Sleeping Beauty, no fewer than five of the Feldman numbers are being featured, viz.:—"Somewhere," "Molly O'Morgan," "I must go home to-night," "I do like to be beside the seaside," and "Pretty little girl from Nowhere"; and great successes have all these songs been with these companies, both in Edinburgh and Glasgow.

MR. J. H. SAVILE, writing to Messrs. Feldman and Co. from the Paisley Theatre, says:—"On the opening night and each night since the absolute notable successes were 'Somewhere,' sung by Miss Daisy Morell, and 'I do like to be beside the seaside,' sung by Messrs. Maxford and O'Neill, both of which created a perfect furore, and were taken up by the large audience and sung over and over again. I have given this year 'The Alpine dress you're wearing,' which receives a most artistic rendering from Miss Dorothy Harris, and has been encored each night, and is already the rage of all classes of patrons."

THE following are the texts of a few wires received by Messrs. Feldman and Co. during the past few days:—"'Beside the seaside' and 'Somewhere' enormous successes. Many thanks.—May Poulton, Sinbad, County, Reading." "'Beside the seaside' hit of the pantomime. Compliments of the season.—Florrie Forde, Leeds. "'Molly O'Morgan' terrific hit. Cheered to the echo.—Iris Fox, Pekoe, Lyric, Hammersmith." "Congratulations; terrific success of both songs, 'Seaside' and 'Must go home to-night.'—Fred Barnes, Hull." "'Pretty little girl from Nowhere' great success.—Topsy Sinden, Belfast."

MISS VICTORIA MONKS' most popular chorus song, "There's a girl in Berlin," has exceeded all expectations. It has been made a prominent feature in over thirty pantomimes this season, and bids fair to be the most successful song of the year. It is written and composed by Fred Godfrey, Fred. E. D'Albert, and J. Chas. Moore, and published by the National Music Publishing Company, who will be pleased to submit the song on application from artists in pantomime.

MR. GEORGE ROBEY wires the National Music Publishing Company: "Your song, 'You all want something to cuddle,' an instantaneous and enormous hit." This song is being used throughout the country by the most prominent comedians. If the song you are singing is not a success, write immediately for permission for this great comedy number.

"THE ARCTIC."

An Original Spectacular Dramatic Sketch, by Sydney Blow and Douglas Hoare, Music by Edward Jones, Produced on Monday, Dec. 27, at the London Hippodrome.

Captain Jim Keeley .....MR. FRANK ATHERLEY
Ralph Kingston .....MR. PHILIP CUNINGHAM
Miss Evelyn Fairlie .....MISS EDYTH OLIVE
Larsen .....MR. CECIL KINNAIRD
Jarawak .....MR. STANLEY LATHBURY
Oobloovah .....MR. WATTY BRUNTON

The great scientific topic of the year has been Arctic exploration and Polar research and the controversy raging between Peary and Cook, the honour conferred by the King on Sir Ernest Shackleton, and the efforts being made to form further expeditions naturally foster the public interest in any stage spectacle having for its venue the vast unexplored ice fields of the Arctic Circle. With such a realistic illustration of the perils and privations to which intrepid scientists and sailors are subject as one finds at the Hippodrome even the most experienced northern explorer should be satisfied. The story, told with a wealth of thrilling incidents, with sharp, short, and decisive action, and with even the Aurora Borealis to typify the new dawn that horizons the future of hero and heroine, has been written by Sydney Blow and Douglas Hoare, collaborators already in more than one Stoll triumph, and their work is full of interest. But the outstanding feature of the sketch is the large cohort of bears—no fewer than seventy—whose arrival on the ice pack near the vessel Albatross is in itself a very remarkable illustration of the enterprise in stage realism that has made Hippodrome spectacles a household word in footlight sensations. These ursine pets have been collected by Mr. Carl Hagenbeck, and as the true white Polar bear is to be found only in Polar fastnesses, the difficulties of bringing such a large number together are almost insurmountable. Even Mr. Hagenbeck has taken fourteen years to gather his three-score or so white bears, beautiful creatures all, and some of them magnificent specimens. But to the story.

Evelyn Fairlie, who has organised a relief expedition in search of her lover, Ralph Kingston, has excited the tender passion in the breast of her captain, Jim Keeley, a villain of melodramatic thoroughness in his methods of getting rid of a rival. Keeley has found evidence which it is convenient for him to suppose establishes the fact of Kingston's death. Evelyn, though at first dubious, believes that her lover has perished. Keeley—none too tactful—asserts his love for her, and the girl, naturally indignant at his want of delicacy, commands him not to speak of the subject again. Her disdainful refusal of his suit only steels Keeley's determination to possess her at any price. News comes that Kingston is living, and, weakened with privation, he arrives, to be heartily embraced by the girl of his heart. Kingston has a narrow escape when the Albatross is crushed by the moving ice pack. The reunited pair then make for Longman's Nek in a sledge drawn by Samoyede dogs, but Keeley is before them, and in the second scene he gives further proofs of his scoundrelism by emptying the cache in which the unfortunate Kingston has stored provisions, shooting one of his helpers who wants to "play the game." There is more excitement when the rivals meet, and Keeley thrusts the hero down a crevasse, from which he is rescued by a faithful Eskimo. Hero and villain come eventually to grips, Keeley is shot, and Evelyn rescued. Then, after an interval, the curtain lifts to disclose a wonderful Arctic scene, with hummocks and hills of ice. The herd of bears slide down in twos and threes until the miniature sea—on the waters of which the Aurora Borealis casts a glow—is alive with them, and the unexampled animal display brings a most enchanting spectacle to a conclusion.

The acting honours are pretty evenly divided. Miss Edyth Olive's clear voice and excellent elocution make her delivery of the speeches of Evelyn Fairlie admirably distinct. Mr. Frank Atherley is a stalwart and self-contained villain as Keeley; and Mr. Philip Cuningham gives first-class importance to the rôle of the hero. Mr. Cecil Kinnaird imparts all the necessary decision to the rôle of Larsen; and Mr. Stanley Lathbury and Mr. Watty Brunton make interesting representatives of the small parts of Jarawak and Oobloovah. The scenery, with a subtle sense of atmosphere, is from the artistic brushes of Messrs. W. T. Hemsley and H. Mapleson; and the music, from the pen of Mr. Edward Jones, is most effective. The stage-management of Mr. Richard Winslow is to be heartily praised; and more than ordinary importance attaches to the lighting effects, cleverly produced by Mr. Herbert Hawkins, and to the mechanical devices by Mr. J. Higson. The production has been under the direction of Mr. Sydney Blow.

A great feature of the variety portion of the bill is the entertainment of Paul Cinquevalli, who returns to the Hippodrome after a renewal of his triumphs as a juggler in the new Commonwealth. He is still facile princeps in his line, and retains his prestige and his pre-eminence. A diverting burlesque comedian is Charles T. Aldrich; and other new turns include the Leslie Brothers, whimsical musical clowns; Mr. Leslie Harris, entertainer at the piano; La Freya, in artistic poses; M. Jacques Pintel, a piano virtuoso; and a sketch, The New Prima Donna, by Madame Jacques Renard, which has been written round Miss Marguerite Doré, a cultivated singer. The animated pictures of the natural history of bird life are most interesting.

BIDEL, the most intrepid animal tamer of the nineteenth century, is dead. He was several times mauled by his pets, but nothing daunted him, not even the loss of a leg, which was amputated seven years ago. He had been for nearly half-a-century in the show business, having run away at the early age of eight years to join a travelling menagerie.

"BILLY'S MONEY BOX."

Sketch, in One Act, Produced at the Canterbury, on Dec. 27.

Mr. Elvin can be congratulated on having added another fine sketch to his already long list of successful productions. Billy's Money Box is full of good things, smart sayings, and laughable situations. As Tommy Taggler Mr. Joe Elvin was admirable, and he has created another sporting character, of which he may well be proud. In the opening scene we see a police inspector in conversation with Tommy's wife, and that individual is sneering at Tommy's well-known sporting propensities. There is just the faintest suspicion that the inspector would make love to the lady if he dared, but she is very much in love with her husband, and more especially as he has promised never to back another horse. The entrance of Tommy Taggler in the flashest of sporting make-up is the signal for an outburst of merriment on the part of the audience. He informs his wife that he is going to play in the final of the billiard handicap, and regrets that his boots are so shabby and that his new ones are not yet ready. At that moment Waxy, the local shoemaker, enters with the new boots, which Tommy immediately proceeds to put on. Naturally Waxy wants payment, but Tommy protests that he pays everybody quarterly, and throws his old boots out of the window. Waxy announces that Tommy must pay or fight, and as he is the 9st. 2lb. champion of the district, Tommy thinks discretion the better part of valour, and sorrowfully hands the boots back. Waxy is a kind-hearted youth, and gives Tommy a tip as he leaves to back Jiblets in the last race of the day. Tommy has no money, but remembering that there is £7 in little Billy's money box, takes the money and puts the whole amount on Jiblets. Waxy in the meantime returns with a pair of cheap boots, which out of compassion for Tommy he sells to him for a few pence. One of them has got a curiously marked heel, but merely noting the fact, Tommy puts them on. The inspector re-enters and says that a burglar he is after must be in the vicinity somewhere, as he is wearing a boot with a curiously marked heel, and heel prints tallying with the description are to be seen on the ground all round the house. The wealth of fun Mr. Elvin gets out of the situation can be better imagined than described when the inspector exclaims with emphasis: "If I get hold of that man I'll get him seven years." Jiblets wins, the bootmaker is arrested, and the fun is fast and furious as the curtain descends on an unexpected dénouement. Billy's Money Box is a welcome addition to Mr. Elvin's gallery of mirthful subjects, and was splendidly and briskly played by all concerned. Once more we have to regret that the absence of names on the programme prevents us from giving praise to those supporting Mr. Elvin.

SONGS, WRITERS, AND SINGERS.

THERE is probably no number introduced in any pantomime this year that is making a greater success than the Dutch song "Lena Schmidt," which is being sung at all the principal theatres in the provinces and in London. It is to be heard at the Elephant and Castle Theatre, where it is being presented by Willie Benn's Dutch Boys and Girls. Although valse time melodies are to be frequently met with in this year's pantomime productions, "Lena Schmidt" has originality which at once appeals to audiences. The chorus was readily taken up at the opening performances, and it is safe to predict that before many weeks it will be sung, played, whistled, and hummed all over the country. The words and music are by Alf. Ellerton, jun., and the song is published by the National Music Publishing Company, of 132, Charing Cross-road, W.C. Should your production need strengthening in the way of songs, permission will be given for this and the numbers alluded to below by the above-mentioned firm.

ANOTHER popular number in pantomime is "Won't you come to Madeira with me?" This number is being successfully featured in several London pantomimes by Miss May Beattie at the Britannia Theatre, Hoxton; Miss May Garstang, Borough Theatre, Stratford; Miss Margaret Story-Gofton, Theatre Royal, Woolwich; whilst Miss Ethel Haydon, at the Theatre Royal, Birmingham, has made one of the most decided hits in her career with the number.

ALTHOUGH a rollicking, rousing refrain is essential to a pantomime, a song of more subdued nature is quite as necessary. A number of a sympathetic kind is to be found in "You might shake hands." This is another successful valse time melody published by the National Music Publishing Company. This is being featured with conspicuous success by Miss Edith Haley, Princess's Theatre, Glasgow; Miss Mabel Lait, Theatre Royal, Plymouth; the Floradoras, Theatre Royal, Leeds; Miss Nancy Hearne, Grand Theatre, Newcastle; and in town by Miss May Beattie at the Britannia, Hoxton.

THE well-known firm of Messrs. Ascherberg, Hopwood, and Crew, Ltd., have just published a most attractive number of new songs and pianoforte pieces by world-famous composers. A rollicking sea song is "The yarn of the fiddler's ghost," composed by H. Trotère to the words of Francis Barron, which is a worthy successor to the same composer's popular song, "The bo'sun, the gunner, an' me." There is a fine salt flavour about "The fiddler's ghost," and the chorus is of the "Ri-tol-the-rid-dle-id-idle-ol" order. It is published in B flat and C. In strong contrast to the above comes a series of standard operatic songs and arias with English words, edited by Mr. Edgardo Lévi, R.A.M. There are many clever amateur vocalists who can sing well in English, but make a poor affair of a great aria with Italian or German words. Meyerbeer's "Roberto, o tu che adoro," from the opera Roberto il Diavolo, is a fine example of the series. Admirably printed in bold, clear type, with Italian and English words, Mr. Lévi has added a short account of the composer's life and principal operas, a very welcome feature of the standard edition. Published at the remarkably low price of one shilling and sixpence, they should prove extremely successful.

A GRACEFUL sketch for the piano is Valentine Memery's "La Gondola," not difficult, and very suggestive of a honeymoon on the Grand Canal at Venice. A large number of people are fond of nigger and coon songs, and the serenade two-step "I'll dance till de sun breaks through" should be very popular with its lively and catching melody. Archibald Joyce's song is dedicated to Mr. Bhoodah Studd. Equally adapted to soprano or tenor is the pretty waltz song of Herbert Marshall, with words by Kate Mullen, entitled "The love that lives." Florence Aylward in "Morning in June" has written a most charming valse for piano, and the graceful flowing melody has well marked time, an always important matter for dancers. Another waltz by the eminent composer Emile Waldteufel, "Rosée Waltz," is sure to be popular at all balls and dances this season. Whether a dignified Indian chief ever attempts any dancing except a war dance may be a question, but there is not the slightest doubt that Bertram L'Estrange's "Red-Wing" is a capital two-step. There is a whistling solo, two short verses, and a hint of the Indian tom-tom, which gives character to the lively melody.

A. H. BEHREND has composed a great number of popular songs, and "Fair Land of Kent," words by Frederick Bowyer, ought to be equally successful, and certainly sung by all Kentish men. Behrend has dedicated the song to his friend, Mr. J. P. Kent-Jones. "Le Murmure Caprice," for piano, by Francis Thomé, is a dainty composition, full of melody, and far more artistic than our old friend "The Cascade," once so popular with pianoforte players. Although not particularly difficult, the rippling runs require neat and finished execution. A pretty waltz is always welcome, and "Chanson Rivière," by Bertram L'Estrange, is sure to be a favourite in the ballroom.

"WIENERISCH WALZER," by C. M. Ziehrer, is another graceful example, and would make an excellent contrast to the rousing two-step march, "The American Girl," by Victor Herbert. In their catalogue Messrs. Ascherberg, Hopwood, and Crew announce a number of operatic solos for violin and piano, edited by Henry Tolhurst. A series to meet the demand for high-class solos suitable for students, and as special attention has been paid to bowing and fingering, they should appeal to the teaching profession. The firm have also just published the "Favourite" Song Albums, containing songs sung by Mme. Tetrazzini, Mme. Clara Butt, and Signor Caruso, as well as songs and music from The Dollar Princess and The Mountaineers. A new feature for children is the "Teddy Bear" Album, containing six little pieces about Teddy Bears. Another seasonable production is the "Mortimer" Dance Album of one hundred and twenty pages, for the modest price of one shilling, which contains pretty music by famous composers of every kind of dance.

MISS LILY BRAMMER, who is playing principal girl with Andie Caine's pantomime at East Ham Palace this week, has made a hit with her song and dance "Molly O'Morgan."

MISS MAY MOORE DUPREZ has made a special feature of her song "Jeremiah." The report from the Grand Theatre, Glasgow, says: "The song is going terrific." Price and Reynolds have secured Fred Poplar's great song "The Parliamentary smoking concert," which Mr. George Robey is singing at the Theatre Royal, Birmingham. Reports says: "It is an enormous success, and simply brings down the house at every performance."

MISS MAIDIE SCOTT met with a terrific reception for her song "Maidie and her little Teddy Bear," also "Father's got a job," at the pantomime produced on Boxing Day at The Broadway, New Cross. Price and Reynolds are the publishers.

MISS GLADYS HICKS made a huge success with Messrs. Mellor, Lawrance, and Gifford's dainty song "Old Jack Frost" at the Theatre Royal, Hanley. This song is also being featured in numerous pantomimes, including Broadway, New Cross (by Miss Maidie Francis), Shakespeare, Clapham, &c. Price and Reynolds have many requests for band parts.

SONGS, WRITERS, AND SINGERS.

PRICE & REYNOLDS received report from Mr. Chute's Bristol pantomime: "Miss Lulu Valli scores an immense hit with 'Here's to all the girls.'" Guy Jones' tuneful chorus song is one of the best principal boy songs of the year.

MESSRS. PRICE AND REYNOLDS are having a record year, and have received good reports for the following "hits" in this season's pantomimes:—"Here's to all the girls," "Little Miss Snowshoes," "Old Jack Frost," Baby's Park Parade," "Goodnight, Mr. Knight," "Is your love for me a butterfly?" "Cinderella's Lullaby," "You splash me," "Father's got a job," "If I had a thousand lives to live," "Maidie and her little Teddy Bear," "The little silver buckles on her shoes," "I think I'll be going home now," "Reggie," "Father started rolling on a roller skate," and "Chorus, next verse."

Now that pantomime is well under way, managers and artists are finding out with regard to popular songs that "It's not the hen that cackles the most who lays the largest egg." The following outstanding pantomime winners are all published by the Star Music Co.: "Ship ahoy!" "I've been out with Charlie Brown," "I can picture Polly hanging up the holly," "Sea, sea, sea!" "I can't reach that top note," "I'll let the world go by," "When you're married, girls," "Mister Man in the moon," "I want Mister Schneider," and "I'll saw his see-saw down." This is indeed a formidable list of "hits."

A. J. MILLS AND BENNETT SCOTT have again done the "hat trick" by providing off their own bat seven out of the ten great pantomime winners published by their firm (the Star Music Co.). The claim of these writers to be considered the leaders in this particular class of work is more than vindicated. Verb. sap.

VISITORS to the offices of the Star Music Co. a year ago will remember the formidable number of telegrams (a perfect deluge) received from pantomime artists and managers expressing gratitude and telling of sensational successes scored by the firm's songs. Callers this week will find the same thing, only very much more so. At times the offices have been literally crowded with telegraph boys waiting for replies.

IT would be quite impossible to give the names of all the fair pantomime artists who have made hits with the Star Music Co.'s songs, "Ship ahoy!" "I've been out with Charlie Brown," and "I can picture Polly hanging up the holly"; but amongst them are the Misses Bessie Butt, Lily Morris, Carrie Moore, Violet Lloyd, Maude Mortimer, Daisy Morrell, Cressie Leonard, Ruth Lytton, Marie Reeve, Nellie Wigley, Daisy James, Marie Ambrose, Violet Lorraine, Edna Latonne, May Mars, Simeta Marsden, Dorothy Chard, Dorothy Ward, Iris Coley, Florrie Forde, Yolande Noble, Jessie Templeton, Gracie Graham, Kittee Rayburn, Kitty Upton, Lulu Valli, Ida Valli, Aimée Roberts, Frances Earle, Maud Beaumont, Primrose Harding, Lillie Soutter, Bessie Esmond, May Poulton, Nita Clavering, Meg Hamilton, Madoline Rees, Elsie Steadman, Maud Prenton, Jennie Lynwood, Amy Bellwood, &c.

INDISPUTABLY the greatest comic song of the year is Wilkie Bard's Drury Lane success, "I can't reach that top note." The London and provincial press are unanimous in picking this out as the humorous tit-bit of the splendid Drury Lane production. Practically every important pantomime comedian has secured this number, which is published by the Star Music Co.

MUSIC HALL CELEBRITIES.

MISS ELISE CRAVEN.

"Little Sunlocks," as the phenomenal child dancer named above is often called, comes of a very good family, being related in a measure to the Earl of Craven, her father being a relative of Louisa Brunton, who married the Earl of Craven a couple of generations back. The story of Elise's public appearance is interesting. Her parents took her to a children's party when quite a baby, and she was asked to sing a little song, like the rest of the youngsters. Her reply was, "I'm sorry, but I'll dance instead!" So struck with her grace and technique was the host, that he persuaded her parents to have her trained for the stage. She was placed accordingly in the hands of the accomplished ballet mistress, Mme. Elise Clerc, and so rapid was her progress that she soon became a finished artist.

Let us quote Mme. Elise Clerc's own words:—"Yes, she is a born dancer, and never so happy as when she is dancing; in fact, she just lives for it. Teaching her has been no trouble. She has the most remarkable foot I've ever seen, three of her toes being the same length, a fact which helps to make her toe-work so perfect."

MISS ELISE CRAVEN.

Sir Herbert Beerbohm Tree was the first manager to see what a "find" Elise was. Before this, her services had been offered to nearly every theatrical manager in London for Christmas work, but most of them would not even see her dance. The result was that lovely children's fairy play Pinkie and the Fairies, produced last Christmas at His Majesty's, in which Little Elise Craven as the Queen immediately became famous. Ere three days had passed Mr. Oswald Stoll offered her parents a nett salary of £100 per week to play for seven weeks in a special production at the London Coliseum.

There she duly appeared, after the run of Pinkie, in the fairy fantasy, entitled The Queen of the Fairies, only to meet with still greater success. Within a few hours of her appearance she was booked, with the whole production (herself at the original figure), for a provincial tour on the Moss Circuit for twenty weeks. Her first tour finished at the Empire, Edinburgh, on Dec. 4, and she is now preparing for the production at the Coliseum on Jan. 3 of the new playlet M. Jellicoe and the Fairy, in which she will have no less distinguished a partner than Mr. Cyril Maude.

An example may be given of what little Elise trains on. Chicken, milk, whipped eggs, very underdone steak, with an application twice a day of cold sea-salt water to the legs and feet for strengthening and hardening purposes. Her particular hobby is selling autograph postcards for 9d. each and sending the proceeds to the F.A. Fund. In the provinces she sometimes invites 100 poor children to take tea with her. Her invite says, "Come to tea. Plum cake, but not scandal."

MR. MARK ANTHONY.

Born in Liverpool, Mr. Mark Anthony got his first taste for the profession through seeing the artistic performances of that celebrated entertainer, Fred Maccabe, and eventually became immensely popular as a concert performer under the name of "Serina, the infant Maccabe." Later, he blossomed forth as a thought reader, after the style of the late Irving Bishop, giving a number of succesful séances in the principal districts of Lancashire and Yorkshire. During this time Mr. Anthony's attention was divided between business and entertaining, which he found very trying, so on the principle that one cannot serve two masters, he made up his mind to play the game properly and become a professional out and out.

His first real engagement in that character was with Mr. Harry De Frece at the old Gaiety, Liverpool, which, by-the-way, was one of the earliest "two houses a night" theatres. Then commenced a period of struggle, sometimes as a clown in a travelling circus, sometimes playing general utility in small fit-ups. Mr. Anthony has been in turn ventriloquist, conjurer, actor, and lecturer, each with varying success. Up to that time he worked under the name of Fred Godfrey, but on the advice of a well-known agent he adopted another nom de théâtre in 1892, and since that time has been known under his present name of Mark Anthony.

Mr. Anthony has taken part in various pantomimes, playing Blue Beard, Sister Ann, Ali Baba, Friday, Ibrahim, and others. He has appeared time after time at all the best variety houses, including the Tivoli, Pavilion, Oxford, and Palace. He has turned up smiling in America, India, and Africa, and has also played the Harry Rickards Australasian tour with phenomenal success. Mr. Anthony, who has always stood for refinement in the halls, is at present studying a number of quaint character sketches taken from English life, and, in friendly opposition to the Scotch, intends calling himself "The English comedian." "Let me say in conclusion," says Mr. Anthony, "that my first step to better times was through the kindly influence of that champion old-time performer, Mr. J. W. Rowley, to whom, through the medium of your valuable paper, allow me to return many thanks."

This excellent pantomime met with a hearty reception from a crowded audience on Monday afternoon, and since then it has been played twice nightly during the week to record audiences, whilst good business has been done at both matinées. The story of "the Babes," most prettily related, deals with the attempt to decoy them into the woods at the instigation of the "bad" Baron, the attempt being, happily, frustrated by bold Robin Hood and his merry foresters. The story is told in eight scenes of exquisite design, especial features of which are The Village of Mansfield, The Enchanted Wood, and The Earl of Huntingdon's Palace. As Robin Hood Miss Alice Digby is an ideal principal boy of superlative ability, possessing an excellent voice, and rendering her many songs in a style that is very winning. The character of Maid Marian is in capable hands, Miss Lily Brammer quite excelling herself. The Wicked Baron could hardly have a better exponent than Mr. Wal Kent, and Friar Tuck is admirably played by Mr. Bert Albert. As Dame Anne Chovy Mr. Andie Caine is at his best, and keeps the fun going from start to finish in his own inimitable style. His numerous witticisms keep the audience convulsed with laughter throughout, and his efforts receive well-deserved applause. Mr. Jimmy McGrath soon makes himself a favourite in his rôle of Jimmy Green, and Messrs. Coda and Danson add to the merriment of the audience by their portrayal of Bill Buss and Walley Weary respectively. The chorus and ballet are on an elaborate scale, and excellent variety is provided by the celebrated Sextette of Dancers. The dresses and costumes are beautiful and costly, and the stage effects, mostly electrical, are cleverly executed. Sangridge, the wicked demon, was capably played by Miss Bergitte Lindfrup, and Fairy Luna was sweetly delineated by Miss Hawthorne Thwaites.

MUSIC HALL HOME SHILLING FUND.

This year we are making an earlier appeal than usual on behalf of the Music Hall Home Era Shilling Fund, and with that appeal we have very great pleasure in associating the name of Miss Vesta Tilley, who will for the next few months act as a sort of fairy godmother to the fund. "I think," said Miss Tilley, in conversation with our interviewer the other day, "that the Music Hall Home is a very deserving charity and a very excellent thing. Something of the sort was certainly wanted for the poorer professionals. Every week of my life I give pounds away at the stage-door to numbers of the profession who call upon me for assistance. Now this year I want to create a record in the matter of collections for the fund, and I personally shall work my very hardest for it. In everything I wanted before the profession has always come forward very generously, and I hope that they will help me all they can now. I have a number of private friends who are going to work for me, too. I think, however, that most of the support should come from the professionals themselves. Outside people have their own charities to look after. I have asked my husband if he can arrange special matinées at each of his halls for the benefit of this fund, and he thinks that he will be able to do this. A great deal in that case will rest upon the artists, and if they would turn up we should be enabled to augment the funds of the Home very considerably. Wherever I am now appearing I am fixing up cards so that members of the same company for the week may put their names down for a subscription. I also hope by the sale of autograph postcards in the front of the house to collect a still further sum for the same purpose."

[Photo by Bacon.

As was arranged last year, a solid gold medal will be presented by The Era to the collector who obtains the largest amount for the Fund up to March 31, 1910, the lists closing on that date.

The episode is taken from an event in the American Civil War of 1865. With the exception of one or two incongruities and a sudden and somewhat unexpected ending, it is, upon the whole, a capable piece of condensed drama, and much credit is due to the author for a skilful handling of the dramatic material at his command. The scene is a hut on the Northern Frontier, where Glory Pete, a famous scout of the Southern Army, is awaiting the arrival of his daughter, Nina, who is bringing him despatches. Nina, who is a spy in the Northern Army, soon arrives, and, for the moment, is unrecognised by her father, to whom she explains that in order to obtain and carry the despatches she has had to disguise herself as a Lieutenant, and is known to the Northern Army as Lieutenant Fairley. After telling her father that his life is in great danger, as orders have been issued that he is to be shot on sight, she proceeds to unfold the despatches, when soldiers of the Northern Army arrive, headed by Gerald Kenworth. Kenworth, who is in love with Nina, only recognises her as Fairley, and demands to know why she is there. In order to save his daughter, Pete informs him that he is the prisoner of Fairley, and was captured with the despatches. For the moment the answer is satisfactory, but Kenworth, whose suspicions have been aroused, enquires why the orders regarding the shooting of Pete on sight have not been carried out. He commands the supposed Fairley to shoot, but the ordeal is too great for Nina, and she faints. Then the identity of Lieutenant Fairley becomes known, and Kenworth speedily realises that in shooting old Pete he is killing Nina's love for himself. However, he finds no alternative than to obey orders, and, drawing his revolver, takes careful aim, and is about to fire, when Nina stops him, for she has heard in the distance shouts of jubilation mingled with the playing of bands, and messengers rush in with the glad tidings that peace has been declared, and the war is over. So Glory Pete is not shot.

The dialogue never flags and never bores, and the acting is excellent all through. Mr. Edmund Gurney has a particularly large part, but he is worthy of it, and Mr. James Martin gives the right touch to the part of Gerald Kenworth. Miss Beatrice May makes a charming figure as Nina, and acts with pleasing expression and charm of manner.

Jack Lorimer occupies a prominent position on the Queen's bill, and secures enthusiastic applause. Another to gain the hearty approval of the audience is Edward E. Ford, the Australian sundowner, who, with his mirth-provoking facial contortions and his "cuddling" song, literally makes the house rock with laughter. Angela Ward, handsomely gowned and looking very chic, sings "Come over the garden wall" and "I'm lonely, Lucy lonely." A clever little comedienne is Dot Moss, who sings her songs with point and in a very taking style. Others in the bill are the Lombards, Bonnie Goodwin's Piccaninnies, Furkamp, Capt. Frank Taylor and his baboons, and the Queen's Bioscope, with its usually clear and interesting pictures. The orchestra does capable work, under the direction of Mr. W. Hinkinson, and Messrs. C. Hector and Ben Abrahams are assiduous in looking after the comforts of all visitors.

Golliwog .....Mr. John Braithwaite
Friday .....Mr. Geo. Naggins

A pantomime which might be aptly called "Robinson Crusoe in a Nutshell" has been elected by Mr. Sparrow as the chief attraction for holiday week, and although the adventures of Defoe's shipwrecked hero are submitted to the Empire audiences for only the brief space of one and a half hours at each performance, all that is essential of the story still remains, while nearly all the old favourite songs and several new ones are added. The story of Robinson Crusoe was written as long ago as 1719. Since then it has been read a million times by us grown-ups, and retold often round the wintry fireside to the little ones. It is, therefore, too well known to need repeating, and space is very precious at Christmastide. Let us therefore step from the play to the players.

Miss Lily Simmons is a handsome, dashing principal boy. She makes poor Robinson a favourite both of the boys in the gallery and their more favoured brothers in the stalls; her voice is sweet and powerful, and she has a charm which is all her own. Then comes Polly Perkins, played by Miss Queenie Masey, who is as dainty a little lady as ever flashed her pretty feet before the footlights. Robinson and Polly make a charming couple. Mrs. Crusoe is given into the hands of Mr. Leo Trainor, a capable comedian, who manufactures roars of laughter by his quaint remarks and humorous stagefalls. The bold bad buccaneer, William Atkins, is humorously portrayed by Mr. Harry Monkhouse, whose really funny make-up amuses the elder members as much as the more juvenile portion of the audience. Another comedian who adds in no small way to the success of the piece is Mr. John Braithwaite, who takes the dual rôle of Bill the Bo'sun and Golliwog, King of the Connubial Islands; laughter convulses the audience whenever he comes on the stage. Friday is nearly as necessary to the pantomime Robinson Crusoe as the shipwrecked adventurer himself, and a really successful savage has been found in the person of Mr. George Naggins. The antics of this nigger are truly wonderful to behold, and great credit is due to his ability. Timothy, a ship's apprentice, is also cleverly illustrated by this hard-working humorist. The book has been specially written by Messrs. Mackay and Daly, who have turned out a brilliant libretto.

Mr. Reginald Payne has been re-engaged for his old part—the heavy lead—in Mr. Fred S. Peake's eminently successful costume sketch, entitled The Gambler, and opens at the Birmingham Gaiety on Monday night.

A sensation has been caused by a threatened strike of the ballet at the Paris Opéra. At eleven o'clock on Monday night, just before the representation of the ballet Coppelia, the entire staff, comprising the syndicate of the Academy of Music, the dansenses, and members of the chorus, presented themselves before the managers and refused to appear if their demands as to improved conditions were not granted. After some discussion, the managers yielded, the company consented to appear, and the curtain rose.

"THE MIRACLE."

Dramatic Sketch in five scenes, Produced at the Olympia, Shoreditch, on Dec. 27.

Joseph Emmanuel .....Mr. John Lawson
Cohen Goldstein .....Mr. Campbell Goldsmid
Hotel Manager .....Mr. Charles Stafford
Lorenzo Vachell .....Mr. Edward O'Neill
Prince Wallah .....Mr. George Bushra
Ena Leveson .....Miss Lucile Sidney

For many years Mr. John Lawson has been justly famed for the stirring sketches he has from time to time presented to the public, but we do not remember to have seen him in a part better suited to his invariably fine acting than that of Joseph Emmanuel, a blind Talmudist and Zionist. In The Miracle one stirring incident follows another with almost breathless rapidity, and the story is a succession of plots and counter-plots on the part of a renegade Jew and another scoundrel to discount—if not to utterly discredit—the faith of Israel. They forge an ancient manuscript, and by what it is alleged to prove succeed in bringing about a riot in a synagogue. It is almost needless to add that Joseph Emmanuel, the blind believer, succeeds in exposing the plot. His reward is that his sight is miraculously restored to him.

The sketch was received with the wildest enthusiasm by a crowded house, and there can be no doubt that Mr. Lawson's powerful acting, and the fine support he received from every member of his company, coupled with the appeal to the religious susceptibilities of a great portion of the audience, was responsible for this. The Miracle is magnificently staged, and there are five very fine scenes. The first is a picture of East Africa, scene two is an hotel, the third is called The Wailing Walls of Jerusalem. The next and, to our thinking, the best, is a good and picturesque setting, being the presentation of a synagogue, with its priests and the congregation and the praying shawls complete. It is very realistic.

Mr. Edward O'Neill was entrusted with the part of the "Christian" villain Lorenzo Vachell, and his acting was of the most powerful order. In this he was most ably seconded by Mr. Campbell Goldsmid, who as the apostate Jew, Cohen Goldstein, frequently brought down "the wrath of the gods" on his head in the shape of a storm of hisses never to be forgotten by those who heard it. Both gentlemen are to be heartily congratulated on their very fine performances. Miss Lucile Sidney fills the one lady character in The Miracle, and as Ena Leveson gives a clever and sympathetic rendering of the part. Mr. Geo. Bushra and Mr. Charles Stafford are also very capable in the parts entrusted to them. At present the sketch is somewhat too long, but this will doubtless be remedied at an early date, and then we predict for it a run in our variety theatres which may almost rival the lease of popularity Humanity has enjoyed.

PECKHAM HIPPODROME.

The Christmas programme which the popular manager, Mr. Cecil Paget, is providing at this favourite resort of South Londoners, is attracting crowded houses at every performance. After the overture, ably rendered by the Hippodrome orchestra, under the talented leadership of Mr. David Dealler, we are introduced to the Colonials, who appear in their musical comedy dramatic scena, Unexpected Guests. The scene provided represents a picturesque landscape in the backwoods of Australia, and the sketch serves as a satisfactory framework for introducing the excellent vocal efforts of Miss Lillie Kennion and Messrs. R. K. Woodville, J. Jones, W. Pyle, and R. Undish. The item is very artistic, and is loudly applauded. Miss Rosie Lloyd, who is always a great favourite at Peckham, sings with much archness and vivacity "Who's going to take me for a walk?" leaving the audience, like Oliver Twist, vainly asking for more. Mr. Charles Coverdale appears in his favourite mimetic and patter burlesque act, exciting roars of laughter with his quips and oddities, his burlesque caricatures of various well-known persons being excruciatingly mirth-provoking. Miss Mary Moya scores a great success in what is described on the programme as "a musical spasm," entitled The Comedy Queen, in which, in the rôle of a musical comedy star, she sings very cleverly "I want to be an actress," and a Spanish song. Her costumes are especially tasteful, and she is most ably assisted by that old favourite actress Miss Oliph Webb, whose ripe experience is of the utmost value to the success of the morceau. Mr. Russell Carr as a ventriloquist, with two automatons, proves that he inherits much of the talent of his father, Mr. Fred Russell, and is loudly applauded for his turn. Some of the patter, however, needs to be smartened up. The Cannings are two comely young ladies who play the piano, the fiddle, and the mandoline to the loudly expressed enjoyment of the audience. One of the ladies also uses a very sweet soprano voice to the very best effect. Mr. George Benson scores a most notable success as a mimic, his vocal imitations of Mr. Lashwood, Mr. Formby, and Mr. Sam Mayo being lifelike in their realism.

Mr. John Le Hay and company present a pathetic and well-written sketch, On the Brink, which is received with every sign of favour. Mr Le Hay gives a splendid impersonation of the broken-down old pavement artist, Screever, who dies on the Thames Embankment just as his long-lost daughter has been restored to his arms. Mr. Charles Cantley as Arthur Goodwin, and Miss Norah Le Hay as Katie Screever render most efficient aid in the remaining characters.

A very popular item in the bill is Ivan Tschernoff's wonderfully trained ponies, hounds, terriers, and pigeons; while the efforts of the musical pony Hanna come in for special commendation from the audience. The first-class programme concludes with an interesting series of films, both of a humorous and serious nature on Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope. It should be added that the courteous acting-manager, Mr. H. E. Sawyer, is always looking assiduously after the comfort of his numerous patrons.

THE GREAT RAYMOND.

The famous American illusionist and magician, Maurice F. Raymond, has made his initial appearance in this country at the Hackney Empire this week, and proved an immense attraction. The Great Raymond's comedy spirit seance proved highly diverting and caused unbounded amusement to crowded houses. He first introduced a magic hand, which was placed on a piece of glass in full view of the audience, and answered by tapping, any question put to it. He was then securely tied, feet and hands, and placed in a cabinet with tambourines, which instantly began to rattle, and upon the curtains being opened, he was seen still pinioned. He then, being again tied, invited one of the audience to enter the cabinet, and after a few seconds, during which the curtains were drawn, bells were rung, tambourines rattled, &c., to the astonishment of the audience, the gentleman was found with his coat and vest off, a pail on his head, bells round his neck, &c., Raymond being still tied. The final illusion created great surprise. After Mrs. Raymond had been handcuffed and placed in a sack, which was sealed, and then locked in a box, in less than one second from the time the curtains were closed, she appeared free, and Raymond had taken her place, bound exactly as she had been. The marvellous performance was greatly admired.

A Copy of "The Era" will be forwarded to any address in the United Kingdom for six stamps.

"FORMERLY, LONDON."

THE STORY OF FRED AND HORACE REEVES.

The life story of Mr. Fred Reeves, the well-known variety agent, may be summed up in the historic sentence: "He turned failure into success."

Mr. Reeves says he is getting on in years, and points to his big son, Mr. Horace, in confirmation of his statement. It is true the son is now a partner in his Dad's business, it is true Reeves père was born in 1865, it is true that everybody in the variety business has known Fred longer than can be conveniently remembered, but it is not true that Father Time has laid a heavy hand on him, for to-day there is not a grey hair to be discovered, and despite a strenuous life Reeves, sen., is as active as when, thirty years ago, he was a Benizougzoug Arab, and was required to contort himself to the best of his ability once nightly.

Fred Reeves confesses to being the son of a lawyer, who was also a member of the London School Board, one of the Poor Law Guardians, and likewise chairman of the Westminster Ratepayers' Association. Young Fred had no intention whatever of following in father's footsteps, and at the tender age of eight intimated to the powers that be that he intended to be a music hall artist. The elder Reeves was evidently a wise man, for he argued that if the boy was not tired of the life in six months he would certainly be adapted for the profession he had chosen. So it came about that one day the top of the bill at the Standard, Victoria, read as follows:—

ROWLAND LORRIMER
(Aged Eight).
Marvellous Boy Magician.
The Wonder of the Century.
Must be Seen to be Believed, and Once Seen, will be Seen Again and Again.
Exclusive Engagement of—
ROWLAND LORRIMER
at Enormous Expense.

Well, despite the billing, which was good (or bad) enough to have ruined the act, young Lorrimer did so well that he was at once booked for Wilton's Music Hall, the Raglan, Theobalds-road, the Winchester, Deacon's, Crowder's, Greenwich, the Sun, Knightsbridge, Gatti's (road), the Hungerford, and the famous Evans' Supper Rooms, Covent Garden.

The magic circle did not appeal to young Fred for long, and soon after he began training for the acrobatic business and wire-walking with Nubar Hassan (of the original Benizougzoug Arabs). But again he wanted change, and so it came about that he joined the famous old showman James Fuller and managed his shows, including Astarte, the aerial nymph (which was at one time the rage of London), and all that gentleman's sideshows at the Royal Aquarium during the management of Mr. Wybrow Robertson and Captain Hobson. Later he took to "the road" with Mr. Fuller, and looked after that gentleman's interests and performed for him at all the principal exhibitions.

In those days Christmas entertainments were provided at the Brighton Aquarium, and we find young Reeves in the position of producer there for four years in succession. The list of Mr. Reeves's engagements from that time onwards makes a brave array, and speaks as to the strenuousness of the life he led. He was a member of the first company at the opening of the Scarborough Aquarium, and also a member of the first company at the opening of the Yarmouth Aquarium. He played in (and assisted to produce) the first pantomime at the Devonshire Park Theatre, Eastbourne. He has produced and stage-managed seven pantomimes, and played principal parts in no less than fourteen pantomimes, being for three years with the late Sir Augustus Harris. He has worked every hall of note in London and the provinces in conjunction with Ted Young as Young and Reeves for eight years. When Mr. Reeves became manager of the Empire, Leicester, in conjunction with his brother, Hal Verdo, he retained that position for nine years and a half.

The late Ernest Carpenter, of the Lyceum, was one of Mr. Reeves' closest and best friends, and for him Mr. Reeves managed the Empire, Bristol. Mr. Reeves was the first manager of the Camberwell Palace, which hall he opened under the directorship of Mr. Jesse Sparrow, the late Dan Leno, Mr. Fred Williams, and the late Mr. Herbert Campbell. Next, he assumed the general management of the Hammersmith Palace, where he remained for four years and a half, and everybody in the profession knows what an extremely profitable undertaking the Hammersmith hall became under Mr. Reeves' directorship, and he is naturally very proud of his connection with that place of entertainment. He resigned his position there, leaving on the best of terms with his chief, Mr. J. C. Coe, who presented him with a handsome cheque. Mr. Reeves then went in for music hall agency, and has remained in it ever since. He had twenty-eight years' experience of variety affairs (fourteen years as performer and fourteen years as manager) before joining the ranks of the agents. He never abuses the confidence that managers place in him, and consequently always retains their friendship and a share of their bookings. Most of his turns are booked up for years ahead. He never submits a turn until he has seen it and satisfied himself that it is a suitable one. This system has proved of immense advantage to him, as he has gained the confidence of the people with whom he deals, and has always resulted in a renewal of business transactions. Just over twelve months ago Mr. Reeves took his son (who had previously managed the business) into partnership.

Mr. Reeves married, at the age of twenty, Miss Lottie Chapman, one of the Sisters Chapman, the youngest daughter of Mr. George Chapman, who was at one time manager of the Star, Bermondsey, and until shortly before his death manager of the Standard, Pimlico. Mrs. Reeves is a sister of Mr. Charles Chapman, of Richard Warner's agency.

Mr. and Mrs. Reeves have only the one son (Horace) and two daughters, who are now making a very big success on the halls, in conjunction with a gentleman partner, as the Westbrooks. These young people are admitted to be two of the very best dancers on the variety stage, a branch of the business at which both Mr. and Mrs. Reeves were experts.

Mr. Horace Reeves may be said to have been cradled in the business, for although he is the youngest agent in England, he has spent his life in music halls and agents' offices, and "knows the game from A to Z." When quite a little chap, and at school at Leicester, he used to dash home from school at the week-end and during the whole nine and a half years of his father's stay in the town never missed a single Friday and Saturday night's performance at the Empire.

At the present time Mr. Horace devotes his energies to London, whilst for quite seven months of every year the senior partner is to be found in the provinces and on the Continent. The junior partner says that when he first took his book to the London managers he anticipated "as a boy" having a very rough time of it, but he is delighted to record that, without exception, he has experienced the greatest kindness and consideration from those gentlemen.

When one looks at the snug and well-kept retreat called "The Cedars," in Grove-road, Brixton, one finds it very hard to believe that a very big business is being carried on within its walls. And yet this is so, for the Reeves have the exclusive booking of eighty-four turns, and there are about 160 others. "1066 Brixton" is a busy number nowadays, to be sure; but does the telegraphic address of "Formerly, London," in conjunction with the telephone number suggest that the Reeves family came to England at the time of the Norman Conquest?

SHOREDITCH OLYMPIA.

An excellent holiday programme is being presented at the above handsome and well-regulated hall this week, and much praise is due to those responsible for the performance, which is full of enjoyment and runs without a hitch from beginning to end. On Boxing Day at each performance the house was packed to the extreme, and it is greatly to the credit of Mr. Fred A. Vernall, the energetic and courteous manager here, that in spite of the number present everything went smoothly, and the seating arrangements left nothing to be desired.

Foremost on the bill appears the name of Mr John Lawson in the new sketch of original ideas, The Miracle, full particulars of which are given in another column. Mr. G. W. Foster, a quaint comedian, sings a humorous song, "I blow my whistle," and meets with due appreciation. Mr. Martin Adeson appears with conspicuous success in a comic skit, Dr. Maud's First Patient, and is cleverly and effectively supported by Miss Clara Bernard. The piece is full of drollery, and is exceptionally well received. Mr. Billy Farrell creates a profound impression, and is heartily greeted for his amusing and energetic rendering of "All the coons started cheering." He proves equally as successful in his second contribution, and is applauded accordingly. Miss Mabel Thorne sings in a winsome and charming manner "P—A—I—N—T," and although she met with a substantial reception, time did not permit a second appearance. Mr. Charles Carr musically delivers his song, "I wish I had a girl," and afterwards dances in a manner deserving of warm praise. The Barton and Franklin Trio of instrumentalists vocalists, and dancers play various instruments of a novel description in an harmonious and pleasing manner, and their rendering of the "Lost Chord" on bells of different kinds is a musical treat. The dancing of the two male members of the troupe is well worthy of special mention. Miss Ivy Aberdare scores with her song and dance, as also does Miss Olive Dene, who uses her good voice with taste and skill. An effective and alluring act is supplied by Les Alex Carangoots. Their performance of La Danse du Dragon is of a peculiar and weird character, and is certainly difficult and tiring to accomplish. However, they discharge their arduous duties to perfection, and fully deserve the highest praise for their attractive turn. The Three Cunards appear in their celebrated dancing act, and perform their task with much credit, and some excellent and attractive pictures are shown by the Bioscope.

"PUSS IN BOOTS" AT WALTHAMSTOW.

Pantomime, Produced on Monday afternoon, Dec. 27.

King Komilfo .....Mr. Wyn Weaver
Princess Carita .....Miss Eva Ellis
Donna Dolores .....Mr. Frank Bertram
Sancho .....Mr. Billie Young
Pancho .....Mr. Charles Jackson
Grimalkin .....Mr. Bradon Curry
Bill Bailo .....Mr. Algernon Lee
The Bull ..Messrs. Sam Leo and Bert Goodwin
Lola .....Miss Elsie Don
Perdita .....Miss Josie Hammersley
Juan .....Miss Lucia Collins

The company associated with the production is an excellent one. Miss Lucia Collins, daughter of Miss Lottie Collins, made herself a favourite from her first appearance; her pleasing style and fascinating manner as principal boy won her a host of friends. Mr. Frank Bertram as Donna Dolores causes much laughter. Miss Eva Ellis as Princess Carita is not only a capable actress, but an excellent comedienne. Special mention must also be given to Messrs. Wyn Weaver, Billie Young, Charles Jackson, Bradon Curry as the Cat, Algernon Lee, and Miss Elsie Don as Lola, who must be congratulated on the rendering of her songs. With such a company it was not surprising to find all records have been broken since the opening of the hall six years ago.

MUSIC HALL LADIES' GUILD.

The Christmas tree treat was given at the Horns Hotel, Kennington, on Thursday last, Dec. 23, when over 100 children and their mothers sat down to a good dinner and tea, after which games and entertainments were indulged in, and then all left carrying away new boots, stockings, clothing, toys, &c. Kind messages of regret at inability to be present were received from Miss Kitty Carson, founder of the Theatrical Ladies' Guild, the Rev. Donald Hole, Miss E. G. Clarke, A.C.U., and the Rev. Stephen Barrass. Amongst the visitors were Mr. Paul Martinetti (who represented the Grand Order of Water Rats), the Rev. Humphrey Townsend (who sang to the children), Mrs. Gintaro, Miss Ada M. Page, Mrs. Fred Ginnett's mother (Mrs. Mayer), Miss Flo Banks Miss Amy Elvira, Mr. James Horne and Master J. Horne (who sang to the children), Mrs. Ernest Collins was a visitor, Miss Kate Toole, and Mr. C. C. Bartram. All the members of the M.H.L.G. Executive Committee who were in town were there, and worked very hard to entertain the little ones, and Mr. Joseph Sams must be thanked for his excellent catering.

On behalf of the Committee, Miss May begs most gratefully to acknowledge the following gifts to this good cause:—Miss Lilian Baylis, for sweets; Miss Taylor, for Teddy bears; Mrs. Fred Herbert, for Christmas tree stockings and the Rev. Humphrey Townsend and the friends who have helped him in the collection of toys, &c., for children's Christmas tree. Thanks also to Miss Alexandra Dagmar, £1 1s.; Miss Irma Lorraine, £1; Miss Bessie Slaughter, 2s. 6d.; and Mr. Horace White, 5s. (per Mrs. James Horne). Master Sydney May, Hippodrome, Ipswich, 5s.; Mrs. Paul Murray, 5s.; Mrs. George Gilbey, 5s.; Mrs. R. Young, 10s. (per Mrs. Horne); Mrs. Cato, 2s. 6d.; Mrs. J. W. Hall, 5s. and (collection 2s. 6d.); Master Teddy Levy, 6d., and Miss Dolly Mozart, collecting 8s. 4d. (per Miss Lottie Albert); Mrs. Gintaro, 10s., and some Japanese dolls; Miss Kate Vulcana, 10s. 6d.; Sisters Brilliant, 5s.; Mr. W. H. Clemart, 5s.; and Mr. Burt Shepard, 5s. (per Sisters Macarte). Mrs. Ida L. Caldwell, Coloured Meisters, 5s.; Mr. Wal Pink, 10s. (per Miss Belle Elmore). Mrs. Paul Martinetti, 3s.; Miss Ida Knight, Clacton-on-Sea, 2s. 6d.; Miss Lily Hyde, collecting 12s.; Mr. Alec Barish, Birkenhead, handkerchiefs; Mr. Thomas, grocer, Kennington Road, sweets and fruit; Mrs. Frank Ross, clothing; Miss Leslie Hamilton, St. Leonards-on-Sea, clothing; Mrs. Asher, clothing; Mrs. Carl Hertz, clothing; Mrs. C. C. Bartram, gloves, books, toys, &c.; Miss Blanche Glave, clothing; Miss Ethel Bourne and Mona Garrick, presents; Chief Clerk, Era Office, dressed doll; Miss Grace, clothing; Miss Florence Huntley (through Mrs. Herbert Shelley), warm clothing made by herself; and also the following ladies of the Executive, who bought and sent in warm clothing for the little ones:—Miss Lil Hawthorne, Miss Millie Payne, Mrs. James Horne, Mrs. G. Smythson, Miss Belle Elmore, Mrs. Paul Martinetti, Mrs Eugene Stratton; Miss Mabel Florence sent babies' clothing, and Mrs. Ernest Collins chairs and hassock, while Mr. Mash, florist, Brixton, must be thanked for kindly lending the Christmas tree.

Mrs. Smythson wishes to thank the following for puddings, in addition to those previously thanked: Sisters Macarte, Mrs. Vetter, Mrs. Selkirk, Mrs. Levy (two puddings, per Miss Lottie Albert), Mrs. Walter Stanley (pudding), the Haytors, Mrs. Steeds, A. Friend (Altrincham), Anonymous, Miss Lottie Albert, Miss Millie Payne, Mr. W. R. Pettit (Per Miss Lottie Albert), Mr. W. Cody (two), Miss Edith Manton. The Guild helped nearly forty families to Christmas dinners with English beef and pudding distributed at the Guild rooms, 61, New Oxford-street, W.C., on Friday, the 24th.

The Committee of the M.H.L.G. wish all subscribers a prosperous New Year.

V.A.B.F. DINNER TO OLD ARTISTS.

Between thirty and forty of the oldest professionals living in London were entertained at a Christmas dinner on Tuesday afternoon at the Dover Castle Hotel, Westminster Bridge-road, by the committee of the Variety Artists' Benevolent Fund. Most of these "stars" of a past generation were pensioners of the Fund, and the majority were over seventy years of age. A right royal time was the order of the day, the proceedings being opened by Joe Elvin, hon. trustee of the Fund, who stopped for a few minutes, and who welcomed the guests as "Dear old pals," and hoped they would thoroughly enjoy themselves. With his unvarying generosity, genial Joe, before he left, handed over a bag of florins, one being given to each of the visitors on leaving. Mr. Sydney Mason also most kindly sent a present of a pipe to each of the old men and a packet of tea to each old lady.

After an excellent menu had been done full justice to, Mr. Fred Herbert (chairman of the committee of the Fund), who presided over the gathering—being supported by the following members of the committee: Messrs. Charles Coborn, John Alexander, P. W. Edmonds, Pat Carey, T. C. Callaghan, and C. Douglas Stuart (secretary)—started an excellent concert by calling on Mr. Charles Coborn.

The following volunteer entertainers kindly contributed songs and recitations: Miss Florence Raynor, Miss Violet Murray, Messrs. Pat Carey, C. C. Cornish, T. C. Callaghan, Syd Keith, Arthur Were, Fred Herbert, Amy Ellis, Albert de Voy, James Lenton, Bob Gates, and Nat Emmett, the last-named proving a true delight with his powerful rendering of a recitation, "The Pen and the Press."

During the afternoon two photographs were taken of the merry gathering. Towards the close of the proceedings Mr. Herbert proposed in eulogistic terms the health of everyone's friend, Joe Elvin, and asked all to drink a bumper to "good old Joe," which was readily done, to the accompaniment of musical honours.

Mr. Coborn then proposed the health of the chairman, who, he said, always worked hard for the good of the profession, and also referred to Mr. Douglas Stuart, the Fund's secretary, who, he understood, had first suggested the happy thought of holding that pleasant reunion.

Mr. Herbert, in an eloquent speech, thanked the company, and said he hoped this little function would become an annual affair.

Mr. Douglas Stuart also responded, stating that it was his idea to hold the dinner, and thanked the committee for the support they had given him in carrying out the same. He also trusted that for many years to come the little festivity would be continued. The proceedings closed at seven o'clock by the singing of "Auld Lang Syne," and everyone departed in the happiest possible mood to their homes, conscious of having had at least one bright hour amidst their life of poverty and trouble. One word of thanks must be accorded Mr. Harry Sutch, who worked hard at the piano the whole time, and was a most satisfactory accompanist. In a word, the whole affair was a brilliant success.

The George French Troupe produced a new and novel cycle act on Monday at the Albert Hall, Sheffield, and scored an instantaneous success.

Miss Bertha De Pas excels as a burlesque artist. She quite captivates the lads and lasses in the North of England. This week she "middles" the bill at the Empire, Oldham, and if she continues her successes will soon top the bills at all halls where she is being booked. Messrs. Tom Shaw and Co. are looking after this rising artist's interests.

RINKING GOSSIP AND NOTICES.

Maple Flooring Afloat.

PLIMPTON AND CO., of Liverpool, inform us that they have large shipments of maple flooring now afloat, and are now in a position to deal with orders for this material promptly.

Earl's Court Booming.

CROWDS of would-be skaters were turned away from the Earl's Court rink on Boxing Day, as the floor was too crowded for comfortable skating. There were three sessions, and a few short of 12,000 people paid at the turnstiles during the day.

The Earl's Court Carnival.

A FANCY and evening dress carnival is announced for Friday, Jan. 14, 1910, at the Empress Hall Rink, Earl's Court. Mr. Izod, the manager, has many novel surprises in store for his patrons on this night. Many well-known artists of the variety world will put in an appearance, and it is whispered that one of the novelties being organised is a limelight skating cotillon, in which a lady star artist will lead.

Bertha Doud Mack at Luton.

THIS young lady "hit them hard" at Luton last week. On Saturday night she was presented with an enormous bunch of roses, Mr. Hiley, the manager, stating that it was given by her many admirers on the rink. Miss Mack can consequently be pardoned for the pride she feels in the success she has made.

150,000 People on Wheels on Boxing Day.

IN spite of the absence of frost, nearly 150,000 people in the United Kingdom, it is calculated, indulged in roller skating on Boxing Day. The manager of Olympia calculated that between 14,000 and 15,000 skaters used the rink on Boxing Day. At Brixton the skaters were "coming in by shoals," said the manager, at eight o'clock in the morning, and by the end of the first session—there are five in a day—1,500 pairs of skates had been on the rink. Holland Park had as many as 18,000 visitors during the day.

Holland Park Opened.

WHAT must be one of the very finest skating rinks in the world was opened, under the management of Messrs. Crawford and Wilkins, in Holland Park-avenue last Friday. The arrangements generally leave nothing to be desired, and the skating surface covers close upon 75,000 square feet, and is as near perfection as modern methods can make it. Prices rule on a similar scale to those in force at Olympia, while the catering by Messrs. Letheby and Christopher is excellent. The rink will be devoted to skating until the end of April, when the building will be used for exhibition purposes for five months. After this it will be turned into a circus until the roller-skating season reopens.

Sir William Has a Few Spins.

SIR WM. BULL, M.P., officially declared the rink open, and immediately he had concluded his remarks about one thousand skaters, eagerly waiting, rushed on to the skating surface. Sir William added strength to his opening remarks as to the value of roller skating as a pastime by indulging in a few good spins himself.

George Callis, Manager.

THE Holland Park rink is of no mushroom character, but substantial and tasteful in design, with a gallery running round all four sides, from which those content to be lookers on may secure a bird's-eye view of the animated picture below. Mr. George Callis, who was identified with the Cardiff rink, is in control. In the summer of 1911 it is proposed to hold an International Sports Tournament, with a six-day cycle race, an indoor Marathon, a wrestling tournament, and one or more important boxing contests.

La Scala for a Rink.

THERE are rumours that a company has acquired a lease of the Scala Theatre and will convert it into a roller-skating rink de luxe.

The Ashleys.

THE Ashley Team of grotesque skaters are at the Alexandra Palace, London, this week. Next week they go to the Palace, Northampton.

Coming Carnival at Wandsworth.

A FANCY-DRESS skating carnival will be held at the Central Hall Skating Rink, East-hill, Wandsworth, on Thursday, Jan. 6. No person will be allowed to skate unless in either fancy costume or evening dress, and competitors must enter their names and class on or before mid-day Tuesday, Jan. 4. A gold watch will be given to the lady and a dressing case to the gentleman with best costume in any class, and twenty-eight other valuable prizes will also be awarded.

New London Rinks.

WILLESDEN is shortly to have a rink. The Maida Vale Rink is being proceeded with as fast as possible. The Finsbury Park Rink, just outside the station, has made great progress, and will be opened very shortly. This rink is being constructed by and will be under the management of the Premier Rinks, Ltd., who have rinks open or in course of erection in several parts of the country and the suburbs. At Hammersmith the new rink is nearly completed, and will open its doors on Jan. 22. The rink at Wood Green will be opened on Jan. 15 by the company's general-manager, Mr. A. F. Wilson.

Novelty for the Skating Rink.

A NOVEL skating carnival was arranged at St. Margaret's Hall Skating Rink, East Twickenham, for New Year's Eve, when prizes were given for the most successful head-dresses. Those competing wore ordinary evening dress, with any fancy head-dress they cared for. The effect was extremely quaint and amusing. Some few years ago, it may be remembered, Lord and Lady Alington gave a head-dress dinner party at their house in Portman-square. The men appeared in frock dress—that is to say, ordinary evening dress with knee breeches and silk stockings—and the ladies also wore ordinary dinner dress—but the heads were all dressed in the quaintest fashion. Lord Alington had the head of a Red Indian, with feathers and beads quite correctly arranged; Mr. Walter Burns's head represented a clown, and on all sides original ideas were carried out.

"A Skating Fairyland."

THE new American skating rink in High-street, Merton, on the tram route, is one of the finest rinks of which London suburbia can boast. It has a perfect skating area of over 14,000 sq. ft. The building is an exceedingly spacious one, having a floor space of about 185ft. by 80ft.; it is tall, light and airy, and on entering one feels that sense of freedom so distinguished from the cramped, depressing atmosphere of some rinks. The whole of the roof space has been utilised in a most delightful scheme of decoration. Festoons of flowers and chain-work, with innumerable multi-coloured flags and pennants, amongst which are besprinkled hundreds of small electric bulbs, go to make up a picture of warmth and welcome which is truly delightful. The proprietors claim it to be "a skating fairyland," and really they cannot be accused of exaggeration.

At Brixton.

THERE was a record attendance at the Brixton Rink on Boxing Day, when the enterprising manager (Mr. Alec Flood) arranged a varied and attractive programme. Throughout the holidays the rink has been crowded, and on Thursday night there was a bicycle race between Len Williams and F. Casey, in which the former won easily. To celebrate the New Year a mammoth Carnival was held, at which the fun was fast and furious until the early hours.

Rink Hockey.

"RINK hockey," says Mr. Brockman, of the N.S.A., "was, I believe, first introduced in this country at Olympia in 1890 by Mr. F. G. Stromcke, who had been a player of repute in America (and who most singularly is now rink manager at the Crystal Palace), but hitherto has not generally been played on organised lines. Now many strong leagues are being formed, as, for instance, in Manchester, with sixteen or seventeen clubs, and London, with fourteen clubs."

Agricultural Hall Rink.

THE skating rink at the Agricultural Hall opened on Dec. 23, with an excellent attendance. Amongst those present was Mr. George Mozart. This rink is the largest in North London, with a first-class floor, British skates, and artistic scenery surrounding the rink. Mr. R. W. Wilson, the general-manager, informed our representative that over 2,500 used the rink on Boxing Day, and even with this large number many others were turned away.

Payne Deserts the Rinks.

PROF. ALEC PAYNE has accepted a sixteen weeks' provincial tour with Mr. Gus Levaine's Babes in the Wood pantomime, in order to produce a ballet on roller skates, in which twenty pretty young ladies appear.

Ayr Closes with a Carnival.

A BRILLIANT masquerade fancy dress carnival was held on Wednesday night at the Pavilion, Boswell Park, Ayr. It was quite a success, and provided one of the best holiday entertainments. The Pavilion closes on January 15, when Manager C. Richards, who has been the essence of geniality as manager here, goes to Stirling. He will, however, return to Ayr for the summer season. Renovation and redecoration will take place during the time the Pavilion is closed.

Bath Keeps its End Up.

AN amusing hockey match was played at the Empress Rink, Bath, on Boxing Day, when the unbeaten local players met the Cardiff club, who, like themselves, had never been defeated before. After one of the fastest games imaginable, the Bathonians won by 6 goals to 2. The New Central Rink, Bath, has caught on.

Carnival at Barrow.

A successful fancy dress skating carnival took place at the Barry Skating Rink on Monday last, before 1000 spectators. It was held under the management of Mr. Harry Reynolds.

Bishop Auckland Olympia.

The reopening of this popular rink took place last Thursday. A new floor has been laid. Mr. H. J. Butler is manager.

"Canter on One Wheel."

The Premier Skating Rink, Boston, has been quite gay this Christmas, and some very good sessions have been held during the holidays. The chief attraction has been W. Hurst's fine exhibition. His new feat is "a canter round on one wheel." Mr. Hurst is the originator, composer, and writer of the new "Enchanter Skate Dance."

Skating Rink for Cirencester.

WE understand that the directors of the Cirencester Corn Hall have decided to open it as a roller skating rink early in 1910.

Little Yorks at Derby.

THE masquerade carnival held at the Alexandra Skating Rink, Derby, on Boxing Night was a pronounced success. The programme, capitally arranged by Mr. W. H. Innes, was headed by the Two Little Yorks. Last night (New Year's Eve) a special extension was obtained, and a thoroughly enjoyable confetti battle was held.

From Chapel to Skating Rink.

THE old Wesleyan chapel at Dorking, Surrey, is to be converted into a roller-skating rink.

Children's Carnival at Trindle-road.

CHILDREN'S functions are invariably successful for the reason that the fond parent is always anxious to see how "little Willie" or "our Clara" disport themselves in public, while they also have a fascination of their own which somehow appeals to adults of all classes. The Children's Carnival held recently at the Dudley Trindle-road Skating Rink was an instance of this altruism. The spectators' seats were crowded with parents and friends, who entered enthusiastically into the spirit of the carnival, with the result that the affair was most successful, a fact which induced the management to decide to hold another carnival on the second Saturday in January. There were ten boy prize winners and five girl prize winners, the prize for the best-dressed boy going to Master Wright, and for the best-dressed girl to Miss Grainger The judging, which gave every satisfaction, was performed by Mrs. E. J. Thompson and Mrs. Nayler, the prizes being presented by the former lady. The proceedings terminated with a confetti battle.

Dundee's New Rink Opened.

THE Dundee West End Skating Rink was declared open on Wednesday afternoon by Lady Baxter, in the presence of a large and fashionable assemblage. The new rink is a huge building erected at a cost of £4,500 on the Blackness estate, the skating surface being 255ft. long by 80ft. broad. The rink is beautifully appointed, and has a handsome suite of rooms, including a raised tearoom, from which a full view of the skaters is obtained. It is heated by a hot-water system, and a very elaborate electrical installation has been introduced. The opening ceremony was presided over by ex-Provost Brownlee. Lady Baxter, in declaring the rink open, said the West End Rink was a beautiful one, and she had much pleasure in taking part in that ceremony, chiefly because in Dundee and Scotland, generally, they were in need of good, healthy amusement. She hoped the rink would give pleasure to Dundee for many a long day.

Naval Men Like Rinking.

A GRAND Confetti Carnival was announced for New Year's Eve at the Olympia Skating Palace, Dundee, where skating was to be indulged in till midnight. Manager James T. Batchelor works this popular haunt of rinkers on up-to-date lines, and is continually being congratulated on the success of his management. Mr. Batchelor's clientele includes a large number of naval officers and men, who, since Dundee has been turned into a naval base, are stationed here. They are quite at home on the "rollers." At the American Roller Rink in Melrose-terrace, Dundee, Manager Hunnequin is being kept exceedingly busy.

Another Durham Skatery.

The Durham City Olympia Rolling Rink was opened on Monday by the Mayor (Councillor W. H. Wood), who, with the Mayoress, was accompanied by other members of the Corporation. Accommodation is provided for 750 skaters and 2000 spectators, and Richardson's skates only are used. Professor Ellis is giving exhibitions of fancy skating, and the venture is under the management of Mr. Vivian D'Alby, late of West Hartlepool.

New Rink in Durham.

MR. C. E CADLE, on behalf of the Durham Skating and Entertainments Company, applied to the Durham City magistrates for a music and dancing licence for a skating rink in Walkergate. He said the premises formed part of Messrs. Henderson's factory, and there was a total superficial area of 31,900ft. The skating area was 160ft. long by 75ft. wide. The Bench granted the application.

Round the Edinburgh Rinks.

THERE are few rinks where the changes are rung so often as at the Olympia, in Annandale-street. Another gymkhana, interspersed between mile races and half-mile races, boys' races, and ladies' races, ordinary skating was indulged in last week. With such excellent facilities for indulgence in roller-skating as are provided at the Grand, it is little wonder that there is no diminution in numbers in the merry throng on rollers who nightly frequent the spacious building. Splendidly equipped, tastefully decorated, and possessing a capital band, the Grand has in its short existence become the rendezvous of hundreds of enthusiasts in the city, and during his régime already Mr. Woolfoot has won golden opinions for himself by his tact, his courtesy, and his ability as a manager. At "the only American roller rink in Edinburgh," out Murayfield way, things are going merrily. Bell-vue is "upsides" with the other rinks in the city, and this week provides novelty in the shape of a fancy dress masked carnival. The new rink at St. Leonards also has a fair patronage from the South Side, and fills a long-felt want by supplying a skating rink on that side of the city.

Notes from Glasgow.

IN Glasgow the facilities for roller skating are on an ample scale, and nowhere can the fascinating sport be indulged in with greater comfort and pleasure than in the West-end Rink at Kelvingrove. In this establishment an entirely new equipment, consisting of 800 pairs of the latest Philips' pattern of roller skates, has been provided. On Hogmanay skating was indulged in from 7.30 p.m. till 12.30 a.m. At the American Rink in Victoria-road, which continues to be held in high esteem among roller skaters, every preparation has been made for the large crowds of gay holiday makers. A large share of public favour is enjoyed by the Ibrox Rink, where the special attraction this week is a paper costume carnival on Hogmanay. Arrangements are also being made for a "topsy-turvy" evening on Jan. 10. This week's programme at the Govan Rink included a hockey match between Summertown and Great Eastern, and a fancy-dress carnival and souvenir night on Friday.

Glasgow Zoo Carnival.

A VERY fine carnival took place last Wednesday at Mr. Bostock's Zoo Rink. The large maple floor has just been operated on by the electric surfacing machine, and is now in an absolute perfect skating condition. Extensive decorations which had been carried out gave the huge building the appearance of a gigantic fairy palace, with that Yuletide appearance which one is wont to look for at this season of the year. The walls, galleries, &c., were gaily festooned with bannerettes, streamers, and bunting of every device, whilst numerous Chinese lanterns and other decorative novelties were suspended from the roof, and the scene presented when the place was lit up by some 2,000 vari-coloured electric lights was one of the most dazzling brilliance and most fascinating description. In addition to a great confetti battle and other amusing and exciting events on skates, prizes were given for the most characteristic costumes.

Novel Rink Lighting.

THE Grand Skating Rink, recently erected at Hirst, was opened last week to the public in the presence of a large concourse of interested people. The new building is 170ft. long by 72ft. broad, and has an area for skating of 150ft. by 50ft.—sufficient in size for a large crowd to disport upon. The floor is an admirable one, and is composed of American rock maple, the pieces being 1¼in. in width and finely dovetailed together The whole building is fitted in the latest style and lighted by the Thornton Petrol Gas at 6,000 candle power. This is provided by an Empire gas generator, which mixes the petrol with hot air, so vapourising it. This clever little engine is driven by the gas which it produces, and is so arranged that it will only produce the quantity of gas required whether one or a hundred lamps are in use. The cost works out, we understand, at about 1s. 6d. per 1000 cubic ft. It is therefore a very economical light, and one which is receiving a good deal of attention. In the building the light is certainly as brilliant as anyone could wish.

Skating in Sunny Jersey.

Mr. Louis Marks, who has for years been a leading potato merchant in Jersey, built an excellent and up-to-date rink in St. Heliers. The new rink is called the New Olympia and Winter Gardens, and is illuminated throughout with electric light, a novelty in Jersey. There is a first-rate band, under the conductorship of Mr. F. McKee, a good promenade, comfortable cloak-rooms, and a buffet. The New Olympia was opened on Boxing Day, when some 3000 skaters paid for admission. Mr. L. Marks is to be heartily congratulated on his enterprise.

Bay of Naples to Look At.

THE St. James's Hall Skating Rink, King's Lynn, was opened on Wednesday last by the Worshipful Mayor of the Borough (Mr. Holcombe Ingleby). The management of the rink have spared no expense in providing for the town a first-class resort. A new floor has been laid. In addition to an annexe for learners, lounges and cosy corners have been provided, with a raised floor set out as a Neapolitan garden, with a magnificent painting of the Bay of Naples in the background. The floor manager is Mr. Aubrey Bridges and the business-manager Mr. William Winch.

Rink Football at Kirkcaldy.

A HIGHLY successful fancy dress carnival was held at the Olympia, Kirkcaldy, last Wednesday evening, and was well attended. Special new year attractions are billed. A football match on skates was held at the Palace the same evening, in which teams representing the Palace Rink versus local footballers were the contestants. A large concourse of spectators thronged the building to witness this unique spectacle, which resulted in a draw.

Skating at Maidenhead.

MAIDENHEAD joins the list of towns where rinking has "caught on." The success attending the opening of the Pavilion as a temporary rink has been so great that a new building, 120ft. by 60ft. is being erected. The use of the rink for morning private parties is largely taken up, and the afternoon and evening sessions are largely attended. The services of Mr. T. J. Puplett have been secured as instructor and manager.

For the Present.

MR. SHEARMAN, manager of the Mansfield Skating Rink Company, applied for a licence for music and dancing for a skating rink, which was opened last Friday. It was stated that a music and dancing licence was absolutely essential for an undertaking of this kind, because people who "rinked" desired to do so to the strains of the band. It was precisely on account of the band that the licence was required, although the building was suitable for concerts, balls, and entertainments of various kinds. The management desired to open at once, and they asked for the licence as a matter of urgency. He applied for a temporary licence for fourteen days, after which proper application would be made for a full licence up to the Brewster Sessions. The plans had been carried out to the satisfaction of the Town Council. The provisional licence was granted.

Decorators in at Mansfield.

THE Prince's Skating Rink, Mansfield, has been well patronised during the holiday season, and though still in the hands of decorators, is being praised by all its patrons.

Hockey at Motherwell.

A keen and closely-contested match between Govan and the home team took place at the Motherwell rink on Monday night, resulting in a win for the visitors by 1 goal to nil. A second match will be played between the home team and Wishaw.

Notes from Newcastle.

The opening of the New White City, Newcastle-on-Tyne, has given an additional impetus to roller skating in the city. The grand stand and Exhibition Hall rinks are as popular as ever, and each session sees crowds of holiday enthusiasts "indulging" on wheels.

S. T. Smurthwaite at Newcastle.

THE staff of Newcastle's new White City rink is managed by Mr. S. T. Smurthwaite, and numbers about seventy. Mr. Smurthwaite, who until recently was a member of the Hull City Council, and is at present a director of the Hull City Football Club, has managed a number of rinks in the Midlands and on the East Coast.

A Note from Nottingham.

The Empress Rink, Nottingham, is to the fore with Christmas arrangements. Upwards of 4000 people visited this popular rink on Monday, when an exciting race was witnessed between T. Duckworth, one of the staff, and T. W. Matthewson, a local champion.

New Skatery for Oswestry.

A LARGE and commodious building is now in course of construction at Oswestry, and will shortly be opened as a skating rink. The proprietors of this company are gentlemen connected with the Albert Hall Rink, Liverpool, which venture has been attended with great success. There is certainly a good opening for a rink in the quiet old town of Oswestry, and the venture should prove a financial success. The rink will be opened in the course of the next week or two, and we understand Richardson skates will be exclusively used.

RICHARDSON SKATES are the BEST in the WORLD.

They have held ALL WORLD'S RECORDS for twenty-four years, and every event of importance during the past few years, either fast or fancy has been won on RICHARDSON SKATES, including Harley Davidson's victory at Olympia Rink, London, February 26th, 1909.

STATEMENTS WHICH CANNOT BE DISPUTED:

The Richardson Ball Bearing Skate Co. positively equipped 80 per cent. of the Rinks operating in America. Sixty per cent. of the Rinks in this country operated by independent rink proprietors are equipped with Richardson Ball Bearing Skates.

Richardson Skates are the universal choice of, and used by, practically all the leading instructors, unless employed in rinks operated by other skate manufacturers. The Richardson is the most perfectly constructed Skate on the market. The front truck is under the ball of the foot, and the rear truck practically under the heel, which allows the skater to be over his work. This principle is acknowledged to be the best by the leading skaters of the world. Rear trucks extending back of heel only act as a leverage when skaters lose their balance.

The Richardson Ball Bearing Skate Factory have equipped more Independent Rinks than all other manufacturers combined.

The repairs of Richardson Skates are 50 per cent. less than those of any other make, and the simplicity of construction makes it an easy matter to effect repairs.

Manufacturers: Richardson Ball Bearing Skate Co., Chicago, U.S.A.

THE SHOWMAN WORLD.

Our New Year Wish.

A PROSPEROUS and happy New Year for all our readers, and for all their patrons—the toiling millions of the Empire. It is the showman's work to brighten toil with pleasure, to lighten care with the potent medicine of joyant life Every show at every fair, every entertainer of the people at every centre of his high endeavour is (if he knows his mission in life) the friend and the servant of the toiler, whether the work be that of hand or brain, or, as in most cases, both combined. So here's "A Bright New Year" to the amusement caterers of the people.

The Lessons of 1909.

THE great lesson of all is—perseverance in good works. We know Showland, inside and outside, as few others can know it, and we fearlessly claim for showpeople as a body the grace of perseverance. 1909 has been one of the worst years for the past dozen or more years. Battling, battling bravely on, you ever find the showman doing his level best in hopeful expectation of the good time, that fair after fair largely remains a dream of the future.

THE story has been the same in all parts of the Empire. A shrinkage in the spending funds of the people has shown itself at every fair. Added to this, we have had a persistent coincidence of extremely unfavourable weather conditions. Most men in the show business will have to write off largely for depreciated values in working plant, so rapid has been in 1909 the necessity for expensive additions, renovations, and up-to-date improvements in all kinds of shows and fairground amusements. The man who thinks he will sit still and wait for the people to crowd his show will be left behind in these hustling and bustling days. No. When a modern showman ceases to go forward, he is certain to be left behind by others.

Hopeful Outlook in the New Year.

EVERY true showman is a born optimist—

"What is the use of repining.
Where there's a will there's a way.
To-morrow the sun will be shining,
Although it is cloudy to-day."

That old-time song exactly interprets the buoyant, self-reliant spirit of Showland. 1910 opens in the throes of a General Election. That means always poor days for shows so long as the political fever lasts. Fortunately, there has been a party truce over the Christmas holidays; for that great mercy we are grateful, and a General Election in January is better for Showland than one in July. Trade is mending, more wages are being handled by the workers. We are with the flowing tide of returning prosperity, and all the signs ahead are good ones.

A Retrospect of 1909.

SHOWPEOPLE have every reason to be proud of their wise foresight and provision through their Guild for the vindication of their character and status, and for the protection of their trade and business. We dealt in some historical sequence last week in the special article, "The Progress of the Guild" with the triumph of organisation in 1909. This really great and, we trust, permanent victory indicates that twenty-one years' persistent hard work has won for Showland official recognition in the great administrative departments of State—the Home Office and the Local Government Board. The first Report of the House of Lords Committee on the Movable Dwellings Bill proves to the full what we are now saying.

MORE than that, the officials of the Guild have been in direct and constant touch with the Government on the extremely important Cinematograph Act, an Act that will bear for all time witness of the fact that the highest and best constructive statesmanship of our country welcomes the expert knowledge and experience of travelling showmen.

ANOTHER immense cause for satisfaction was the utter defeat and rout of the Oldham Corporation (not the people of Oldham, for they are with the showmen). It was a lesson to those men who, in the arrogancy of assured power on the Councils of our towns and cities, seek to abuse that power to deprive the people of their liberty of choice in cheap, wholesome, and popular amusements. 1909 is, in truth, the crowning year of the showman's success against the enemies of the people's fairs, as well as the year of vindication and justification in the sight of the whole Empire. With joy and shouts of triumph the showmen will keep the Festival of the coming-of-age of the Showmen's Guild.

How the Guild Will Keep its Majority.

ON its festive social side, Manchester, the real heart of Showland, will rejoice at the Bolton Supper and Ball. Showpeople and their intimate friends will meet there in crowds, and keep the feast in the Northern centre. In the South, the Showmen's Supper and Ball at the World's Fair, Islington, on the night of the great annual gathering of showpeople, the twenty-first meeting of the Guild, will be the centre of Showland.

WITH the genial host of the Festival, Vice-President T. E. Read (lessee of the World's Fair), in the chair, supported by the president and officials of the Guild and the whole strength of the Supper and Ball Committee of the fair itself, the London celebration is bound to be a big success. Both at Bolton and at London, showmen, showwomen, and all their friends (who can number them in their multitude?) will rejoice and be merry. On the more serious side of the Festival of the majority of the Guild will be annual meetings at Manchester, London, and King's Lynn. The executive officials are making strenuous endeavours to specially mark the memorable occasion with befitting dignity and publicity.

The President of the Guild.

MR. PATRICK COLLINS has more than justified his election to the highest official position and honour in Showland. To succeed to the seat of George Sanger, with the magnificent traditions of a position unique in the world, is a great task, and only men of the calibre of Patrick Collins can ever hope to fulfil its onerous conditions.

WE are proud to announce that Mr. Collins has readily consented to be nominated as president for 1910, and we are sure that those who know him best will realise the extent of the sacrifice he again makes by his ready response to the wish of the executive to have him at the head of their organisation. A man with the enormous business interests that Mr. Collins commands must ever find it increasingly difficult to fix in with the requirements of his own ever-increasing business engagements the time that must be at the disposal of the executive officials. His elevation to the presidential chair has been more than justified; it has been a triumph of ability and devotion to duty. On the Movable Dwellings Bill and the Cinematograph Bill and on deputation and official work at the Home Office and before Corporation Committees, he has done good and brilliant work. Proud indeed ought showmen to be of Patrick Collins, a most worthy and hard-working successor to the grand old man of Showland, Lord George Sanger.

Other Workers in the Good Cause.

FOREMOST on the honora causa list we must place Mr. George Green, of Glasgow and Preston, the acting vice-president of the Guild. It is no mere figure of speech to say that, but for his care and vigilance the Cinematograph Bill, with all its crude and inexpert proposals, might have passed into law, to the ruin of the show business. The Parliamentary agent of the Guild read the original Bill as not touching movable structures at all, and so reported it to the council. Mr. Green's opinion was that it might be construed to include all exhibitions of inflammable films. Mr. Green was right, as after-events proved. Such is the value of a practical man at all times where technical experience is needed. Every cinematograph proprietor in the United Kingdom travelling the fairs owes a debt of real gratitude to Mr. George Green for his diligence and sound sense, and the Act as it now stands is largely the result of his expert advice. Certainly this is absolutely true, Mr. George Green has done more than any other one man to remodel and to shape the Act in order to do justice to travelling showmen.

OTHER workers—enthusiastic and strenuous—deserve special notice. In the London district, Messrs. Ball, Forrest Bros., Wilson, F. Turner, Bolesworth, Clasper, Wm. Taylor, H. Taylor (of Hounslow), J. Manders, the Bros. Beach, H. Thurston and Sons, Miss Turner, Mrs. Taylor, Mrs. William Wilson, Mrs. J. Manders, and a score or so more have all worked well for the common good.

IN the Western and the Welsh districts the Bros. Studt, the Hancock family, the Marshall Hill family, Messrs. Anderton and Rowland, the Dooner family, the Scard and Wadbrook family, the North family, the Kinder family, the Butlin family, the Scott family, the Winspers family, and one hundred more have proved their loyalty to the general interests of their brothers and sisters of the fairground.

Scotland Leads the Way.

FOR the third year in succession Scotch showmen maintain their proud premier position as the most generous supporters of the Guild funds. Considering their numbers, this support is doubly remarkable. It means every year a big response at Greenock Fair and again at Ayr Fair. To the Wilmot family, headed by the father of Scotch Showland, the veteran general, John Wilmot, this success is largely due. Their endeavour is most loyally and vigorously supported by the Green family in the special benefit appeal at Ayr Fair; both the meetings at Greenock and at Ayr were examples of well-won results of persistent good work. In this good work we must place on our honour list Messrs. and Mesdames Henderson, Manders, Biddall, Wingate, Paulo, Caddick, Swallow, Strand, McIndoe, Macintosh, Irvin, Dawson, Howard, Baker, Styles; but here we must stop, for the whole list of names at our pen-point would fill a page of our space. Every showman, every stallholder, every amusement caterer in Scotland belongs to the honour list.

The Rally of the Midlands.

UNDER the personal leadership of the monarch of showmen, President P. Collins himself, the response of the Midlands has been generous and without parallel in the past. Almost without exception the Midland showpeople have enrolled themselves under the banner of the Guild. The same is true of Yorkshire, Lancashire, Cheshire, and the Northern provinces, as a whole. To mention names would mean a directory of showmen for Mid-England and the North Country. Distinction where the multitude is so great is impossible. Where all have worked so hard particular mention is quite out of the question. Lancashire and Yorkshire still stand where they did, and that is enough. We must, however, notice the great revival of interest in the Guild in the Eastern Counties. With regard to this welcome increase of support, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Thurston deserve great credit. There is also great cause for satisfaction in the fact that Miss Anita Welton, of Farlingay Hall, Woodbridge, has interested herself in the travelling showpeople of East Anglia, and her work as hon. diocesan secretary has roused attention to the work of the Guild amongst the clergy of the Norwich Diocese. Miss Welton is doing a good and blessed work.

The Other Branches of Guild Activity.

PEACEMAKERS at Penzance, determined warriors in the fight for Mitcham Fair, zealous opponents of all proposals to injure or abolish fairs, the champions of the showmen wherever attacked, all these and many more spheres of usefulness mark the Guild of showmen in 1909.

The Annual Meetings of the Showmen's Guild.

AT the Caxton Hall, Salford, near the Flat-Iron Fairground, Manchester, at 4 p.m. on Wednesday, Jan. 12, 1910, the president, Patrick Collins, in the chair. At the World's Fair, Islington, on Wednesday, Jan. 19, at 11 a.m., the president will preside and deliver his annual address. Other speakers at both meetings will be the Guild chaplain, the hon. solicitors, the hon. secretary, and specially invited speakers and friends of the Guild. See advertisements.

The British Roundabout Proprietors' and Showmen's Union.

AN important committee meeting of the Union is advertised in our columns this week. It will meet at the Flag Inn Hotel, Bolton, on Thursday, Jan. 6, at 2.30. The secretary announces very important business on the agenda paper.

Guild Committees at Manchester.

THESE will be held as usual at the Guild headquarters, the Black Lion Hotel, Salford, on the morning of the Manchester meeting, at 11 o'clock prompt, and in the evening at 7 o'clock.

Centres of Show Life in London.

IN addition to the World's Fair at Islington and the Tiny Town annexe at Olympia, we have a number of well-organised fairgrounds in various meropolitan districts, at Mile End-road, Fulham, Stratford, Deptford, Chelsea, Lavender Hill, Cambridge Heath-road, and at several other places from which returns are not yet to hand. We regret to report that Mr. Fred Gray and his tenants at the Lavender Hill ground suffered considerable loss from the flying sparks of the awful drapery store fire near Clapham Junction, and in the immediate neighbourhood of the fair. Mr. Fred Gray writing to us with regard to the damage done, says:—"We have had a very large fire here. Burnt all my tilts on machine and shows; also burnt tilting of side shows and stalls. Done a lot of damage." Our sympathy is with Mr. Gray and his tenants.

Lavender Hill Fun Carnival.

WITH Mr. Fred Gray, who exhibits cinematograph theatre, electric motor-car switchback, Winchester range, swings, &c., are several well-known show and amusement providers, Messrs. Ridley and Piper, Peters, Morris, and Salter with side shows, houp-las, and throwing games.

Cambridge Heath-road.

W. BIDDALL'S cinematograph show, J. Biddall's novelty booth, Thurston's motor galloping horses, helter-skelter, and racing birds, Holmes and S. Mayne's juvenile horses and cars, S. Mayne's swings, and Parr's big boat, are the show and machine attractions. Amongst the minor novelties are Stirling's Winchester range, bottle batteries by Holmes and Theodore, houp-la frames and throwing games by Bond Brett, Bolesworth, Saunders, Holmes, Theodore Manning, Hussey, and Harvey.

Fulham Perpetual Fair.

HERE are the lessees' aggregation of novelties:—The film palace, the Teddy Bear roundabout and park swings, throwing games, houp-la frames, and watch-la stalls. Associated with Mr. Manders is Mr. G. Saunders, who exhibits penalty football game, bottle battery, and cokers. Mrs. Saunders has her shooting range on the ground.

Mile End-road Fun Carnival.

ANOTHER excellent all-the-year-round fair is on H. Forrest's ground in the Mile End-road. The lessee provides the big attractions, such as the cinematograph show, the revolving flip-flap, park swings, and overboats. The other entertainers are W. Bedford, with miniature jungle, &c.; Irving with kicking donkey, Andrews with shooting range, Bolesworth with bottle smasher and throwing games, houp-las, &c., by Messrs. Harvey, Coombs, Bircher, Bolesworth, Ives, Andrews, and G. Irving.

Deptford Winter Fair.

THIS well-known fair is under the direction of Mr. and Mrs. Mackeesy, the lessees, and well maintains its great celebrity. This year the lessees have opened part of the ground space at their command as a well-equipped skating rink, and they also provide the picture palace. H. Thurston's set of grotesque porkers is the big machine novelty. Mrs. Knighton's park swings, Mr. Bishop's shooting concerns, and Mr. G. Pickard's throwing games exhausts the list of attractions.

Chelsea Fun City.

LESSEE and manager, Mr. Arthur Burgess. The chief attraction here is Presland's roundabouts. The other show and fairground amusements are Ridley's show, Mr. Burgess's numerous exhibits, including swings, football frames, bottle smashers, and variety stalls, Mr. George Peters with shooters, F. Traylen with throwing games, Arthur Burgess, jun., with similar amusements, and John Battle with variety frames, &c.

Glasgow Carnival Ground.

THIS famous fairground was in full swing for the Christmas holiday, and will continue its season over the New Year holidays. The lessee, Mr. George Green, has a great array of up-to-date amusements, the Whilevate permanent cinematograph theatre and carnival varieties, the palace of animated pictures, the scenic railway, the straight switchback, the Brooklyn cake-walk machine, the four-abreast jumping horses, the juvenile sets of horses and ponies, and park swings. The other shows and amusements were Chapman's performing birds and hares, Howard's steam yachts, the shooting ranges and batteries of Messrs. Day, Lawrence and Son and Merrick's throwing games, and variety frames by Messrs. Ross, Macintosh, Blockleys, Prince, and Matchett.

Houp-las in grand array—avenues of them, a grand galaxy of light, colour, and treasure trove provided by Messrs. Day Bros., Irvin and Sons, Blockley Bros., John Wilmot, jun., P. Swallow, jun., Merrick Bros., J. Matchett, T. Ross, Mrs. Smith, Mrs. Anderson, Mrs. Blockley, and Mrs. Bradley.

The Edinburgh Open-Air Carnival.

UNDER Mr. Codona's management this fair was set out in splendid order. Mr. Codona's exhibits are the cinematograph theatre, the mountain pony roundabout, the galloping horses, the helter-skelter tower, the Winchester range, houp-la circles, watch-la stalls, and big boats by W. Codona, jun. The other shows are Cady's savage South Sea Islanders and the freak museum, Hemming's fine art gallery and cake walk, and Bailey's two-headed giant. Houp-las in great variety by Messrs. Stroud, Bastable, Cunningham, Palmer, Ratcliff, Kelso, and Girham, and watch-la stalls by the Codona Family, throwing games and stalls by Messrs. Bastable, Palmer, Stolt, Dobbin, and Connor.

Notes from Wales.

AT Morristown are H. Studt and Sons' gondolas, Boswell's shooting range, Buss and Mothy's swings, and throwing games, houp-las, &c., by Chadwick, Boswell, and Motley. At Brynmawr are Dooner and Son, Haggins and White's picture palaces, Studt's motors and horses, Sid White's birds, helter-skelter, and aerial flight; shooters, games, and stalls by Foster, Odeley, and Dunbar, juvenile horses by Mrs. Odeley.

Sheffield Christmas and New Year's Fair.

FOR this big fair the ground is crowded from end to end. Amongst the shows are Farrer and Tyler's two picture palaces, John Proctor and Hobson's similar shows, and J. Liney Teddy Bear exhibit. The machines are those of G. T. Tuby, Marshall and Son, the Waddingtons, and J. Amos. Shooters, houp-las, and throwing games by Messrs. Richards, Lever, Buxton, Lieske, W. Radcliffe, Peters, Smith, Middlebrook, Tuby, Farrar J. Burgess, D. Johnson, E. Calver, Ashcroft, W. H. Doubtfire, C. Johnson Steward, Fawcett, Bradley, and J. Joy.

Hillkirk-street, Ardwick.

THIS excellent Manchester suburban fair had for its chief entertainers: Proctor with circus; Norman with filmoscope; Furness with school of athletes and boxers; C. Marshall's switchback; Mrs. Holden's ostriches, Helme's bikes, E. Geoghegan's gallopers and swings; Walker's and Day's park highfliers; Fletcher's Winchester range; round houp-la frames by Beaumont, Holden, Jephson, and G. Smith; throwing games, variety stalls, &c., by Cordwell, Fletcher, Holland, Worthington, Jephson, Horton, Walker, and others. This fair was bigger, brighter, and better than ever, and good business is reported.

Bolton for Christmastide.

HERE were Clark's famous cinematograph show, T. Hurst's set of racing birds, Jewell's shooting range, and games by Jewell and Shorrocks.

Middlesbrough Christmastide.

HERE were Caris's galloping horses, Rich's juvenile set, swings, shooters, and games; houp las by Watkins, J. Nicholls, Crow, J. Barugh, Harker, Kitson, Griffiths; shooters and games by H. Caris, Rich. Twilley, Woodhurst, Nicholls, J. Moore, and Watkins; throwing games, stalls, &c., by Rich, Williams, Duffield, T. Turton, Holliday, and others.

Preston Fair.

THIS great winter fair was well maintained by Payne's bioscope, John Green's motors and gallopers, steam horses by Dewhurst, swings by Harrison, gem horses and bikes by Parr, Richmond, Law, shooters by Dewhurst, Mrs. Harrison, houp las by Messrs. T. Taylor, Garlick Family, Wilson, Dewhurst Bro., and Richmond, penalty kicks by Forshaw and Garlick Bros.

Christmastide at Norwich.

THE Norwich Christmas Fair commenced on Boxing day, and was visited by a very large number of persons. Mr. Charles Thurston continues his fun fair in the Agricultural Hall, and in addition has his magnificent cinematograph show on the Castle Hill. This show has an exquisite appearance at the front, and the grand organ is no small delight to the patrons of the fair. Mr. A. Crichton is also here with a cinematograph show. Messrs. Barker and Thurston have steam motors and gondolas, and Mr. Belsworth has a bicycle roundabout; and there are a number of hoop-la stalls—W. Abbott, J. Hearn, J. H. Norman, W. Westhrop, J. Holmes, and others, who all seem doing well.

THE WORLD'S FAIR:

FIRST NOTICE.

The great demand upon our space last week owing to the issue of the cinematograph regulation, prevented us dealing with the World's Fair. In its old habitat—the Royal Agricultural Hall, Islington—it is the fair of all fairs, the supreme expression of all that is greatest and best in the vast empire of shows. Mr. T. E. Read, the lessee and manager, is gifted with more than inherited genius, he is the living personification of up-to-date wisdom and ability in modern show life. A Napoleon in enterprise, a Moltke in organisation, and Columbus in new discovery, each year of his triumphant management has evidenced his modern spirit, whilst yet building on the secure foundation of the World's Fair's best and soundest principles of order and arrangement.

The Old Traditions in New Expressions.

There are still the old, yet ever new, Wombwell's menagerie, the circus arena, the modern successor of the theatre, the cinematograph palace of varieties, the roundabouts, the railway, the sideshows with marvels of nature and optical illusion, yet all up to date.

Motor-cars, aerial ships, cake-walks, Arctic scenic railway, bike tracks, shooting ranges, bowling alley, haunted castles, haunted swings, big wheels—all are there.

In the Main Hall.

Under this vast glass roof the central position is occupied by the Grand Free Parisian Circus, while other central positions are occupied by handsome carved and gilt roundabouts and motor roundabouts, and round the sides are arranged a miscellaneous collection of side shows, amongst which are some of the most handsome carved and gilded fronts possible to be seen in the world, embracing Taylor's superb cinematograph show, with its brilliant interchanging electric lights and handsome gilded front, Hasting's midget show, sliding round the winding tower, Turner's ever-mirthful distorting mirrors, mid-air trips on the big wheel, the cake walk, and Pro. Paul's glass-blowers' exhibition. If you want to laugh as you have never laughed before, don't miss the mysterious castle, the cake walk, or the haunted swing, Low's photographic studio, bicycle roundabouts, fish ponds, fancy stalls, fruit and sweet stalls. If you are a sportsman, the best miniature shooting ranges in the world are at your service, also the American bowling alley, while the numerous other side shows cater liberally for the delectation of the public for the small outlay of a copper or two.

IN the Gilbey Hall is a first-class up-to-date skating rink. This new and popular feature is located in the Gilbey Hall; splendid rock maple floor of 30,000 square feet surface, brilliantly lighted and decorated, first-class band, with the latest ball-bearing skates. At sessions as announced.

IN the arcade are located a variety of amusing and entertaining novelties, automatic machines of every description, and novelty stalls, the youngsters' delight—the mammoth Christmas tree, laden with an endless variety of toys, &c. The children's delight and the grown-ups' reminiscences of their early childhood.

IN the spacious balcony is the grand free ballroom. This popular feature is again well to the front, with all the new and up-to-date dances, while special carnival and Cinderella nights will be organised during the season. New first-class band, and the popular and efficient M.C. (Mr. H. Bloodworth) in command. Round the balcony are located a great number and variety of throwing and other games, where the skilful can secure prizes for a small outlay and enjoy all the fun of the fair.

WAVERLEY MARKET CARNIVAL, EDINBURGH.

Among the most popular of local Christmas and New Year holiday attractions is undoubedtly the annual carnival instituted twenty-five years ago by the enterprise of Sir Edward (then Mr.) Moss, and the "silver jubilee" entertainment was auspiciously opened for its usual three weeks' season on Saturday last. The spacious building has been again transformed into something like fairy-land, the effects secured by the decorators being notable for novelty and daintiness. The artistic arrangements of soft-toned draperies are pleasingly supplemented by schemes of coloured lights and electric lamps. The spaces set apart for the numerous side shows, which form a prominent and prmanent feature of the carnival from its opening to its close, are very prettily treated as to their outward adornments, and the shows themselves provide a variety of interesting and amusing objects of curiosity.

Brobdingnag is well represented by Long Joseph, a German soldier some eight feet high, who turns the scale at close on 300lb. Lilliput sends the Texas Tom Thumb, the smallest man on earth, who weighs about 30lb. A little further on four Zulu chiefs give an exposition of native magic and some weird ceremonies, including their weddings and forms of worship. In another direction La Belle of Paris goes through a Cleopatra snake dance with live snakes. "An Artist's Dream" is quite a remarkable series of illusions; and "Sculpture Bewitched" is also a clever and effective trick. "The Selbit Mystery" gives the visitor plenty to wonder at in the way of spiritualistic marvels; and there are besides the Little Moto-Messenger Boy, an ingenious mechanical figure; the Flip Flap Wheel, one of the latest novelties in locomotion; The War of 1912, a vivid spectacular production; and Le Neve and Mace's Troupe of Athletes, including Miss Nora Sulivan and the veteran Jem Mace, champion boxer of the world, now in his seventy-eighth year. Wilmot's grand racing motor cars, as well as his royal steeplechase hunters are strongly in evidence, and do a brisk business; and American shooting galleries, besides a Temple of Palmistry, with an innumerable assortment of quasi Aunt Sallies and kindred stands, draw the nimble pennies from their patrons.

The programme of the platform entertainment for the current week is a strong one; and the strongest of its many items is the presentation of the educated chimpanzee Consul. Mr. Harold L. Hilliard has the animal on tour, and under his direction it goes through a human-like performance of dining at table, pouring out and drinking wine, lighting and smoking a cigarette, partaking of tea, and finally undressing and getting into its sleeping cot Among Consul's many acomplishments may be enumerated its skill in using a mirror, hair brushes, and a muscle developer, also its expertness in roller-skating and riding a bicycle. The Marno Trio submit a sensational display as comedy acrobats; and the Brothers Artois show originality and resource in a smart horizontal bar act. The Rexos gives an admirable exhibition of skating novelties; and the Aurora Troupe of cyclists perform a succession of marvellous feats with their characteristic ease and grace. Cornalla and Eddie do some curious things in the way of tumbling, juggling, and twisting; the Three Meers introduce an element of eccentric comedy into their wire walking exploits, which conclude with clever movements on an endless wire rope; the Tan-Kwai troupe of Chinese artists show considerable skill as magicians, jugglers, benders, and so forth; and the Belleclair Brothers, American gymnasts, accomplish marvels of strength and dexterity in hand-balancing. Two fine examples of animal training are seen in the performances of Reichen's dogs and the very pretty manœuvres of Miss Marquis with her stud of cobs and ponies. Music is agreeably supplied by the band of the Lothians and Border Horse, under the bâton of Mr. J. Ord Hume. The carnival itself is ably managed by Mr. W. Campbell Milne.

THE DREAM FAIR.

From "The Forest of Wild Thyme," by ALFRED NOYES.

Three children in search of little Peterkin, their dead brother, are at last led to the Faery City of Sleep under the guidance of two fairies, and to their surprise find a strange Fair proceeding, which ended in a very mysterious and wonderful way.

* * * * * *

And once again from the heart of the city
A murmur of tenderer laughter rose;
A sound that was faint as the smile of Pity,
And sweet as a swan-song's golden close.
And it seemed as if some wonderful Fair
Were charming the night of the City of Dreams,
For over the mystical din out there
The clouds were litten with flickering gleams.
And a roseate light like the day's first flush
Quivered and beat on the towers above;
And we heard through the curious crooning hush
An elfin song that we used to love.

"Little Boy Blue, come blow up your horn" . . .
And the soft wind blew it the other way,
And all that we heard was "cows in the corn";
But we never heard anything half so gay,
And ever we seemed to be drawing nearer
That mystical roseate smoke-wreathed glare,
And the curious music grew louder and clearer
Till Mustard Seed* said, "We're lucky you see,
We've arrived at a time of festivity!"
And so to the end of the street we came,
And turned a corner and—there we were.
In a place that glowed like the Dawn of Day
A crowded, clamorous City Square,
Like the cloudy heart of an opal, aflame
With the lights of a great Dream Fair:
Thousands of children were gathered there,
Thousands of old men, weary and grey,
And the shouts of the showmen filled the air—
"This way! This way! This way!"

And "See Saw, Margery Daw," we heard a rollicking shout
As the swing-boats hurtled over our heads to the tune of the roundabout.
And "Little Boy Blue, come blow up your horn," we heard the showmen cry;
And "Dickory Dock, I'm as good as a clock," we heard the swings reply.

* * * * * *

"Dickory Dock, I'm as good as a clock, d'you hear my swivels chime,
To and fro as I come and go I keep eternal time.
O, Little Bo-Peep, if you've lost your sheep, and don't know where to find 'em,
Leave 'em alone and they'll come home, and carry their tails behind 'em."
And "See Saw, Margery Daw," there came the chorussing shout
As the swing-boats answered the roaring tune of the rollicking roundabout;
"Dickory, Dickory, Dickory Dock, d'you hear my swivels chime, Swing, swing, you're as good as a king, if you keep eternal time."

Then we saw that the tunes of the world were one,
And the metre that guided the rhythmic sun
Was at one like the ebb and the flow of the sea
With the tunes that we learned at our mother's knee;
The beat of the horse hoofs that carried us down
To see the fine lady of Banbury Town;
And so by the rhymes that we knew we could tell
Without knowing the others—that all was well.

And then our brains began to spin
For it seemed as if that mighty din
Were no less than the cries of the poets and sages
Of all the nations in all the ages;
And if they could only beat out the whole
Of their music together, the guerdon and goal
Of the world would be reached with one mighty shout
And the dark, dread secret of Time be out;
And nearer, nearer, they seemed to climb,
And madder and merrier rose the song,
And the swings and the see-saws marked the time;
For this was the maddest and merriest throng
That ever was met on a holy day
To dance the dust of the world away.
And madder and merrier, round and round,
The whirligigs whirled to the whirling sound,
Till it seemed that the mad song burst its bars
And mixed with the song of the whirling stars,
The song that the rhythmic Time-tides tell
To seraphs in Heaven, and devils in Hell;
Ay; Heaven and Hell in accordant chime
With the universal rhythm and rhyme
Were nearing the secret of space and time;
The song of that ultimate Mystery
Which only the mad blind men who see
Led by the laugh of a little child
Can utter. Ay, wilder and yet more wild
It maddened, till now—full song—it was out!
It roared from the starry roundabout—

A child was born in Bethlehem, in Bethlehem, in Bethlehem;
A child was born in Bethlehem, ah, hear my fairy fable,
For I have seen the King of Kings, no longer thronged with angel wings;
But croodling like a little babe, and cradled in a stable.

The wise men came to greet Him with their gifts of myrrh and frankincense,
Gold and myrrh and frankincense they brought to make Him mirth;
And would you know the way to win to little brother Peterkin
My childhood's heart shall guide you through the glories of the earth.

A child was born in Bethlehem, in Bethlehem, in Bethlehem;
The wise men came to welcome Him, a star stood o'er the gable,
And there they saw the King of Kings, no longer thronged with angel wings;
But croodling like a little babe, and cradled in a stable.

* A fairy.

South Wales Notes.

A SPECIALLY strong attraction was presented at Mr. E. Ebley's Olympia Theatre, which is situated on the fairground at Bridgend, for the Christmas season. The plays included the well-known Welsh drama, The Maid of Cefn Ydfa, which is of local interest. Good business is being done nightly at this house of amusement.

LITTLE JENNIE ALEXANDER, on the termination of her engagement at the Empire, Bradford, on Christmas Eve, after a very successful week, was presented with a large Teddy bear. It was afterwards christened "Billy," Miss Lottie Lennox acting as godmother.

READING SKATING RINK (Vastern-road).—This popular resort has been very extensively patronised throughout the holidays.

HARRY LAUDER appeared at the West End Theatre, New York, recently, beginning a tour of the Shubert houses in that city and elsewhere, with a company of entertainers. More than five thousand persons saw his last performance at the American Music Hall.

FILM GOSSIP AND NOTICES.

A MEETING of the cinematograph trade will be held at the Holborn Restaurant on Wednesday next, at 2.30 p.m., when everyone interested—manufacturers, factors, hirers, and showmen—are earnestly requested to attend. The questions to be discussed are vital to the interest of all, viz., the proposed regulations of the London C.C. and provincial governing bodies.

American Motion Pictures.

THE films department of B. Nichols, of 45, Gerrard-street, W., has released some very interesting films this week. These are the Open Gate, The Mountaineer's Honour, The Witches Cavern, and The Senorita.

THE OPEN GATE.—Hetty and George were old-time sweethearts, and as years went by George could never muster up courage to "pop the question." Finally, he bought an engagement ring, and calling Hetty out to the garden gate, with extreme effort, declares his love and puts the ring on her finger, before he realised the great extent of his daring. The earth contained no two happier souls than George and Hetty, until Hetty receives a letter telling her of the sudden death of her sister, who, leaving a little daughter three years old, made a last request, that as she had cared for Hetty through her childhood, Hetty would care for her little one, Mary. This was, indeed, a blow, and after a mental struggle her plain duty to her sister's child forces her to break off her engagement with George. Sending for him, she meets him at the gate, and expressing her determination, gives him back the ring. Years roll on, and Mary has grown to young womanhood. Jack, the nephew of George, and Mary are now sweethearts and meet at the open gate, where the old, old story is again told. Aunt Hetty must be consulted, and she, of course, gives hearty consent. Jack has received a letter from his uncle George, stating that he is tired of his wandering and may return any moment. So the boy has much to be happy for. However, the course of true love never runs smooth, and the young lovers quarrel. Uncle George arrives, and is surprised to find his old sweetheart standing where he stood fifteen years before. Hetty then tells him the gate has remained open since his departure. There is a double wedding.

THE MOUNTAINEER'S HONOUR.—This is a story of the Kentucky Hills, and deals with the trouble of a mother, father, son, and a harum-scarum daughte who know nothing of the world outside the old blue hills where they lived. The film is 977ft. in length.

THE WITCHES' CAVERN.—Joe Montgomery and daughter decide to make a trip to the far west and hunt deer. They leave the camp in charge of Joe's daughter, and after they have gone about 200 yards they are all startled, for, as they stopped at the edge of the rapids, there stood Wild Harry, who has always lived in the woods with his mother, who is known as the witch of the valley. The hunters try to speak to him, but he runs away. He gets to one of the large pine trees and stops to see if they are still following him, and turning around he spies the hunter's camp. He is off at once to investigate. Wild Harry finds Montgomery's daughter alone, and when the girl sees this freak of nature she is nearly frightened to death. She is in terror and her first thought is of the gun alongside the tent, but Mad Harry is on her at once, and after a tussle he takes the gun away from her and breaks it in two. There are many astounding adventures before the story ends with the father securing his daughter and the hunters return safely to the camp.

THE SENORITA.—This story deals with the old aristocratic chivalry of the Mexican gentleman, whose well-bred family traits and traditions eliminate thought of nationality in a wholesome desire of offering hospitality to the stranger. In this instance the stranger is an American, a "Gringo," that type not loved too well by our friends across the border. The length is 1000ft.

Annette Kellerman Pictures.

THE Vitagraph Company are issuing a film showing Miss Annette Kellerman, "the Australian Mermaid," performing her physical culture exercises, diabolo playing, fancy swimming, and diving, and, with the lady's reputation, it should find a place in many programmes.

A Bear Hunt Film.

BEAR HUNTING, a Warwick film, shows a vessel making its way to the Arctic regions, until navigation is stopped by ice. A bear being sighted, the hunters make after it, finally bringing it to bay. It is captured, and taken on board with its cubs. Other bears are chased and caught and taken on board the vessel, some dead, others alive. We are shown the ship homeward bound, and the film closes with some good views of the "Land of the Midnight Sun."

Hop-picking by Machinery.

AN exhibition was given last week on the premises of the Charles Urban Trading Company, Ltd., Wardour-street, of a series of cinematographic pictures showing the operation of a hop-picking machine invented by Mr. E. Clemens Horst. It is stated that the invention of this apparatus was a consequence of the San Francisco earthquake, the labourers required to pick the hops on Mr. Horst's fields in California not being forthcoming at reasonable prices because they found reliance on relief funds more congenial than work. The machine is erected at any convenient point, and the hop-vines are collected bodily on the fields and conveyed to it in wagons. One advantage claimed for this arrangement is that it becomes possible to select those vines which are mature, those which are not quite ready being left for a few days; whereas, with hand-picking, the vines must be stripped, whether they are properly matured or not. With the machine hand labour is required only for fixing each vine as it is unloaded from the wagon in the travelling frame of the apparatus, and this is done simply by hooking the stem round a pin. The frame draws the vines over a series of sixteen drums revolving rapidly in the opposite direction to that in which it is travelling, and V-shaped fingers on these drums, to the number in all of about 12,000, catch the hops and break them off. These fingers are so shaped that they do not become clogged, and so that they strip off as few leaves as possible. Some leaves are, however, unavoidably removed, and the machine includes two devices for separating the hops from them. Finally, the hops, by means of a conveyor, are deposited on the floor of the drying-house, where they are dried by air warmed by the exhaust steam in about two minutes after the vines have been fed in. A machine, which costs about £300 to build, can deal with vines to the number of sixteen a minute, and it is found that an average output of about 50lb. of hops a minute can be obtained, though the rate sometimes rises to 6,000lb. an hour. Last season some 8,000 bales of hops were harvested in California by means of such machines.

Mr. Blathwayt and Sunday Cinematographs.

MR. RAYMOND BLATHWAYT has addressed the following letter to the Press on what he terms "the latest specimen of our vexatious, grandmotherly legislation with regard to the closing by the L.C.C. of the Sunday cinematograph." He then goes on to say: "The cinematograph shows in London are in every sense of the word beyond reproach, and from the point of view of popular education and refinement they are acknowledged to be of the highest value. Now, the Sunday cinematograph is a great factor in the cleansing and purifying of our municipal life, inasmuch as by taking the people out of the cold, damp streets, and drawing them from the meretricious attractions of the gin palace, they are actually taking their definite and distinct share in the building-up of citizens of the Empire. So much is this realised in certain quarters that only last week I heard that one of our most prominent bishops had actually promised to open a Sunday cinematograph show in a great Northern capital with a special address, it being the intention of the committee to give a special exhibition of religious pictures each week. This sort of thing will now be at an end should the unreasonable and tyrannical restriction of the L.C.C. become law."

Pictures of British East Africa.

A SERIES of cinematograph pictures depicting life in British East Africa were shown in the studio of the Hepworth Manufacturing Company in Cecil-court, Charing Cross-road, last week. The films had been taken under the direction of Mr. W. D. Boyce, publisher, of Chicago, and president of the American Publishers' Association, who, with a party of friends, recently paid a visit to the Protectorate. Three captive balloons and a complete plant for generating gas were taken on the expedition, and many of the scenes were photographed in mid-air. Considering the slender resources at the disposal of the operator some surprisingly successful results were achieved. The expedition was in no way a commercial one, and it is not proposed to give public exhibitions of the pictures. The object which Mr. Boyce and those co-operating with him had in view in undertaking the trip was to give the American public a realistic presentation of life among the natives of British East Africa. American publishers will accordingly be invited to make use of any of the photographs they choose in their publications. An interesting picture is one showing the reception at Nairobi of Sir Percy Girouard, who was a fellow-passenger of Mr. Boyce and his party, and who is seen inspecting the native guard of honour and receiving the native chiefs.

Shaving with Broken Glass.

CUSTOMS IN ABYSSINIA shows how, disdaining lather and razors, the natives squat on the ground, while the barber's assistant prepares the cutting implements (pieces of glass) by merely breaking a glass bottle. The operation is performed and the blacks seem to stand it well. This and other subjects form a unique collection of Abyssinian customs.

Panic in an Austrian Theatre.

ACCORDING to a message from Vienna, a terrible panic, attended by fatal consequences, was brought about in a cinematograph theatre at Lemberg, owing to the action of a gang of roughs, who threw into the arena a quantity of lighted fireworks. The loud detonations which ensued terrified the audience, who made a mad rush for the exit, and in the struggle fearful scenes were witnessed. When the auditorium was at length cleared it was seen that three students had been crushed to death, while six persons were discovered seriously injured, of whom two died in hospital in the course of the night. Seventeen other people received injuries of a minor character, and an investigation showed that altogether some 200 fireworks must have been thrown into the midst of the audience, the criminals having profited by the panic to pick the pockets of the panic-stricken crowd around the door.

Bioscope in Russia.

CINEMATOGRAPH theatres enjoy an amazing popularity at the present time in Russia. There are 150 of these places of amusement in St. Petersburg alone. It is estimated that Russia spends £50,000 a week in the purchase of the pictures displayed.

Electric Theatre Manager's Charity.

FOR the Croydon Police-court poor-box, the receipt of £1 1s. from Mr. W. H. Cousins, general-manager of the Electric Theatre, North End, was announced on Thursday. £3 3s. has also been sent to the Mayor's Underfed Children's Fund, and £1 1s. to the Croydon General Hospital by the same gentleman.

The Moving Picture.

THE advance of the cinematograph has brought into use many methods of rapid photography and quick development. Events which occur during an afternoon are exhibited at the various theatres and music halls the same evening. This means that a film of thousands of pictures—each one a separate photograph in itself—has been exposed, developed, fixed, and dried, within an incredibly short space of time. In spite of the rapidity with which this is done, many of the pictures are as nearly perfect as possible. Not satisfied with ordinary tone photographs we have now living pictures in natural colours, whole plays are produced in moving pictures, and specially constructed buildings are erected for their display. In some cases the phonograph is brought into use at the same time, but up to the present the "photo-phono-graph" has not proved very successful.

THE Theatre de Luxe in the Strand presents a strong programme this week. The subjects are A Tale of the West, The Old Man's Pension Day, Mr. Poorluck Gets Married, Customs in Abyssinia, The Gibson Goddess, A Child's Dream of Fairyland, and The Motor Cyclist. The front of the house here is looked after by Mr. Fletcher.

MESSRS. CARPENTERS, LTD., opened the Alexandra Hall, Aldershot, on Monday, as a picture palace, and with every sign of making it a successful undertaking. Miss Winnie Winn met with a tremendous success, and amongst the pictures, which were most enthusiastically received, is that great historical film of Nero, whilst the racing picture, The Jockey, is as realistic as one could wish. Next week the management have secured the film of Lieutenant Shackleton's Travel to the Pole.

New Harlesden Picture Theatre.

THE Premier Electric Theatres Co., Ltd., of King's House, King's-street, E.C., opened on Boxing Day the Constitutional Hall, Harlesden, as an up-to-date electric theatre. The hall has been handsomely re-decorated and upholstered. The entertainment provided was of the highest standard, and evidently greatly appreciated by the residents in the neighbourhood. Record business was done, and numbers were unable to gain admission. Everything points to this being a highly successful undertaking.

Good Holiday Programme at Kensington.

AT the Kensington Picture Theatre this week a very fine programme has been submitted, made up of the following subjects: Tommy Lad (Walturdaw), Motor Cyclist (Warwick), The Gamekeeper's Daughter (Pathé's), Drowsy Dick's Dream (Cosmopolitan), The Great Lakes of Central Africa (Pathé's), Foolshead Pays a Visit (Tyler), A Story of Circus Life (Pathé's), and Sleeping Beauty (Pathé's).

Sir E. Shackleton at Lewisham.

SIR ERNEST SHACKLETON last Tuesday afternoon paid a visit to the Lewisham Electric Palace, when cinematograph pictures taken on his Antarctic expedition were exhibited. In the course of a short speech, Sir Ernest said it was the first time that the cinematograph had been taken to South Polar regions, and considerable difficulties were experienced in operating the instrument, as in low temperature, with 70 or 80 degrees of frost, they had to take all the oil out of the machine. It was a pleasure to him to be present, as he was very proud to be associated with Lewisham, which was his old town.

New Theatre at Gateshead.

THIS most up-to-date electrical theatre has been built with all the latest improvements, and was opened under the most favourable auspices on Monday night. It has a spacious hall and marble staircases. The decorations of the auditorium are on a lavish scale and on delicate lines throughout. The theatre has a seating capacity of close upon 2,000, and the cost of construction has been about £10,000. Messrs. Hy. Gibson and Pascal Steinlet, the well-known architects, of North Shields, are responsible for the designs, and Mr. W. T. Wier, of Howden-on-Tyne, is the contractor. The building has been erected in the record time of three and a half months.

Permanent Cinematographs in Hull.

NEW plans for a Public Hall, to be erected on the site of the Old Baptist Chapel, in George-street, have been passed by the Hull Corporation Works Committee. The building will be a very imposing structure designed by Messrs. Freeman, Son, and Gaskell, architects, Carr-lane, Hull, is to be specially built for a permanent cinematograph entertainment, and will be called the Princes Hall. It will accommodate over 1,500 people. Morton's, Ltd., owners of the Grand and Alexandra Theatres, are likely to be largely interested in the scheme.

ALDERSHOT.—WIDE WORLD PICTURES.—Proprietors, Messrs. J. Golder and Bert Sloman.—A good holiday week programme is being presented by the management here, the films including several of the latest before the public. A change of programme was given on Thursday, following the usual custom. Despite counter attractions, good business is the order.

ASHTON-UNDER-LYNE.—ODDFELLOWS' HALL.—Lessees, the Ashton Entertainments Syndicate; Managers, Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Marks.—The Palace of Varieties and Pictures, over which Mr. Jas. Marks presides as the leading spirit, has been provided this week with a good holiday programme. Mr. Jack Pashley recites a dramatic piece specially written to coloured illustrations by the lantern. The pictures for the week are The Little Flower Girl's Christmas, Avenging Hypnotism, Ma-in-Law Learns to Ride, The first is pathetic, the next startling, and the next amusing. Ma-in-Law becomes an aviator, with an original aeroplane. The films The Alpine Echo, full of adventures in the Alps; The Vagabond's Adventure, and the Gipsy Lover, are also remarkably interesting pictures from different points of view. A disappointment awaited the audience at the hall on Monday (Boxing Day). A dramatic sketch, The Tramp and the Slavey, was billed for performance, but the sudden illness of Mrs. Marks was an insurmountable barrier to its performance. The other "speciality" artist additional to the cinematograph entertainment was the elocutionary efforts of Mr. Pashley, who gave "Ostler Joe" with dramatic effect.

THE NEW PAVILION.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Leech; Assistant-Manager, Mr. E. A. Sims.—The programme here is made extra special for holiday week. The pictures are numerous and good. For the delectation of visitors who prefer the picture of adventure, there is the Corsican's Revenge. The Bootmaker's Revenge is peculiar from the original circumstances which call it forth. The Motherless Waif is touching and pathetic. Poor Mr. Luck is a case for sympathy; Garibaldi's Son is historical in a sense, but there is a comic side. Humour in excess is seen in the films, The Mad Drainpipe, The Lamp, The Bold Counter-jumper, &c. The Street Scenes and other views of Sofia were splendid films. The artists are The Lindens, who appear in their latest absurdity, An Ambitious Partner; Edgar Cook, the illusionist, is most entertaining; he introduces birds and animals—that is, amazing productions of the same. His magical extravaganza, The Conjuring Chef, is very astounding in its mystery. May and Kennerly, the girl and the page, is an entertainment which commends itself; Mr. Alan Wright was the descriptive lecturer.

THE PICTUREDROME.—Lessees, Messrs. Weisker Bros.; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. Lecky.—Mr. Lecky, the manager of the Picturedrome, entertained his juvenile patrons on Christmas Eve to the number of 300. At the afternoon "show," which is really got up for youngsters, he gave them a free tea. Each child was warned to provide itself with a mug, into which tea was poured by a staff of waiters. Then cake and sweetcake was added to the feast, and the youngsters enjoyed it immensely. A free picture "show" was given them, and each child was presented with apple, orange, and other gifts on leaving the Picturedrome. Mr. Lecky's bill this week includes a film entitled Carmen, very finely acted and capitally staged. The pictures have been obtained from real life in Spain, some splendid holiday costumes worn by the Spanish girls are objects of admiration. The story of Carmen the gipsy, and her fooling of a lowly lover, and the tragic result, are well known as depicted in Bizet's opera. The Corsican's Vengeance is a thrilling story of love and jealousy, and is very tragic in its denouement. There are other pictures which awake solicitude and sympathy in the human breast. Comic films include Bobby Wideawake, describing the adventures of a juvenile; The Theatre Pass, a screamer; The Escaped Snake, a funny picture showing the ruse of a showman. The interlude artists are Godfrey West, who gives songs and monologues in good style; and Bowden and Belle, a youthful duo of performers in song and dance.

ATTERCLIFFE.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Dirdector, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manageress, Miss Ethel J. Hope.—An excellent Christmastide bill of fare is provided by the management here, and is being largely patronised. The star picture is Noel, a beautiful and interesting Christmas story. The Sick Man's Dream, Two Friends, and Leather Stocking are highly dramatic; Three-Fingered Kate is another of the popular detective series; and laughter is evoked by Race for the Monkey and Three Reasons for Haste. Miss Alice Gill is still a popular favourite; and Mr. Syd Nicholson is meeting with success as an eccentric comedian.

PICTURE PALACE.—Lessee, Mr. Matt Raymond; Resident-Manager, Mr. Edward King.—A fine holiday programme here is drawing packed houses. The pictures are the latest productions, and include Rich and Poor at Christmas, Before and After Marriage, Two Strings to Her Bow, Demos Panto Troupe, The Gas Inspector, and The Light That Came. A special feature of the entertainment is the engagement of the popular and well-known Stavordale Quintette, whose skilful manipulation of banjoes and harp in a refined and pleasing selection is a musical treat of a high order, and calls forth hearty and well-deserved applause. Mr. W. A. Guest's Red Coat Band are also appreciated.

BELFAST.—NEW ALHAMBRA THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Will White.—Under the direction of the energetic manager (Mr. Will White), a fine programme has been presented here, including the following interesting pictures: A Pompeiian Martyr, Temptation of the Goldfield, The Love Token, &c. The vaudeville element is sustained by Mr. George Reeves, a clever vocalist and comedian; and Mr. Charlie Williams, a funny negro entertainer.

ST. GEORGE'S HALL.—General-Manager, Mr. Herbert Rogers.—Under the direction of Mr. Hugh Beckett a fine series of films have been presented here, including The Lady with the Camellias, The Brigand's Death, His New Situation, Mr. Sadman's Cure, &c. The Maynards appear in their smart sketch, The Lady and the Page; also Mr. Fred Buckley, a fine actor-vocalist and comedian.

BRADFORD.—TEMPERANCE HALL.—Mr. Henry Hibbert's pictures at the Temperance Hall, Bradford, last week, included some very good subjects. The Tale of a Deadhead is most diverting. It shows how Collins, who has no money and would like to see the play, speaks to different people coming out of the theatre in the hope of obtaining a pass. Eventually he succeeds, goes in, and gets one of the best seats. He proves so emotional, however, as to become objectionable to those near him, and is turned out. Going to the ticket office he boldly demands his money back, and succeeds in exchanging his pass for 5s., the price of the seat. Other pictures represent Wild Birds in their Haunts, Women's Life in India, and the Bootmaker's Revenge. Selections on the vivaphone, a combination of the gramophone and cinematograph, in which the movements of the figures in the picture synchronise with the movements of a song wonderfully well, form one of the best appreciated features of the programme.

BRIGHTON.—COURT THEATRE.—Lessee and Manageress, Mrs. M. Barrasford; Manager, Mr. H. C. Heather.—The animated pictures exhibited here during the holiday week prove very attractive. The gorgeous pantomime Blue Beard is a splendid film, in which the leading features of the old story are admirably depicted. Dramatic incidents are conveyed in A Mexican's Gratitude and Love and War, and the comic pictures include The Boxing Fever, Mrs. Jones's Lover, and Paperhanging by a Novice. Mr. Arthur W. Briggs is very effective with his descriptive pianoforte accompaniments to the pictures, and Mr. Osland Denner contributes baritone songs in good style.

PALACE THEATRE.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs. Jay and Mann; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Herbert Kent.—By arrangement with the New Bioscope Trading Company, Ltd., special attractions are submitted here this week. Two Christmastides is a touching seasonable picture. Noel conveys a Miracle Story of the Good Shepherd and the Poor; Francis I. and His Jester's Daughter is a stirring dramatic film; and the comic pictures include Lost in a Folding Bed, A Conquest, and Then He Woke Up. The Frances Harrold company gave an excellent performance of the mystic drama The Tempter. Mr. Stuart Lomath submitted an admirable impersonation of the struggling artist, Paul Halstead, whose wife, Marion, had a charming exponent in Miss Betty Stannard; Mr. George Holton was forcible and convincing as Satan; Miss Edith made a warm-hearted Tilda; Mr. Brian Daly was well placed as the stockbroker, Reuben Ransom; and Mr. Christmas Grose was entertaining as the broker's man, Timothy Scud.

CROYDON.—PUBLIC HALL.—Walturdaw's Electric Animated Pictures were presented here on Monday, and will remain until further notice. They are very good.

ELECTRIC THEATRE.—The excellent pictures being shown at this popular house have been drawing large holiday audiences. The selections show care and judgment, and are quite up to date. The place is well managed.

QUEEN'S HALL.—This hall has been well attended since the opening night, and the pictures exhibited are certainly worth a visit. Mr. Taylor is the manager.

DUBLIN.—ROTUNDA.—The original Irish Animated Picture Company continue to attract large audiences here, with their splendid display of new and original pictures, which are heartily enjoyed. The Musical Répertoire Company and Mr. Henry A. Peters is most entertaining; the Sisters Colley, Irish gems, also contribute several successful items; and Mr. Frank McGrail, with his illustrated songs, is well received.

VOLTA HALL.—Crowded business continues to run here, the excellent films of The Waterfalls of Taunforsen in Sweden, The Fascination of the Snowy Mountain Peaks, Little Jules Verne, Love and Native Land, and The Interrupted Appointment are being displayed here this week.

PALACE.—The animated pictures here this week are The Leopard Queen, Indiscreet Letters, The Little Milliner and the Thief, Salome Mad, The Reformed Drunkard, The Cobbler and the Caliph, The Troubles of a Pretty Milliner, The Amateur Detective, and the historical picture Julius Cæsar.

DUNDEE.—PALACE THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. J. J. Bennell; Acting-Manager, Mr. Tom Lunn.—The programme presented here this week by the B.B. Picture Company is a very excellent one, and Mr. Tom Lunn nightly beams on crowded and enthusiastic houses. A film teeming with dramatic incidents is entitled The Lie, the scene being the Franco-Prussian War. Another of the same nature is The Mexican's Revenge, descriptive of an American naval captain's thrilling fight for a bride. Pathos is the keynote of The Motherless Waif; and in addition there is the ever-popular singing picture, and a host of others.

EMPIRE THEATRE. — General-Manager, Mr. J. J. Bennell.—This house has been taken over by the B.B. Picture Company, and a first-class programme, including a number of entirely new films, was presented on Monday evening. Two performances are given nightly, and an entire change of pictures is given from Wednesday night.

GILFILLAN HALL.—Capital holiday fare is presented here by the B.B. Picture Co., several of the films being brilliant examples of the cinematographer's art. A very beautiful reproduction of lovely scenery is seen in a view of the Swiss resort, Schaffhausen, great waterfalls in all their turbulent beauty being seen from close range. A very funny picture is Bobby Wideawake, which depicts a child's dream in a very amusing fashion. The talking and singing picture, The Bandolero, is a popular item, as is also the fine singing of two illustrated songs by Mr. Ralph Goggin, who is possessed of a tuneful baritone voice.

NEWMAN'S PICTURE PALACE.—Lessee, Mr. Fred Newman; Acting-Manager, Mr. Jack Noble.—Mr. Newman presents a picture programme of quite a festive description at his popular West End house this week, in addition to which an enjoyable and novel turn is contributed by Signor Bandoni, "the one-man band."

EDINBURGH.—PRINGLE'S PICTURE PALACE.—General-Manager, Mr. Geo. Edmunds.—The pantomime of Red Riding Hood forms the principal picture here in an excellent holiday programme. The series of views which is shown conveys a vivid idea of the old nursery story, combining both spectacle and narrative in an admirable blend. Lines of White in a Sullen Sea imparts to the spectators a picture which many have, through hearing the rendering of Tosti's dramatic song, often imagined for themselves. The Diver's Remorse is an excellent subject; and humour is well to the fore in several amusing films. Miss Maidie Barker, comedienne, and Mr. Willie Macnay, comedian and dancer, give turns of a meritorious nature.

OPERETTA HOUSE.—Lessee and General-Manager, Mr. J. H. Sanders.—Mr. Sanders has provided a special programme for the holidays, and the films which are displayed rank high in respect of beauty, variety, and humour. The Sleeping Beauty gives the audiences an opportunity of witnessing a pantomimic spectacle reproduced by the bioscope, and there are many wonderful effects in this elaborate and high-class film. The singing and talking pictures remain a feature of an admirable bill, which includes many films suited to every age and every taste.

FOLKESTONE.—TOWN HALL.—Jury's Imperial Animated Pictures provide a splendid holiday attraction, and record houses both afternoon and evening witness the latest films.

GATESHEAD.—BLACK'S PICTURE PALACE.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Geo. Black; Circuit-Manager, Mr. Geo. Black, jun.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Victor Carter.—This most comfortable new picture hall was opened on Monday, and the audiences this week have been large and enthusiastic. The programme includes The Restoration, The Mill, Santa Claus and a Waif, and in addition to a huge programme of films we have Sterling and Cachen, comedians, and Hyam Long, the musical comedian.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. F. W. Bolam; General-Manager, Mr. R. G. Elder; Acting-Manager, Mr. Steve Smith.—An excellent programme submitted here this week contains Fools of Fate, Home Sick, and Laddie; while the mysterious Adeles provide an enjoyable "turn."

RAVENSWORTH HALL.—Proprietors, Messrs. Allan and McDonald; Manager, Mr. R. Allan.—This hall continues along the road of success, the bill this week containing Muggins, V.C., and The Oysterman's Gold. Moneta and Ford, comedians, are also an attraction.

GLASGOW. — GAIETY. — General-Manager, Mr. J. J. Bennell; Acting-Manager, Mr. George Dickinson.—The Gaiety still retains its popularity as a picture show, and this week the houses have been large. The films are of a novel and interesting character, and, besides, are responsible for much amusement. Special attractions are being put forward for the holiday season, and the management are certain to be rewarded for their tireless efforts to please their patrons.

GREENOCK.—EMPIRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. J. Bennell; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank L. Clayton.—Amongst the items of interest in this week's programme the following films take precedence: The Brothers, Red Wing's Gratitude, and Muggins, V.C. Humour is not forgotten in subjects such as A Mad Drainpipe, The Gibson Goddess, and The Haunted Man. Mr. Clayton pleases greatly with his singing of "Somewhere," which is beautifully illustrated.

GUERNSEY.—RECTORY HALL.—Licensee, Mr. Albany Ward.—On Monday, Albany Ward's Imperial Electric Picture Entertainment opened here for a season. The films shown are admirable, being distinctly clear and steady, and comprise a series of dramatic and comic subjects. Especially worthy of mention are George Washington, A Tragedy in Venice, Modern Sculptors, and A Painter's Sweetheart. A distinct novelty is the talking and singing pictures on the Cinephone. Mr. G. A. Deighton is the genial and enterprising acting-manager.

HANLEY.—KING'S.—Lessees, Messrs. Kennedy and Moore; Manager, Mr. H. Kennedy.—Huge holiday houses are being delighted this week by a splendid series of pictures. The Forty Thieves is a fine Christmas film; 1776—The Hessian Renegades is very dramatic; and The Servant and the Actress, a complicated comedy; A Negro's Gratitude, A Brother's Jealousy, Black and White, and How the Landlord Collected His Rent are also shown. Albert Vazno, comedian, is a huge success.

IPSWICH. — POOLE'S PICTURE PALACE. — There were many interesting stories portrayed by animated pictures at the Ipswich Lecture Hall last week. The programme throughout was of a very attractive nature. The Biodrama found a great deal of favour, the clever elocution of Poole's actors and actresses, combined with the character of the picture stories, affording two very fine items, which include The Two Brothers and Muggins, V.C., the latter depicting exciting war scenes and a soldier's bravery. Other animated subjects well worthy of mention include The German Navy—in which some splendid seascapes are seen—and Before the Mast; or, A Story of a Sailor's Love"; while other pictures comprise many laughable subjects. Miss Kitty Delaney was very pleasing in her illustrated songs, "Cheating" and "Gee! but I've got the blues," while the cinephone numbers afforded further variation.

JARROW.—NEW PICTURE HALL.—Proprietors, Messrs. John Weddle and Co.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur Clarence.—This week this place of amusement has quite a change of pictures, which are well received.

LEAMINGTON. — ELECTRIC THEATRE, WINTER HALLS.—Lessees, Messrs. Gillsmiths, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Harry Plant.—Another very fine programme of animated and coloured pictures is provided here this week, which is well received by crowded houses nightly. The chief pictures are A Russian Girl's Heroism and A Woman's Repentance, two remarkably fine films, whilst the others, which provide equal interest and amusement, include A Student on the Spree, The Obstinate Mule, Dottynob's Double, The Smuggler's Daughter, The Pierrette's Talisman, and Martha Tries to Reduce Her Weight. Mr. Horace Bernard is in excellent voice, and is loudly applauded for his fine efforts, whilst the reappearance of Miss Mina Langton is unanimously appreciated, and her songs well received. Miss Maud Hammerston plays the piano with artistic taste.

LEICESTER.—EMPIRE.—Lessees, The New Bioscope Trading Company; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chas. R. Craig.—This popular picture hall is receiving splendid patronage this week, a fine holiday programme being presented. The leading film is Conscription Under Napoleon, which is followed by another good one entitled The Secretary's Crime. Others include A Drama of Passion, The Adopted Child, Invisibility, Catching Fish by Dynamite, Troubles of a Pork Butcher, A Surgical Operation, The Strike, A Cork Leg Legacy, The Buffoon, Trials of a Billposter, and The Convict's Sacrifice. Ernest Greville, descriptive and character vocalist, is an additional attraction.

WEST'S PICTURE HALL.—On Boxing Day Mr. Charles West, late of the London Hippodrome, opened to the public his new picture hall in Cank-street, which is to be run on the continuous system at small charges. His machine, which is a Walturdaw, throws beautiful films, and his operating-box is of the latest and most approved pattern. His enterprise will no doubt be well rewarded. The leading films this week include Our Navy's Maid, Crocodile Hunting, How Foolshead Pays His Debts, Loved by His Servant, and Mexican Idol, all long and interesting pictures.

TEMPERANCE HALL.—Secretary, Mr. W. S. Rosie; Hall-Manager, Mr. Geo. Stanyon.—Mr. Waller Jeffs' New Century Pictures are again paying us a visit, and are presenting a first-class list of films, including the original sensational episode, War in the Air, illustrating a peep into the future, the invasion of England by land, sea, and air, Mr. Jeffs' new realistic travel pictures, Polar Exploration, Winter Sports, Aviation by Day and Night, and a grand Christmas pantomime and harlequinade. Miss Dora Kingsley returns, and is most successful in her beautifully illustrated songs, and Mr. Walter Roselle is again the popular guide and philosopher.

NEXBOROUGH.—NEW PICTURE HALL.—Lessee, Mr. Will Hunter.—A fine programme this week includes A Father's Crime, Drunkard's Reformation, the Renunciation, Salvation Army Lass, From Egg to Spit, &c.

NEATH.—PALACE.—Proprietor, Mr. Leon Vint; Resident-Manager, Mr. Arthur Noice.—The popular manager provided a good holiday programme this week. The Little Teacher is a fine film, depicting a romantic love story; a beautifully coloured specimen is The Golden Spider; Justice is remarkably good, showing how a tragedy was stopped by a marvellous miracle. Macbeth—Shakespeare's great play—is much enjoyed. An interesting picture is Wrestling. Several amusing subjects include Uncle Learns to Hypnotise, The Cycle Thief, Mr. Sadman's Cure, Fred Kendall, Ibraham, the Sheeny Man, is responsible for much amusement; The Godfreys, musicians and laugh-

CINEMATOGRAPH ACT, 1909.

A MEETING OF THE TRADE will be held at the Holborn Restaurant on WEDNESDAY, Jan. 5, at 2.30 p.m., when everyone interested—manufacturers, factors, hirers, and showmen—are earnestly requested to attend.

The questions to be discussed are vital to the interest of all, viz., the proposed regulations of the London C.C. and Provincial Governing Bodies.

ter-makers, achieve their usual success; Pollard and Gray score in their laughable sketch.

PRINCE OF WALES' THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. H. and E. Johnson; Musical-Director, Mr. Clement Austin.—An excellent programme is presented here this week to good houses—pictures, drama, and varieties. The Sisters Carlton are a clever pair, and receive a good reception.

NOTTINGHAM.—KING'S THEATRE.—Last week's series of animated pictures fully maintained the reputation of the King's for interest, instruction, and amusement. The presentation of humour cheek by jowl with tragedy redeems the subjects from a too gruesome tendency, and some of the pictures are distinctly educative. In this latter category may well be placed the really excellent set illustrative of a trip to the White Sea fisheries on a Hull trawler. The methods by which the fish are trawled, and the perils oftentimes inseparable from the voyages, are vividly depicted. Other notable films include Across the Divide, The Vagabond's Venture, Robbery of the Citizen's Bank, The Blind Man and His Dog, and Louis XI. In the absence through indisposition of Mr. Ernie Williams, illustrated songs are sung by Mr. Walter Clyde, of the London Symphony Concerts, and Mr. Rob Chamberlin played the incidental music.

OLDHAM.—ROYAL THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Kilrow.—This week a change of programme takes place, living pictures being given instead of varieties, and a capital selection of films have been shown. A Child Benefactor is a good picture of childish sympathy; The Cross of Napoleon is a capital dramatic film; Diversions is a funny picture, and another one is The Dull Knife. Other films, both humorous and serious, are also in the bill, and Mr. Don Cameron contributes some good songs.

HIPPODROME.—General-Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr. L. King.—The Mexican's Revenge is a powerful picture, and another good one is Attesienne. Also included are Timber Logging, a very interesting picture; Noes, Gas Inspector, Gentle Heart, Extraordinary, and His Adversary's Card, making a good bill. Mr. King sings "The Holy City."

READING.—THE VAUDEVILLE ELECTRIC THEATRE (Broad Street).—This popular show was open continuously all day on Boxing Day, and has also been very largely patronised during the week.

WEST'S PICTURE PALACE (West Street).—Two special matinées were given here on Monday, and excellent business has been done throughout the week. A good variety of popular films have been exhibited.

BIO PICTURE LAND (King's Road).—Special holiday programmes have drawn crowded houses here.

SALFORD.—OPERA HOUSE AND ASSEMBLY ROOMS, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. Turner; General-Manager, Mr. Herbert Raymond; Acting-Manager, Mr. S. Shepherd.—An excellent programme includes the following films: A Child of the Forest, What's Your Hurry? A Case of Tomatoes, Cripple and Cyclist, The Little Teacher, &c., and Mr. Tom Sherlock's illustrated songs.

NEW CENTRAL HALL.—Proprietors, Matt Raymond Co.; Manager, Mr. A. H. Gilbert.—An entirely new series of Raymond pictures this week includes The Mill, Bold Counter Jumper, Consul, the Man Monkey, Hotel de Mystery, Critical Situation, The Corsican Vengeance, Child's Dream, &c. Mr. Gilbert also sings comedy and picture songs in a pleasing manner.

SHEFFIELD.—ALBERT HALL.—At the Albert Hall, Sheffield, on Christmas Day, Messrs. H. and F. Poole presented their myriorama. As in previous years, Messrs. Poole's pictorial productions are on a colossal scale, there being a mass of canvas about a mile and a half in length on which are depicted views of various places, commencing with High Holborn, London, and touching Paris, Vienna, Turin, Benares, Pekin, Tokio, Messina, Havana, and Plymouth Hoe. Virtually, the audience is taken on a tour round the world, witnesses some grand sights, and incidentally has an excellent opportunity of improving its geographical knowledge, and of comparing phases of life in the East with those in the West. A splendid tableau of the terrible earthquake in Messina is also introduced. Lighting effects are made the most of, the best scenes often being those which represent historical buildings at night time. More prominence is now given to the miscellaneous portion of the programme than during previous visits by this diorama company of bygone days. The larger part of the audience on Christmas Day afternoon was drawn from the younger life of the city, and consequently Learto and his dog Pom-Pom in a burlesque attracted a good deal of attention, the canine performer displaying remarkable sagacity. In the trick cycling line something new is introduced by the George French troupe. The acrobatic feats of the Six Borghettis were very successful. Gulliver's midget weight-lifting experts and Miss A. Alexander, vocalist, have recently been seen on Sheffield music hall stages, and, therefore, require no introduction. Other diverting turns were the Snow Family, roller skaters; and Miss Phyllis St. Claire, vocalist.

TEMPERANCE HALL.—The Imperial Animated Pictures, which have won popular favour with Sheffield audiences on numerous occasions in the past, are running again this holiday season—but at the Temperance Hall. The change has been made with a view of getting the best out of the exhibition, and patrons will find the new hall at once clean, airy, and comfortably seated. Pictures humorous, scenic, and pathetic are comprised in the programme. Motor-boat Races at Barnham, which introduces some thrilling racing; Fortune Hunters, How the Cook Got Married, and Cornato, the Sioux, are very entertaining films; and a splendid example of the latest colour cinematography is provided by a film which depicts scenes in the lives of Arab women.

CENTRAL HALL.—An adaptation from one of Tolstoi's works formed one of the most interesting films last week at the Central Hall, where there was an exceptionally strong programme. Entitled Resurrection, the story deals with the profligacy of a Russian prince and his cruel desertion, and, as a sequel, the son's heroic attempts to protect his mother from the horrors of the Siberian mines. The adventures of a party of English people are shown under the title, Leather Stocking. The policeman is travestied in Bobby, the Boy Scout, the young hero capturing a couple of burglars whilst two officers are whiling away their time. Barney Noble, vocalist; Vesta Vixon, chorus song artist; and Jules Kiaro, equilibrist, are all entertaining.

SOUTHAMPTON.—PHILHARMONIC HALL.—Lessees, The Walturdaw Co., Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Fred Bonstead.—Seasonable pictures are being shown here, and crowded houses result. A splendid coloured film of The Forty Thieves gives great delight to the juvenile members of the audience.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Lessees, The Walturdaw Co., Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Auguste Denton.—The pictures here include scenes from the fairy play Hansel and Gretel and the pantomime Tom Thumb, which prove just to the taste of the holiday crowds who throng this perfect picture palace.

WALLSEND.—MCDONALD'S PICTURE HALL.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. McDonald.—A vast and commodious balcony has been added to this popular resort of entertainment. The new balcony has a seating capacity for over four hundred persons, and has been fitted up in record time. Mr. Pascal Stienlet, the well-known architect, of North Shields and Newcastle-upon-Tyne, is the designer.

WIGAN.—NEW PAVILION.—Lessees, the U.S.A. Animated Picture Co.; Manager, Mr. Fletcher Sansome.—Many new and interesting pictures are shown here this week, chief among them being The Stampede, an American romance depicting the dangers which attend the work of the cowboy. An immense herd of cattle is seen galloping across the plain, and an exciting rescue from the track of the advancing animals constitutes a feature of the picture. Two splendid dramatic films, entitled The Tower of Gesle and the Hessian Renegades, a thrilling episode of 1776, are well received. Several amusing films are shown, including Put a Penny in the Slot, An American Marriage, and Professor Whirly Twirly's Cigarettes. A diverting turn consisting of the St. Johns (Gale and Frank), musical comedians and dancers, are loudly applauded.

EMPIRE.—Manager, Mr. H. C. Woon.—This building is still playing to crowded houses. The week's programme is well praised. The star pictures are: Was Justice Served? Won on the Desert, Learning to Dance, Mr. Inquisitive, Wanted, a Housekeeper, The Broken Window, and many more very amusing pictures. Mr. Dick Wadison, comedian and dancer, can still claim to be the Wigan favourite; and Mr. William Ashcroft, the famous baritone vocalist, is well received.

"THE LAW OF COPYRIGHT FOR ACTOR AND COMPOSER," by Albert A. Strong, LL.B. (Lond.), price 3s. 6d., post free 3s. 10d. Published at The Era Buildings, 5, Tavistock-street, Strand, W.C.

THE CINEMATOGRAPH ACT.

A CHAT WITH WALTER REYNOLDS, L.C.C.

"The Cinematograph Act, which comes into force on Jan. 1, is intended for the betterment of the cinematograph industry. The L.C.C. will, in exercising its powers, take a common-sense view of circumstances as affecting individuals, and I feel sure no place will be refused a licence if the management complies with the simple, but effective, conditions laid down in the Act for the safety of the public." That was the assurance given by Mr. Walter Reynolds, L.C.C., to an Era representative this week, who questioned him concerning the statement that has been made in the Press that "the Act is a grandmotherly piece of legislation."

"All concerns—great and small—which we have been able to find running cinematograph shows within the L.C.C. jurisdiction," continued Mr. Reynolds, "have had their attention called to the Act, and the penalties for non-compliance with its requirements.

"I feel sure that no show which can be safely passed by our inspectors will be refused a licence, and I am convinced that the Act is for the good of the business generally. Its working will eventually weed out undesirable elements. That, in itself, makes for the general welfare of the industry. I can assure you that every possible care will be taken to work the Act reasonably; but those persons who endeavour to evade its requirements must of necessity court prosecution.

"Religious bodies holding cinematograph shows in mission-halls, schoolrooms, and the like, and showmen generally, will be required to satisfy our inspectors that there are sufficient exits from such places, and that all reasonable precautions have been taken with the chamber or box in which the machine is worked to safeguard both audience and operator from an outbreak of fire.

"At the same time everything in the power of the L.C.C. will be done to meet the people holding cinematograph exhibitions of every kind, but always with a reasonable regard to public safety. I cannot too often impress upon you that the L.C.C., far from desiring to hamper entertainment caterers, endeavours to assist them.

"Shows using non-flammable films will from Jan. 1 be unable to play music unless they hold a licence from the L.C.C. The moment they play music they must come under the provisions of the Act. Persons using non-flammable films will be liable to supervision by the L.C.C. inspectors, and the police are empowered to enter and inspect all buildings to see whether the provisions of the Act have been complied with. You know there is nothing to prevent a person saying he is using a non-flammable film, and even producing one, which, on examination, proves to have had several lengths joined on to it of the ordinary kind. The test will consist, I presume, of burning a piece of every length of film.

"The story of the non-flam film is one of steady progress. The first public exhibition of a non-flam was given by the Lumière Co. at the Holborn Empire about a year ago. The pictures were very clear and good, and have been much improved upon since, and Mr. Grant, the manager of the English branch of the Lumière firm, waxes enthusiastic about the non-flam future, as he says the pictures are now perfect. There are other non-flam films on the market, including the productions of the Kodak Co. and those of Messrs. Pathé, and I hear of a new American undertaking organised by the Berlin Anilyne Dye Co., whilst a German gentleman named Bayer is experimenting in Elberfelt; and, oddest thing of all in 'this strange eventful history' is that a member of the Stock Exchange is reported to have deserted the Bulls and Bears of the Zoo near the Bank of England to enter upon a new career in the manufacture of still another non-flam film, and this a 'celluloid' one, which almost sounds a paradox, and yet it is not, for what is known as acetate of cellulose is non-flammable; but its drawbacks are that it is difficult to use in consequence of its shrinking tendencies, and this, among other faults, would have to be got rid of before it could be used commercially.

"Licences will contain a prohibition against opening on Sundays. This clause I know has been severely criticised, and we have been called Chadbands and Stigginses, and many other unkind, and—believe me—undeserved names. But it has apparently not occurred to our critics that any variety and legitimate theatre could apply for a cinematograph licence—if that clause did not exist—and open as a picture show palace every Sunday. As, too, in most cases, a theatre auditorium is superior to that of the average cinematograph 'palace,' such an advantage would be greatly to the detriment of the ordinary cinematograph hall.

"Previous to the Act all cinematograph exhibitions were outside the law, and they, of course, availed themselves of all the benefits of their peculiarly lucky position. By this means they have obtained a sort of prescriptive right to Sunday opening. But it is obvious that as all shows are now covered by the law, the L.C.C. cannot make fish of one and flesh of the other, but must dispense to them all equal treatment alike, and so if cinematograph theatres are to be opened for business on Sundays, then all other theatres must be given the same privilege if they desire it."

The history of how the Cinematograph Bill came to be passed was told to the writer by Mr. Reynolds in his own inimitable and breezy way. Mr. Reynolds is known both at Spring Gardens and to the trade as "the Father of the Bill," and to his keen observation, hard work, and undisputed knowledge of the cinematograph industry all testify.

It was in 1907 that Mr. Reynolds first started his great campaign in the L.C.C. Council Chamber by speeches and constant questions. He never tired of his self-imposed task, and eventually persistence got its reward, and the Theatres Committee made enquiries on the subject.

On February 4, 1908, Mr. Reynolds put a motion before the Council which had the honour of being seconded by Sir J. Benn, with the result that on Feb. 28 of the same year a deputation consisting of Messrs. Greenwood, Brandon, and Reynolds waited on Mr. Gladstone and pointed out to the Home Secretary the dangers of fires in the existing cinematograph exhibitions. Mr. Gladstone admitted that there was great danger in connection with such exhibitions. Though they had been very fortunate up to the present, they could not shut their eyes to the fact that there might be a very serious accident, or even a catastrophe, and it was most desirable that legislative powers should be taken to put these unlicensed places throughout the country under proper authority; and he would consider whether it would be possible to deal with the matter by a short bill in the current session. He was well aware of the importance of the matter.

In July, 1908, Mr. Reynolds caused a return to be made which showed that 167 unlicensed cinematograph entertainments existed in the county of London. Mr. Reynolds prodded the Government farther by two questions, asked in the House of Commons by the Earl of Kerry, and when the disastrous fire at a cinematograph hall at Stratford had occurred, Mr. Reynolds wrote a general letter to the Press, placing the responsibility on the Home Office if action was not at once taken. On Dec. 10, 1908, Mr. Reynolds devised and brought off what must be regarded as his great coup. This was a competition of fire-preventing and extinguishing devices on cinematograph machines, which, by the great courtesy of Mr. Stoll, was held in the arena of the London Hippodrome. All the principal manufacturers of cinematographs attended, and exhibited their methods of fire prevention and extinction before a very large audience, and before a judging committee of eight, chosen by that audience and composed as follows:

Mr. Frank Allen, assisting director of Moss Empires; Mr. R. W. Paul, probably the earliest cinematograph manufacturer in England; Mr. T. J. West, the most extensive exhibitor in England; Mr. Geo. T. Bullock, of the Union Insurance Co.; Mr. R. Brice Higgins, of the Caledonian Insurance Co.; Mr. Arthur C. Cockburn, of the Norwich Union Insurance Co.; Mr. Chas. Seaton, of the National General Insurance Co.; and Mr. Walter Reynolds, L.C.C. (chairman).

After the exhibition of preventive and extinguishing apparatus was concluded, the Committee sat to deliberate in private for two and a half hours, and resolved to ask the L.C.C. to incorporate the two following regulations into the rules now governing the use of cinematograph lanterns:—

All cinematograph projectors shall be fitted with two metal film boxes of substantial construction, and not more than 12in. in diameter, inside measurement, to and from which the films shall travel. Such boxes shall be made to close in a manner which will prevent the ingress of fire, and shall be fitted with a film-slot so constructed as to prevent the passage of flame to the interior of the film-box. Provided that, where only one film is used for the purpose of an exhibition, the film-box may be not more than 14in. in diameter.

All films when not in the machine, and while still in the enclosure, shall be contained in closed metal boxes.

The film gate shall be of massive construction and provided with ample heat radiating surface, and the passage for the film shall be sufficiently narrow to prevent flame travelling upwards or downwards from the light opening.

The Committee were of opinion that if the foregoing precautions were adopted, the safety of the public would, as long as celluloid films were still employed, be assured so far as humanly possible. The Committee thought that all film boxes should be made self-closing with a spring, and that there would be an advantage in square boxes in the direction of substantial hinging. The Committee also stated that some modification of the Council's rules would be possible if non-flammable cinematograph films could be successfully used.

It is not generally known that slight cinematograph fires somewhere or other in England are reported on an average once a month, and since the calamity in Paris thirteen years ago considerably more than 1,000 people have lost their lives through cinematograph fires.

As we have already intimated, Mr. Reynolds is a mine of information on his pet subject. But it came, nevertheless, as a great surprise and as "news" indeed to be informed by that gentleman that there are only four or five manufacturers—mark the word—of film stock in the world. These are the Eastman Kodak Co., Lumières, Photo Film Co., and Austin Edwards (Warwick). There are only about fifteen publishers of cinematograph views, and there are computed to be 400 proprietors of exhibitions, controlling nearly 3,000 shows in England.

Next session in Parliament the London County Council will, on the initiative of Mr. W. Reynolds, seek powers which will enable them to grant licences to music halls at any time of the year, and his future exertions, should he be re-elected, will be, in association with others, to try and obtain one uniform licence for all theatres. This will enable any entertainer to come to the L.C.C. and tell them that he wants to open a theatre, and all the Council would have to say would be, "Yes, comply with our safety and sanitary requirements, and we will give you your licence, and with it you can play what you like." Mr. Reynolds' aim is the burial of the old Act of 1751 known as the Disorderly Houses Act.

"The future of the cinematograph theatre, I am convinced," said Mr. Reynolds, in conclusion, "is a brilliant one, and the low class places will be weeded out—their number has long been rapidly decreasing. The good ones have come to stay. Cinematograph shows must always remain one of the great features of the entertainment world. And it is my hope that the cinematograph will eventually be installed in every one of our schools, for as an educational vehicle there is no better teacher than moving pictures."

ON Saturday night the staff of the Exchange Pavilion, Kirkcaldy, met after the evening performance and presented their manager, Mr. George Lee, with a beautiful silver cigarette case and cigars, as a token of their esteem and respect. Mr. George Kilpatrick, The Era correspondent, occupied the chair, and after referring to the many sterling qualities of Mr. Lee, called upon Miss Gibson to hand over the gifts, which Mr. Lee feelingly acknowledged.

"MY FRIEND THE THIEF," which was produced successfully last week at the Camberwell Empire, was presented by Miss Vona Clifford, whose property it is. The company playing it, too, was engaged by her.

THE Cinematograph Trade Protection Society have approached the Clerk to the L.C.C., and hope to be able to arrange for a deputation representing the Cinematograph trade to interview the Theatres and Music Halls Committee with reference to the regulations under the new Act. The Council of the Society hold their next meeting on Wednesday next, Jan. 5, at 3 p.m., at the Salisbury Hotel, when the matter will be again under discussion, and arrangements will be made for a meeting of the whole trade

THE CRYSTAL PALACE.

Entertainments at the Crystal Palace for the holiday season are very attractive, and have been well patronised accordingly. Immense crowds attended Mr. J. Bannister Howard's pantomime in the theatre (fully noticed in another column), and similar liberal patronage has been bestowed upon Mr. Fred J. Connor's circus in the Centre Transept, where performances are given thrice daily. Redoubtable representatives of the ring won great admiration on Monday, no small contribution to the performance being made by artists bearing the proprietor's own name. Master Douglas Connor, a sturdy little boy, makes his appearance in an equestrian hurdle act, and rides his pony bareback in dashing style, turning quaintly heels over head to the ground and remounting with much agility. He also contrives while careering round the ring to snatch up flags embedded in the sawdust, a feat for which he is heartily cheered. Another member of the family is Miss Mona Connor, whom we have seen at the Palace before. She has marvellously improved during the past year, and now poses as a full-fledged equestrienne, doing a number of leaps and flights on a bareback horse, and winning high praise. The Bros. Austin combine in an equestrian acrobatic act, in which much skill and intrepidity is displayed; Eugene Foots is a graceful tight-rope performer; Olrac, Pugh, and Etherdo accomplish difficult feats on the horizontal bar; and the Aeroplanes, a trio of skilful gymnasts, do much to earn the appellation in a series of flights on the trapeze. An astounding balancing and acrobatic act is done by the Dekoe Family, among whom two small boys dressed in military uniform figure quaintly. They are thrown about in extraordinary fashion by their elders, but exhibit quite a cat-like facility in falling on their feet. Mr. John Madigan puts Jubilee, a pretty pony, through some graceful antics, and has also a number of performing fox terriers, who carry out novel tricks with amazing intelligence.

A strong force of funny men is in attendance. Clown Rabbit is irresistibly droll, and Bishop and Winkles lose no opportunity for making mirth, peals of laughter being the outcome of an elephant act, which is skilfully worked. A burlesque cricket match in which the three comedians named join proves equally amusing. Hoppit, Tony, and Terry are seen in "The Coster's Derby Day," in which a comic policeman pursued by a donkey is the source of great fun. An item much appreciated by the juveniles comes at the close, when Santa Claus and his merry men distribute toys.

Still located in the North Tower Garden Terrace is Mr. Robert Leadbetter's collection of living wild animals, truly described as one of the finest zoological collections ever exhibited. Much interest has been aroused by a lamb born in the menagerie on Christmas Day. Baby lions and baby lambs, infant elephants and full-grown giraffes, ferocious wolves and jumping kangaroos, and almost every known species of the brute family are to be found in the well-kept menagerie, where at four o'clock—feeding time—a curious sight is to be enjoyed. None should miss the menagerie.

The skating rink, where the pastime has long been preserved before it rose to its present popularity, is being resorted to numerously, the asphalte rink affording a most enjoyable surface. Football and hockey matches agreeably fill in the intervals between the sessions. Meux's Marvellous Marionettes are to be admired at intervals in the Egyptian Court, and a miniature fair, in which Hyatt's motors and novelty stalls figure, are among the manifold attractions.

MR. JESSE SMITH.

Mr. Horace Sedger is managing-director of the Electric Palaces, Ltd., which has just opened the very fine cinematograph palace at Lewisham. Mr. Sedger is the pioneer of the living picture world, and he has made Mr. Jesse Smith, who was for so long the assistant-manager of the Shepherd's Bush Empire, his resident-manager here. Mr. Jesse Smith is one of the smartest men at the game in London, and began stage life as a choir boy, being introduced to that father of boy choirs, Mr. J. E. Nolan, who placed him at the Adelphi to sing in Mabel's Life. Then the Spring Choirs at Covent Garden, followed by many other like engagements till the breaking of his voice. For a time he went into the building trade and nursed his voice back again. He recommenced singing by understudying at the Alhambra, afterwards joining Mr. D'Oyly Carte's first Patience company, where he played in the operetta of Quite an Adventure and sang in the chorus of Patience. He stayed with Mr. Carte about six years, but each year went into pantomime. Several engagements followed another season of grand opera, pantomime, then a run on the halls, back with Mr. Carte, then Mr. Smith went into the halls again, did a single singing turn, then joined a tenor and trotted out the old duets. Next came a tour through South America under the auspices of Mr. Edwin Cleary, followed by a run of nine years under the management of Mr. William Greet, of the Lyric Theatre, London. He played in comic opera (Mountebank), burlesque (Little Christopher Columbus), and The Sign of the Cross.

ALEXANDRA PALACE.

A Boxing Day audience at the Palace never attains the same proportions as a summer one—and naturally so, on account of the extra attractions provided in the Park—but last Monday's attendance was unusually small, due no doubt to the unfavourable weather. The Central Hall had an innovation in the shape of a well-decorated Christmas tree, nearly fifty feet high. There was the usual variety entertainment, with three houses, and a prettily-dressed ladies' band in marine costumes played pleasing selections during the performances, which took place on the floor in lieu of the orchestra. Buval, the happy Dutchman; Tony Spring, the jumping scarecrow; and the Wallonell Bros., gymnastic comedians, were amongst the turns. Mlle. Lona was commendably prominent both as a musican and dancer; Robert Gilbert made his cats and dogs do all but speak, and the high jumps were well appreciated; the Ashley Troupe, consisting of a lady and two gentlemen, were amusing in their skating act; and for musical eccentricities displayed in varied numbers the Friscos were deserving of praise. The general Alexandra Palace favourite, Captain Henry, with his zoological collection, in the Conservatory met with well-deserved support, and his live Teddy Bear, having returned to his old quarters, was at home with his kind friend and master. The theatre, which for two years has not had a pantomime, helped to make up the deficiency in a series of animated pictures, which included two pantomimes, Ali Baba and the Forty Thieves and The Sleeping Beauty. The last was an excellently executed film, proving how far coloured photography has advanced.

AT the Grand Theatre, Nottingham, the hit of the pantomime is manifestly made by Miss Maude May Murray, who appears in a marvellous spectacular dance act. The charm of colour and quick-changing aerial effects, together with Miss Murray's clever manipulation of her flowing robes, are truly wonderful, and nothing so startling and effective has been seen in Nottingham before.

RINKING GOSSIP AND NOTICES.

Masquerade at Paisley.

The first grand fancy dress masquerade carnival took place at the Paisley rink on Tuesday evening, when the building was filled to its utmost capacity with rinkers and onlookers. Valuable prizes were awarded by Mr. Bostock. There was a splendid show of character costumes, and the prizes were awarded by public vote. So successful was this function that another of the same kind may be looked for in the near future.

All on Wheels in Penzance.

THE Penzance Skating Rink is going very strong, and during the Christmas holidays has been crowded daily. Another rink was opened in Penzance on Boxing Day by the Mayor (Mr. A. K. Barnett), and a third is being talked about.

Sleepless Night in Rhondda Valley.

THE Treorchy Rink held its first carnival on Wednesday, Dec. 22, which proved very successful. "A sleepless night" was illustrated by a man in a night shirt carrying two large dolls. Olympia, Pentre, has caught on wonderfully, and has been crowded at all sessions.

Sheffield Skatery Wrecked.

MESSRS. Wilkins and Crawford's roller-skating rink in Sheffield was wrecked last week. There was a big weight of snow on the roof, which fell in, and then the corrugated iron walls collapsed. Many tons of snow fell on to the maple floor. It is estimated that the damage totalled £2,000.

Sir Walter Chaytor Opens Spennymoor.

SPENNYMOOR is not behind the times, for a number of enterprising gentlemen have erected a rink on a site behind the North-Eastern Hotel, about one minute's walk from the station, and last week Sir Walter Chaytor, who was accompanied by Lady Chaytor, performed the opening ceremony. Sir Walter said he felt it a great honour to be asked to open such a magnificent building, and also felt it to be a nice change in getting away from the stormy atmosphere of party politics to the more salubrious atmosphere of skating. He thanked the directors for providing such a commodious building for Spennymoor, and congratulated them on the success they had achieved. He hoped that the public would patronise the place as much as possible, especially during the winter evenings. He had much pleasure in declaring the building open, and wished it the greatest possible success.

Christmas Carnival at Stockton.

A grand fancy and evening dress carnival was held at the Royal Rink, Stockton-on-Tees, on Tuesday. The costumes were judged by Mr. and Mrs. E. T. M. Cowburn. William Barthram, the manager, engineered the entire proceedings with every credit to himself.

Skating Rink for Truro.

AT the Truro Town Council the committee reported the receipt of an offer from Mr. Robert Thomas, of Penzance, for a lease of the Market House for at least three years. The lessees, it was proposed, should level up the existing floor, and put in a sub-floor of deal, and cover in with a maple floor; also decorate, and instal electric light. Messrs. Boase and Thomas pointed out that in consequence of its having been ascertained that the cost of fixing the proposed floors would be nearer £500 than £300, they desired to have a lease for seven years, which they ultimately reduced to five. The Council decided that, subject to the Corporation retaining control of the use of the Market House when required for public purposes, on terms to be definitely stated in the lease, a special committee was requested to negotiate further as to terms with the applicants, and to prepare a form of lease for submission to the Council for approval.

Rexos at Waverley Market.

THE Rexos use Richardson skates in connection with their act. They are at Waverley Market for the next two weeks.

Christmas Tree on Rink.

The huge and expensive rink recently opened at West Hartlepool is making a strong bid for popularity. On Christmas Eve the attraction was a gigantic Christmas tree, from which each child attending was the recipient of a welcome little present. The general manager, Mr. Albert Mathams, late lessee of the Empress Theatre, announces his first fancy dress carnival for Jan. 3, a gymkhana for the 5th, and a Cinderella for the 7th.

Jessie Darling in Paris.

ON Monday Miss Jessie Darling opened a two-weeks' engagement at the Paris Hippodrome.

"WILSON THE DANCER."

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—Your correspondent, "F. E. M.," in your issue of the 11th ult., p. 24, refers to "Wilson the dancer," 18, Kirby-street, Dec. 4, 1827. I suggest this might have been Kirby-street, Clerkenwell, the home of one or two of the Sadler's Wells artists. In Hone's Table Book, 1827 (1891 edition), p. 286 refers to Wilson, the comedian—cited from the Monthly Mirror. He made his début in the character formerly supported by Shuter.

"When Wilson, the comedian, made his début, it was in the character formerly supported by Shuter; but upon his appearance on the stage the audience called out for their former favourite by crying 'Off, off! Shuter, Shuter!' Whereupon Wilson, turning round, and with a face as stupid as art could make it, and suiting his action to his words, replied, 'Shoot her, shoot her!' (pointing at the same time to the female performer on the stage with him). 'I'm sure she does her part very well.' This well-timed sally of seeming stupidity turned the scale in his favour, and called down repeated applause, which continued during the whole of the performance."

Maybe the pewter tankard referred to the above Wilson, who as a Sadler's Wells actor and probable dancer had possessed himself of so acceptable an article.—Yours faithfully,

J. C. MARRIOTT.

WALTER READER, eighteen, of Bridge-street, Mile-end, was charged with assaulting William Watkinson and Frederick Brown, attendants at the Paragon, and further with assaulting Police-constables 61 JR and 610 J by kicking them. Watkinson's evidence showed that while engaged during the Sunday evening performance at the Paragon he had occasion to speak twice to the prisoner regarding his disorderly conduct. At the interval, about 9.20 p.m., the prisoner, who had previously left the hall with some companions, returned and created a disturbance. The witness refused to allow him to take his seat, and the prisoner then became abusive, and kicked the witness in a dangerous part. Another attendant, named Brown, came up, and was struck in the face. Brown then fetched the police, who arrested the prisoner. The evidence of Police-constables Laking, 610 J, and Brown, 61 JR, showed that the prisoner kicked them both, and continued to be very violent all the way to the station. The prisoner, who denied assaulting anyone, said he had been ill-treated by both the music hall attendants and the police. He asked for a remand, which was granted, to enable him to call witnesses.

PROVINCIAL THEATRICALS.

PONTYPRIDD.—ROYAL CLARENCE.—Sole Owners, Messrs. Trenchard and Jones; Manager, Mr. Charles Trenchard.—This week Mr. Percy Williams's company presents The Fatal Wedding, and opened with a packed matinée on Monday. Mr. Hugh Montgomery undertakes Howard Wilson in fine style, and he finds a splendid partner in Miss Ethel Kay as Mabel, his wife. Robert Curtis is in the excellent hands of Mr. Herbert Humber; and Miss Leah Marlborough is a powerful Cora Williams. Toto and Peter Schwartz (Mr. Harry M. Vernon and Mr. Watson Hume) are capital; Mr. Frank Ashly is a typical Policeman O'Reilly; and Mr. J. Newton makes a good clergyman. Bridget is played to advantage by Miss Blanche Humber; Miss Rosie Sanders (Jessie) and Master Tom Grice (Frank) are well received.

PORTH.—PALACE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Pooles, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. J. W. Bynorth.—Billy Howard and Kathryn Harris, in a comedy sketch, The Adventures of a Happy Tramp, are exceedingly smart; Dolly England is a charming male impersonator; and Fred Hallam is a very funny comedian. Arthur Fernis is smart and witty; the dancing Gilberts present a unique terpsichorean act; Minnie Olive and Bill Owen, in a refined comedietta, The Roadside Tinkers, arouse much laughter; the Lovelaces, American song illustrators, sing their latest successes; Valoni, juggler, presents his wonderfully-trained pigeons; Veda Carl is a favourite comedian; the Richards Trio, in an eccentric novelty act, receives rounds of applause; and the Palascope gives excellent pictures.

PORTSMOUTH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Armstrong Bell.—After a lapse of ten years pantomime is revived here, The Sleeping Beauty being produced by Mr. J. F. Elliston from the book of Mr. St. John Hammund, the plot being based on the unintentional insult to Witch Baneful (Mr. Chas. Ommaney) in not being invited to the christening of Beauty Allfair, who is consigned to an early death. The good fairy, Silver Star, of course, intervenes. The pantomime, in twelve scenes, is enlivened by bright, tuneful music, the chorus and orchestra being under the direction of Mr. Clarence C. Corri. The cast is admirable in all respects. Miss Dorothy Chard, as the principal boy Prince Faithful, possesses both a fine physical presence and dramatic ability, and is an expressive vocalist. Miss Frances Kapstowne makes a charming and fascinating heroine; Misses Ada Tilley and Jennie Gregson are bright and vivacious as Bon Bon and Bonne Bouche. Both Messrs. George Goodfellow and Arthur Reynolds as Beauty's parents, King Half-a-Crown and Queen Algebra, are clever comedians, and have plenty of scope for their ability; Mr. Leonard Maitland making a humorous Count. Miss Beryl Vaudrey's cultured and pleasing voice is heard to advantage in several numbers, she being a great success as the Fairy Godmother. Mr. Chas. Ommaney is likewise well suited to his part of the spiteful witch. The Four Royal Vagabonds, vocalists, contribute effectively to the musical portion, and the Continental Quartette of lady dancers to the spectacular display. The scenery and general mounting, with gorgeous limelight effects, reflect credit upon Mr. Claude Agnew, the stage manager, who must be congratulated upon the smooth working at the opening performance on Monday afternoon.

PRINCE'S.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. E. Agate.—Pantomime this year has given place to the legitimate drama, the attraction being Walter Melville's drama The Soldier's Wedding, presented by his own company. Jack Brown and Nancy Lee, hero and heroine, were impersonated with ability by Mr. Matthew Boulton and Miss Dorothy Richardson; the heavy part, Charles Courtney, receiving capable exposition from Mr. H. J. Butler.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Captain E. H. Warren Wright; Secretary, Mr. W. Pratt.—Prominent on a strong holiday programme was The Princess of Bagdad, a minature musical comedy presented by Messrs. Hodgson and Lowther, comprising two picturesque scenes of the Oriental city and including some twenty-five artists; another principal turn was Mysticus, styled the human chameleon. A clever trio of grotesquely-attired musicians are Leslie Lyn and Willie; Charlton performs neatly some conjuring tricks; the Four Zodiac Girls are attractive singers and dancers; George Antill, attired as a chauffeur, amuses with his song of motor accidents; another humorous comedian is Charles Rowen; and Payne's Biophotoscope, with some interesting films, The Enchanted Poultry Yard, concludes.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Harris.—The ordinary variety entertainment has given way this week to pantomime, Dick Whittington and His Cat, written and produced by Mr. Edward Marris, and so condensed to meet the exigency of the bi-nightly system. Miss Rosie Sylvester is a delightful Dick—dashing, graceful, and she sings well; Miss Dolly Denton is a centre of attraction as Alice, her daintiness and charm making her a favourite; an amusing Dame is seen in Billy Rex, and Idle Jack, in the person of Mr. George Brentwood, contributes strongly to the comic element. Messrs. J. R. Tyrrell and Walter B. Nugent, as Captain Kettle and Pott, his mate, play their parts with bustling humour. Chas. Danvers's rendering of Alderman Fitzwarren also adds to the fun; Mr. Will Manite's agility as the Cat is much in evidence. The Misses Rosie, Lily, and Edie Manite and Connie Retta are responsible for some gracefully executed dances.

KING'S.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Claude Marner; Director of Entertainments, Mr. Thos. Barrasford.—This house, as usual, comes in for a large share of patronage. The star turn is Madame Maud Santley, who is vociferously encored; Miss Alice Pierce is repeatedly recalled for her impressions of star players; Bert Coote and Co. very successfully present the Lamb on Wall Street; Clothilde and Mustoe's cockatoos interest, as do likewise Max Sterling, illusionist, the Quality Quartette of male vocalists, the Cabiacs, Miss Edmonds and Co. in The Lady Jockey, Paulton and Dooley, trick cyclists, and Ah Mendies.

SOUTH PARADE PIER.—Manager, Mr. H. Lalande.—Mr. E. Norris's company has presented Our Boys in the Pavilion.

PRESTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, The Executors of the late W. Johnson; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. Alban Newton.—Miss Emma and Mr. Percy Hutchison's company, in Mrs. Ponderbury's Past, is proving a big attraction, and, needless to say, causes one continuous roar of laughter from rise to fall of the curtain. Mr. George Mudie as Mr. Ponderbury is inimitable, and he fully maintains his reputation as a mirth-provider of the first class; Mr. Barnett-Parker is highly successful as Mr. Mervyn Thorpe; so also is Mr. H. Douglas Greet as Mr. Hyacinth Grayling; Mr. George Child is quite at home as Captain John Rumford, R.N.; Mr. Percy Bell's Butler is a very clever bit of character acting; Miss Violet Garland as Ethel Denniston and Miss Mamie Mathews as Lady Baring enact their respective parts with success; Miss Phyllis Stuckey as Mme. Polacca Modjeski treats the part with the necessary amount of delicacy; Miss Celia Gordon as Mrs. Ponderbury deserves the highest praise for her excellent portrayal. A clever little curtain-raiser, entitled His Landlady, written by Mr. George Mudie, was produced on Tuesday evening, and proved very acceptable.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Page; General-Manageress, Mrs. M. M. Clarkson; Resident-Manager, Mr. Charles B. Clarkson.—The Fred Granville's (Productions, Limited) company, in Beauty and the Beast, is drawing crowded houses. The scenery and dresses are good, and the incidental music lively and up-to-date. Speciality turns are introduced by the Keebles (Norah and Edie), Hewson's Æolians, Ed. Stream, Micklin Williams, Royal Quintette of International Dancers, Barrie and Wood, Frank Daleno, Victoria Francis, and Hilda de Grey. Miss Norah Keeble is a sprighly Silver Buttons; Miss Hilda de Grey a most able Prince Great Heart; Miss Dollie Barrie a capital Sir Electro Plato; Miss Edie Keeble is a charming Beauty; and Mr. Micklin Williams a clever Beast. Edward Stream and Frank Daleno a funny duo as Sprindles and Twitters; Bella Moody a very quaint Whilhelmena (the Baron's ugliest daughter); Victoria Francis a pretty Fairy Sunlight; Juan Wood a most amusing Squire Winkles; Sammy Foster a mirth-provoking Sammy; and Florence Milton a dainty Dolly Dimple.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank E. Burdett.—Red Riding Hood, John Tiller's pantomime, is on its second week here, and the success we predicted last week on its production is fully assured. Everything goes with a swing. May Merry is as bewitching as ever; Zena Benson, May Sharples, and Lulu Russell are becoming bigger favourites than before, if this is possible; the comedy parts, as portrayed by the Brothers Hayes, Frank Helroyd, Fred Laurence, and Charles Verno create roars of laughter; and specialities of the Lotus Troupe and the Mascotte Troupe of childen, together with the pretty dresses and artistic settings, go to make the pantomime one of the best ever seen here, which is saying a good deal. Mention must be made of the excellent music provided under the bâton of Mr. F. Dexter.

RADCLIFFE.—GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Lessees, Messrs. Geo. T. Santé, Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. James Boothman.—Messrs. Mathew H. Glenville and Fred Osmond's company is here in For Wife or Kingdom. Mr. Mathew H. Glenville is a success as Captain Max; Mr. Reginald T. Fox is a dignified General Von Nestolde; Mr. Albert Guyon is responsible for capital acting as Baron Maurice; and Mr. Edward Hobart does well as Sergeant Offenbach. Miss Lydia Andie gives a satisfactory representation of the Grand Duchess; and Miss Alice Buckland is a chic and sprightly Nita Constadt; Miss Lillian Malvern is good as Esther; and Miss Margaret R. Frame displays talent as Camille.

RAMSGATE.—ROYAL PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Lord George Sanger; Lessee, Mr. Ernest Mansell.—Mr. Popple (of Ippleton) has constituted the attraction at the Royal Palace Theatre during the week. Mr. Chas. Macdona—whose company it is—plays with first-rate effect the name-part in this thoroughly pleasing musical comedy; Miss Nellie Hodson bewitchingly plays La Bolero; Miss Margaret Letilla sings charmingly and acts gracefully; and good effect is contributed by the remainder of the cast, among whom are Messrs. Bert Edwards, E. H. Paterson, and A. Hill-Mitchelson. The large audiences which have assembled to witness the performances have keenly enjoyed them.

ROYAL VICTORIA PAVILION.—Proprietors, Ramsgate Corporation; Lessees, Borough Entertainments Association; Manager, Mr. Philip A. Lennon.—On Monday Mr. Neyill Graham staged his bright and attractive pantomime Aladdin at the Pavilion with signal success. Music, staging, and acting are all excellent. Mlle. Lucietta is a dashing principal boy; while Miss Lillian Earle daintily fills the rôle of the Princess; Miss Harriette Laydall, a clever comedienne, sustains the part of Widow Twankey; and good work is contributed by Mr. Wilfred Lyndon (Abanazar), Miss Cissie Clarke (Pekoe), Josephine (Nicee-Nicee), Mr. George Howard (the Emperor), A. Taylor (the Grand Vizier), Mr. C. Clarke, and the Astreys, a comic pair of Chinese policemen. Sinclair's Four Parisian Girls dance smartly.

RAWTENSTALL.—GRAND THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. William Matthews; Responsible Manager, Mr. J. A. Whitehouse.—Mr. Wentworth Croke's fine company is presenting The Christian to good houses. Mr. Henry Wolston as John Storm gives a forcible and realistic portrayal; and Miss Gladys Purnell is a charming and talented Glory Quayle, her acting being exceedingly clever. Mr. Wilfred Noy as Horatio Drake is most acceptable; and Mr. Fred Morgan portrays Lord Ure with skill. Mr. John Hastings Batson is most effective as Father Lamplugh; and Mr. Charles E. Dering is successful as Archdeacon Wealthy. Miss Gladys Vernon gives a very sympathetic portrayal of Pollie Love. The play is well mounted and dressed.

READING.—ROYAL COUNTY THEATRE.—Proprietors and Managers, Mr. Milton Bode and Mr. Edward Compton; Resident-Manager, Mr. Fred Benton.—Mr. Fred J. Little and Mr. Fred Darcy's pantomime of Sinbad the Sailor is here. The book is by Mr. Frank Ayrton, and is very smartly written. The plot is on the old familiar lines, and gives scope for a gorgeous scenic display. The title-rôle is taken by Miss May Poulton, who plays the part with great vivacity and also sings in good style, Mr. Walter Adams is highly amusing as Sinbad, Mr. George Collins as Mrs. Sinbad is very diverting, Mr. Charlie Preston acts with humour as Captain Cook of the "Mary Jane," Messrs. Newco and Sullo as the Mate and Bo'sun are very successful and make a splendid hit in their latest creation "The boys in red," Mr. H. Van Lachterop as the Emperor and Miss L. Van Lachterop as Princess Zaidee display their vocal ability to great advantage in their operatic duets, Mr. Albert E. Mann is a good Old Man of the Sea, Miss Bessie Defries is a very attractive Fairy Lustra, Miss Connie Clare as Selim, Miss Carrie Harding as Zorilda, and Miss Dolly Clare as Zuleika act fascinatingly, Mr. D. Howell is a capital representative of Rum Fum, the Emperor's Prime Minister, and all the other parts are well impersonated. The Acme Quartette give an excellent terpsichorean display, and in the last scene the Szarvasi Ferencz troupe of Hungarian singers, dancers, and acrobats gain immense applause by a really excellent performance. The scenery is very tasteful and effective, the Diamond Valley scene and the Sphinx Palace being especially worth mention. The full chorus and augmented orchestra are under the able direction of Mr. Garfield Barrett. The house was crowded on Boxing Night, and excellent business has been done throughout the week. The special matinées have also been well attended.

THE PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr. George Howard Watson; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. E. Draco; Stage-Manager, Mr. A. Burridge.—A most attractive holiday programme is being presented here. The bill is headed by the Jees in their world-renowned musical pantomime The Musical Smithy, which is exceedingly well received; Danton and Morris are two good comedians; the Claymore Trio appear in a clever pot-pourri act of dancing and juggling; Percy Farrimond, the original Lancashire singing collier, displays his vocal powers to great advantage; Les Marbas, humorous and acrobatic dancers, provide a capital turn; the Savoni Sisters sing and dance with great ability; the Lafaille Troupe give a very clever gymnastic and equilibristic act; Andie Burns is a capital comedian; and some excellent pictures are projected on the Palace Bioscope.

LARGE TOWN HALL.—Poole's Myriorama is paying its annual Christmas visit. The sights of the world are most realistically depicted in the myrioramic pictures, and a first-class exhibition of animated pictures is also shown. Variety is given to the entertainment by a company of star artists, including the Rochez' circus of ponies and dogs, which are very highly trained; the Selbys, eccentric comedians; Fil Gerrard, the facial king; Lang and Sheffer, comedy artists and dancers; and Carta and Mirtziana, the sensational gymnastic and equilibristic performers. Mr. Nat Abott is an efficient cicerone. Poole's Christmas visit is an established institution here, and the entertainment is receiving splendid patronage.

ROCHDALE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, the Northern Theatres Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. W. Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Resident-Manager, Mr. S. Burton.—A Destroyer of Men is the title of a thrilling drama being presented here this week by Miss Hilda Beverley's company. Mr. H. Ryeland-Leigh cleverly portrays the part of Count Starevitch; Mr. Herbert Pearson is prominent with a powerful impersonation of the triple rôles of Kare Mishla, Herr Ruaz, and Uno; Mr. James Jarrett is effective as Michael Mishla; Miss Mary Brammer wins all hearts by a capital embodiment of Vida Ravel; and Miss Hilda Beverley acts with telling effect the part of Olga Mishla.

EMPIRE AND PRINGLE'S PICTURE PALACE.—Lessee, Mr. Ralph Pringle.—The management continue to cater well for their patrons. On Monday some very enjoyable pictures were shown. A. Harris, vocalist, contributed two well-rendered descriptive songs; and the Whittington Trio gave a clever and amusing acrobatic act.

ROTHERHAM.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. Holbery Hardy.—Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Hinton and Travis Green's company are occupying the boards here with Her Fatal Marriage. Mr. Jerrold Heather is seen to advantage as Zaco Malletto; and Mr. Frank Menzies is a manly Wilfred Grey. Mr. G. Mortimer Hancock is a smart Colonel Crichton; Mr. Sam Edwards does well as Jim Rodgers; Mr. Gerald Byrne is deserving of mention as Paul; Mr. Walter A. Chetham scores as Detective Smart; Miss Ivy Ross is a pleasing Lily; and Miss Amy Maitland a sprightly Dolly Dimple. Miss Hilda Shirley presents a sympathetic rendition of the difficult part of Myra Malletto.

HIPPODROME, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. T. Edgar Fox; Resident-Manager, Mr. A. R. Hollands.—The management have decorated the auditorium with flowers and greenery, the effect being delightful. Mr. William Watson's pantomime of Robinson Crusoe occupies the boards. Mlle. De Rose is a charming hero; Miss Hilda Claremont is pleasing as Polly Parkin; Mr. Phil Lester is funny as Mrs. Crusoe; and Mr. Joe Waldron as John Willie Crusoe and Miss Etty Waldron as Mary Crusoe are responsible for a lot of humour. Mr. Billy Watson is deserving of mention as Will Atkins; Mr. Cliff Dacre as Wreckerces sings with great success; Mr. J. W. Hawtrey scores as King Guzzlem; Miss Ruby Carlton is smart as Wavina; and Mr. Bendene gives a lifelike portrayal of the Crocodile; Mr. Dick Nash being most amusing as Rats. Specialities are introduced by the Waldrons, Mlle. De Rose, Three Royal Temples, Lambert and Butler, Sisters Gaye, and Bendene and Vererrie.

RUNCORN.—PUBLIC HALL.—Lessees, Messrs. Hamilton and Hughes.—The programme for this week is quite up to the usual good standard. St. Ruth and Conyers, operatic vocalists, have a répertoire of well-rendered works; Andy Fagan is a pleasing light comedian and dancer; Lillie Lemain presents a novel Lilliputian entertainment that is much enjoyed; and Hector and Lauraine are truly styled up-to-date comedians. The pictures are of special merit.

SALFORD.—PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. E. B. Goulden; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harold Goulden.—Good business is being done with G. Carlton Wallace's A Thief in the Night, large numbers not being able to find room on Monday night. Mr. Stanley Bedwell is an excellent Alan Escombe; Miss Marjory Fane as Joan was well up to the requirements of her exacting part; and Michael Pagani was a thorough scoundrel in the hands of Mr. Leyton Cancellor. Comedy was well sustained by Mr. Bert Atherton (Toby), Miss Winifred Barton (Happy), and Mr. Russell Bogue (Crake). Miss Beatrice Homer forcibly drew the ire of the audience with her Sonia Cleeve; Miss Prudence Ayrton cleverly presented Little Joan; and Mr. Charles Foster (Lord Romilley), Mr. Hugh Wallace (Richard Cleeve), Mr. Philip Crossley (Rev. Charles Halkett), and Miss Irene Chalmers (Lady Romilley) did well.

REGENT THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. Turner; General-Manager, Mr. Herbert Raymond; Secretary, Mr. R. H. Lee.—Messrs. Soniers and Saunders' pantomime The Babes in the Wood on Monday packed the house at the matinée and twice at night, and good houses still continue, with two hours' good fun at each performance. The Sisters Mawdsley are clever dancers and singers, and make excellent Babes; Miss Olive Astor is a dashing Robin Hood; Maid Marion is sweetly presented by Miss Lulu Lord, who sings in a very pleasing manner; Denby and Dent are a couple of comical clever ruffians; and the Baron is in the safe hands of Mr. Marcus Boyle. Mr. A. McAlister is very droll as the dame Evelean; and Mr. Willie Barrett (Simple Simon), Mr. Wm. Atherton (Friar Tuck), Miss Ada Whitton (Will Scarlett), Miss Blanche Montague (Dorothy Dimple), Miss Marie Blanche (Little John), and Miss Daisy Noel (Polly Primrose) give good support in their various capacities. Some clever work is done by the Salonicas (acrobatic dancers), and there are several interesting specialities introduced. The scenery is good, and the dresses are very pretty.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; General-Manager, Mr. H. Winstanley; Resident-Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Boyle.—Miss Zona Vavey in "My Lady's Bower" gains much applause for her singing; the Singing Jockeys give a most enjoyable racing act; The Sleepwalker is an amusing sketch, by W. Ellis and company; the Sages (Will and Jenny) are well received for their burlesque work; and Ford and Hanson, with their musical instrument act; Tony Freedman, comedian; Les Supriskis, in pretty lady gymnastic act; Beatrice Wyke, vocalist; and Ida Barr, actress-vocalist, also contribute to an excellent programme.

SCARBOROUGH.—THE AQUARIUM.—Secretary and Manager, Mr. Walter Kitchingman.—The premier position here is occupied by the Cornelius Choir, whose high-class singing is greatly appreciated; the Three Comerfords are smart acrobats and tumblers; Olive Myrtle, vocalist and dancer, provides a pleasing turn; George Bernard is well received in a dramatic scena An Outcast in the Colonies; Mundill and Maude appear in an amusing duologue "Uncle's Coat"; Frank Solbey is a very good child mimic and comedian; and the Wedburns are as popular as ever. Other attractions are the Bioscope and the skating rink.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Garside; Manager, Mr. F. P. Morgan.—Mr. G. Carlton Wallace's company are appearing here in The Lancashire Lad, with Mr. Douglas Watson in the title-rôle, Miss Madge Douglas as Jessie Wincote, Mr. Ernest Vaughan (Mat Carlton), Miss Muriel Inglis (Lorna Wincote), Mr. Bob Anderson (John Willy Wardle), and Miss Gertie Henderson as Mother Wardle. The characters are all exceedingly well represented.

THE NEW HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Peacock.—Mr. J. Gar Kiddie's pantomime The Babes in the Wood is the attraction here, and is drawing crowded houses nightly. The scenery and dresses are excellent, and the artists one and all fill their parts with the greatest credit.

SHEERNESS.—HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Adam Seebold; Resident-Manager, Mr. Ted Williams.—Mr. Stuart Lomath's company in Whom God Hath Joined drew an excellent house on Monday. The sensational episodes are cleverly developed by the company, and the staging is capital.

SHEFFIELD.—LYCEUM THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager and Treasurer, Mr. J. E. B. Beaumont.—The Christmas attraction here is The King of Cadonia, which was presented on Boxing Day by Mr. Frank Curzon's specially-selected company from the Prince of Wales's.

EMPIRE PALACE.—The Moss' Empires Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Alan D. Dunbar.—The Yuletide programme here has been contributed to by the following well-known performers:—The Boissetts, in their comicality, "The Bricklayers"; the Sachoff troupe of Russian dancers; Mr. J. W. Hall, comic; Miss Mabel Sinclair, vocalist; Miss Madge Osmond, comedienne; Miss Henriquette Maude, in a novel act; the Quaint Q's, speciality artists; Miss Ethel Bourne, a pleasing artist; Matthews and Reece, two talented entertainers; and the Bioscope, with artistic new pictures.

THE HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford; Resident-Manager, Mr. Frank Poole.—A first-rate Christmas bill of fare was submitted to a crowded house on Monday, the artists being Mlle. Verneuil and her troupe of shapely ladies in classical statuary; Gibson and Bell, novelty artists; Dowson; Mr. Wilton Heriot's company in the sketch Father's Footsteps; Neder Velde's monkey acrobats; Ferguson and Mack, established local favourites of thirty years' standing; Maria Racko; Mr. George Hall; Miss Lena Wyli's; and Mr. Philip Braham's comedy troupe in the diverting absurdity March Hares; Augustin and Hartley; and the Bioscope.

ALBERT HALL.—Poole's celebrated Myriorama picture-show and variety company opened here to a big audience on Christmas Eve. The scenery was much enjoyed and the lighting and effects were quite up to date. The animated pictures of all the noted firms were thoroughly enjoyed, and hearty applause greeted the efforts of the following talented performers:—The famous George French troupe of trick cyclists; the expert and amusing Snow family, comedy and trick skaters; Learto the clown, and his intelligent little canine comedian; Miss Phyllis St. Clair, vocalist; Mr. Harry Dowsett, vocal comedian; Miss Hanid Alexander, mimic, vocalist, and pianist; Mr. Bert Gates, ventriloquist; and the Borghetti troupe.

SHREWSBURY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Director, Mr. W. Yates Gregory.—There was an excellent and varied bill of fare here for the holiday season, and packed houses were the rule. This week the programme includes the admirably staged operatic scena The Daughter of the Regiment. Mr. T. H. Wood is a fine actor and baritone vocalist as Sergeant Sulpice; Miss Nellie Moore an accomplished Countess of Berkenfelt; Mr. Ernest Chas Gittins merits high praise as Bruno; Mr. Percival Harris as Tony takes the part in a very creditable fashion; and Miss Adele Prescott sings with power and effect, and performs her part admirably. Lucy Lynd, character comedienne, wins golden opinions; Herman and Evelyn are very skilful wire performers; the Hamiltons have a refined and attractive vocal scena; M. Coselly is a marvellous chair jumper; Eric and Nora contribute a smart musical act; and Percy Maye merits the highest encomiums for his elaborately dressed and staged performance—an exceptionally fine turn.

SMETHWICK.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor, Mr. C. Barnard; Manager, Mr. E. Hewitson.—Aladdin and His Wonderful Lamp was presented for the first time on Christmas Eve to a large and appreciative audience by Matthew H. Glenville and Fred Osmond's company. The pantomime reaches a high level of excellence in the strength of its company, the liberality of the comic element, the profusion of the ballets, and the catchy nature of the songs and choruses. The production is elaborately staged, and all the principal characters are portrayed by artists of repute. Miss Hettie Zillwood as the principal boy captivated the house. She has some tuneful numbers and chorus songs, the latter being taken up with great gusto; Miss Lou Charlesworth is a charming Princess, and was recalled for her singing; Mr. Charles H. Gallier does well as the Emperor; Mr. Fred Osmond as the Vizier creates much amusement, and his rendering of "Kelly" was repeatedly encored; the Brothers Lavelle are quaint comedy acrobats as the Chinese policemen; Mr. Frank Sutherland makes the most of Abanazar; Mr. Clarence Turner (a quaint comedian) puts the audience into excellent good humour as the Widow Twankey; Mr. Pulo is a funny Wishee Washee, and is also a clever comedy juggler; the Sisters Wingrove quickly sang and danced themselves into warm favour. Other features of the production are the graceful dancing of the Venesser troupe of dancers, the Grando Sextette of Male vocalists; and Miss May Wyatt, 'cello soloist. Frank Sutherland and Charles H. Gallier are the stage-managers, and Mr. Fred. R. Wyatt is the musical director. Chorus and orchestra do good work.

SOUTHAMPTON.—GRAND THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Fredk. Mouillot; Resident-Manager, Mr. Arthur Weston.—The holiday attraction is provided by the Moody Manners Opera company in a répertoire of famous operas. On Monday afternoon Faust was presented with complete success. Mr. Albert Bowyer, a newcomer locally, sang beautifully in the title-rôle, a like remark applying to Miss Grace Nicol as Marguerite. Messrs. William Anderson (Mephistopheles) and W. Farmer (Valentine) were also excellent. In the evening Maritana was given, with Mme. Beatrice La Palme in the name-part, and Mr. Seth Hughes as Don Cæsar, both scoring great successes. Other operas billed for the week are Carmen, The Daughter of the Regiment, The Masked Ball, Tannhauser, Cavalleria Rusticana, Pagliacci, and Il Trovatore.

PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. Wm. Trussell.—Brilliantly redecorated and relighted this building reopened on Monday with a special holiday programme. Albert and Edmund's company appear in the farcical sketch, The Tower of London; the Woods are wonderful thought readers, and their turn is well appreciated; the Three Diamonds dance well; Ruby Dahl gives capital imitations of marionettes; and others who entertain are Steel and Laing, Morris and Moore, and Norah Stockelle.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Directors, Messrs. Fred Mouillot and W. de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Yardley.—The production of Cinderella on Boxing Day was enthusiastically received. Great praise is due to Messrs. Sydney Cooper, the Tally Ho Trio, and Chas. Wood, under whose direction the pantomime is given twice nightly. Miss Doris Langdon makes a delightful Cinders; while Miss Gwladys Soman as Prince Charming is all that the name implies; the Fairy Godmother is well played by Miss Fay Desmond; roars of laughter greet the drolleries of the two ugly sisters, Camelia and Cordelia (Messrs. Chas. Wood and Fred Anderson); whilst the Baron Doonaught (Mr. Eric Farr), his page (Mr. Fred Park), and the broker's men (Messrs. Erne Chester and Wm. Donst) are no less amusing. The Sisters Belmore and the Sisters Christopher sing and dance delightfully; and the Eight Sunrays are responsible for some splendid speciality dances. The dresses and scenery are charming, and the orchestra is directed by Mr. Edmund Peterson.

SOUTHEND-ON-SEA.—THE HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, the Southend Hippodrome, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Lewis de Burgh.—A programme of all-round excellence has been provided for the holiday week. Sam Mayo pleases all with his quaint songs and quaint humour; Mather and Mayer are excellent in their comedy duo; Maud Wellon, comedienne, contributes some really dainty songs in a finished manner; Spissel Bros. and Mack are comedy acrobats of a high order; Leo Tell appears capable of mimicking anything; Marie Witton is a good singer; and Brinn, with his wonderful feats of strength, is creating quite a sensation.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Sole owners, Empire Theatre Co., Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Adam Seebold; Acting-Manager, Mr A. Lingham Power.—Jack the Giant Killer is drawing good houses here. Miss Marie Beresford takes the title-rôle with the characteristic dash and energy required; Miss Cynthia Lupino as Princess Blush Rose ably seconds the efforts of the principal boy; the Sisters Florencie dance well; Mr. Geo. Lupino amuses as the Master; while other characters to cause laughter were King Tweedledee and Tweedledum, represented by Messrs. Happy Harry Ellis and Tom Ashby; and the Widow, well played by Mr. Geo. Grenville. As the Giant Mr. H. A. Langlois is very good, and the speciality turns are well performed.

SOUTH SHIELDS.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. John Coulson.—Mr. Wilson Benge's company is presenting The Sinner to good houses. Mr. Wilson Benge as Monk Stretton is seen to advantage; Mr. Charles Burdon is good as Edgar Thornhill; and the same may be said of Mr. Alex. Finlayson as Paul Levaine; the virago-like Meg Stanton is cleverly depicted by Miss Adelaide Raby; Little Ned is well played by Miss Dora Olga; and Miss Geraldine Verner, Miss Gertrude Vickers, and Miss Saidie Smith all fill their parts with ability. Mr. Frank Radcliffe submits a good character sketch of Bill Stanton; and Mr. Lewis Newman is very good in the comedy part.

EMPIRE PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietors, The South Shields Empire Palace, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. R. Thornton; General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Resident-Manager, Mr. Ernest Bridgen.—The Elliott Savonas, musical marvels, submit a scena of great beauty, entitled The Palace of Orpheus; Stewart and Morgan furnish another musical turn much appreciated; Thorpe and Zoe Coe contribute a good sketch, entitled My Burglar; Fred Elton scores in his scena, "On Board an Ocean Liner"; Mackintosh and Royal are expert dancers; and Geo. Rea, Scotch comedian; Ruby Roya, comedienne; and the Bioscope complete.

SPENNYMOOR.—CAMBRIDGE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. David Collins.—The Christmas attraction here consists of Mr. W. V. Garrod's company in A Country Girl in London. Mr. Garrod plays Frank Gordon in a most convincing manner; Mr. Charles Halling is a good John Hamilton; Mr. William Bradford a successful Godfrey Clinton; Mr. Frank Dallas makes a hit as Heinrich Oppenheim; Mr. Seymour Perry as Wilberfoce Puddyphat is droll; Miss Bertha Kingston as Marjorie shows fine judgment in an interesting part; Miss Ethel Crawford makes a capital Gwendoline; and Miss Alice Clarke an amusing Adelaide Puddyphat.

STAFFORD.—LYCEUM THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. James Elphinstone.—Cinderella was produced here on Boxing Night with every success. It is well staged and the dresses are very smart. The acting of the principals and all concerned is good. Miss Eva Travis, a captivating Cinderella, finds a worthy Prince in Miss Georgie Hawkins; Mr. Arthur Farren makes an ideal Baron; and Mr. A. Stokes and Mr. MacCabe as the Ugly Sisters are wonderful creations. Mr. James Mackenzie as Peps, the Page, and Mr. Harry May and Mr. D. Anderson as the two footmen Phil and Garlic, were productive of much merriment. The specialities were M. Le Clair's performing dogs, a really wonderful troupe; La Zenith, in an illuminated butterfly dance; Messrs. Bernard and May, comedy duo; Miss Flo Banks, lady clog dancer; and Mr. Arthur Farren, mimic.

STOCKPORT.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Chas. Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Revill.—Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Levy and Mr. J. E. Cardwell produced their pantomime, The House that Jack Built, on Christmas Eve before a crowded audience. Plenty of good music, rollicking fun, tasteful scenery, and magnificent dresses, go to make up a most enjoyable entertainment. Mr. Jack Hayton as the dame Aunt Purdy is prominent among the comedians in providing the fun, capitally supported by Messrs. Doyle and Gibson as the broker's men Scraggs and Scraggles; Messrs. Walker and Lake as Professor Pills and his assistant Squills; and two funny men in Mr. J. W. Hamm and Mr. Paddy Sloan as Harold and Percy. Miss Daisy Wood is a captivating Jack, and makes a pleasing success with "Just Someone" and "Molly O'Morgan." A sweet vocalist is Miss Dolly Dodds, who is the principal girl Jill, and whose most popular number is "I'm looking for Mr. Wright"; Miss Nina Wilson makes a charming Fairy Twinklestar, and achieves a hit with "Somewhere."

EMPIRE.—Proprietors, The Stockport Empire Theatre Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Black.—Pantomime also prevails here, Messrs. Dottridge and Longden's company in Dick Whittington providing the attraction with distinct success. Miss Ethel Campbell as Dick acts and sings in good style, and is particularly pleasing in "I can picture Polly hanging up the holly"; Alice has a charming representative in Miss Tiny Franks; Miss Phyllis Seymour is successful as Molly; and Miss Ivy Proudfoot, who sings artistically "North Pole Star," is a delightful Viscount Piccadilly. Mr. Deane Tribune as Jack Idle and Mr. Albert Williams as Sarah keep the audience in roars of laughter, with able support from Mr. Jack Hodgson as Alderman Fitzwarren. An entertaining feature is Mlle. Pauline Rivers' troupe of merry mill girls and dancers.

STOCKTON-ON-TEES.—CASTLE THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Chas. Imeson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Cecil Imeson.—Messrs. Max Montesole and Angus MacLeod present the fairy play, Pinkie and the Fairies. As Pinkie Hermione Gingold, who has a sweet little voice, is a great success; Hetty Kenyon is a warm favourite as Queen of the Fairies; Dolly Summers is most amusing as the dignified Herald; Master Charles Chappell makes an excellent Tommy; the rôles of Molly (Muriel Alston), Cinderella (Lucie Cane), Dick Whittington (Joan Maitland), Sleeping Beauty (Estelle Th are given here this week by the Zenandry Bros., Charley Bigton, and J. K. Carney. The Pictures are an excellent assortment.

WEST BROMWICH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Richard Nightingale. — The manager of this cosy house is certainly to be congratulated on the undoubted success of the production of his new pantomime, Aladdin. The dresses and scenery and general stage effects are all that one could desire and the ballet arranged and conducted by Miss Kate Tyrrel is far above the average. Miss Edna Latonne presents a bright and smart Aladdin, and her singing and dancing produces many encores. The Princess is nicely played by Miss Jenny Hackett; Mr. Arthur Pier as the Emperor captures the audience by his fine rendering of "Somewhere," and "If I had a world to give"; the Sisters Rivers in the parts of Pekoe and Caramel are charming in their song and dance; and Miss Amy Pauline Gladwell, the possessor of a fine voice, portrays the character of the Genius most artistically. The specialities include the Brothers Lloyd, in their double bounding cable act, exceedingly well received; France and Francis, knockabouts; Perth and Oban, two clever boys; and Max Merlin, the human crocodile. Mr. Walter Bishop, both in the character of Abanazar and stage-manager, is deserving of great credit.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. R. Collin; Manager, Mr. Joe Hastings.—This week a strong bill is topped by Farmer Skein in his farcical melodramatic sketch, Robert Macaire, which is received with applause. Ward and Davis submit a screaming duo, entitled Wanted, a Typist; Marie Woolston renders her songs in good style; Warren and Granville are good in their vocal and instrumental act; and some clever illusions are presented by Professor Morritt.

WEST HARTLEPOOL.— EMPIRE THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Richard Thornton; Resident-Manager, Mr Geo. F. Thompson.—The premier position in this week's programme here is occupied by the Kremos, a troupe of risley acrobats, whose marvellous exhibition fairly brings down the house; they are by far the most wonderful acrobats that have been seen in this town. Lambert, who presents the genius and the living portraits of Paderewski, Joachim, Gounod, Lizst, and Holtom, is equally at home with piano, 'cello, or violin; he is an expert with either, and upon receiving a vociferous recall his impersonation of Svengali proves him to be an adept actor. A novelty seen here for the first time is the introduction of an artist by means of the cinematograph, and this is done by Gitto, the Welsh vocal phenomenon, who is shown on the screen going through the work of a smelter and roller, and immediately stops, as it were, from the picture to the stage and discourses vocalism in a splendid voice, ranging from a falsetto soprano to basso profundo. The deftly-executed tricks of Chris Van Berne are a source of wonder to all. The comedy sketch for which the Smythson comedy company are responsible is very amusing and thoroughly appreciated. Millie Payne is a low comedy artist with a style that is provocative of much laughter. Sybil Lister, a silver-toned contralto, earns good opinion, and some capital films are shown.

WESTON - SUPER - MARE.—KNIGHTSTONE PAVILION AND OPERA HOUSE.—Manager, Mr. W. Payne.—Mr Robert Macdonald's company is proving a draw here with The Dairymaids. Miss Mamie Stuart is a charming Peggy; Miss Glennie Lorem is delightful as Winifred, her singing being exceptionally good; Miss Nellie Le Breton proves herself a thorough artist as Eliza; as Lady Brudenell Miss Lily Rosalie is artistic; and Miss Dorothy Vere makes a captivating Helen. As Miss Penelope Pettigrew Miss Julie St. George is decidedly good. Mr. Norman Bowyer scores a success as Joe Mixens, his quaint antics positively convulsing the house with laughter; Mr. Walter Chumpney gives a talented impersonation of Lieut. Samuel Brudenell; and the Lieut. Frank Meredith of Mr. Horace Manger is entitled to the highest eulogy. Mr. George Ascot's interpretation of Dr. O'Byrne merits praise. The whole of the magnificent scenery carried by the company is entirely new, having been specially painted for this tour by Mr. Geo. T Dobson.

WEYMOUTH.—PAVILION THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. W. R. Wallis.—On Boxing Day Mr. Alfred Austin presented the fairy pantomime, Cinderella. Miss Mabel Austin was a dashing Prince Charming, and Miss Maidie Harrison won hearty favour as Cinderella; Miss Phyllis Leslie as the Prince's Valet and Miss Eva Swinburne as Dabette were eminently fitted for their parts; Mr. T. Read as the Baron's Page was most successful; Mr. F. E. Ellis made a capital Baron; Seraphina and Bedella were capably represented by Messrs. Newham and Latimer, who kept the house in roars of laughter; Nabber and Nailem (Mr. B. Hildersley and Mr. H. Phillips) introduced some droll humour; as the Fairy Miss Gertrude Bond had a hearty welcome, she possesses a fine voice and has a charming presence; and Little Miss Gladys Lidgett as the principal dancer was rapturously encored, especially in her dance in the Fairy Glade. The music is tuneful and bright, the dresses are superb, and the whole show goes with a swing from start to finish.

WIDNES.—ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. James Kiddie; Secretary, Mr. Thos. Swinton.—A strong Christmas attraction was presented here on Monday evening in the drama, A Child of the Streets, by Miss Dot Stephens' own company. Miss Stephens, in the title-rôle acted with ability, Mr. Norman H. Tracey was a successful Jack Ainsley, and the other rôles were well taken by able artists.

CO-OPERATIVE HALL.—Lessees, Messrs. Hamilton and Hughes.—A strong and entertaining pictorial and variety programme attracted three crowded houses on Boxing Day.

WIGAN.—ROYAL COURT THEATRE.—Proprietors, The Wigan Entertainments Company. — Crowded houses are witnessing Mr. J. Gar Kiddie's company in Little Bo-Peep. Mr. J. W. Groves delights the audience as Granny Brown; while Mr. Gatty, who takes the part of the Demon Wolf, sings "Revenge" in a style that is much appreciated; Mr. Albert K. Stern as Rastus Brown gives a dance and coon song in an exceptionally smart manner; and Mr. Will Shepherd as Johnnie Stout and Mr. Rex Kempton as Jimmy Green cause endless laughter. In the title-rôle Miss Lizzie Payne is a conspicuous success, and Miss Elsie Peach is a charming Fairy Moonbeam; Miss Eva M. Rosslyn as Boy Blue gives a finished characterisation; and other parts are capably filled.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, the Wigan Entertainments Company.—Loyal, with his performing horse and dogs, provides one of the latest novelties; Ethel Thomas is loudly applauded for her vocal selections; Arthur Slater, the whistling man in white, gives a pleasing turn in a new novelty scena, Morning, Noon, and Night; Blair and Allen give a refined singing and dancing act; whilst Elmo and Rego, as knockabout acrobats, cause roars of laughter. The Howards are given a good reception for their comedy musical act, Military Mad, as also are James and Jenny Lee for their inimitable and original wire performance; Renson and Waite are popular Yorkshire humorists; Hilton is responsible for some hilarity with his Scottish comedian Jock; and Monty Walker is a favourite comedian.

WISHAW, N.B.—PAVILION.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Bostock; General-Manager, Mr. René Clayton.—Mr. Chas. Majilton's full company, including Jim Bond as Bartle Burke, is proving an excellent draw at this cosy little house; Chorley and Conner are a decided success in their comic patter and dance business; the Marzellos are excellent in a comedy horizontal bar act; and the bioscope has some excellent films.

WOLVERHAMPTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager-Director, Mr. Charles Barnard.—Mr. Wentworth Croke's principal company in The Boudman is the holiday attraction here. Mr. Philip Darien is admirably suited to the part of Jason, and right well does he acquit himself; Mr. Stanley Harrison gives a fine portrayal of Michael Sunlocks; Mr Wilfred Beckwith is in every way excellent as Adam Fairbrother; Mr. W. H. Rotheram doubles the parts of Grandfather and Father Ferrati, and presents two cleverly thought-out character studies; Mr Fred J. Walter as Dr. Boni, Mr. Sidney Stephens as Governor Testa, and Mr. Chris A. Olgar as Marshal of Police render able assistance; and two precocious youngsters are found in Miss B. M. Hughes as Mona and Master W. Neville as Danny. Miss Emelie Mayhew acts with charm and vivacity as Christian Ann; Lily and Dora Callow are ably represented by Miss Dorothy Radcliffe and Miss Florence Owen; Miss Madge Lamerton makes a capital Mrs. Fairbrother; and Miss Violet Macarce is an irresistibly sweet Gretha. The play is mounted with that lavishness that characterises Mr. Croke's productions.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. Vivian Evans.—Bubbling over with vim and go, May Henderson, the dusky comedy queen, simply carries her audience with her; Mme Iris introduces her troupe of animals, who show intelligence; Les Cairons present an exceedingly dexterous juggling speciality; the head and hand balancing of the Stowe Bros., two youthful acrobats, is remarkably clever; the Russian dancing of the Bros. Welimann is, to say the least of it, marvellous, nothing like it having been seen here before; under the cloak of excellent comedy Tate and Tate perform a skilful trampolin act; the chorus songs of Madge Goodall, comedienne, are readily taken up; and others who contribute to the enjoyment are Kenway and Emery, comedy duo; Dick Kendall, comedian and eccentric dancer; and Harry Lawson, comedian. Seasonable pictures are also shown on the Bioscope.

WORCESTER.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur Carlton; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. Edward Evans.—Babes in the Wood was presented for the first time to crowded houses on Monday. It is undoubtedly the best thing Mr. Carlton has yet provided in the pantomime line, no expense having been spared in casting the production, nor in dressing and staging it. There is excellent entertainment for old and young, and never a dull moment. Miss Gertie Douglas is an admirable principal boy, and plays the part of Robin Hood in rollicking style. An accomplished vocalist, she finds full scope for her talent, and has achieved wide popularity. The Sisters Lang score a great success as The Babes, their clever singing and dancing and general daintiness winning full approval of their audiences. Miss Ethel Dancy, a charming Fairy Fortune, makes good use of a highly cultivated voice. Messrs. Harley and Melton fully maintain their reputation as "funny men" in the parts of Weary Will and Tired Tim, and the part of the wicked Baron is admirably played by Mr. Martin Haley. Mr. Gus Walker is very funny as Nurse Prettypet, and as Pickles, page to the Baron, Mr. Bert Lloyd makes the most of his opportunities. Mr. Angus Strong is an elusive Will o' th' Wisp, and doubles the part of King Richard. The Maid Marion of Miss Verona Philis is a dainty impersonation, and she sings in excellent style. Miss Rene Glynne is a dashing Allan-a-Dale.

WORKINGTON.—OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Stanley Rogers.—The Merry Widow is attracting big houses. Seldom has a neater artist graced our local boards than Mr. Sinclair Cotter as Baron Popoff, and he finds a very capable second in his messenger Nisch as portrayed by Mr. Harry Emeric. Mr. Robert Needham as Prince Danilo brings out the light and shade of this difficult character admirably. Miss Phyllis Legrand's Widow is the merriest and smartest creation imaginable. The Natalia of Miss Mabel Hope is a clever piece of acting, whilst the dancing of Miss Neste Laurel as Frou Frou is charming.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee Mr Mack.—The pictures include the pantomime Puss in Boots. The variety includes Barney Vox and the two clever comics Douglas and Clark.

CARNEGIE HALL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Stanley Rogers.—The films are of the best, including A Woman's Repentance. The comedy is supplied by Douglas and Gordon, Caledonian couple, and Maskell, the evening dress suit comedian.

WORTHING.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Herr C. Adolf Seebold.—Mr. Mouillot's grand Christmas pantomime, Cinderella, opened here on Boxing Day. Miss Mimi Fisher as Dandini is admirable; Miss Madge Beresford as Prince Charming has a good presence and a pleasing voice; and Mr. Ralph Roberts as Baron Blighter; Mr. Martin Reno as Baroness Blighter; Mr. Frankland Grey as Araminta; and Mr. Chas. Caffrey as Buttons fully supply the comic element. Too much praise cannot be allotted Miss Molly McIntyre as Cinderella.

WREXHAM.—THE EMPIRE MUSIC HALL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. J. Scott.—The strong company at this hall is headed by Lonie and Wally, lively, witty, and refined comedy artists; and at the foot of the bill is a great Wrexham favourite, D. J. Pedley, a clever comedian and dancer. The other artists include Cissie Gordon, vocalist. The pictures are an extra attraction this week.

YORK.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees, Messrs. Waddington; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. J. Dacre.—Miss Annie Hughes and Mr. Lawrence Brough appeared on Monday in their curtain raiser, Pickles; both artists were well received by an enthusiastic crowded house; The Lady of Ostend, which followed, proved vastly amusing; Mr. Brough as Baron de Longueville had a splendid reception, in his original part his success was undoubted; Miss Beatrice Park was a fascinating Dorothy Whortles, Miss Phyllis Manners an amusing Mother-in-Law, and Miss Olga Esme a bright and charming Millie Grace; Mr. Tom Sidney was a distinct success as Joseph Carberry, and Mr. Douglas Payne looked the part of Krockett and played admirably.

OPERA HOUSE AND EMPIRE. — Managing-director, Mr. Wm. Peacock; Acting-Manager, Mr. Sidney Brook.—This place of entertainment is crowded nightly, the company being an excellent one. Jan Rudyeni and his company head the list and give a fine performance; Maud and Gill are the other stars, and are heartily applauded for their clever turn. Picton Roxborough and Fanny Wright, in their sketch, Hi Wun, are extremely smart; A Ba Be's Picture Post-card Album is well received; Bert Wells and Dorothy Wynne are clever comedy jugglers and dancers; W. G. Webber has a grand voice, which he uses to advantage; Phinas and Ada are clever on the revolving pedestal; Arthur Astill is an entertaining whistler; Bert Williams gives his well-known ventriloquial entertainment with rare skill; and Anna Lang is quite a dainty comedienne.

AMUSEMENTS IN BURNLEY.

VICTORIA OPERA HOUSE. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. C. Horner. — The boards here are occupied by Messrs. Silvanus Dauncey and H. Browning's company, in The Walls of Jericho. Mr. Ethelbert Edwards appears with marked success as Jack Frobisher; and Mr. Russell Barry as Hankey Bannister does excellent work. A perfect study of the Marquis of Steventon is given by Mr. Rutland Barrington, who also is highly successful in his entertainment at the piano; Miss Gwendoline Hay is vivacious and charming as Lady Alathea; Miss Hilda Sims presents a pretty Lucy; Mr. Haworth Browning is very good as Harry Dallas; and other parts capitally played are in the care of Miss Ethel Trevor, Miss Lilla Sharp, and Miss Gladys Leigh.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. C. Horner.—A programme of excellent quality is given here to crowded houses. Of the big-type shows the Herslebs are prominent with popular eccentric acrobatism; the Kratons are brilliant in hoop manipulation; and the Society Idols, introduced by Chas. Parker and Arthur Mertz, are an extremely smart musical combination. Gene Morelle, the ragged virtuoso, is a funny burlesque musician; and the Janfrellas are a pair of clever equilibrists. Ted Gill is a fine tenor vocalist; and George Burrows an acceptable baritone. The Empire Theatrescope shows good pictures.

PALACE THEATRE AND HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. R. Badcoe.—The Juggling McBans are particularly clever in club and hat throwing; the Dvoraks present a series of cleverly-executed see-saw jumps and somersault acrobatics; and Les Saletos, in hand-balancing, are skilful. The Sivronis, with "Opera Gone Mad," delight the house; and Jan Colquhoun wins favour with baritone songs. Harry Taylor, comedian, is recalled; and the Delomes give a smart turn of dancing. A colour photograph film, From the Egg to the Spit, is the feature of the pictures.

COUNCILLOR WILLIAM MOULD, the popular lessee and manager of the Central Palace, North Shields, kindly entertained 250 poor children to breakfast on Christmas morning.

MESSRS. MACNAIR, ROBIE, AND CO. have several "slot" automatic boot-brushing machines for sale. They are electrically driven, and are suitable for railway stations, restaurants, lavatories, hairdressing saloons, arcades, &c.

ALFRED DAVIS, twenty-one, sawdust contractor, of East-street, Walworth, was charged on Tuesday with assaulting Geo. Cheverton, an attendant at the Star Music Hall, Bermondsey. The prosecutor said that on Boxing Night the prisoner was using bad language, and when spoken to about the matter struck him three times, blackening his eye. Harriett Bendon, the prisoner's sweetheart, declared that the attendant used bad language to her, and when the young man demanded an explanation the attendant struck him. He merely acted in self-defence. The prisoner was fined 10s., and 7s. 6d. doctor's fee.

"THE SETTLER'S DAUGHTER."

Sketch, Produced at the Bow Palace, on Monday, Dec. 27.

Matthew Carrington .....MR. E. H. DOBELL
Bill Burke .....MR. EDWIN BENNETT
Jack Marrable .....MR. EDMUND SYDNEY
Nell .....MISS LOUISA PEACH

The future success of this pretty, yet dramatic episode of American life is assured, judging from the enthusiastic manner in which it was received. There is a human interest running throughout, and the author has evidently used the art of dramatic construction with skill.

The story is as follows. Jack is waiting in Matthew Carrington's hut to see the latter's daughter before proceeding home to England. He wishes to propose marriage to her, and after plucking up the necessary courage, does so, and is accepted. He then leaves to give the news to all his friends at the Wheatsheaf. After he has gone Nell's father enters the room and tells Nell that he has a big scheme on hand, and that if it comes off trumps they will go home to old England. He also adds that he has been entrusted with the safe keeping of $10,000 by an old friend, and as it will not hardly be safe for him to take it with him to the Wheatsheaf he suggests hiding it, and they both decide that the bag containing the money shall be placed in a book on the shelf. Kissing Nell good-night, he leaves her, promising to return as soon as possible. Quickly following his departure someone is heard knocking at the door, which Nell opens to find a stranger seeking food and shelter. She grows frightened when he tells her he knows she is alone, as he has watched the house for some time, and while the stranger, Bill Burke, is reading the paper, after having supped, Nell stealthily creeps to the bookshelf and quickly removes the money, finding a fresh hiding place outdoors. Bill then forces Nell to show him her father's room, for he intends sleeping in the house, and threatens Nell with all kinds of dire penalties should he be disturbed. Nell then thinks of what she shall do, when an Indian enters, and after partially suffocating her, rushes to the bookcase for the money, and not finding it there hunts everywhere in the room for it without success. Baulked in his intentions, he turns upon Nell with the intention of frightening her into disclosing the hiding place, and whilst the struggle is going on Bill Burke, who has heard the noise, enters the room and grapples with the Indian. After a terrific struggle, he manages to plunge a knife into the Indian's body, who falls mortally injured. Bill Burke then leaves to fetch Nell's father, leaving Nell alone with the dying Indian. The Indian tells over to speak to Nell, and his identity becomes at once known. The Indian is none other than Nell's father, disguised for the purpose of being able to steal the money entrusted to him without any suspicion resting upon him. He pleads with his daughter with his last breath for forgiveness, and dies just as Jack arrives. The chief histrionic honours naturally fall to Miss Louisa Peach as Nell, the conception of the rôle being in accordance with this artist's usual clever work. Mr. E. H. Dobell as Matthew Carrington gave a very strong study, and acted with fine feeling. Mr. Edwin Bennett as Bill Burke caught exactly the right attitude of the sinister brow-beating tramp; whilst Mr. Edmund Sydney as Jack Marrable was thoroughly successful.

CATLIN'S PIERROTS.

At the Leicester Borough Police Court recently, before T. Windley, Esq., and other magistrates, Reginald Basil Jarvis (23), described as a music hall artist, of 43, Evington Park-road, was charged on a warrant with obtaining by false pretences, from Henry Turland, two bills of the value of 6d., the property of William Catlin, with intent to cheat and defraud, on or about Dec. 6.

The case was on remand from last Friday, and the evidence then given was repeated.

Prisoner elected to be dealt with summarily, and pleaded guilty.

Mr. J. T. Hincks, who appeared for Mr. Catlin, said he did not propose to go into any more of the numerous cases that might be brought against the prisoner, as he had pleaded guilty. He explained that an advertisement appeared in The Era, asking for artists, and headed "Catlin's Pierrots." Mr. Catlin was much upset by the advertisement, which was inserted without his knowledge or authority. He was unable to obtain the name of the advertiser directly, but a letter sent in reply to the advertisement led to the prisoner being discovered. It was stated that he had had fifty or sixty replies to the advertisement, and had been engaging artists from all over the country in Mr. Catlin's name. They also found that he had been round to the places where Mr. Catlin's bills were shown, including Mr. Catlin's own photograph, collecting them, saying he was authorised to do so. He actually took a hall at Ashby, and used the bills he had stolen for advertising his show. Steps were taken to stop him, and then Mr. Catlin got a wire saying that the artists at Ashby were stranded there with no money, and could not get back again. Mr. Catlin felt very sorry for them, and, as a matter of fact, had paid money out of his own pocket to enable them to get back to their respective homes, while he had obtained an engagement for one of them. It was a very serious thing for the artists, as it meant that they were thrown over Christmas without getting an engagement. Prisoner was not quite the innocent person he had represented himself to be, for he was brought up at Liverpool Police Court on July 31, 1906, on three charges of obtaining things by false pretences, and sentenced to a day's imprisonment on each; in September of the same year he was found guilty of false pretences at Clerkenwell Police Court, and sentenced to three months' hard labour; while on March 3, 1908, he was convicted of forgery at the Central Criminal Court and sentenced to fifteen months.

The Chairman said it was about as barefaced and impudent and cruel a fraud as could well be perpetrated, bringing young professional artists from their homes and preventing them from earning their living these holidays. Prisoner had had every chance, and it had made no impression on him. He would be sentenced to three months' hard labour. Mr. Windley added that it was exceedingly kind of Mr. Catlin, whose name had been used in this scandalous manner, to take the course he had in regard to the young people who stranded at Ashby.

CROWDED houses have witnessed the performances of the Great American and Continental Circus at the Curzon Hall, Birmingham. The programme included a couple of dozen items—all of the best. There were clever equestrians, really funny clowns who kept everybody laughing, trick horses, performing bears, dogs which did marvellous tricks, jugglers, wonderful trapeze artists, bareback riders, musical clowns, and wire performers. Among the attractions were Miss Rosa Transfield, who contributed a sensational riding turn; Mons. Spangelettis's performing dogs; the well-known bareback rider, Miss Cora Stuart; an exhibition by the intelligent trick horse, Sultan, under the direction of Mr. Robert Scott; H. Stephenson, in a smart jockey act; Miss Katina, a globe walker; Miss Rosa Montese and her talented horse, Emperor, who is a marvel of equine intelligence; Captain Permane and his performing bears—a turn which should delight adults and children alike; Aerian and Ostara, "human aeroplanes"—a daring act; a bar act by Ben Tillet; more jockey acts, by Thomas Fossett; wire act, by Miss Trojer; juggling, by Mons. Platter; and a host of others, including the well-known musical clown, Dan Gregory.

TOTTENHAM PALACE.

Manager T. S. Mayne offers good Christmas fare at his cosy variety resort, and his patrons are not slow to respond to its attractiveness. The evergreen Chirgwin is undoubtely the popular feature of the bill, but running very close in local favour is Whit Cunliffe. Chirgwin, despite his sixty-six summers—or is it winters?—is a wonder. This is his third visit here in four months. His personal magnetism never seems to flag, and his puns never fall on stony ground, audacious though some of them may be. With his quips and cranks and his "bombasophone," his merry and now rotund personality keeps his audience rolling on a sea of laughter. His parody on "Sailor, take care," is more than funny, and therefore appreciated heartily by Tottenhamites. Whit Cunliffe and his infectious, breezy style weigh in with three songs, all good chorus numbers, which hit the bull's-eye of public fancy at every performance. His songs, "Exercise," "You're not satisfied," and "There are nice girls everywhere," are winners every one in his hands, and his audiences emphasise the fact by their approbation. "Do you want any coal?" a favourite song of Lila Shields's—her sheet anchor, in fact—proved a pleasing item, while her other number, "Money in your pockets," did not fail to elicit applause in plenty on the night of our visit. Then Marie Blythe, still another chorus comedienne, neatly arrayed in a black satin "boy's" costume—and smartly does she "carry it," too—set everybody singing her pretty refrain, "Say good-bye," a Harry Dacre number; and Mabel Thorne, with a catchy item anent the adventures of a lady who was supposed to go to church, but went instead to the Park and sat on a seat marked "Wet paint," amused highly. A smart cycle trick performer is Bert Woodward. His every feat shows polish and studied execution. His agility is little short of remarkable in his many difficult somersaults while awheel. "The Scottish Exile's Dream," presented by John Donald—in excellent voice—is a capital scena which serves as an excuse for the introduction of popular Scottish ballads. A real good turn is Mr. John Donald's. "The banks of Loch Lomond," "Bonny Mary, and "John Anderson, ma' Joe" all find adequate treatment at his hands. Geoffreys and Benson, off through temporary indisposition, had their place ably filled after Wednesday night by Frank Lynne. His coster harangue on Free Trade proves a popular topical chapter. Florence Yeaman, in coon caricatures and her song "All I want is a man," and Charles Hera, in clever juggling feats, complete an all-round enjoyable bill. Mr. William Burgess still conducts tunefully, and to evident satisfaction; while behind the scenes stage-manager Lawrence works hard and expeditiously. Next week Puss in Boots will reign at the Tottenham Palace, presented by Mr. Joe Collins' company.

GATTI'S MUSIC HALL.

At Tower Bridge recently Mr. Sidney Lamb, barrister, applied on behalf of Messrs. Carpenter, of the Lyceum, for a protection order, pending the application to the Licensing Justices for the transfer of the licence in respect to Gatti's Music Hall, Westminster Bridge Road, which it was proposed to reopen. He explained that the London County Council required extensive alterations, which the present licensees, Messrs. Corazza, did not feel disposed to carry out, and the music hall was closed four years ago. The licence to sell intoxicating liquor, however, had been renewed year by year by the Justices. Messrs. Carpenter and Smith had taken up a twenty-one years' lease of the premises, at a rental which increased in the first three years to £1,200 per annum, and they had carried out all the alterations required by the London County Council at a cost of about £1,500, and they now wished the licence transferred to them. The application was unusual, because none of the parties were able to attend the court. Messrs. Corazza—two brothers—were in Italy, and Mr. E. Carpenter, in whose name the papers for the transfer were made out, was taken suddenly ill on Wednesday, and had to undergo an operation.

Sub-Divisional Inspector Collins stated that Mr. E. Carpenter had held a licence at Brighton, and the Brighton police spoke very highly of his management. He had the necessary power to open Gatti's Music Hall, but he required the protection order to enable him to sell intoxicating liquors.

Mr. Lamb said that Section 16 of the Licensing Act, 1902, gave the Justices power to dispense with the attendance of the parties, and he presumed a Court of Summary Jurisdiction had the same power with regard to granting protection orders.

Mr. Rose thought that Sections 1 and 6 of the Licensing Act, 1842, gave him the necessary power, and, in view of the special circumstances of the case and the excellent report as to the applicant's character, he would exercise the discretion given to him by those sections, and grant the protection order.

In reply to the magistrate, Mr. Lamb said that they had not had an opportunity to make Mr. E. Carpenter's brother the applicant, because they only heard of the illness that morning, and the papers were all made out in Mr. E. Carpenter's name. However, if necessary, they would apply for the licence to be transferred to the brother.

[Mr. Ernest Carpenter's regrettable death is referred to in another part of the paper.]

AMUSEMENTS IN BRISTOL.

PALACE. — Local Manager, Mr. Horace Livermore; Treasurer, Mr. F. J. V. Welchman. — Fred Sterey and company head the bill with the dramatic sketch Rip Van Winkle. The sketch is well staged in six scenes, and it is played well. An interesting novelty is exhibited, called "Simeon the Seer"; this is a mechanical bust of a man—an automaton—which speaks, sings, and answers questions put by members of the audience. Vowles and Bryan amuse with song and story; the Austral Trio do a smart musical and variety turn; Minnie Wheaton, comedienne and dancer, successfully entertains with song and dance; Harry Tomps plays the concertina well and amuses with his patter; Newman and Knight do a good comedy juggling act; and pictures conclude.

EMPIRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. B. Pearce Lucas; Resident-Manager, Mr. Sid. Macaire.—Mary Mayfren's company is successful with the dramatic sketch The Yellow Pang, the little play being well staged and capitally performed; Sinclair and Whiteford, comedy artists, amuse with their matrimonial sketch, Getting Even; Bayne and Hope do well in their costume playlet David Garrick; Elton and Edwin are expert banjoists; Wilson and West score with their comedy act, Stage-Struck Costers; the Starley Brothers are very smart in their motor cycle acrobatic turn; Mabel and Rosa are exceptionally clever dancers; La Belle Nello does an excellent gymnastic act; Hicks and Hunter do well in their roller-skating speciality; and Charles Stevens, comedian, obtains appreciation. Animated pictures close.

COLSTON HALL.—Poole's Myriorama opened here on Christmas Eve with every prospect of a successful season. The Myriorama is stated to be new in every detail; the animated pictures include the most popular and attractive films; there is a good band; and a smart variety company, headed by the Royal Banzais, six in number, who present a good entertainment as jugglers, contortionists, equilibrists, &c.

MLLE. SYLVESTO wishes to thank Mr. Jones, manager of the Tivoli, Dublin, for paying salary in full for Christmas week, although only working for five nights.

AN act entirely new to this country is making a great success this week at the Temperance Hall, Merthyr, Miss Ella Blair and her American Bowery Boys being heartily applauded in their new and novel vocal and dancing scena. This act is booking heavily through W. Lovell Hurt.

NOTICE.—OPTION CLAUSE.

COUNSEL WAS REQUESTED TO ADVISE

Whether, having regard to the terms of Clause 16 in the model contract attached to the Arbitrator's Award, the Management are entitled to insist upon the exercise of their option.

(a) In the event of the Artiste having filled by engagements made either wholly or partly after the date of the contract, all vacant dates within 18 months after the date of the notice of intention to exercise the option, and

(b) In the event of the Artiste having, in similar manner, partly filled his time so that the number of vacant dates within that period is insufficient to comply with the option.

COUNSEL'S OPINION.

In my opinion the clause requires the Artiste so to arrange his or her engagements, made after the date of the contract with the Management as to render it possible for the artiste to fulfil a re-engagement with the Management, should the latter exercise the option conferred upon them by the contract; and that it is no answer for the Artiste to say that he or she cannot fulfil such re-engagement because of engagements made by him or by her after the date of the contract.

(a) In my opinion the Management are entitled to insist upon the exercise of their option, although the Artiste may have filled up all vacant dates within 18 months after the date of the notice of intention to exercise the option, provided such engagements were made wholly after the date of the contract. So far as these engagements were made before the date of the contract, the Artiste is entitled to fulfil them, and the Management cannot insist upon such engagements being a breach of the artist's contract with them.

(b) In my opinion the Artiste is bound to reserve sufficient dates to enable him to fulfil a re-engagement by the Management. If, therefore, he accepts engagements after the date of the contract which prevent him fulfilling his re-engagement in its entirety, he commits a breach of his re-engagement.

IMPORTANT NOTICES.

RE APPLICATIONS FOR ENGAGEMENTS.—All applications by either Artists or their Agents must be made to the Head Office. Lowest terms must be stated, and distinction made between salaries required for larger and smaller towns. Vacant dates should be stated. If a list of existing bookings be sent, it will render selection easier. Artists employing agents should accredit one only at one time, as the friction arising when several Agents are employed at the same time, all expecting the one booking to go through each of them, often renders it expedient to avoid that booking altogether rather than give undeserved offence to several Agents. New Acts seeking Engagements, or turns not rebooked (possibly because they have played a series of dates without introducing new business), will facilitate matters by having their acts seen by our District Managers. Their Districts and Postal Addresses are as follow:—

EDINBURGH, GLASGOW, NEWCASTLE, and DISTRICT.—MR. S. GETHING, Empire Theatre, Glasgow.

LEEDS, SHEFFIELD, HULL, BRADFORD, and DISTRICT.—MR. T. GERALD MORTON, Empire Palace, Leeds.

BIRMINGHAM, NOTTINGHAM, LEICESTER, and DISTRICT.—MR. HATTON WHARTON, Empire Theatre, Nottingham.

LIVERPOOL, MANCHESTER, and DISTRICT.—MR. HORACE COLE, The Empire, Liverpool.

SOUTH WALES DISTRICT.—MR. ALBERT MITCHELL, Empire Theatre, Cardiff.

LONDON DISTRICT.—MR. J. CHRISTIE, Empire Theatre, Shepherd's Bush, W.

EMPIRE THEATRE, SOUTH SHIELDS.—Artists working in the North of England who have odd weeks vacant are invited to communicate with the Local Manager at above Theatre, with a view to arranging a trial week.

N.B.—MR. OSWALD STOLL or MR. FRANK ALLEN can be seen by appointment on all matters arising out of the above, and for the discussion of entirely new Numbers.

All Artists or Agents who communicate with our District Representatives must have made definite applications, in accordance with above directions, to the Head Office, at the same time, or just previously. Artists and Agents are requested to note that the Standard Theatre, Shoreditch, and the Terriss Theatre, Rotherhithe, come within the areas absolutely barred by us. Artists and Agents are also requested to note that the Hippodrome, Aston, Birmingham, comes within the area absolutely barred by the Grand Theatre and Empire Palace, Birmingham.

INSTRUCTIONS TO ARTISTS.—Artists must have at least Fourteen Band Parts for English Orchestrations, and Seventeen Band Parts for Foreign Orchestrations. Matter of Bill, Blocks, and Specimens of Pictorials FOR THE ABOVE THEATRES must be sent to CO-OPERATIVE OFFICES, at above address, THREE WEEKS before Opening, failing which Artists will run the risk of having their Engagements cancelled. It is important that separate bill-matter, blocks, pictorials, &c., for Dublin, Belfast, and South Shields, be sent direct to Mr. Frank Allen at the Co-operative Offices. IMPORTANT.—Artists must forward Copies of Songs to the STAGE DEPARTMENT, ABOVE ADDRESS, TWO WEEKS previous to opening, with Assignments for same, which will be returned. Artists are requested to note carefully that the clause in their contracts relating to rehearsals will in future be strictly enforced. Artists' Scenery, Properties, &c., MUST be fireproofed in accordance with the regulations of the Licensing Authorities. ARTISTS WILL CLEARLY UNDERSTAND THAT THEIR BUSINESS MUST BE FREE FROM ALL VULGARITY.

No order or contract for goods or services must be accepted for any of the foregoing theatres except upon receipt of an Official Form, issued from the Co-operative Offices, London, and signed by either Mr. Oswald Stoll, Mr. Frank Allen, or the Chief Accountant, otherwise the Company concerned will not be responsible for same, and will refuse payment. In special cases, where goods are required at once, suppliers must look to the individual placing the order, who will be personally liable, unless an official confirmatory order, signed as above, is received within forty-eight hours. Invoices must be sent to the Theatre, but monthly statements should be sent to the Co-operative Offices. The individual Company on whose behalf orders are signed is solely responsible for payment. The Management will not hold themselves responsible in the event of loss of or damage to any MSS., Songs, &c., submitted for consideration.

PROVINCIAL THEATRICALS

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENTS.)

ABERDARE.—NEW THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Z. Andrews; Acting-Manager, Mr. B. Richards.—Miss Marie Dagmar's company is here in The Tyrant. Marked success is achieved by Mr. Roy Fortescue as Angelo; Mr. Percy Follis plays Homodei with great dramatic power; Mr. Edw. E. Louis gives an admirable portrayal of Rudolph; Mr. J. P. Lallan is successful as Lieut. Taska; Miss Marie Robson makes a graceful and attractive Tisbe; Miss Jean Scott is well suited to the part of Lady Catherine; Mr. Wilson Summer as Victor, Mr. Fred Luard as Nobbo and Miss Katie Lever as Reginetia are vastly amusing.

NEW EMPIRE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Victor Rowe; Manager, Mr. Victor Knight.—The Three Pirmans top the bill, and are meeting with general approval in their sensational horizontal bar act; Dora Knowles is a charming comedienne and dancer; the Daintons, in their speciality act, are well received; Lenton and Lane are decidedly good in their musical comedy, Unconsidered Trifles. Some excellent pictures are shown on the Bioscope.

ABERDEEN.—HIS MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Proprietors, Robert Arthur Theatres Co., Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. H. Adair Nelson.—Patriotics have succeeded pantomime at His Majesty's, and fine audiences have hailed with delight the most stirring and inspiring representations of The Flag Lieutenant given all this week. The company is a very fine all-round combination, with Mr. Edgar Kent in the title-rôle, Miss Dorothy Ripley as his charming sweetheart, Mr. Montagu Love as his friend the Major, and Miss Stella Leigh as the lovable widow who has set her heart on the Major. Altogether an artistic and thoroughly enjoyable show.

PALACE THEATRE.—Lessees, United County Theatres, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Percy H. Gallagher.—Mr. Fred Karno's clever comedians are here this week in Early Birds and Mumming Birds. Other turns are contributed by Miss Lily Belle, comedienne and barefoot dancer; Mr. Mark Hanbury, vocal comedian, the Real Mackays, a clever pair of junvenile performers; and Miss Ray-Raymond, a dashing comedienne.

ACCRINGTON.—PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. B. Ormerod; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. E. Barnes.—Mr. J. A. Campbell's principal company is the attraction here in the romantic drama From Convent to Throne. Mr. Graham Woods most effectively portrays the hero, Lieut. Ernesto Von Hapsburg; Mr. A. F. Stuart gives a clever rendition of the Prince of Carpathia; Mr. William J. Miller as the scheming Baron Strelsau plays with excellent judgment; Mr. Arthur Estcourt is responsible for a dignified representation of General Von Hapsburg; Mr. T. G. Vane does full justice to the part of Lieut. Otto; Mr. Gibson Brooke is satisfactory as Eugene; and Mr. H. Maxwell successful as Michael. Miss Mary Fulton's impersonation of the Princess Maritza is full of interest; Miss Maudie Grayson is a vivacious Rosella; and Miss B. Bateman is all that can be desired as Lady Violetta.

NEW HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, The Accrington Hippodrome Co.; Resident-Manager, Mr Walter Mould.—George First, the wonderful cycling ape, introduced by Dandy George, heads the bill here, and proves very entertaining; Frank Elliston and company in the costume sketch, Lady Betty, receives loud applause; Henri Bekker is a conjurer of much merit, and Gus Hindell is a smart entertainer; the Cavalotti Brothers provide a neat musical turn; Howe and Ardie, comedy acrobats, have a hearty reception; and Jeannie Reeves, comedienne, receives due recognition, and the Bioscope pictures complete.

ALDERSHOT.—THEATRE ROYAL AND HIPPODROME.—[illegible] and Manager, Mr. Clarence Sounes; Resident-[illegible]ager, Mr. Jack Gladwin.—Folly's Fortunes [illegible] presented here by Miss Maude Western's company twice a night. The scenery and dressing generally are all that could be desired. Miss Maude Western and Mr. Joe Ellis are the most prominent as Folly and Billy respectively; whilst Misses Babs Walton, Ada Hender, and Kelly Lamberto, and Messrs. Walter Buckstone, Alex. Alexander, and John Cevey do well and help to the success.

ASHTON-UNDER-LYNE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Chas. Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chas. Revill, Jun.—The Babes in the Wood is running very smoothly, and attracting well.

EMPIRE HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Leech; Assistant Manager, Mr. Jesse Burslem.—The Jno. Tiller pantomime company is here with Little Red Riding Hood. Miss May Merry enacts the sweet maiden, guileless and innocent, very prettily, and sings well; Miss Dot Hinson makes Mrs. Hood quite the old woman of pantomime; Miss Zena Benson as the good fairy Truelove is shapely and graceful; Mr. Benson Kleve as King Lupas suggests in his own person and manner the ravenous wolf; Mr. Frank Helroyd as Pretty Pet is his clever ugly daughter; Boniface is very humorously conceived by Mr. Douglas Hayes; Oswald, the Ostler, is well done by Mr. Phil Hayes, Miss Marie Brian is chic as Nanette; Miss Mav Sharples cuts a dash as Captain Slasher; Mr. Fred Lawrence as Dr. Dignun is an unctious pedagogue; Mr. Chas. Verno as Trotters the page is comical; and Miss Lulu Russell is a dignified Prince Valiant. The specialities of a good production are the Lotus troupe of dancers, the quartette of male voices, and the Mascotte troupe of children.

ATTERCLIFFE.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manageress, Miss Ethel J. Hope.—Mr. Edwin C. Jazon's pantomime, Robinson Crusoe, is here this week, and on Monday night a packed house gave it a hearty welcome. Miss Florence Lewis, in the title-rôle, proves herself a capable and attractive principal boy, her breezy style making her a big favourite; Miss Carlotta Wood is a pert and winsome Polly Perkins; a pleasing performance is that of Miss Violet Leslie as Undine, her vocal numbers being rendered in fine style; Tom Bowling has a sprightly and captivating representative in Miss May De Rowse; Miss Maisie Dainton as Lieut. Sprite and Miss Bertha Collins as Susan are also good; the Cannibal Queen and Thursday are well undertaken by the Countees, whose singing is a special feature; Mr. Fred C. Fields is funny as Billy Crusoe; Mr. Mark Lane plays Dame Crusoe on conventional lines, but without vulgarity; Mr. R. A. Byland makes the small part of the Cannibal King an effective one, and also discharged the duties of stage-manager in a praiseworthy manner; Friday is played in good style by Mr. J. H. Wakefield; Mr. Syd Benson as Will Atkins and Williams and Warden as Nab and Grabem are a mirth-provoking trio; and Mr. Andro Lukos as the Monkey and Mr. S. Edun as Neptune contribute to the general success. A word of praise is due to Miss Maisie Dainton, who has charge of the ballets and groupings. Interesting specialities are given by the Countees, Mr. Andro Lukos, the Eduns, and Messrs. Williams and Warden.

BARNSLEY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr. A. C. Mitchell.—Mr. E. Hill Mitchelson appears here with his new play, The King and the Unknown Woman. The cast is clever and effective. Mr. Wellesley Draper as Prince Loris, Mr. E. Hill Mitchelson as Prince Menski, Little Elsie Clark as Casgar, Miss Violet Carlyle as Countess Melveitch, and Miss Helen Richmond as Elsa are all good.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. Smithson.—The holiday bill is headed by the clever Sutcliffe troupe, who give a versatile act; the Scottish Meisters are excellent in their scena, Ancestral Spirits; B. Troba gives an astounding juggling act; Ernest Montefiore and company appear in a pathetic playlet, The Little Colonel; Harry Taylor is a real Yorkshire comedian; the Three Gelins, Continental acrobats, give a good show; Jennie Alexander is an exceedingly charming little comedienne. The Palascope gives good pictures.

BARNSTAPLE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, The Bridge Trustees; Manager, Mr. Harry Ashton.—Messrs. Chabôt and Henri's pantomime company appeared here for three nights with Aladdin. As the Widow Twankey, Mr. George Whillis scored an immediate success, his songs and dances being vociferously applauded; Mr. Wilfred Barndon was sufficiently mystic as the Magician; Wun Lung was capably handled by Mr. Fred Edwards, his song "Months and Months" being received with evident delight; Miss Celestine Brandon made a vivacious and entertaining Aladdin; Miss Janet Lawton interpreted the part of the Princess with charming effect; and the Misses Herschell contributed several interesting turns.

BARROW-IN-FURNESS.—ROYALTY THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Stone.—Mr. Charles Windermere and company are here with the farcical comedy, Where Is William? The piece is exceedingly humorous, and is being much appreciated by good audiences. Mr. Windermere as Sir William Gregory is a host in himself; Mr. Rule Pyott is all that could be desired as William Jolly; Mr. Leslie Norman is admirably suited to the part of General Rubbub; Miss Belle Donaldson is a clever and charming Lady Gregory; Miss Clare Mansfield makes a dainty Phyllis; and Miss Zoe Davis is clever as Eliza.

HIS MAJESTY'S.—Lessees and Managers, Mr. and Mrs. Calvert Routledge.—The F. R. Benson (North) Shakespearean company is here with the following répertoire:—The Tempest, As You Like It, King Lear, The Merry Wives of Windsor, and Macbeth.

TIVOLI.—Lessee, Signor R. Pepi; Acting-Manager, Mr. Henry Wood.—George Gray and company top the bill with The Fighting Parson, the several characters being excellently portraped. Mr. Gray is a great success in the title-rôle. The programme is completed by Wilbert and Lealand, Bros. Deane, Allis and Cassafi, Mabel May, and Vernon's Bioscope. Capital houses are the rule.

BATH.—PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Chas. Schuberth.—Will Van Allen is once again hitting the mark in his musical tramp act; Louie Tracey, the dapper, dandy boy, straight from her London engagements, commences another tour of the provinces here this week with the happiest prospect of winning many favours. The Tritons, instrumental troupe, meet with a great reception; Norah Stockelle is paying a welcome return visit; Munroe's comedy team of juveniles reappear after a long absence; the Great Lauri performs the box trick, and then is padlocked in a barrel of water, escaping after a few moments' imprisonment; Kenneth and Kane, comedy duo and dancers, and Willie Long, comedian, with some capital pictures, complete the bill.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Egbert Lewis; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lewis A. Long.—The Dollar Princess is reigning majestically for a second week, Mr. George Edwardes's production and his wonderfully powerful cast of principals having appealed to all playgoers for miles around Bath.

BATLEY.—BATLEY THEATRE.—Proprietors, Mr. and Mrs. J. Edward Whitty; Manager, Mr. Alfred A. Taylor.—This theatre was reopened on Monday evening after having been thoroughly renovated. Additional electric lights have been installed, and the pit and circle fitted with tip-up chairs. A new heating apparatus will also add to the comfort of the patrons, and the theatre is now one of the cosiest in the provinces. Miss Ethel Van Praagh (Mrs. Whitty) and Mr. Whitty's company has been the attraction in The Eyes of the World. Both Mr. and Mrs. Whitty are very popular, and they have had a warm reception. The piece is well staged and acted. Miss Van Praagh herself plays the leading part, and Mr. Whitty and Miss Nellie Garside as the young lovers cause much amusement. Mr. Charles O'Connor, Mr. Will Casey, Mr. R. Wilton Bedford, and Miss Flora Hastings are all deserving of mention. A number of up-to-date films are shown on the Bioscope in the intervals, and this new feature meets with great approval.

BELFAST.—GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; Acting-Manager, Mr. James M. McCann.—Mr. Fred W. Warden's pantomime Aladdin is in the second week of a successful run, the magnificent scenery being the talk of the city. Much spirit and humour is infused into their respective rôles by the accomplished principals—Miss George Corlass, Miss Thelma Raye, Miss Topsy Sinden Carlton, Mr. Colin Coop, and Mr. W. H. Powell—their popularity being unbounded. Many of the songs have caught on immensely, especially "There is a home in Ireland," "Pretty little girl from nowhere," and "Somewhere." Mr. Warden must be congratulated on the triumph that is rewarding his enterprise.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. A. Salmond.—The attraction here is Her Marriage Vow, presented by Mr. J. Forbes Knowles's company. Miss Violet Lytton, an accomplished actress, is most successful as Kate Walters, and Mr. J. Forbes Knowles must be commended upon his fine impersonation of Ned Benton; the villainies of Gilbert Carlton are realistically portrayed by Mr. Edward Avinal, and Mr. Harry Momber is admirable as Daffy Dan; the humorous element is in the capable hands of Miss Nancy Laurence as Maggie Clare. Mr. Ridiard Nugent as Larry Leary, and Mr. Walter Wilby as Eben Chobb, and they never failed to keep the audience thoroughly amused; Miss Nellie Shirley is a charming Hestor Norton, and the rôle of Almira is done full justice to by Miss Grace Garside.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred Willmott; Resident-Manager, Mr. Henry T. Downs.—The leading attraction here is provided by Haley's Juveniles, whose clever performance has been enthusiastically received. Much fun has been created by the farcical sketch Three of a Kind, presented by Ethel Arden and George Abel; Mr. Harry Lamore appears with much success in his comedy act, and a flattering reception has been extended to Miss Harriett Vernon in her latest song scena "Emblems"; Mr. J. L. Cunliffe, society entertainer, takes well, and the feats of Jules Kiarno, equilibrist, are of the most daring nature; also in the bill are Lennard and Verriker in pictorial songs, Henry and Tyler in their comedy act, Mr. Leslie Race, vocalist, Martin Henderson in musical speciality, and the Hipposcope.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LIMITED.—General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. C. Laidler.—Roland tops the bill, and in conjunction with Miss Marjorie Russell appears with undoubted success in The Bachelor's Dream; O'Malley and Brown create much laughter with their comedy act, and the dancing of Mackintosh and Royal is very smart; Mlle. Haydee introduces her miniature vaudeville theatre with great effect, and Miss Jessie Albini is an accomplished comedienne with good songs; the feats of head and hand balancing by Mart and Pop are really remarkable; also here are Billy Hubbard, eccentric comedian, and the Bioscope.

BIRKENHEAD.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee, Mr. W. W. Kelly; Acting-Manager, Mr. Herbert M. King.—Mr. J. Gar Kiddies' pantomime, Babes in the Wood, is here for a short run, and has proved an immense success. Miss Marion is a sprightly and vivacious Robin Hood; Miss Mary Dene is an irreproachable Maid Marion; and Miss Nell Rene is an admirable Will Scarlet. The company is rich in comedians, and with Mr. Harry Rousby as Araminta Koffkake, Mr. Oliver Conroy as Soft Sammy, Mr. Brinsley Smith as the Wicked Uncle, and Conan and Doyle as the two ruffians the fun is naturally fast and furious. Miss Emmie Mappin sings charmingly as Sylvania, the good fairy; Mr. Edwin Webb is seen and heard to advantage as Infernalito; Mr. Bert Cardle is a good Lord Knows Who; the babes are ably represented by Millie and Lillie; and minor parts are well filled. The supernumeraries are numerous and efficient, and the pantomime is produced with a wealth of scenic effect; the various songs and dances are of the best, and a delightful entertainment goes with a swing from start to finish.

ARGYLE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. D. J. Clarke; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Keating.—Two performances nightly of Mr. William Holland's pantomime, Aladdin and His Wonderful Lamp, are justly rewarded with crowded houses. The title-rôle is admirably represented by Miss Helen Charles, who makes a delightfully piquant and effective hero; Princess Balroubadour is charmingly played by Miss Poppie Holland; Mr. Robb Wilton is an excellent Widow Twankey; and Mr. Bob Selvidge is inimitable as Abanazar. Mr. Kennedy Allen scores heavily as Wishee-Washee; and the three comedy characters are also conspicuous throughout. The cast also includes Miss Beatrice Vere, Miss Frances Haskoll, Miss Bertha Clifton, and Miss Queenie Tilbury. The production is liberally staged. Brown's Royal Bioscope also figures with success.

HIPPODROME.—Director of Entertainments, Mr. Will Sley; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Weston.—Mr. Leoni Clarke and his numerous troupe of performing birds and animals form an interesting and attractive feature; Mr. Harry Bickley is a comedian of resource, and has made a decided hit; and the more important turns also include those of Mr. Harry McKenzie, comedian; Miss May Knight, comedienne; the Lindons, in An Ambitious Partner; Williams' Welsh Minstrels, in a charming vocal entertainment; Rumbo Austin, in a clever comedy and gymnastic act; Mlle. Sylvesto, is an effective contortionist;; and the Hippodrome pictures entertain.

BIRMINGHAM.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Tom B. Davis; General-Manager, Mr. Philip Rodway.—Crowded audiences continue to testify to the excellence of the Jack and the Beanstalk pantomime. Mr. George Robey and Miss Ada Reeve are the leading artists in the cast, and the pantomime runs merrily right through, and promises to be one of the biggest successes at this theatre.

PRINCE OF WALES.—Manager, and Lessee, Mr. J. F. Graham; acting-manager, Mr. Henry Johnstone.—There is no fear of the election campaign interfering with the popularity of the Babes in the Wood pantomime, which is running smoothly here. Miss Dorothy Ward, the handsome principal boy, is a prime favourite. She has made the biggest "hit" of any principal boy in recent years. Mark Sheridan and the Brothers Egbert have a big following, and Daisy Dormer continues to delight with her songs and dances. There are large enthusiastic audiences at every performance.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Lester Collingwood; Business-Manager, Mr. Fred Bernardo; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. T. Guest.—The popular proprietor fully deserves the congratulations showered upon him, breaking all records with his Aladdin pantomime. The Brothers Brookes as the Chinese Policemen, are big favourites; they are tip-top comedians, who work hard and most effectively. Miss Ethel Beech, Miss Molly Wynne, and Miss Ray Ford have some excellent songs, and each lady is heartily welcomed. Miss Florence Dudley, the second boy, is a striking success; Miss Millie Doris is a highly amusing Widow Twanki. Unfortunately Cull Pitt (Abanazar) has been suffering with a cold, but he has returned to show that he is the brightest of stars.

BORDESLEY PALACE.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Goodwin Woodward.—The Fair One with the Golden Locks continues to attract crowded audiences. It is a delightful production, containing much that amuses the children, and songs and spectacles that entertain the elders.

METROPOLE.—Proprietor, Mr. Andrew Melville; Manager, Mr. J. Hindle Taylor.—The Worst Woman in London continues to prove an attraction at this theatre, and is fully justifying a fortnight's engagement. Miss Rose Ralph in the part of Frances Vere displays great capability, and much praise is also due to Mr. A. W. Chappell (Jack Felton), Miss Ada M. Ryder (Ruth Milford), Mr. Felix Pitt (James Milford), Mr. J. B. Shinton (Vincent Lyle), and Miss Susie Beaven (Mathilda Parker).

ASTON THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. C. Barnard; General-Manager, Mr. E. Hewitson.—Babes in the Wood is played by a capable company, and the second week performances are being well patronised. A successful tour is assured.

CARLTON THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. James Alexander.—An enthralling drama Life's Sweetest Sins, is attracting good houses this week. The piece contains many thrilling situations, of which the most effective is that which takes place within a submarine boat on the bed of the ocean. Mr. T. Arthur Jones, whose company is responsible for the production, makes a popular hero, and Miss F. Melrose Millett is a clever emotional actress as Doreen Rivers; Mr. Juan d'Alberti undertakes the rôle of Doctor Colbrooke with much credit; and Miss May Neilson and Mr. Fred Rose contribute acceptable humour.

THE EMPIRE.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. W. Matcham; Assistant-Manager, Mr. A. Williams.—Sam Mayo heads the bill. Some beautiful songs are effectively rendered by Miss Ada Colley, "the Australian nightingale," who has a powerful voice of exceptionally wide range; Daras is a clever up-to-date entertainer; his conjuring tricks are smart, his dancing pleasing, and his mimicry of well-known musicians excellent; there is much genuine, wholesome humour in the sketch entitled Her Devonshire Dad, in which Victor Widdicombe is very successful; the Brennans are skilful and graceful dancers; Frank Cass has some good humorous songs; Phil Percival's performance at the piano is greatly appreciated; and entertaining items are contributed by Charles Dare's Minstrels.

GRAND.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. Foster; Assistant-Manager, Mr. H. Lucas.—The audience became quite enthusiastic over Reano and his band. An amusing comedietta, Love in a Coffee Shop, is successfully played by Frank Danby and Miss Nita Alexander; a vocalist with a fine voice is Henry Helme; the Erwins give an exhibition of skilful tumbling; Phil and Nettie Peters are a vivacious couple, whose amusing by-play and dances meet with warm approval; Falco and Eida present a novel performance, illustrating the possibilities of ju-jitsu; loud applause rewards the Sydney James Troupe of Strolling Players for their songs rendered in lively fashion; a charming vocalist with a pleasing voice is Dorothy Watson; and Grant and Grant complete a bright all-round performance.

GAIETY.—General Manager, Mr. Albert Bushell.—The Borghetti troupe of risley artists are "starring" here with a turn which includes some marvellous feats. Lady Mansell and Juveniles are responsible for a bright and up-to-date entertainment, two of the children being especially clever. A dramatic sketch entitled The Gambler, presented by Fred S. Peake and Co., arouses great enthusiasm, and the Haverleys, song illustrators, figure is a chorus which is heartily taken up. Jack Crawley is a versatile comedian; and Harry Tomlin, descriptive vocalist. Dolly England, male impersonator, the Sisters Love, dancers, and the Saletos, head and hand balancers, are other pleasing features in an attractive programme.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Tom Barrasford; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. D. Elbourne; Assistant-Manager, Mr. C. Baldry.—The coon delineations of Josephine Sabel, a smart and vivacious American comedienne, are very much to the taste of patrons; a clever trick cycling act is given by Fred St. Onge and company, and the "Boys of England," in a bright vocal scena are well received. Walter Stanley is a singer of merit, and Gibbon and Bell give a wonderful tumbling turn, as also do the Laure Cabiacs. Mr. Wilton Heriot and company present an entertaining sketch; Alec Chantrens is a talented French vocalist; and Revil Hall is a smart quick-change voice artist.

ASTON HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Aston Hippodrome, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. T. H. Middleton.—At the head of an attractive programme are Leroux's Monkeys, whose unique act is a source of wonderment; Robins and Collier make a big hit in their humorous speciality, The Lady and the Porter, and Blarney and Bland, American eccentrics, are another popular turn; Lillie le Breton, expert lady gymnast, is highly appreciated, and the Warsaw Brothers, comedy musical sketch artists, add to their already big reputation; the Raymond Trio are good instrumentalists and dancers; Neville and Mors appear in an enjoyable sketch; Bessie Lind is a pleasing comedienne; Tom and Neil are amusing knockabouts; and the Hipposcope pictures are good.

CURZON HALL (AMERICAN AND CONTINENTAL CIRCUS).—Organiser and Director, Mr. A. E. Inshaw.—Frequent changes are made in the programme, and this week great attention is aroused by the wonderful performancesc of horses, bears, dogs, and other animals. The comedy business provided by a clever troupe of clowns, headed by Dan Gregory, pleases both young and old.

KING'S HALL.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. J. P. Moore and B. Kennedy.—A beautiful pantomime picture, illustrating the story of Cinderella, is a popular feature here this week, followed by an old-fashioned harlequinade, taken part in by a clever troupe of clowns; The Web of Fate, The Little Flower-seller, and The Detective's Bag are other good subjects; and an acceptable turn is also contributed by Our Charlie.

BLACKBURN.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, the Royal and Hippodrome Co.; Governing-Director, Mr. Harry Yorke; Manager, Mr. Reginald Yorke.—The world-renowned Royal Carl Rosa Opera company is appearing in an attractive répertoire, introducing Don Giovanni, Destiny, The Marriage of Figaro, Il Trovatore, Tannhäuser, Lohengrin, Carmen, and Rigoletto. On Monday Mozart's Don Giovanni was given. Mr. Charles Victor in the name-part sang in magnificent style and acted convincingly; Mr. Arthur Winckworth's vocal efforts left nothing to be desired—as Leporello he excelled, and a feature of his performance was his clear articulation. Miss Douglas Wilson played the part of Donna Elvira with credit, and her numbers were much enjoyed; Miss Gertrude Vania was unfortunately prevented by a cold from taking this part, but was seen to distinct advantage in later works during the week; Mme. Gleeson White made a very good Donna Anna, and has a sweet yet powerful voice; Miss Ina Hill, the Zerlina, possesses a pleasing voice, and her numbers were productive of much applause. Mr. Walter Wheatley is a good tenor, and as Don Octavio created a very excellent impression. Mr. Richard as the Commandant was also seen and heard to advantage. The pieces are well dressed, and an augmented band, under Messrs. Eugene Goossens and Van Noorden, does able work.

PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Will Murray.—The Four Amaranths, a quartette of graceful and dainty ladies, give a clever and attractive acrobatic turn; H. C. Lovell and company have a funny sketch in The Queen of Sheba; Dick Thomas and Lincoln Taylor, in "Fun on the Midland," are also clever, introducing quick changes; Conway and Leland, one-legged performers, are old favourites, and their acrobatics are much appreciated; J. P. Carroll, a tambourinist of exceptional ability, does a good turn in the way of mimicry of sounds and instruments; Harry Luck sings comic songs to advantage; and Beatrice Willey sings of flowers with success. Luigi Salvini, a boy instrumentalist, also contributes. Pictures complete.

BLACKPOOL.—HER MAJESTY'S OPERA HOUSE.—General-Manager, Mr. J. R. Huddlestone.—Mr. J. Bannister Howard's company is here again with The Earl and the Girl, and drawing the usual big houses. Jim Cheese is on this occasion played by Mr. Bert Beswick with conspicuous success; and Miss Ada Waugh is equally successful as Liza Shoddam. Mr. Leslie Owen as Crewe Boodle and Miss Lily Gullick as Elphim Haye also fulfil the respective parts worthily. The choruses are rendered by a strong combination of voices, and the whole production is highly creditable.

GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietors, Blackpool Tower Co., Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. Geo. H. Harrop.—The Rogues of the Turf, as played by Mr. J. F. Preston's company, is the fare provided here, and in which three important parts are played by three thoroughbred racehorses. Mr. Preston plays Joe Flaxman, the honest trainer, whilst the scheming adventuress Marion is played by Miss Mabelle F. Barlow. The scene depicting the Manchester Racecourse is very well done. After this week the theatre will be closed until Easter, to allow for redecorations.

PALACE.—General-Manager, Mr. Geo. H. Harrop; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Waller.—Cruickshank, the clever musical jester, is the favourite artist here, and evokes tumultous applause at every performance; the Four Garricks contribute a pleasing vocal turn; and Zeta Grey and company are responsible for an amusing Lancashire sketch, which goes well. Other numbers are supplied by Frederic Neiman, ventriloquist; Flo Conelly, comedienne; Yetta, in a dancing act; the Soho Trio, singers and dancers; Syd Garti and Lucky Law in a vocal comedy act; and Theissen's performing dogs.

BOLTON.—THEATRE ROYAL (LTD.).—Managing-Director, Mr. J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr. John Moncur.—Mr. J. F. Elliston has exceeded all his previous efforts in the production of his thirtieth annual pantomime of The Babes in the Wood, which was staged in a thorough manner on Monday evening last, when a crowded house was delighted with the entire production. The dresses are costly and pretty, and the whole of the scenery beautiful examples of the artist's craft. The book is specially written by Mr. George M. Slater, and produced under the personal direction of Mr. J. F. Elliston. It is full of fun, gaiety, and good humour, and is in the hands of a really clever and capable set of artists, who makes the best of the parts assigned to them. Robin Hood is undertaken by Miss La Belle Morgane with dash and a convincing style, and she has established herself a prime favourite; Miss Lilian Pollard is successful as the principal girl, Maid Marian, her sprightliness and breezy interpretation of the part calling forth well-merited applause. The Sisters Darnton, as Will Scarlet and Margery Daw, make the most of their opportunities; the Babes are represented by two clever juveniles, the Sisters Herbert; Miss Donnie Rita is humorous as Mary Ellen, the Baroness; Mr. Fred Roma as the Baron Tweedledee, is funny from start to finish; Richard the Ruthless and William the Soapless are effectively represented by John Simms-Woolley and Willie Le Brun; Ruhart as Slippy, the Baron's page, has ample opportunities for the display of his abilities; Miss Edith Cornish as Little John and Miss Dolly Ross as Phyllis also deserve praise. Mr. W. H. Howarth is "at home" as Friar Tuck; the Immortals are represented by Miss Maud De Velin (Morning Star), Dot Herbert (Comet), Miss Mamie Stuart and Miss Madge Phyllys (as the Evening and North Stars), and Mr. George Belrose Herne (the Demon Hunter). Specialities are introduced by the Harvard Sextette, Lecardo Bros., and the Doreen Girls. Mr. Frank Seddon is the musical-director, and Mr. Walter McEwan stage-manager.

GRAND THEATRE (LTD.).—Managing-Director, Mr. J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry Kenyon.—The holiday programme here has drawn crowded houses. The Four Eugenes, in their refined aerial gymnastic performance; Janette Hall, lady baritone; Tony Black, Scotch comedian; Melia and Mozarabar, Oriental equilibrists, with trained ravens and pigeons; the Westbrooks, in their novelty dancing scena, The Little Maids from School; Lawley and Gallafent, in a musical comedietta, entitled A Chance Acquaintance; Bert Williams, ventriloquist; Goggin and Davis, in a versatile comedy acrobatic act; Will Owen, the dame comedian; Reginald Eyre's company, in a military play, in an act, entitled Gentleman, the King; and the Premier Bioscope comprise the programme.

EMPIRE HIPPODROME, LTD.—Director of Entertainments, Mr. Will Sley; Manager, Mr. A. R. Harrison.—Miss Edith St. Clare's pantomime of Aladdin is here for one week, and is being well supported; Miss Clare gives a dashing representation of Aladdin; and others appearing successfully are Mrfl Fred Russell as Abanazar, and Miss Marian Bradshaw, as Rhadianta, the Geni of the Cave.

BOOTLE.—WINTER GARDENS.—Lessee, the Excelsior Co.; Manager, Mr. George Barry.—Frisk and Johnson are a pair of mirth-provoking conversationalists and dancers; Mint and Mart are clever and amusing in their novelty act, in which they introduce paper manipulations; Jack Bradley scores a success in his comedy cycle act; as also does Laurie Leyton, boy ventriloquist; Andy Sagan is a refined comedian and clever dancer; and Miss Gladys Wright is a vocalist of no mean ability. High-class animated pictures complete.

BOSCOMBE.—HIPPODROME, LTD.—Joint Managing-Directors, Messrs. Fredk. Mouillot and Walter de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. A. H. Burdett.—Sidney Cooper and the Tally-Ho Trio present the grand Christmas pantomime Cinderella this week, their efforts being crowned with great success. Miss Doris Langden makes an ideal Cinderella; Miss Gladys Soman plays well the part of Prince Charming; Miss Bertha Belmore is most successful as Dandini; Miss Blanche Belmore does well as Cherry; and the part of the Fairy Godmother is capably taken by Miss Fay Desmond. Mr. Fredk. Park is a good Sprightly; as the Ugly Sisters Mr. Charles Wood and Mr. Fred Anderson are droll; Ceesem and Grabem are extremely funny as played by Mr. Erne Chester and Mr. Wm. Donat, and the part of Baron Doonaught is ably taken by Mr. Eric Farr. There is speciality dancing by the Eight Sunrays, a capital troupe.

BOURNEMOUTH.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Proprietors, Messrs. David Allen and Sons; Sole Lessee, Mr. Mouillot; Resident-Manager, Mr. Hubert Dunbar.—Mr. Mouillot's pantomime, Robinson Crusoe, is popular here, and will continue until Saturday next. The book is cleverly written by Mr. Leslie Moreton. Miss Hilda Vining makes an attractive Crusoe, and sings her songs charmingly; Miss Daisy May is also good as Polly; Mr. Matt Powell makes an excellent and amusing Dame Crusoe; Mr. Ernest Sefton as Will Atkins, the freebooter, creates much laughter; Mr. Chas. Resti as Friday accomplishes some very clever conjuring tricks, and delights the audience with his singing and dancing; Miss Mary Pitcairn presents a refined and artistic rendering of Princess Moonshine; Miss Ruby Melbon sings well as Coraline. The cast also includes Mr. Mark Lupino as Billy Crusoe, Mr. Alfred Drayton as Bumper, Miss F. Gordon as Sechelle, Mr. Archie Drew as Davy Jones, Mr. Robertson as Neptune, and Mr. A. Cooke as the Monkey. The pantomime is produced by Mr. J. R. La Fane, under the direction of Mr. Leslie Moreton.

BRADFORD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager, Mr. T. F. Doyle; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Richardson.—The overflowing audiences and interest taken in Mr. Hart's very charming pantomime, Jack and the Beanstalk, more than bear out the promise on its production on Christmas Eve; and the clever company, now that the they quite settled down to their respective tasks, more than realise expectations. Miss Nell Emerald as the hero, Jack, is particularly energetic, and already very popular; and Miss Annie Schuberth (whose exquisite vocalism in the part of the Fairy Gleam is quite a leading feature of the production) is an established favourite. Mr. Rowland Hill as Mother Muggles, Mr. Harry E. Ray as the Squire, and Mr. Marriott Edgar as Ladle, the milkman, vie with each other in fun-making and introducing screamingly funny business and patter. In their antics as the Cow the Valdo Bros elicit much laughter; as the village sweep Mr. Kit Keen scores well with his clever coon dance and bone solo; Radford and Valentine's screamingly funny juggling act elicits roars of laughter; Mr. Cyril Thompson sings finely in the part of Gobble; as Margery Miss Jose Collins is bright and charming and very popular; and the beautiful ballets elicit unstinted applause.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Lessee, Councillor, F. Laidler; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. M. Hamilton.—Judging by the attendance and the uncontrolled laughter and hearty applause, The Forty Thieves is an undoubted success. It is certainly Mr. Laidler's finest effort here from a spectacular point of view, and the company of comedians are very versatile and smart, and everything goes with a merry swing from start to finish. As Cogia Mr. Fred Spencer is quaint, and his get-up is funny; Mr. Dick Tubb is a big favourite as Ali Baba, and he and little Alf Corri as Hassarac are capital funproducers; as Cassim Baba Mr. Arthur Gibbons acts well; Mr. Chris Le Brun, in his clever impersonation of the Donkey, elicits much laughter; as Ganem Miss Ada Fawn is winning her way to the hearts of her audience; Miss Lesley Gibson is very dainty as Morgiana; Miss Mabel Mannering is a striking figure as Abdallah; there is much merit in Miss Patricia Weldon's impersonation of Selim; and the children's scenas and the dancing of John Tiller's Cherry Girls are features of the pantomime.

THE EMPIRE.—Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Percival Craig.—The Boissets are here this week, entertaining the audience highly with their boisterously funny and cleverly staged sketch, A Trip to the Continent; J. W. Hall, the comedian, is amusing with some good songs; Mathews and Reece, speciality athletes, introduce some clever novelties; Mabel Sinclair, lady ventriloquist, gives an excellent entertainment; Luis Alvarez, Spanish operatic tenor, is heard to advantage in excellent songs; Miss Henriquette Maude, the little New Zealand travelling girl, previous to her dramatic scena called "Lasca" details her stirring adventures cleverly; Madge Osmond, as an ideal Dandy is comedienne finds favour; Dan Whitley is an exceedingly funny and smart little comedian, who elicits much laughter; and the Palace Perfection Pictures, as usual, prove very entertaining.

BRIGHTON. — Grand Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. Ernest Gates; General-Manager, Mr. Ben Court.—The pantomime Robinson Crusoe, considerably curtailed, is running merrily here, and is attracting good houses. Miss May Mars as Robinson Crusoe is a great favourite, and evokes enthusiasm with her charming and artistic vocalisation. Miss Violet K. Orme as Polly Perkins sings and dances herself into high favour; and Miss Vera Ray as Fairy Goodenough gives her lines with clearness and emphasis. The comedy element is mainly sustained by Messrs. Sandford and Lyons, who impersonate Captain Kettle and Corkscrew Bill respectively; their comic ditties and smart patter teem with robust, wholesome humour are very diverting, and they display clever and eccentric dancing. Mr. Dave O'Toole (Mrs. Crusoe) and Mr. George Campbell (Billy Crusoe) are also entertaining; Mr. Edgar Budden (Friday) is a nimble dancer and good bone soloist; and among others who render able support warm praise must be accorded Mr. Joe Redfern (Will Atkins) and Mr. Fred A. Marston (Rajah). The choruses are well sung; and the success of the production is materially enhanced by the picturesque scenery and the brilliant electrical effects.

Alhambra.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Alfred Smith; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. A. Smith.—Olive Lenton and company secure hearty applause for their picturesque and charming musical act, Harvest Time; Tom Stuart, dramatic and burlesque impressionist, achieves great success; Les Frascettis play on a variety of instruments with skill and artistic expression; May B. Brilliant sings and dances herself into favour; Morris and Marte are excellent in song, patter, and novelty dances; Woolmer Young sings some capital songs; the Eight Boston Belles submit a turn of singing and dancing which is warmly appreciated; Crawford and Johnson, coloured comedy instrumentalists, vocalists, and dancers, are cordially received; the Seymons appear in a neat equilibristic juggling act; and the Alhambra Picturegraph is interesting and amusing.

Brown.—Ivan Tschernoff's well-trained ponies, dogs, and pigeons provide a much appreciated turn; Austin Rudd, comedian, evokes warm applause with his humorous and topical songs; Paulton and Doley are clever bicycle comedians; James Hare and company are highly successful in the dramatic and humorous episode, Wrong 'Uns; the Krags Trio, gymnasts, perform daring feats in mid air; the Channings submit a refined vocal and musical act; the Robertsons are very smart and clever acrobatic dancers; Rastus and Banks, coloured entertainers, are well received; the Maximilian Trio are pleasing comedy equilibrists; Will Musgrave, comedian, and Reg. Beauchamp, grotesque comedian and amusing patterer, give good turns; and the Barrascope pictures are interesting.

West Pier.—Secretary, Mr. A. W. Scholey.—The pretty and delightful musical fantasy, The Queen of the Fairies, continues its run here, and is doing good business. Miss Nora Roylance, who sustains the title-rôle, is a graceful singer and dancer; and other fairy characters are charmingly portrayed by Miss Blanche Kinross, Miss Molly Heyward, Miss Marie Montague, Miss Vera Alleyne, and Miss Mamie Ainsworth. Of the mortals Mr. H. E. Garden (Duke) and Miss Florence Lynn (Duchess) are entertaining; Miss Kathleen Storr (Lady Violet) and Mr. Eric J. Langham (Reginald Wane) are a pleasing pair of young lovers; and Mr. Edward Boddy acquits himself admirably as the gardener, Samuel Appleyard. The fairies contribute several choruses and dances in good style.

BRISTOL.—Prince's Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. James Macready Chute.—Mother Hubbard has now become very popular, the house being filled at each performance. All the principals have settled down to their work admirably, the pantomime going very smoothly. The scenery is much admired, the electric dances are very attractive, and the costumes are all rich and appropriate.

Theatre Royal.—Resident-Manager, Mr. H. C. Ally.—Robinson Crusoe is proving very successful, good houses being obtained at each performance. The artists work admirably together, and the principals are rapidly gaining in popularity. The scenery is far above the average.

Palace.—Local Manager, Mr. Horace Livermore; Treasurer, Mr. F. J. V. Welchman.—The programme here is headed with a fine dramatic sketch by John C. Brandon, entitled The Leaves of Memory, in which Miss Beaumont Collins presents an intensely powerful exposition of Ruth Challoner, being adequately supported by Messrs. David Baird, Edward Sorley, and J. W. Lawrence. The sketch is excellently staged, the scene being a well appointed drawing-room in St. John's Wood. The Pasquali Brothers do an admirable act as tumblers and equilibrists; Les Rubens score with their musical act The Two Merry Vagabonds, the lady especially, being a most accomplished vocalist; Picitt and Lizette do a clever magical act, entitled The Crazy Cook, in which about fifty birds and small animals are introduced; Natalia and Diana are expert and graceful gymnasts on the trapeze; Fred Land, eccentric comedian, is successful; and Terry and Tate entertain with song, story, and dance. Interesting animated pictures conclude.

Empire.—Managing-Director, Mr. B. Pearce Lucas; Resident-Manager, Mr. Sid Macaire.—Julius Walther, the well-known Carl Rosa tenor, is highly successful here. On Monday evening he contributed in his best style "The Star of Bethlehem" and the "Miserere" tenor solo from Il Trovatore. The amusing sketch Three of a Kind is capitally played by Ethel Arden's company; the Selbonians do a clever comedy juggling act; Raie Walters, comedienne, is appreciated; Celest does a very expert act on the wire; Nellie Neil is a pleasing comedienne; Arthur Breton's company of pantomimists amuse with A Sleepless Night; Harry Palm, comedian, is successful; and Smith and Gibbs do a clever act as speciality gymnasts. The performance closes with excellent animated pictures.

BURNLEY.—Victoria Opera House.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. C. Horner.—Miss Mary Austin and Mr. B. Vivian Edmond's company is here in The Cotton Spinner. The emotional part of Mary Prescott is capitally portrayed by Miss Austin and capital work is done by Mr. Vivian Edmonds in the title-rôle; Miss Ethel Vinroy is a convincing Constance Harrington; Mr. Walter Thornton is well cast as Foster Cunningham; and Mr. Geo. Porteous as Arthur and Mr. W. H. Dewhurst as Major Stratton are exceedingly good.

Empire Theatre of Varieties.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. C. Horner.—The head of the bill here is occupied by B. A. Rolfe's company, in "Ye Colonial Septette" in "An Old Time Halloween," which includes delightful instrumental music, pretty dances, and beautiful dresses. Webb and Edna Bronston are again welcomed for capital duets; and Ted Gill, Yorkshire tenor, is enthusiastically received. Charles Ure pleases with songs; Ben E. Verity contributes lively dances; the Three Clarks are smart in club-throwing; and Les Zelovas accomplish clever equilibristic feats. Millie and Arthur are delightfully funny in Domestic Bliss; and An Unlucky Picnic is shown by the Empire Theatrescope.

Palace Theatre and Hippodrome.—Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. R. Badcoe.—Signor Arvi is mystifying audiences here with his clever illusion, "The Metablescope," which introduces a series of beautiful tableaux. The cycle act of the Selbinis is brimful of clever and exciting items, and roars of laughter greet the efforts of Harry Tate's company, in Motoring. J. P. Poole presents Godfrey Prince in an excellent song scena, "The Trumpeter"; and the Leotard Bros., eccentric clowns, are very funny. Albert Barraclough, descriptive vocalist sings capitally; Edie Reynolds delights with violin solos; and the Palace Pictures are interesting.

BURY (Lancs.).—Royal, Ltd.—General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Assistant Acting-Manager, Mr. H. H. Potter.—Mr. George Dance's company on Monday presented Miss Hook of Holland to a packed house. Foremost in the cast is Mr. Edmond Russell, who makes of Mr. Hook a quaint and amusing character; Mr. George Mudie, jun., is as good as ever as Ludwick Schnapps, and is to be complimented upon the rendering of his musical numbers; Simon Slinks is a typical loafer as portrayed by Mr. Fred Dark; Mr. Wood Mansey is excellent as Capt. Adrian Paap; and the same may be said of Mr. Arthur Ballance as Bandmaster Van Vuyt; Sally is delightfully played by Miss Gertrude Melville, her acting and singing being of a high order; Miss Cissie Sephton is again seen in the part of Mina, to which she imparts some clever touches; Mr. C. F. Hewett as Lieut. de Coop, Miss Nora Nairne as Freda, Miss Lily Ashton as the old market woman, all do excellent work. A full chorus and augmented orchestra are under the direction of Mr. H. A. Dyer, and Mr. P. F. Thompson is the business-manager.

Circus of Varieties.—Proprietors, The Northern Theatres Co., Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Assistant Acting-Manager, Mr. H. H. Potter.—New and varied pictures, shown on the Ottograph, continue to draw good houses, and excellent turns are given by Agnes Tina, mimic and impersonator, and the Four Panamas, refined comedy entertainers.

Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. Thomas Baker.—Luis Hardt is top turn, and meets with a flattering reception; Fanny Robina is an old favourite, and her songs are rendered in capital manner; Poole and Maguire shine in vocal comedy scena; Ida Barr, actress-vocalist, has several good songs artistically rendered; a comedian of the spasmodic order, Ted Waite, is responsible for considerable merriment; and Billie Bint is also a good comedian; Florence Cooper repeats her former successes; Stanley and Vandyke, in a comedy duo on somewhat broad lines, keep the audience convulsed with laughter.

CAMBRIDGE. — New Theatre. — Managing-Director, Mr. W. B. Redfern, J.P., D.L.—The pantomime week opened here on Monday night with Milton Bode's Red Riding Hood, which was greeted by a large audience. In the name-part Miss Babs Lloyd was very taking and is an exceptionally clever dancer; Mr. Laurie Wylie Marmalade had any amount of comic business; Mr. Rolanda Martin Johnny Stout was a good all round boy; Mr. John E. Conan was capitally got up as Dame Trot, and very amusing; Mr. Frank Lilliput made the most of Simple Simon; Boy Blue was in the hands of Miss Aimee Roberts, who made a dashing and rollicking principal boy; Miss Carda Walker was a charming Fairy Queen; Miss Ruby Wentworth shows to advantage as Tom; Miss Blanche May was a dainty Bo-Peep; Mr. Stanley Fields, Mr. J. F. Smith, and Miss Jessie Smith were all most amusing. The variety show also was very strong, consisting of the Marvellous Pattersons, Mr. Laurie Wylie with his mimicking mannikin, and Zellini, a funny juggler.

CARDIFF.—New Theatre.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Robert Redford.—An unprecedented success is the verdict pronounced upon the pantomime Dick Whittington. The principals have already established themselves firm favourites, and nothing but praise is heard on all sides of the sprightliness of the lady artists and the capabilities of the comedians. Miss Isabelle Dillon as Dick is exceptionally successful, and charms all by her dash and versatility; Miss Gladys Guy as Alice is positively bewitching, and is an immense favourite; Miss Blanche Astley is earning a great reputation; Mr. Mark Lester (Idle Jack), Mr. Phil Smith (Matilda), Mr. Arthur E. Godfrey (Captain Scupper), Mr. Arthur Leslie (Bill Oakum), and Mr. Tom E. Sinclair (Fitzwarren) are the making of this year's production. The pantomime is assured of a prosperous run.

Theatre Royal.—General Manager, Mr. Graham Morrison; Acting-Manager, Mr. S. E. Clay.—Mother Goose is now in full swing and running smoothly. The artists have fully mastered their respective parts, while the chorus are doing excellent work. The principals have made names for themselves in the district, and good houses is the rule nightly.

Empire.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. J. Taylor.—Cyril Clensy and company are here in The Last Chance, a unique sketch, introducing in a novel way the excellent powers of Mr. Clensy himself as a mimic. A great treat is provided by Miss Lydia Yeamans, who delighted two large audiences on Monday with "Sally in our alley," and other interesting numbers; the Quaint Q's, a quartette of gifted vocal comedians, vary melodious harmony by amusing antics; Keen and Waller, comedy acrobats, gain applause for a clever turn; and Miss Lily Burnand makes a great success in her catchy songs; the Glenroy troupe of speciality dancers are experts in their particular line; Ugo Nap, in his scena Home Without a Mother, once more commands appreciation with his smart sayings; and J. C. Scatter, the Tyneside comedian, is a good raconteur; Will Dacey and Nellie Lewis, in song and dance, and the Bioscope complete a fine evening's entertainment.

Palace and Hippodrome. — Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. A. Jackson.—Good business rules here. Marie Santoi and her merry Japs, in A Japanese Tea Garden by Night, form a most attractive item, and proves very entertaining; Amy Anderson and company are another successful turn in their comedy scena The Banana Queen; Steel and Laing score in a comedy acrobatic singing and dancing act; Wyze and Adna, Herbert Rule (comedian), Rose D'Aulby (chorus comedienne), and Margit and Lener (eccentric acrobats), also win approval. The Palace Perfection Pictures complete.

CARLISLE.—H.M. Theatre.—Lessees, Mrs. R. Stewart McKim and Mr. Thos. Courtice; Manager, Mr. Thos. Courtice.—Mr. Carr Loates' company in At the World's Mercy commenced a two-performances-a-night engagement on Monday. In the principal part Miss Cissie Milford has many telling scenes, and soon became a favourite; Mr. Bert Leighton gives a robust rendering of Captain Manley; Mr. Carr Loates, Mr. G. D. Knight, Miss Margaret Butler, and Miss Vera Raynor contribute satisfactory performances.

CHELTENHAM. — Opera House. — General-Manager, Mr. H. Oswald Redford.—Mr. and Mrs. John Walters' pantomime, Robinson Crusoe, has proved immensely popular. Miss Florence Carlile (Robinson Crusoe), Miss Kittie Liske (Polly Perkins), Mr. Ally M. Benson (the Dame), Mr. W. Bland (Billy Crusoe), Miss Rena Rees (Captain Kettle), and Miss Violet Thorne (Jack Harkaway) make decided hits. Mr. Harry Daniels (Man Friday) and his quaint and clever canine companions are the delight of the juveniles. Miss Florence Parkinson (Midshipman Easy) is a bright and attractive young artist; Miss Hilda Hemus (Spirit of the Ocean), a gifted vocalist, acts easily; Miss Hettie Matthews and Miss Clara Nottingham as Tom Bowling and Dick Seabreeze, and Miss Nellie Ellis as Japheat Faithful do well; as also does Miss Kitty Chester (Fairy Liberty). Mr. Tom Lewis is typically accurate is dress, face, and manner as the bold, bad Atkins. The music was composed and arranged by Mr. Albert Rigby (musical-director), and the production is stage-managed by Messrs. Willie Leigh and John Walters, under the personal supervision of Mr. and Mrs. John Walters.

Victoria Rooms.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. E. B. Shenton.—Boswell's circus continues to attract large houses, assisted by Kame Yasuda, the wonderful little Jap; the Nondescripts; Crusoe, feet equilibrist; and other good turns.

CHORLEY.—Grand Theatre.—Lessees, Geo. T. Santé, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Frank Santé.—Mr. E. G. Kimberley's capital company appeared here on Monday in Two Little Drummer Boys. As Captain Frank Carsdale Mr. William Vane gave an exceptionally fine rendering, Mr. Edward Bikker being particularly good as General Kingsley, V.C.; Captain George Darrell was in the capable hands of Mr. Ernest Fare; Messrs. Will Percy and Dick Seddon as Quiney O'Quirke and Timothy Trimmer respectively are quite exhilarating; the two little drummer boys are sympathetically played by Miss Maggie English and Miss Maudie B. Douglas; Miss Violet Ingram giving a really fine study of Margaret Rivers; and Miss Violet Langley being particularly vivacious as Molly Meadows.

COLCHESTER.—Theatre Royal.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Chas. Macdona; Lessee and Manager, Mr. F. Graham Macdona.—The Soldier's Wedding, improved in dresses, scenic effects, and other ways, is on a return. Mr. Matthew Boulton maintains in worthy style the heroic part of Jack Brown; Miss Dorothy Richardson does every justice to her part of Nancy Lee; Mr. W. J. Butler as Charles Courtenay makes a capital villain, and receives great assistance from Miss Nita Langford as Julie de Beauvrias; the rôle of Colonel Jas. Graham is nicely depicted by Mr. Cyprian Matthews; and a deal of fun is provided by Mr. Will Scott as Tom Spratt.

Hippodrome.—Directors, Messrs. Fredk. Mouillot and Walter de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. Ben de Frece.—The Howards, mental telepathists, are the big line here this week, and submit plenty of interesting experiments; Jean and Josie, billed as the greatest of living contortionists, show wonderful ability; Captain Kettle (the silent performer) reappears with his coin and card manipulating; Warriner, mandolinist, is capable, hard-working, and entirely successful; Julian Ross, light comedian; Harry Sellars, comedian; and Elsie Kerry, comedienne, contribute good numbers, which are much applauded, and the pictures are effective.

Mr. Frank Liston is well suited in the character of the villainous Lord Howard Kenilworth; and as Andrew Ross, Mr. Geo. Steel makes a capital hero; Hugh Lovell is in the capable hands of Mr. Ian Fleming; Mr. Henry Sainsbury and Miss Clara Santley as the old folks are repeatedly applauded; Mr. Vincent Wardle as dumb Jock displays ability; and as Sam, a negro, Mr. Richard Loft is good; Miss Maud Warburton is a great success as Dorothy Robin; Miss Kate Froud is a clever Patricia Bathurst; and Miss Ada Frank and Mr. Geo. Scully is responsible for the comedy element.

CORK.—Opera House.—Manager, Mr. R. J. Bell.—Mr. George Edwardes's company, in The Merry Widow, opened a second week's engagement here, and is drawing good houses. The principals continue to please, and the play is highly enjoyed.

Palace Theatre, Ltd.—Manager, Mr. Thos. F. O'Brien.—A Vision of Japan, presented by O'Hana San and company is much enjoyed; Barnard's Mannikins, in A Coon's Revelry, are capitally worked and staged; Marjory Russell proves herself a clever magician; Arthur Slater is the clever-ist whistler heard here for a long time; Harry Clyst, Welsh singing collier, sings some fine songs; the Creedons introduce club-swinging and boxing with good effect; and Lina Leslie and Maie Rello, comediennes, contribute catchy songs.

COVENTRY.—The Opera House.—Proprietor, Mr. Wm. Bennett.—For the second week Mr. Arthur Carlton presents his successful pantomime, entitled Cinderella, and, as last week, houses are filled in all parts. The songs are changed and several local topical themes introduced with effect. Miss Ella Willmer is a general favourite as Cinderella.

Hippodrome.—Managing-Director, Mr. S. T. Newsome; Resident-Manager, Mr. G. E. Wright.—The top turn this week is the up-to-date farcical absurdity The Bailiff; or, Albert Bruno in Possession. The whole scene, from the start to the finish keeps the house in laughter. Another amusing sketch, entitled Toplitsky; or, The End of the World, is presented by Messrs. Hayman and Franklin's company, and absolutely takes the house by storm. The Sisters Lizette, lady acrobats, contribute a good turn; Frank Cumminger and Frances Colonna are fine sand dancers; Mr. Ian B. Vanbert's illusions and smoke pictures are exceedingly clever; Louie Belrose is a dainty singer and dancer; and Charlotte Levey, comedienne, and Harry Cook, comedian, are also entertaining.

CROYDON.—Grand Theatre.—Manager, Mr. Roland Daniel; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Ernest Archer.—Mr. George Dance's excellent company, in Our Miss Gibbs, is in its second week here, and business is exceptionally brisk. The scenery and dresses have been much admired, and the well-balanced chorus has given great satisfaction; Mr. Otto Mann's orchestra also winning approval. Miss Kathleen Courtney is a pretty and frolicsome Mary Gibbs; Miss May Marshall is delightful as Mrs. Farquhar; Miss Nancy Hervyn gives a splendid rendering of Madame Jeanne; Miss Lilian Birtles is good as Lady Elizabeth Thanet; and Miss Winifred Kinckby makes an aristocratic Duchess of Minster. Mr. Theodore Leonard is full of quaint acting as Timothy Gibbs; Mr. Tom Shelford's dry humour admirably fits the rôle of Hon. Hughie Pierrepoint; Mr. Ernest Darrell exactly fits the part of Earl of St. Ives; Mr. Reg. Sheldrick contributes his full quota as Slithers; Mr. Harry Fairfax is successful as Lord Eynsford; and a word of praise is also due to Messrs. R. M. Strachan (Mr. Toplady), Henry De Solla (Mr. Beavis), Murray Stephen (Mr. Amalfy), and H. Player (taxi-cabby).

Empire Palace of Varieties.—Managing-Directors, Messrs. Walter Gibbons and Thomas Barrasford; Manager, Mr. Eustace Jay.—Mr. Jay is putting forward a capital bill of fare here. Vesta Victoria is a sterling comedienne, and her reception is a cordial one; the Three Laurels give a smart acrobatic and tumbling act; Jerold Robertshaw's company, in The Private Detective, is well received; Horace White introduces a novel ventriloquial act; Sylvia Cavalho, Clifford Pembroke, and company vividly render the sketch The Signal; George Gilbey is a droll comedian; Daisy Hurdle is a neat comedienne; Rauschle's impersonations of great men are worth seeing; and Russell Brandow is an expert dancer.

DARLINGTON.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. James Bell.—The twice-nightly system is arranged here for a few weeks, and Messrs. Silverstone and Wright's company played to two packed houses on Monday with The Nihilist. Mr. George Mitchell as Ivan gives a clever performance; Mr. O. Silverstone as Prince Alexander shows to advantage; as Karl Orloff, Mr. Cowell Clark is good; Mr. Henry Wright and Miss Jessica Ford are responsible for the comedy parts as Bobbie Smart and Katrina Zindoff; Miss Florry Kelsey is fine as Princess Olga; and Miss Edna Clare makes a pretty Alexina Orloff.

Hippodrome Theatres, Ltd.—Acting-Manager, Mr. Albert E. Nicholls.—The bill is topped here by Richard Corbin with his dogs; Thorne and company, in their sketch Mr. Burglar, are humorous; Johnnie Walker, comedian, is capital in song and story; Reg Fox is a clever ventriloquist; Dainty Dolly Clyffe, the child comedienne, is great; Mr. and Mrs. Gordon-Wilde give a pleasing turn; and other good shows are the St. Johns, musical comedians, and Rowlands and Ford, Scotch and Welsh comedians.

DARWEN.—Theatre Royal.—Lessees, The Animated Pictorial Enterprises, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. G. E. Burnett.—Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Kimberley, Travis Green, and Arthur Hinton's company is here in Was She to Blame? Mr. Frank Anderson as the broken-down actor William Clark shows much skill; Mr. Henry Rutland is a capital Vicar of Beechwood; Mr. George Langden brings out well the villainies of Frank Roselle; and Mr. Geo. Keene does well as Captain Courtney. Miss Cissie St. Elmo is an excellent Mrs. Roselle; Miss Maud Hastings invests Lilian Norman with charming simplicity; Miss Ellen Beverley is a capable Mary Norman; and comedy parts are well portrayed by Mr. Kenneth Black, jun. as Timothy Swales, Mr. A. Smith as Jim Harford, Miss Nita Owen as Sarah Swales, and Miss Florence Steyne as Alice Firearms. The piece is elaborately dressed and mounted.

DERBY.—Grand Theatre and Opera House.—Sole Proprietor and General-Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Acting-Manager, Mr. Bert Dent.—Mr Arthur Carlton's pantomime Puss in Boots continues to draw large and representative audiences. The various artists are now quite familiar with their parts, and everything goes with a good swing. The various chorus songs are speedily taken up, and the dancing is all that can be desired. The speciality this week is the Zaid Trio of Moorish acrobats, whose various feats provoke the heartiest approval.

Palace Theatre of Varieties.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. W. Moyes.—The star turn this week is provided by Phil Herman, a vocal comedian whose quietly humorous songs and stories meet with deserved appreciation; the Richards Trio are remarkably clever knockabout comedy acrobats; the Four Markies, in a vocal and instrumental scena, prove themselves artists of first-class ability; Ridiculous Recco submits an acrobatic skit which creates roars of laughter; the Two Wiltons as duettists and dancers are eminently successful; the Forsyths, in a sketch The Tramp in the Nursery, are entertaining fun-makers; and Vi Laurie, comedienne, sings and dances in a manner most pleasing. The Bioscope concludes an up-to-date bill.

DEVONPORT. — Hippodrome. — Manager, Mr Herbert Taylor.—The principal turn A Society Woman, presented by Alan Holt and company, is brimful of excitement, which culminates in a realistic battle between a man and a woman. Some finished and refined singing is done by the Quality Quartette, the audience demonstrating in no uncertain way their unequivocal appreciation of the artists' efforts; Walter King is quite at home in the comic department, and proves a very popular entertainer; the Pichel Troupe do some daring acrobatic feats with remarkable skill, agility, and precision; Blanche and Powell are responsible for an attractive instrumental and vocal number; and Minnie Wheaton's dances find universal favour.

DEWSBURY. — Theatre Royal. — Lessees, Northern Theatres Co., Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. Herbert Asquith.—The Girl Who Lost Her Character is here this week, admirably staged. Miss Doris Brookes as Molly Vernon proves herself a very capable actress; Capt. Caversham is forcibly played by Mr. Richard Ferris, who is ably assisted by Miss Lydia Mannington as Marian Franklyn; Mr. Cecil Mannering is to be commended for his excellent portrayal of Jack England; Miss Maggie Hobart as Rosie Seymour gains the sympathies of the audience; Mr. Joseph Millaine distinguishes himself as the Rev. Robert Everton; and the part of James Sutton is in the capable hands of Mr. George Daiper. The comedy parts of Dick Punch and Isabella Jones are filled by Mr. Geo. H. Asquin and Miss Maimie Thorpe, who keep the audience in continuous laughter; and Mr. R. Chester does well as Detective Weathersby.

Empire.—Proprietors, Messrs. G. W. and G. E. Smith; Manager, Mr. Claude Shayler; Musical-Director, Mr. E. G. Summerfield.—Robinson Crusoe is being performed here this week by Mr. Wm. Watson's company. The Waldrons (Joe and Etty) as John Willie and Mary Crusoe keep the house in continuous laughter; Mlle. De Rose is very successful in the title-part; Hilda Claremont as Pollie Parkin uses her fine voice to advantage, and has an excellent reception. A realistic imitation of the crocodile is given by Mr. Bondene; Lambert and Butler are very funny as the two policemen; Wreckeross has a capable exponent in Cliff Dacre, who has a capital voice; the singing and dancing of the Sisters Gaze are exceedingly well received; J. H. Hawtrey as the cannibal king sings very well; and Dick Nash as the pet dog is very amusing. Phil Lester and Lem Naylor do well as Mrs. Crusoe and Captain Blizzard; Rene Ralph as Jack and Billy Watson as Will Atkins ably sustain their parts; and specialities are introduced by the Three Royal Temples, Bendene, and Verrière.

Hippodrome.—General-Manager, Mr. Geo. Weldon; stage-manager, Mr. Jack Harris; Musical-Director, Mr. R. H. Riley.—The bill here is headed by the Canworths, in an instrumental and vocal act. Their performance is clever and refined, and wins unstinted applause. The Australian Bush Boys, in an original vocal and dancing act, are a success; Tom Isherwood excels as a comedian and descriptive vocalist; humour is liberally provided by Peakman and Walsh, comedy jugglers; a highly commendable turn is that of the Cliffords, in a vocal speciality, "My Dainty Cigarette." Dot Moss, comedienne and banjoist; the Lindos, comediennes and dancers; and a capital display of animated pictures complete a good programme.

DUBLIN.—Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. Frederick Mouillot; Resident-Manager, Mr. Charles Terry.—The Moody-Manners Opera Company opened their second week on Monday with Carmen, which was presented before a very large and appreciative audience. Mlle. Zelie De Lussan was particularly fine, her charming and artistic acting and excellent vocalism in the title-rôle being greatly admired. As Don José Mr. Philip Brozel did full justice to the part, and Mr. Charles Moorhouse had a well-deserved encore for his rendering of "The Toreador." Miss Raymond Amy as Michaela, Miss Mordon as Frasquita, Miss Matthews as Mercedes, Mr. F. Davis as Il Remendado, Mr. R. Cliffe as Il Dancairo, Mr. Matthews as Morales, and Mr. H. Brindle as Zuniga were all excellent in their respective parts.

Gaiety Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fredk. Mouillot; Resident-Manager, Mr. Charles Hyland.—The pantomime Dick Whittington and His Cat entered on the second week, and is now running with great success.

Queen's Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Marriott Watson; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. F. Wright.—The Babes in the Wood, Messrs. Cullen and Carthy's pantomime, concludes to-night after a very successful twelve nights' engagement.

Empire. — General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager and Secretary, Mr. George H. March.—The prominent position here is held by Mr. Joe Peterman and company in their sketch, Slaterstein, Ltd.; in a sensational cycle act Mr. Arthur Kenny calls forth loud applause; Miss Flo D'Orville as a danseuse is a capable and painstaking artist; the Brothers Corcoran score successfully in a clever musical act; Mr. Bert Marsden's impersonations are extremely good; and Miss Daisy Hicks is an engaging comedienne with catchy songs. Also appearing are Eadie and Ramsden, smart comedy artists; and Dancit, expert clog-dancer. The Empire pictures conclude.

Tivoli.—General-Manager, Mr. Charles M. Jones; Assistant-Manager, Mr. H. A. Murphy.—The programme submitted here this week includes the Max Tourbillon troupe of bicycle acrobats: Otta and Olga, in a musical act; Werde Brothers, acrobatic eccentrics; the Three Sisters Eston, comediennes; the Arbas, triple bar performers; Ernest Tilbury, vocalist; Vesta Nixon, comedienne; George Reeves, quaint comedian; Johnnie Wilkinson and Nora Layton, duologue artists; and the Bioscope.

DUDLEY. — Opera House. — Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. Maurice Clement; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. W. Tilley.—Dick Whittington, produced by Mr. Wm. Pardoe, is charmingly put on here. Miss Lottie Holland again scores a big success as Dick, having a prepossessing and attractive appearance and an excellent voice; Miss Nellie Rose is a worthy supporter as principal girl; Miss Rose Finnettie acts with refinement and animation in the part of Lord Dedbroke; Miss Elsie Kedward as Princess Precioso is a charming personage; another natural and pretty part is played by Miss Beattie Howard as Miss Khan Tellum. Mr. Geo. Hyam is Idle Jack, and his original humour keeps his audience merry. He is ably assisted by Mr. Alf. Grady as Jim, and Mr. Will Robb as Captain Rinnacle. Mr. Joe Venora as the Emperor of Morocco, Mr. Tom Hulme as Fitzwarren, and Mr. Jimmy Wood as the Cook are all successful; and the skilful antics of Mona Pauli as the Cat and the singing of Mr. Tom Griffitt (King Rat) are much applauded.

Empire.—Proprietors, the Midland Entertainment Corporation, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. F. H. Waters.—The programme is headed by the Derrington Family, sensational cyclists; the Four Louberts, in a pantomimical act, comprised of dancing, tumbling, and real good comedy, have been a great attraction; Chandos and Constable, in their absurdity Fluffie, are well received; as are also George Porter (Tyrolean vocalist), Ernest Clifford (comedian and dancer), Jessie Ward (a dainty comedian), and Little Dot Wright (juvenile comedienne). The Empire Pictures complete.

DUNDEE.—Her Majesty's Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Manager, Mr. Louis Karpe.—Mr. Robert Arthur's annual, Cinderella, was produced here on Monday, and a notice appears elsewhere.

King's Theatre and Hippodrome, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. Alfred Moul; Manager, Mr. S. McIntosh.—Alfredo Marschall occupies place of honour, and goes through some marvellous feats, his most sensational item being the catching on his neck of a mountain cannon weighting 400lb.; the Brothers Long give a good exhibition of wooden-shoe dancing; Maud Courtney scores a decided hit with her Yankee ditties; Ethel Stephenson sings Tosti's "Good-bye" in charming style; Charles Woodward is a huge favourite; Mr. C. keeps his audience highly amused; Nina Gordon brings down the house with her clever impersonations; the Camille Lavis Trio prove experts in the dancing line; and a remarkable picture of a fair in Brittany is shown by the Kingscope.

Gaiety Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. Alfred Moul; Manager, Mr. S. McIntosh.—A strong attraction here is Drink, which is admirably presented by Mr. J. Pitt Hardacre and company. Mr. Hardacre himself as Coupeau furnishes a pi their specialities is given by the Nine Kremos, a troupe of risky acrobats second to none in this kind of exhibition; the Casey Army, with Will Murray as Mrs. Casey, contributes a series of Casey Court revels; John Macaulay makes a hit as a ballad vocalist; Fred Elton provides entertainment at the piano in his sketch On Board an Ocean Liner; Charles Vincent sings an amusing medley of songs and parodies; and that excellent comedian, W. F. Frame, supplies a couple of his usual good turns; while the programme is further strengthened by Tom Pryce and Miss Masson's duologue The Lude's Wooing, and by a fine set of Bioscope pictures.

COOKE'S ROYAL CIRCUS.—Proprietor, Mr. John Henry Cooke; Manager, Mr. Talbot Cooke.—Three or four performances a day have been among the holiday week's arrangements at Mr. Cooke's popular place of amusement, where crowded audiences have enjoyed the liberal entertainment provided. Siberia, the special item on the bill, holds its own as one of the most successful of Mr. Cooke's many circus spectacles.

MOSS' CARNIVAL.—Manager, Mr. W. Campbell Milne.—The Waverley Market has been visited by endless crowds during the past week, and the business done in the side-shows, merry-go-rounds, &c., has been well-nigh unprecedented; while standing room only could be had within the enclosure reserved for chairs in front of the public performance platform. The programme here remains unchanged, the artists engaged having evidently far from exhausted their popularity.

EXETER.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Chairman and Managing Director, Mr. Edward J. Domville, J.P.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy M. Dunsford.—Red Riding Hood has entered upon her second week, and the pantomime, which is essentially one for children, and in which so many talented juvenile artists appear, bids fair to maintain its popularity. The revival of the comic harlequinade, with Mr. Steve Asher as Clown, Mr. Joe Clark as Harlequin, Miss Letine as Columbine, Mr. Frank Stathan as Pantaloon, and Mr. Mike McClusky as Policeman, is immensely popular, and the more so because it is made local and topical with a continuous change. Much credit also is due to Mr. Percy M. Dunsford, the acting-manager who is responsible for this year's Exeter pantomime, and to Miss Maud Tucker, under whose superintendence the special dresses have been executed.

NEW HIPPODROME.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Fred Karno; Resident- and Acting-Manager, Mr. Frederick Sandy.—At the top of the bill are Mr. E. H. Bostock's highly-educated Baboons introduced by Capt. Graham, who is loudly applauded; it is a return visit this week of The Romps and other turns are Arthur Hickman ("Simply a Singer"), Blanche and Zena (in their clever act with racing cycles), Sadie Simpson (a clever comedienne and dancer), and Billy French (wooden-shoe dancer). Yangar, the West African wonder worker, is also very accomplished.

FALKIRK.—GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. H. W. Ebbutt.—The Aladdin pantomime entered upon its second week on Monday. The success of this, Mr. R. C. Buchanan's latest enterprise, has been unprecedented. At matinées and evening performances alike the theatre has been more than packed, to the unfeigned delight of Mr. Thomas C. Browne, the general manager of the company. As the Princess Miss Lily Lonsdale continues to charm with her presence and her singing, an observation which also applies to Miss Mabel Hind as Aladdin. Miss Margaret Vincent as Electra has also a nice sweet voice. Ernie Myers, Tom Carrick, J. G. Aitken, and the Brothers Fiman provide fun unlimited.

FLEETWOOD.—EMPIRE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. H. J. Snelson.—Mr. Stephen Pritt's répertoire company is here this week. On Monday Almost His Bride was performed, Mr. David McFarlane makes excellent use of his opportunities as the Earl of Ulswater; Mr. Percy Warlow gives good support as Squire Rowland; and Mr. A. F. Dudley is a great favourite as Philip Rowland. The villain is in the good hands of Mr. R. F. Stacey; Miss Louie Peebles gives a clever interpretation of Mona Gilchrist; and Ruth Gilchrist is ably portrayed by Miss Adele Liddon. Miss Lilly Prescott shows marked ability as Myra Thorne. The comedy element is in the hands of Miss Nellie Hook and Mr. Pritt, who create roars of laughter. On Wednesday and Thursday A Woman's Passion was staged.

GAINSBOROUGH.—KING'S THEATRE.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs. Leivers and Bennett; Resident-Manager, Mr. Walter Norman.—Mr. Nevill Graham's pantomime company is here with Aladdin. Mlle. Lucretia ably fills the title-rôle, and she is well supported by Miss Lilian Earle as the Princess. Somewhat in the nature of a novelty is the appearance of Miss Harriett Loyd as the Widow Twankey, in which she wins success; the Emperor of Mr. Geo. Howard and the Abanazar of Mr. Wilfred Lyndon are capably played; the Astrays are amusing as Chinese policemen, and also give a clever acrobatic turn; Sinclair's Four Parisian Girls introduce some clever dancing; and Cissie and Charlie Clark give a vocal sketch "The Scarecrow." The chorus is powerful, the dresses pretty, and the scenery effective.

GATESHEAD. — KING'S THEATRE. — Lessees, United County Theatres, Ltd.; Resident-Manager and Licensee, Councillor Harold Arnold.—A very acceptable return visit is being paid this week by the Vays, who portray Life in the Slums with clever comedy and real pathos; Kirk and Saraski, described as the girl aquatic marvels, are appreciated; a most acceptable item on the bill is Albert Wyndham's presentation of Prince Arthur, in which Mr. Wyndham is ably assisted by Miss Mona Shepherd; Marice and Maurice, vocalists, are well liked; Tiny Arnold, a diminutive singer and dancer, is a favourite; Khan and Khan, in their illusionary and second-sight entertainment, are pleasing; R. K. Dunning, ventriloquist; Harry Morris, character comedian and raconteur; and the Kingscope do good turns.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Sole Lessee, Mr. F. W. Bokam; General-Manager, Mr. R. G. Elder; Acting-Manager, Mr. Ernest Dixon.—Mr. Bokam's presentation of Mr. Chas. Barnard's pantomime, Babes in the Wood, has made a hit here. During the holidays many would-be patrons were turned away, and the attendance has been gratifying. The principals have added several items since the opening night, and their topical gags meet with approval.

GLASGOW.—KING'S, LTD.—Managing-Directors, Messrs. F. W. Wyndham and Geo. T. Minshull; Business-Manager, Mr. Hugh Macfarlane.—The Dollar Princess is making records here, and the sight of "House Full" boards an hour before the curtain rises needs no further comment to emphasise its popularity.

THEATRE ROYAL, LTD. — Managing-Directors, Messrs. Fred. W. Wyndham and Geo. T. Minshull; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy O. Humphrys.—Aladdin continues on his victorious career here, and, thanks to Harry Tate, Malcolm Scott, Happy Fanny Fields, and Bessie Butt, the holiday crowds who have thronged the theatre have been treated to a surfeit of fun.

ROYALTY, LTD.—Managing-Directors, Messrs. F. W. Wyndham and Geo. T. Minshull; Acting-Manager, Mr. Ernest Wright.—The D'Oyly Carte company is now in its last week, and The Mikado has been proving their trump card, though the other operas are by no means neglected.

GRAND.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; District-Manager, Mr. B. G. Maclachlan; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. Christie Grant.—Exigencies of space made our last week's notice of Mother Goose extremely brief, but we must place on record the hit made by Miss May Moore Duprez, "the jolly Dutch girl," who now plays the part of Gretchen.

PRINCESS'S.—Proprietor, Mr. Rich Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Hugh Murdoch.—To the country crowds who flock into Glasgow at the New Year time a visit to the Princess's pantomime is regarded as an essential part of their programme, and Willie Winkie has more than fulfilled their expectations as regards the fun and enjoyment to be found there.

METROPOLE, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. Arthur Jefferson; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. Gordon Jefferson.—Mr. Fredk. Melville's new drama The Bad Girl of the Family is here. Miss Violet Crossley is an excellent Bess Moore, acting with a depth of feeling that quickly wins the sympathy of the audience. Mr. Richard A. Greene plays Lieut. Richard Marsh in fine style, speaking his lines with admirable point; Miss Daisie Cook invests Gladys Erskine with charming grace; the many villainies of Harry Gordon are convincingly shown by Mr. George Montford; Barney Gordon is made the most of by Mr. Luke Forster; and Mr. Fredk. W. Freeman sustains the part of Lord Erskine. Miss Margaret Tueskie portrays Honour Moore in powerful fashion; Mr. Tom May as Sammy Snozzle causes a good deal of legitimate mirth, being laudably aided by Miss Amy Randolph as Sally Smithers; and Mr. George Belmore gives a clever performance of Jerry Holmes.

LYCEUM.—Proprietor Mr. Rich Waldon; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. H. Oakden.—At this season of fun and frivolity there is still a public for strong domestic drama, and the fact is proved by the visit of Mr. Frank Lindo and his company in Home, Sweet Home. As the young fisherman hero Stephen Armitage Mr. Lindo gives an excellent performance, and the character of Joan is ably acted by Miss Marion Wakeford. The company otherwise is a well-balanced combination, and the play is picturesquely staged.

EMPIRE.—District-Manager, Mr. S. Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. George F. Reynolds.—Gobert Belling and his educated donkeys provide a capital holiday item here. The Smythson Comedy Company contribute a lively sketch; lots of fun is caused by the antics of Griffin and Ardel; Albert Rees is an entertainer of merit; the singing of Tom Moore is much appreciated; the Sarnthaler Sextette contribute their characteristic songs; the De Breans take well in a Japanese entertainment; Maud and Sidney Wood give a smart show; John Warren's magical display is full of good things; and Maggie May and Frank Haskell complete an attractive programme.

PAVILION, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. Samuel Lloyd; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Evan Good.—Constantine Bernardi, protean artist, heads the bill here, and gives a wonderful performance. Leo Dryden once more delights the audience with his stirring chorus songs; Bijou Russell is an established favourite here, and has to work hard accordingly; L. Charlier, French ventriloquist, &c., takes well; Chas. Ulrick, the barrel king, once more displays his ability; Florence and Rose Showell are clever duettists; Alvan Correze is a juggler of merit, and his assistant, Keith, is very funny; Alma, at the piano, and Silvo, with his musical glasses, being also included in the list of holiday attractions.

PALACE.—Proprietor, Mr. Rich Waldon; General-Manager, Mr. Harry McKelvie.—Jas. Willard and company present the sensational sketch The Ace of Hearts. The old favourites Howard and Harris are always sure of a good reception; Sibb and Sibb are responsible for a clever double trapese act; in Much Ado About Nothing Baker and De Sales are creators of merriment; Zanora and Burg in their comedy cycling act get through many clever things which tend to amuse; Jack Henri, Scotch comedian, and Allan Hanbury, patter comedian, also add to the evening's enjoyment; and Maidie Burker is a neat and dainty chorus vocalist. Stewart and Morgan are responsible for a double vocal turn, and their reception is of a flattering nature. The Palascope concludes.

COLISEUM.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; District-Manager, Mr. S. Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Burdette.—Moran and Wiser are responsible for a novel entertainment of hat throwing; the Eight Lancashire Lads pay a return visit, and are exceedingly popular; the Three Van Dammes in a comedy acrobatic sketch accomplish a lot of excellent tumbling; Harry Drew, the Welsh basso, has a capital voice, and renders his various numbers pleasingly; Harry Ray and Lillie Calden are seen to advantage in an original comedy act which is productive of mirth; Will Cornish's hand-bell selections are appreciated fully; Charles Cardow as a comedian makes a successful appearance; and Mina Denvil is a comedienne with a good voice. A wrestling tournament, including fourteen of the champion heavyweight wrestlers of the world, is proving of interest. The usual Bioscope films terminate a capital evening's enjoyment.

PANOPTICON.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. A. E. Pickard.—The star turn here this week is provided by J. H. Harris, who received quite an ovation for his contributions. Bob Campbell, one-legged comedian and dancer, is most amusing; Miss Louie Frayne displays talent as a post-horn soloist; Dio Berry, the singing shoe black, is loudly applauded; and Mattie Carson, a chic comedienne, is much admired. The Bioscope is much enjoyed by the large audiences.

GLOSSOP.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Sydney Spenser.—Mr. F. B. Woulfe's répertoire company opened on Monday with Jane Shore. Mr. Woulfe cleverly interpreted the part of Richard, Duke of Gloucester, Mr. Wm. Buson was admirable as King Edward IV., Mr. Chas. M. Julian as Anthony Yeast and Mr. F. Branigan as Sir William Catesby well sustained their parts; Miss Edith Loraine, in the title-rôle gave a clever interpretation. Lady Godiva, Robin Hood, and The Merchant of Venice are also billed.

GLOUCESTER. — PALACE. — Owners, Messrs. Pooles' Theatres, Ltd.; Director, Mr. C. W. Poole.—The Lafaille Troupe are clever acrobats; Coram, the ventriloquist, gets a fine reception for a real good act; Miss Maude Vera sings two capital songs; the Dancing Gilberts provide a smart dancing turn; Miss Lillian Lowe sings tastefully; the Lovelaces, with illustrated songs, have a good reception; and Roi Beavis, conjurer, has some novel tricks; Captain Ellis and Son, musicians, also appear; and the Palascope concludes an up to standard performance.

GOOLE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. R. Hainsworth.—An excellent programme is presented here by the Monarch Picture and Variety Co. At the top of the bill is Empress, handcuff expert, who performs some astonishing feats; The Bells, in a comedy duo, meet with a gratifying reception; Mr. Andy Hanson, comedian, is entertaining; Miss Gertie Moore is a charming soubrette; the Delmores, song and dance artists, are worthy of mention; and Annie Anderson is a capital descriptive vocalist. The Monarch pictures are novel and entertaining.

GRAVESEND.—GRAND THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LTD.—Manager, Mr. T. W. Wright.—Starred for this week is Graham, the human marionette, who pays a welcome return with his unique performance; Delaforce and Hartley, Transatlantic drolls, are very smart in patter, dancing, and singing; Phillips and Bristow, vocalists and dancers, are good; Mollie Seymour, comedienne and violinist, is accorded well-deserved recognition; Roberts, in his sporting dog act, performs some very clever feats; Rose and Bud are mirth-provoking comedy sketch artists; and Shirley and Ransome present their playlet, Jim's Pal, with skill; the Edisonograph completes.

GREAT YARMOUTH.—ROYAL AQUARIUM.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. W. Nightingale; Assistant-Manager, Mr. W. H. Nightingale.—Several new songs and dances have been introduced in Mr. Edward Graham Falcon's pantomime Cinderella, which is a big success.

HIPPODROME.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Geo. Gilbert; Manager, Mr. George Zalva.—The Four Royal Scots appear with great success in a musical and vocal novelty act; Barney Vox is a first-rate ventriloquist; Sid Bedford and Co. are popular with their sketch The Second Mrs. Chester; Arthur Holland's song-scenes are well received; Syd. Crosley is a very funny comedian; and Bert Beecham scores with his songs.

GREENOCK.—KING'S THEATRE.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. A. B. and J. J. Wright.—For the holiday week Mr. Charles Constant's company is attracting full and delighted houses with Florodora. Mr. Arthur Lenville as Tweedlepunch has a part that suits him admirably; Mr. Robert Hine as Frank Abercoed sings and acts in finished style; the part of Captain Arthur is exceedingly well handled by Mr. Eric Deane; and Mr. Edward Chester makes the most of his opportunities as Mr. Gilfain; Miss Daisy Lake as Dolores contributes a charming portrayal; Miss Fannie Holmshaw essayed the rôle of Lady Holyrood effectively; and great praise is also due to Miss Josephine Ellis for her speciality dances.

HIPPODROME.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. L. Skivington.—The attractive programme provided here for the holiday week is headed by Drum and Major, whose entertaining sketch keeps the audience in a merry mood; Johnson and Devere accomplish several clever feats on cycles; Winona and King, rifle experts, contribute a capital turn; the Hargreaves Trio appear with success in a comedy act, entitled Three of the Best; the Brownlows excel as dancers; Cavalli is a smart ventriloquist; and Gertie Moore, comedienne, does well.

GRIMSBY.—PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. H. Curry; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. W. North.—Mr. Edward Compton has received a hearty welcome on his return here. He is presenting four from his répertoire of celebrated comedies. The week opened with Davy Garrick, Mr. Compton portraying the gallant Davy with as much charm and freshness as ever; Miss Kathleen Leigh acted with winning grace as Violet Gresham; Mr. H. Crocker represented Alderman Gresham with suitable dignity; Mr. Frank Royde showed the necessary dash and abandon as the Hon. Tom Tallyhaut; Mr. Phillip Gordon as Rumbelow, Mr. J. W. Austin as Sowerberry, and Mr. C. Marquand as Simkins gave excellent studies of these droll characters; while Miss Mary Hassell as Mrs. Rumbelow and Miss Lorraine Stevens as Selina Sowerberry also thoroughly realised the quaintness of the parts.

THE PALACE.—General-Manager, Mr. F. Verner Walford; Assistant-Manager, Mr. H. S. Surfleet.—Miss Juliette's sea lions give a performance of exceptional interest, for these strange Arctic animals accomplish feats of jugglery that would be a credit to human performers; the New York Nippers gave a bright speciality, which includes singing and dancing, and their dancing is especially smart; the Three Askarnos are a trio of accomplished acrobats both in English and Arabian styles; Ernesto is a versatile artist skilled in jugglery, equilibrism, and music; Vessey and O'Connor are a couple of talented lady musicians; Kydd and Kydd are comedians with amusing cross patter; and Nellie Martell is a pleasing chorus song singer.

GUERNSEY.—ST. JULIAN'S THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. Ed. Marris; Acting-Manager, Mr. Stanley Hope.—Pete is being admirably interpreted here by Messrs. Smith and Carpenter's company. Mr. Austin Milroy plays the title-rôle with sincerity and earnestness; Mr. Alfred Gray is a consistently good Philip; Mr. J. E. Fletcher an admirable Ross; Mr. Frank Stone is good as the severe Cæsar; and Mr. James Williams is the Doctor; Miss Amy Vennimore is an ideal Grannie; Miss Maie Duncan a sprightly Anne; and Miss V. Malcolm Barnett contributes a clever conception of Kate Cregeen.

HALIFAX.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling.—Mr. James Welch's company is here with When Knights Were Bold. Mr. H. L. Bruce plays Sir Guy De Vere very cleverly; Mr. Colin Johnston's Rev. Peter Pottlebury is worthy of high praise; Mr. C. Lloyd (Isaac Isaacson), Miss I. Glynne (Miss Isaacson), Mr. W. M. Lynton (Whittle), Mr. W. Lockhart (Barker), Miss E. Oliphant (Lady Millicent), Miss M. Carton (Lady Marjorie), Miss Bremba (Kate Pottlebury), and Miss E. Lascelles (Lady Rowena) are all good. Miss Mabel Younge's Mrs. Waldegrave is a noteworthy portrayal.

PALACE AND HIPPODROME, LTD.—Managing Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. T. H. Lambert.—The Stein-Esthor Trio give a marvellous exhibition of hand-jumping and hand-balancing here, and win unstinted applause; Bromley and Fontein, musical entertainers, do a much-appreciated turn; Cissie Lupino is a clever little dancer; the Fix X Rays, acrobats, Reg. Ewen, comedian, Dan Ellis and George Campbell, comedians and dancers, Scener and Fridkin's Russian troupe of singers and dances, are all good.

GRAND THEATRE, LTD.—Managing Director, Mr. Wm. Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Resident-Manager, Mr. S. Winks. — Messrs. Somers and Saunders' pantomime, Babes in the Wood, is here. An evenly-balanced cast includes Miss O. Astor (Robin Hood), Miss Lulu Lord (Maid Marion), Sisters Mawdsley (Bertie and Cissie—the Babes), Mr. M. Boyle (Sir Scoun-de-Rel), Denby and Dent (Tim and Willie), and Mr. A. McAllister (Evalean).

VICTORIA HALL.—Gala and Norris' company is at this hall with Fascinating Peggy. Mr. Frank Gala and Miss May Norris undertake two of the principal parts and introduce a new and clever dance.

HANLEY. — ROYAL. — Proprietors, Hanley Theatres and Circus Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. G. Elphinstone.—Messrs. Dottridge and Longden's pantomime Robinson Crusoe commenced its second week with greater success than ever. Miss Maud Mortimer, the greatest of all pantomime favourites with the Potteries, continues her merry career as Crusoe, and every appearance evokes enthusiastic applause. Her vocal numbers are excellently rendered, and her dresses are perfect pictures. Miss Yolande Noble as Polly Perkins is charming in figure and dress. She plays and sings delightfully. Mr. Arnold Richardson as Billy continues to score with his quaint style. He is a born comedian, with a great future. Mr. C. Young Fixott is good as Mrs. Crusoe; Mr. Charles Heslop is a droll Will Atkins; Mr. H. Flockton Foster as Captain Cutter is a huge success; Mr. Oswald Battye as Friday is very clever; Miss Ray Morgan is a charming dusky Queen; and Messrs. Elton and Elma are great favourites.

GRAND.—Proprietors, Hanley Theatres and Circus Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. G. Elphinstone; Manager, Mr. Arthur Rand.—A better programme than the one submitted this week it would be difficult to find. Mlle. Bella Ophini, a graceful gymnast, is decidedly clever; Bertha de Pas, comedienne and dancer, is charming; Will Shrillo, whistler, is well received; Barton and Ashley in Adam the Second are the hit of the show, being closely followed by the Brothers Spessel and Mac in a unique comedy acrobatic act. The Great Northern Troupe of dancers are warmly applauded; Alf. W. Loyal's dogs show wonderful training; the De Lolme Juveniles are most pleasing; and the picture A Dreadful Darling Boy is funny.

HARROGATE.—GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. Peacock; Acting-Manager, Mr. Eric Fielding-Smith.—Mr. George Brydon-Phillips is no stranger here, and his Sinbad, the Sailor, is being presented here. Miss Hettie Lee, a vivacious principal boy, has good support from Miss Constance Lait as the girl; Miss Amy Maple as Zoe and her partner Mr. Fred Maple as Hindbad are the life and soul of the show; Mr. Harry Rose is a hard worker as Mrs. Sinbad; Messrs. Morrin and Cardiff are good dancers; and Miss Nella Dene, the principal dancer, is one of the features of the pantomime. The chorus is good, and the large orchestra is ably conducted by Mr. Sydney Davidson.

HASTINGS.—GAIETY THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. H. W. Rowland; Resident-Manager, Mr. Chas. E. Scutt.—Messrs. Murray, King, and Clark's company in Dick Whittington; or, The Faithful Cat and the Demon Rat, opened a week's visit here on Monday, and afforded every satisfaction to a well-filled house. Miss Gertrude Gilliam was alert and sprightly as Dick, her songs being well rendered; Alice was excellently impersonated by Miss Norah Dwyer, and both ladies were quickly on the best of terms with their audience. Mr. Murray King made some capital fun as Jack, and was assisted in the auditorium in a catch song by Mr. F. Maxwell Stuart, the producer of the pantomime. Other good comedians were found in the Phyllis of Mr. Tom Walls, the Captain Pott of Mr. Herbert Walton, and the Peter Pawn of Mr. Jamie Dallas, the latter contributing a quick-step dance which evoked applause. Mr. Ardene Linden was well made up as Fitzwarren, and Miss Adele Levey was of good appearance as the Emperor. The Cat was well presented by Mr. T. R. Pinaird, jun., and the Demon Rat by Mr. Douglas Cox, who also stage-managed. Miss Edith Jeffries made a graceful and handsome Fairy; Lottie Stone's Troupe of dancers were very effective in their pas de quartre; the music was well rendered by an augmented orchestra, directed by Mr. Michael Dwyer; and a large chorus sang with power and effect. The scenery is painted by Mr. F. L. Schmitz, the Palace scene, with its handsomely dressed ladies of the Court, being very brilliant, as also was Old London, wherein Sir Richard makes a triumphal entry on horseback.

PIER PAVILION.—General-Manager, Mr. J. D. Hunter.—Jack and the Beanstalk is running its course merrily enough to very large audiences. The village scenes are charmingly artistic. Mr. Hunter is a most diverting Dame Trot, and his duet with Mr. Mat. Melrose, the wicked Squire, is delightfully comic. Pleasing songs and duets are rendered by the Misses Lallah Melrose, Vera Dudley, and Rene Ashley. Mr. Fred Beck as Johnnie Stout also sings with much ease and fluency. The light and graceful dancing of the Sisters Edwards and Mr. Phil Inglis as Tommy Green is thoroughly appreciated. Mr. J. E. Cowell as the Giant is amusingly conspicuous.

HIPPODROME.—Lessee, Mr Harry Boyd; General-Manager, Mr. Fred Ewing.—Excellent pictures are shown here. Harry Estelle is a good descriptive vocalist; clever step-dancing is accomplished by Willet and Rea; and Jones and Estelle harmonise effectively in operatic and character songs.

HORWICH.—PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Chas. Driver.—Mr. G. Carlton Wallace's company in The Lancashire Lad forms the New Year's attraction here. Mr. Hy. Douglas in the title-rôle plays in manly style; Mr. Ernest Vaughan submits a grand impersonation of Max Carlton, the dishonest mill proprietor; Mr. Wilton Reed as Jem Wincote does full justice to the part; Mr. Rob Anderson as John Willie Wardle, the village carpenter, creates roars of laughter; and Mr. George Watson is a faithful Tum-o'-the-Swilltub, the village sponge. Miss Madge Douglas is a winsome Jessie; Miss Muriel Inglis's Lorna Wincote is an artistic performance; Miss L. Rignold as Jane Alice is a typical Lancashire mill girl; Miss Molly Shine as Flossie Mayfair dances herself into favour; and Miss Nellie V. Warden is a capital example of the "gradely" Lancashire housewife, her Mother Wardle being highly appreciated.

HUDDERSFIELD.—HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. William Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Resident-Manager, Mr. N. M. Robinson.—Condensed pantomime is being played twice nightly during this week. The company appearing is Mr. James Kiddie's, and the particular story chosen for representation is The Forty Thieves. Included in the cast are Miss Rose Parecezer, as the Captain of the Forty, Miss Elsie Steadman, "a bit of a tartar," as Ganem, and Miss Lyle Jeffries, a sweet singing Morgiana. The comedians are Messrs. Mark Merry, Percy Curry, Arthur Behan, and Fame and Fortune. The ubiquitous donkey is humorously represented by Mr. Harry Walker. The music is bright and up to date, the scenery appropriate, and the dresses charming.

PALACE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Herbert Garside.—An excellent variety company comprises Carter Livesey, Leo Minster, and Miss Lilian Rosebery, in their funny burlesque The Would-be Actors; Fritz Kornau, a mellifluous whistler; Ian Colquhoun, baritone vocalist; Carney Bros., character duettists; Geo. D'Albert, a greatly popular light comedian; Miss Eileen Douglas, comedienne; Miss Josephine Crooke, with pleasing illustrated songs; and Leo Tell, a mimic of various sounds and a comedian of originality; and the Palace pictures.

HULL.—GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Morton's, Ltd.; Mr. W. F. Morton, Manager.—The pantomime has now settled down into full swing, and is attracting good business. The corps of comedians is a strong one, Mr. Harry Rich as Mother Goose forming the head, his catchy choruses being very acceptable to the audience. Miss Lola Patey is Gretchen and continues to carry the house with her; Miss Ethel Hall, the principal boy, is now more at home in her rôle, and therefore more effective; and the beautiful voice of Miss Violet Romaine is one of the features of this show. The dances are well rendered.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Morton's, Ltd.; Mr. Geo. Morton, Manager.—The Love of the Princess is fetching crowds to the Alexandra. Mr. Frank Hawes plays the heroic Prince with great distinction; Miss Dorothy Haigh finds full play for her powers as the loving woman; in proper tones Mr. John Burn realises the part of King Joseph; Miss Josephine Lee is a courageous Constantia; and Miss Maud Steeple is a pleasant Lady Irene. Mr. John Worth is an effective Lieut. Zaroff, while Mr. Rich. Vane is excellent as Count Nicholas Ducillo.

HYDE. — EMPIRE AND THEATRE ROYAL. — Lessees, Central Theatres and Franco-British Picture Co.; Managing-Director and Licensee, Mr. W. Turner; Resident-Manager, Mr. Ernest Percival.—House full at early doors was the reception given to Aladdin on Monday. Miss May Fayre's handsome presence and tunefully-rendered songs make the title-part very popular; as the Princess, Miss Margaret Geddess is piquant and attractive; Mr. Reg Bolton as Abanazar tells funny stories with point and effect; Mr. Matt Kilduff is a humorous Widow Twankey. The specialities are Abadaroffs, pre-historic acrobats; and the Greig dancers. The scenery and costumes make fine display.

INVERNESS.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr. Burgess.—For the first three nights this week we had The Gay Gordons. Angus Graeme was very well played by Mr. Stafford Dickens; Mr. Sidney Burt gave a good account of himself as Nervy Nat, as also did Mr. Ernest Pierce as his son Edmund; Peggy Quainton as played by Miss May Yates was admirable, and she had to respond to repeated encores; Miss Ruby Louis took the part of Victoria Siddons capitally; and the staging was good. For the remainder of the week Mr. Tom Macfarlane's company with Raffles is billed.

IPSWICH.—LYCEUM THEATRE.—The Arcadians is delighting large audiences. Mr. Chas. A. Stephenson in the dual part of James Smith and Simplicitas is excruciatingly funny, as also is Mr. Alfred Biers as Peter Doody; Mr. Arthur S. Macdonald is a lively Jack Meadows; and Mr. Cyril Lane as Bobby, Mr. Wallace G. Court as Sir George Paddock, Mr. H. Aylesbury as Percy Marsh, Mr. Arthur Mann as Reggie, Mr. T. R. Norbury as Sir Thos. Ryan, and Mr. Frank Lester as Desmond do well; and Mr. Horace Nye acts as Father Time. Miss Gertrude Aylward, in the part of Mrs. Smith, scores a great success; Lady Barclay is played by Miss Dorothy Tancredi, and Lucy Selwyn by Miss Marguerite Mackenzie; Eileen Cavanagh is charmingly enacted by Miss Gladys May. Of the Arcadians, Miss Muriel Dance is Crysea, Miss Sybil Tancredi is Sombra, Mr. John Montague is Astrophie, Mr. A. Tregonwill is Strephon, and Mr. R. Lampeirce is Damoetas. The solo singing throughout is of a high order, and the chorus is well trained. The dresses and scenery are superb.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. E. H. Bostock.—Mr. Jack Haddon's company in the pantomime Babes in the Wood, is drawing large audiences. Miss Marie Brayman possesses a fine voice, and as Robin Hood makes a charming principal boy; Maid Marian, by Miss Mabel Osborne, is also a favourite; Noddy Tithe and Soppy Sam are the two ruffians, the two Babes are Miss Marie May and Miss Elsie May; Baron Skeemalot, by Mr. Harry Elliston, and Euphemia Gadabout by Mr. Victor Wallace are amusing. The John Lloyd Quartette appear as foresters, and their singing is delightful; Mme. Teresa's troupe of singers and dancers, the Eight Little Pinkies, are also very clever and great favourites. The smaller parts are capably filled. The scenery and dresses are excellent.

JERSEY.—OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee, Mr. Edward Marris; Acting-Manager, Mr. Stanley Hope.—Mr. A. Clifton Alderson's company opened here on New Year's Eve with East Lynne. On Monday night they gave Home Sweet Home. Mr. A. Clifton Alderson's rôle of Stephen Armitage suited him admirably; Mr. Frank Dalton was good as David Armitage; Dorothy Davis as Dora acted cleverly; Mr. Robert Faulkner played Lucas Lysle; Miss Winifred Love as Joan won tearful sympathy; Mr. A. W Norman scored a success as the Duke; and the minor parts were in good hands. During the week The Coal King and The Ticket-of-Leave Man were to be staged.

KEIGHLEY.—HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. T. Barrasford, jun.—Will Netta's singing jockeys prove popular; Briff, Braff, and Broff provide an exceedingly clever turn; Helen Marlyn uses her well-trained voice in an artistic manner; Lillie Farrar has a charming song-scena Bubbles; Maude Elliston and company appear to advantage in a farcical production Dobson's Day Off; Tom Garland is a capable ventriloquist; Lynn and Daring score in a musical and vocal scena; Bert Anderson, conjurer and illusionist, succeeds in mystifying the audience, and animated pictures complete.

KIDDERMINSTER.—NEW OPERA HOUSE.—Licensee and Managing-Director, Mr. Jas. P. Moore; Acting-Manager, Mr. R. C. Gudgeon.—For the first three nights of the week Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Hinton and Travis Green produced The Fatal Marriage. As Zaco Mr. Jerrold Heather acted artistically; Miss Hilda Shirley as Myra gives able support; Messrs. Colin Heather and G. Mortimer Hancock are respectively good as Wilfred Grey and Colonel Crichton; Miss Amy Maitland is pleasing as Dolly Dimple. The piece is well staged. For Thursday, Friday, and Saturday Mr. Percy Tyler's company is billed in A Message from Mars.

KING'S LYNN.—HIPPODROME.—NEW ROYAL THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. R. Pareezer; Resident-Manager, Mr. Reginald Pareezer.—For three nights this week Mr. G. A. Street's variety company has shown to good houses. Mr. Street was excellent in his sensational spectacle, Military Commanders of the World; La Sylphe was graceful in her kaleidoscopic dances; Charles Bradford was a great favourite with his songs; Neddy Vokes showed much cleverness in his musical act; and La Vie posed exquisitely in a living statuary exhibition.

LEAMINGTON. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Lessees, Messrs. Dottridge and Longden; Resident-Manager, Mr. Chas. H. Longden; Assistant-Manager, Mr. John Halifax.—During the earlier part of the week Mr. Ian Robertson's company appeared here in The Passing of the Third Floor Back. Mr. Ian Robertson played the part of A Passer-by with quiet dignity and gentleness. He was ably supported by Miss Jeannie Thomas and Miss Helena Parsons, whose Mrs. Sharp and Stasia respectively were clever studies. Other performances worthy of special commendation were the Vivian of Miss Barbara Everest and the Joey Wright of Mr. W. C. Billington. The piece was preceded by Mr. Ian Robertson's one-act play Come Here, in which Miss Barbara Everest, Mr. P. Gedge Twyman, and Mr. Wilson Blake appeared with success. For the latter part of the week Mr. Keith G. Kennett's company was announced in Under the Greenwood Tree.

LEEDS.—THE EMPIRE.—District-Manager, Mr. T. G. Morton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Galley.—Odette Valery gains applause in some classical dances; Tom Child's fine voice is heard to advantage in "Come into the Garden, Maud" and "I was dreaming"; Miss Lottie Lennox introduces some new songs which are popular; and a clever sketch, The Bo'sun's Mate is highly appreciated; the McConnell Trio are favourites; and George Antill, the Athlones, Marrie Pera, and Frank Le Dent complete a capital company.

BARRASFORD'S HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. Harry Dunford.—Minola Hurst and her Miniature Marvels, Fields and Lewis, Lily Eyton, Alfred Meadies, the Resas, Sterling and Cashem, Baby Vi Davis, Geo. Phillips, and Everhart (hoop manipulator) are appearing here.

THE CITY VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr. Sam Jones.—Mr. and Mrs. Royston Dene, the Wedburns, Mars Trio, Jimmy Shields, Alice Blandford, and Harry Letter are all favourites here.

THE QUEEN'S.—General-Manager, Mr. Johnny Whiteman; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Bush.—The Yellow Fang, an exciting sketch of an opium den, is the principal attraction here. L. W. Harris, Gwennie Morgan, Leolin, Crown Trio, Lyons and Cullum, and the Zanfrellas complete.

LEICESTER.—ROYAL OPERA HOUSE.—General Business-Manager, Mr. Walter P. Wright.—Messrs. Thos. McKenzie and C. St. John Denton's pantomime of Sinbad the Sailor continues its merry career, and Miss Jessie Wilton, Miss Cindy Asche, Miss Sissie Brand, Miss Madeline Rossiter, Miss Marie Leigh, Mr. Will Johnson, Mr. Sydney James, and Messrs. Walton and Lester

This week a lot of new business has been introduced by the comedians, who are unflagging in their efforts to keep the ball of fun rolling. In this particular Yost and Yost, Tom Veronique, and Barry Bond are to be singled out for the hard work they do, and for the clever style they render their songs and concerted numbers. We cannot accord too much eulogium to Miss Daisy Silcott as the Prince and Miss Lily Pearl as Cinderella, the embodiments being of a most delightful and charming character. Miss Silcott also introduces a new song, "I must go home tonight," with success, as does also Miss Lily Pearl score with a new one entitled "Mary took the calves to the show." Miss Annie Craig gives the greatest satisfaction both in her acting and singing as Dandini; and Miss Daisy Rhyl as the good fairy Sunshine is all that can be desired. Mr. David Donaldson, who is possessed of a good voice, fulfils the part of the evil genius, Talicio, as it should be done; Miss Iris Ray is a capital Phyllis; Lew Towers is good as Tilario, and also renders the light comedy song "You can't do as you like with the girls" in excellent style. Some new dances are also cleverly given by the Kitina Dancing Girls, their clog dancing being especially noteworthy. We should not omit to mention the pretty scene in which Cinderella drives away in her gorgeous electrical carriage.

LEITH.—New Gaiety Theatre.—Licensee and Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. John Darlison.—Messrs. Fred J. Little and Fred Darcy's Dick Whittington pantomime continues its phenomenally successful run, the efforts of all concerned in the production being received with every mark of favour. The comedians quickly become popular, the songs of Mr. Sydney T. Russell as Idle Jack and the topical ditty of Mr. Jack McKenzie in the Dame part being conspicuously successful. Miss Helene Mohr and Miss Nina Carlton are most pleasing in the rôles of principal girl and boy; the antics of the Cat (Mr. James Stratton) are cleverly studied; and the interlude of "The Enchanted Tree," in which Mr. John Darlison (its author) appears with twenty little Leith lassies, forms a charming scena very daintily produced. It is one of the happiest of Mr. Darlison's many musical sketches of a kindred description.

LIVERPOOL.—Royal Court Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur Lawrence.—The pantomime Red Riding Hood is now in full swing and going along with great smoothness, while business is very satisfactory.

Shakespeare Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wentworth Croke; Manager and Secretary, Mr. John Gaffney.—In consequence of the large amount of humour contained in the pantomime Dick Whittington and his Cat, the production is enjoying increasing patronage, and success is assured Drew and Alders are well to the fore with their eccentricities, and the funny passages between the Emperor, well played by Mr. Eric Campbell, and Mr. Tom Foy enrich matters very much. Mr. Fred Whittaker's natural cat is generally commented on.

Rotunda Theatre.—Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery.—Mr. Edwin C. Jazon's Dick Whittington pantomime is here for a second week, and doing well.

Star Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Harris Fineberg.—The attraction here this week is The Christian, played by a capable company, sent by Mr. Wentworth Croke. Mr. Henry Wolston undertakes the rôle of John Storm with fine dramatic effect; the Glory Quayle of Miss Gladys Purnell reflects credit upon that artist; Mr. Wilfred Noy makes an excellent Horatio Drake; Mr. Fred Morgan handles the part of Lord Robert Ure with care and discretion; a well-presented Father Lamplugh comes from Mr. John Hastings Batson; and included among other able artists are Messrs. Charles E. Dering (Archdeacon Wealthy), Royce Milton (Lord Storm), Arthur E. Maskell (Parson Quayle), Miss Gertrude Maxwell (Lady Ure), and Miss Florence Harland (Liza).

Kelly's Theatre.—Lessee, Mr. W. W. Kelly; Acting-Manager, Mr. Reginald Grant.—A Country Girl is here for a second week, and doing satisfactory business.

Empire.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Manners.—Heading the programme here this week is the always popular Ruth Vincent, who enjoys cordial receptions for her taking songs; Spry and Monti are as diverting as ever; the Kathleen O'Hanlon Trio go through a unique musical, vocal, and dancing scena, Romps in a Drawing-room; Will H. Fox pleases greatly with his humorous work at the piano; Mlle. Liane D'Eve delights everybody with her smart transformations and songs; Harry Anderson has some funny ditties and patter; Astronomy is given by W. Fullbrook and Co.; the Dayton Family present a clever risley performance; and Monie Mine earns considerable popularity for her songs and dances, which are rendered in good style.

Lyric.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Henry C. Arnold.—Jack and the Beanstalk remains another week.

Royal Hippodrome. — Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford; Resident-Manager, Mr. Walter Hassan.—Top of the bill here this week is the smart musical fantasy Concordia, given by Percy Honri and company; Dale and O'Malley cause their audience to rock with laughter, their songs and sayings being particularly rich; Philip Braham's company has an excellent funny sketch, entitled March Hares; some smart comedy juggling comes from the Gascoignes; Diana Hope and company have a neat sketch, The Altar of Duty, which is much appreciated; the Primrose Quartette are given a most hearty welcome for their capable vocal harmony in a Welsh scena; Lena Wylie renders several soprano songs in artistic style; and George Hall, light comedian and whistler, also appears.

Royal Palace of Varieties.—Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank O'Toole.—The Heart of a Hero is presented here this week by the stock dramatic company, the principal parts being in the hands of Messrs. Harry Tresham (Jim Resdale), R. Seath Innes, Sydney Grant (Wilfred Marl), Tom H. Solly (Timothy), Miss Lilian Radbourne (Nell Resdale), Mis Gertrude Gilman (Susie Slack), and Miss Gertrude Entwistle (May Rider). Mr. Anthony Brown's Bioscope shows some capital films.

Olympia.—District-Manager, Mr. Horace Cole; Acting-Manager, Mr. Ernest Wighton.—The Will o' the Wisps are a company of excellent vaudeville entertainers, their show of music, melody, and dancing affording a deal of satisfaction; the popular comedian, W. J. Churchill, is as good as ever, and keeps his audience in the best of humours with his diverting wheezes; Lily Palmer shows herself a pleasing comedienne; Fred Keeton provokes much laughter with his songs and jokes; Staig's Steeplejacks are daring cyclists; Edie Gray and boys provide a neat turn as vocalists and dancers; To-to, the mysterious musician, causes people to wonder; Taylor Granville and company go through a smart trifle, The Hold Up; and Frank Hartley, for a boy, shows much skill as a juggler.

Pavilion.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Manager, Mr. George F. Slatter.—John Tiller's Jack and Jill pantomime remains another six nights, splendid business being done.

Reynolds's Exhibition.—At this old-established and popular resort crowds attend daily to witness the fine collection of figures and other objects of interest shown. The annual marionette pantomime is now in full swing under the title of Blue Beard, Mr. Harry Jennion's cleverly manipulated puppets being a source of much amusement, especially for the youngsters.

LUTON.—Grand Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. E. Graham Falcon; Resident-Manager, Mr. Louis J. Beard.—Mr. Frederick Mouillot's principal company is this week presenting A Message From Mars to good houses. Mr. Aidan Lovett as Horace Parker and Mr. Geo. P. Poison as the Messenger do full justice to their respective parts, and the minor rôles are in capable hands.

MAESTEG. — Town Hall Theatre.—Lessees, Poole's Theatres Co., Ltd.; Manager, Mr. G. F. Knowles.—Messrs. Travis Green and Arthur Hinton's pantomime, Cinderella, commenced a week's engagement on Monday before a full house. Miss Leila Zillwood makes a dashing and smart Prince Charming; as Cinderella Miss Dela Fredericks is dainty and winsome; Dandini is played in clever style by Miss Lottie Mellor; Miss Gertie Russel is good as Fairy Sunshine; the Ugly Sisters are humorously played by Mr. Will Webb and Mr. Tod Squires, who keep the audience in a continual roar of laughter; Mr. Carl Fredericks is excellent as the Baron; Mr. Gus Granville as Blustering Jim and Mr. Frank Shepherd as Nervous Joe do exceedingly well their share of the comic business; the May Quartette execute some pretty dances. Specialities are given by Mr. P. J. Dwiney, champion globe walker; Len Lydette, novelty instrumentalist; Wyman, trick roller skater; Mlle. Cordelia, transformation dancer; Carl Bradericke, illusionist; and La Belle Mascot, wire walker.

MANCHESTER.—Metropole Theatre.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Dry.—Messrs. Hallatt and Howard's company in the well-known military play, Her Love Against the World, are appearing here twice nightly. The piece is always well received, and once again the characters are all in good hands. Especially good are Mr. Fred Emery as Eric, Miss Elsie Roberts, Mr. Oswald Cray as Ulric, and Miss Rossie St. John as Lionel. Plenty of humour enlivens the action, and the play is very well put on.

Royal Osborne Theatre. — Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Mason.—An entertaining version of Little Cinderella is put on here this week by Mr. James Kiddie. All the usual appurtenances of pantomime are requisitioned for effect, including an especially fine silver carriage, illuminated by electric light: also a powerful chorus and ballet, and an augmented orchestra; while the pantomime itself is full of wholesome fun and brightened by merriment and scenic beauty. Miss Kitty Avey as Cinderella and Miss Edie May as the Prince agreeably sustain the principal story parts; while Miss Lily Ennis as Dandini plays well; and comic renderings of the two Ugly Sisters are given by Mr. Harry Bliss and Mr. W. G. Wesley. Mr. Leslie Hawkins adds fun as the Baron, and Miss Fanny Douglas is a nice Fairy Sunbeam.

Grand Junction Theatre.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Brearley.—Messrs. Paumier and Howard's company are here this week in the popular romantic play, The Princess and the Beggar Maid, which drew a very good house on Monday. Mr. Howard's plays are always welcome here, and especially enjoyed on this occasion are the interpretations of Mr. Ernest H. G. Cox as Prince Olaf, Mr. Victor Rae as Michael, his brother, and Miss Ethel Bracewell as the Princess of Illyria. Clever work is added by Miss Stella Campbell as Camiola, Mr. Alfred Goddard as the Prince of Sylvania, Mr. W. R. James as Nathan, the dumb servant, and Mr. Herbert Burton as Captain Hector; while capital humour is submitted by Mr. J. H. Vyvyan and Miss Mona Hall.

Queen's Park Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. W. Meek.—An attractive programme here is topped by the clever Billy Williams, whose humour is much enjoyed. Smart and entertaining turns are added by Harry Blake, the popular comedian; Ford and Hanson, the musical millionaires; Les Supriskis, a marvellous Continental lady gymnastic act; the Days, telepathic wonders; Baby Myrtle Grove, vocalist and dancer; and Monty Walker, comedian.

Empire.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Hall.—A very pleasing top turn here this week is that supplied by Olga Petronowa and her All-British Band, who play fine selections in first-class style; while an interesting feature of the programme is 1643, an episode of the Great Rebellion, played in capital fashion by F. Stuart Whyte's company. Enjoyable items are added by Nina Wood, at the piano; Ted E. Box, comedian; Park's clever Eton Boys and Girton Girls; the Rohda Brothers, fine athletes; the Cumberlands, marvellous cyclists; Harry Grey, the Australian comedian; and Olive Armidale, a smart soubrette.

Hippodrome.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Manager, Mr. Nelson Barry.—The Motor Chase continues to be a great attraction at this popular house. Willette Whittaker, assisted by F. Wilbur-Hill, is delightful in an artistic vocal and instrumental act; Jack Smiles, who reminds one of Tom Murray, is a capital comedian and an exceptionally clever step-dancer; Mattie Lund, soprano, sings well; Signor and Mme. Borelli score a big success, especially with their "cat" duet; Braatz's dogs are uncommonly well trained; Florence is a clever lady mimic; and the Whitbys, with their magic blackboard, give a very novel and entertaining act. The Bioscope pictures are excellent.

Tivoli.—Managing-Director, Mr. Charles A. Wilkes; Manager, Mr. Arthur B. Wilkes.—Annie Hughes and Lawrence Brough are exceedingly good here this week in a well-acted item, Love in a Railway Train, and are well received; the Serenaders, Italian operatic quartette, are fine singers, and are greatly appreciated; George Shurley, comedian, scores with smart dancing; the Frohmans give an enjoyable musical act; Ada Marion, a charming juvenile character vocalist, sings nicely; Hilda Ray, comedienne, does well; Florence Leonard, soprano, has a good voice; Duncan and Brasque are capital in My Lancashire Wife; and a first-rate series of pictures complete.

King's Theatre, Longsight.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. James R. Trippett.—A capital holiday programme here is headed by George Mozart, the popular burlesque comedian; other strong items being W. Ellis and company in The Sleepwalker; and the well-known Stavordale Quintet, in their banjo specialities. These attractions are ably supplemented by the Sages, comedy artists; Tod Lowen, the funny fellow; the Rosses, comedians and dancers; and Sydney Brandon, in excerpts from Dickens.

Hulme Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. E. Owen.—The Six Brothers Luck top the bill here this week, and are highly successful in their sketch H.M.S. Perhaps, causing roars of laughter; the Marriotts give a most bewildering second-sight performance; the Phœnix Trio are good singers and sand dancers; Lieut. Chard's dog circus is an excellent show; Amie Jumel is a clever dancer and instrumentalist; Johnson and Bert are exceedingly funny in their act, A Queer Customer; and George Robinson, character comedian, is capital. The 10.40 Express, shown on the Bioscope, is an exciting film.

MARGATE.—Hippodrome.—Managing-Directors, Messrs. Fredk. Mouillot and W. de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. Myall.—Charles Godfrey's company, which includes Miss Crissie Francess, Miss Josie Beltram, and Mr. Martin Sands, in the new sketch The Boy Scout, has been received with great favour; Clivetto, the dancing juggler and equilibrist, also gives a good turn; and Angela Ward, comedienne and singer of chorus songs, has made herself popular; the Arntes, coloured vocalists, quaintly described as the North Carolina Sunbeams, have given an acceptable song and dance entertainment; the Hulls, in their musical comedy act have amused; and Nellie Shand, comedienne and dancer, and Harry Lawson, comedian and dancer, have also contributed bright turns to the evening's programme. Good Boy Hechter and Seal Hunting are excellent animated pictures.

MERTHYR TYDFIL.—Theatre Royal.—Sole Lessees, The South Wales Entertainments, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Albert Jackson.—The Fatal Wedding is capitally presented by Mr. Percy Williams' company. As Howard Wilson Mr. Hugh Montgomery succeeds admirably; Miss Ethel Kay plays naturally and sympathetically as Mabel Wilson; as Cora Williams Miss Leah Marlborough acts in a forcible and convincing style; Mr. Herbert Humber as Robert Curtis acquits himself creditably; Miss Beatrice Hudson as Bridget, and Mr. Harry M. Vernon as Toto are responsible for much of the comedy of the play; Miss Rosie Sanders plays charmingly as Jessie. The Children's Scene in Act 3 gains great applause.

METHIL.—Gaiety Theatre.—Proprietors, The Methil Theatre Co., Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. John C. Burnett.—The New Year attraction is Mr. Henry Swinerd's company in Dare-Devil Dorothy. In the title-rôle Miss Gertrude de Lacy is exceedingly good, her singing being much appreciated; Miss Kathleen Stewart as Ruth Montrose also sings well, and acts with feeling; Mr. George A. Fox as Capt. Fielding is effective; Mr. Robert Gilbert ably depicts the scheming Captain Dudley; Miss Nellie Harcourt as Judith is well placed, her sabot dance being a distinct feature; Misses Lillie and Iris Elvido dance gracefully; Mr. Harry Ugar as Silas Crumn keeps the audience in fits of laughter with his songs and patter. A crowded house gave the piece a good reception.

MEXBOROUGH.—Prince of Wales's Theatre.—Manager, Mr. W. H. Melton.—Miss Ida Millais and company are this week presenting No Man's Land. Mr. Henry Herne presents a manly figure as Harry Oaklands; the treacherous Silas Moore is effectively portrayed by Mr Ernest Wingfield; Mat Marsden is finely played by Mr. Villiers Stanley; Mr. Wm. Manning skilfully fills the dual rôle of Gilbert and Norman Bathurst; Dr. Buxton (Mr. Richard Webb) and Solomon Jacobs (Mr. W. A. Warren), play their respective parts exceedingly well; Miss Ida Millais is graceful and sympathetic as Mary Bathurst; Miss Lizzie Lennon is an entertaining Mrs. Poodle; and Miss Kitty Rose does well as Bessie.

MIDDLESBROUGH.—Opera House.—Lessee, Mr. J. C. Imeson; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. K. Chatto.—The pantomime of Jack and Jill is running smoothly and successfully.

Theatre Royal.—Proprietor, Mr. J. C. Imeson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Geo. Imeson.—Messrs. Mathew H. Glenville and Fred Osmonde's company is playing For Wife and Kingdom to appreciative audiences. Miss Lydia Audre as the Grand Duchess Marie of Gotzburg is very pleasing; Mr. Reginald T. Fox gives every satisfaction in the part of General Von Nestolde; and as Captain Maximilian Lubeck Mr. Mathew H. Glenville is successful.

Empire.—General-Manager, Mr. Chas. G. Rembges. — The Riogoku Family present their truly wonderful and sensational act, to the delight of large audiences; Hinton and Wootton, in their bicycle football show are a pronounced success; the Coloured Meisters sing well; the Two Jays, patterers and dancers; the Calcotts, in Rags and Tatters; Birt Weston, vocalist; Alf Millington, with illustrated songs; and coloured pictures complete a capital programme.

Hippodrome.—Manager, Mr. Frank D. Todd.—The Lesters prove an acceptable turn, and a first-rate programme of pictures is much enjoyed.

MORLEY.—Alexandra Palace.—General-Manager, Mr. Tom Diacoff; Resident-Manager, Mr. Arthur Izon.—Large audiences have testified their appreciation of a well-balanced company. Cambo and Castello are at the top of the bill, and their musical scena, The Monkey and the Maid, scores a great success; Miss Edith Moore, with her charming personality, magnificent costumes, with quick changes and classical international dances, captivates all; Jack Hartley is a really funny Yorkshire comic and patterer; and Miss Jessie Jess shines as a low comedy exponent. Pictures are excellent.

MOTHERWELL.—New Century Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr Chisholm Taylor.—The Gay Gordons is the attraction here. The Angus Græme of Mr. William Greene has much dash and spirit, and he is exceedingly popular; Mr. Edward Carlton as Nervy Nat is full of sly humour; an excellent contrast is found in the comical slowness of Mr. W. H. Desmond as Edmund; the millionaire father has an excellent exponent in Mr. Greville Hayes; Miss Clarice Lockstone is a sweet and dainty Peggy Quainton; and Miss Mabel Dent sings and dances prettily as Victoria Siddons. Very funny is the Charlotte of Miss Florrie Groves; the rôle of Janet M'Leod is admirably rendered by Miss Ada Mellon; Miss Violet is charming as Lady Millicent. Scenery and dresses are excellent, and there is a fine orchestra, under the bâton of Mr. Leonard Leslie.

NEATH.—Gwyn Hall.—Lessee, Mr. J. W. Robinson; Business-Manager, Mr. W. George.—Miss Violet Osmond's company brought The New Barmaid for the early part of the week. Mr. Alexander White as Bertie White scored a great success, and Miss Florrie Millington proved an actress of capability. The piece was full of amusing situations, and there was a full chorus.

Prince of Wales.—Proprietors, Messrs. H. and E. Johnson.—Another bright programme is presented here, some extra good pictures and varieties being included in the bill.

NELSON.—Palace.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. Benson.—A most enjoyable programme is headed by the protean spectacular production known as Change. Some fine trick scenery is introduced; there are four distinct transformations, which for beautiful effect and general stagecraft the turn is unsurpassed. Other capital numbers are The Brilliants, xylophonists, who produce a remarkably sweet and rich tone on their instruments; J. H. McCann, a wonderfully clever roller skate dancer; Mr. "E.," pictorial patterer; Edie Eudon, comedienne and dancer; Leslie's Cadets in a new and original naval scene, After Lights; The Orchids, a smart comedy trio; and the Wartana Trio of lady jugglers.

Grand Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. W. Horner.—Mr. and Mrs Charles Draycott presented Mrs. Kimberley's new drama, The Path of Sorrow, which was produced for the first time at Accrington last week. Mr. Draycott gives a very powerful impersonation of Richard Burfield; Mr. Frank Eaglesfield portrays in striking fashion the iniquitous Guy Lowther; whilst Mrs. Draycott is eminently successful as Pauline Ferrars; the unfortunate Nellie is admirably delineated by Miss Fay Garner-Vayne, and some capital humour is introduced by Mr. Will Flook and Miss Daisy Carlton. The other parts are in capable hands.

NEW BRIGHTON.—Winter Gardens.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs. Jones and Douglass.—A capital bill is presented here. The Claymore Trio juggle and dance in wonderful style; the Ellimans play numerous instruments in a delightful manner; exceptionally good dancing and good singing are submitted by the Sylvester Trio; Master Edmund Kershaw has made a decided success with his well-trained voice; and Mr. Charles Leighton, the tramp at the piano, comes in for much laughter and applause; Little Alice dances nicely, and Miss L. Brunton also appears. The animated pictures are thoroughly interesting.

NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE. — Theatre Royal. — Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. F. Teale Langham.—The success of the delightful pantomime, Cinderella, is now assured. Miss Iris Hoey, as Cinderella continues more and more in popular favour; Miss Cressie Leonard as the Prince; and Miss Meg Hamilton as Dandini are already firm favourites. The fun-making is in the capable hands of Messrs. G. Alexandre, J. Hughes, Johnnie Schofield, Walter Aridge, Harry Brayne, and Miss May Lilian Levey; and dainty dances by the Eight Sunflowers are featured in several scenes. Miss Jessie Jones and Mr. Frank Melville (the fairy queen and the demon respectively) are heard to advantage in several fine songs.

Tyne Theatre and Opera House.—Lessees, Messrs. Howard and Wyndham; Manager, Mr. Fred C. Sutcliffe.—Mr. George Dance's company, in Miss Hook of Holland, opened their second week at the above theatre on Monday evening, to a large audience.

Palace Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. T. W. Rowe; Business-Manager, Mr. E. B. Clark.—Miss Ethel Van Praagh and Mr. Edward Whitty's company, in The Eyes of the World, is the attraction here. The rôle of the wronged wife, Helen De L'Orme is played by Miss Ethel Van Praagh with artistic skill; and Mr. Edward Whitty gives a capital rendering of Achille.

Grand Theatre.—Lessee, Mr. F. W. Bolam; Manager, Mr. Chas. E. Linney.—The pantomime Bo-Peep, is proving immensely popular here and crowded houses are the rule. Miss Nancy Hearn as Boy Blue; and Miss Lizzie Hay as Bo-Peep are both great favourites. Whilst the excellent comedy of Wittie Wattie Walton, Hooc and Pauly, and Mr. Fred Danvers is greatly appreciated.

Empire Theatre.—Resident-Director, Mr. Richard Thornton; Manager, Mr. W. Parham Wells; Assistant-Manager, Mr. J. W. Kilgour.—Amongst the many interesting items here this week, Lamberti takes a prominent place, his impressions of famous musicians are excellent, and he was accorded a hearty reception. L'Incognita, the masked singer, again provides a most enjoyable turn, her beautiful voice being heard to fullest advantage. Walker and May, coloured singers and dancers, and the Musical Jees in a pantomime scena, "The Musical Smithy" provide in each case, capital amusement in their own lines. J. A. Wilson, in his military scena, assisted by his clever dog, Towser, once again made a great hit, and the Westwoods, comedy cyclists, and Cissie Thompson, an attractive comedienne, also provide entertainment of a high character. Lockhart's Elephants presented by Capt. Taylor, and the Bioscope pictures complete a splendid bill.

Pavilion Theatre. — Managing-Director, Mr. Thos. Barrasford; Manager, Mr. W. H. Boardman.—The great Lafayette is here this week, and other artists appearing are Mary Law, violinist; Annie Heath, Willie Gardner, Bros. Wills, Godfrey James, Ted Moxon Trio, and Mark Leslie.

NORTHAMPTON.—Palace of Varieties, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred H. Anderson; Manager, Mr. P. H. Gould.—The New Year's programme is full of good things, of which the most prominent are the Luzellas, a couple of lady gymnasts and dancers of exceptional talent; Marguerite Ismay and her White Coons are very successful in their musical scena; Nellie Nora wins applause for her violin and other instrumental solos; Aucie Gerard shines as a flute and piccolo soloist; Walter Foster and company appear in a dramatic episode with success; the Ashley Team of Skaters please in their comical act; Dennis and Morris, comedians and dancers; Bert and Dora, comedy duo, and Jack Charman, vocal comedian, are also popular.

NORWICH.—Theatre Royal.—Sole Lessee, Mr. Fred Morgan.—Messrs Lyn Harding and Sidney Cooper's company in The Flag Lieutenant is well patronised here. Mr. Mark Paton as Vice-Admiral Sir Berkeley Wynne performs excellently; as Richard Lascelles Mr. Hastings Lynn receives warm appreciation; Mr. Stanley Groome is very good as John Penrose; and Mr. Frederick Leister deserves praise as Major Thesiger; Mr. Stephen Gatling as Christopher Neate and Mr. Edward Mervyn as Crutchley do well; Messrs. Geoffrey Wilkinson and Guy Lanham, the midshipmen, are humoursome; Miss Mabel Rees deserves every compliment as Mrs. Cameron; Miss Rita Johnson acts charmingly as Lady Hermione Wynne; and Miss Rosalind Rose deserves praise as Lady Dugdale. The dresses are elaborate and the staging effective.

Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. E. H. Bostock and F. W. Fitt; Manager, Mr. Councillor F. W. Fitt.—A new musical sketch by Mr. Bert Danson, entitled A Seaside Honeymoon, is dealt with in another column. The Big Four Americans, leading comedians and vocalists, head the bill, and proved an interesting turn; Geo. A. Street and company give a clever portrayal of Military Commanders of the World; Delvanie's Marionettes are a very attractive item; Jack Barker is a warm favourite; while Gilbert Gerard is a marvellous animal and instrumental mimic; Frank F. Street is a capital comedian; and Will E. Stopit excites laughter by his quaint eccentricities. The Hippo Bio is good.

NOTTINGHAM.—Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. Howard Finney.—Jack and Jill continues to attract large audiences, and is running smoothly. Miss Constance Hyem and Miss Queenie Essex are making hosts of friends; Miss Nathalie Ralph, the Fairy, has introduced a new song, with a charming waltz refrain, "I'll let the world go by," and she sings it with great taste; the Goose (Mr. Albert Felino) is as good as ever, and the comedians all work hard to make the pantomime go with a swing. The dancing of the Martini Sextette is of a high order.

Grand Theatre.—Manager, Mr. Harry Upton.—Mother Goose is pleasing large audiences. The comedy of the panto is well looked after by J. T. Macmillan and other comedians of skill and resource, and the winsome manner of Miss Minnie Love and charming singing of Miss Elsie Jones backed by a very capable company, help towards an entertainment of exceptional merit.

Empire.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager Mr. Albert C. Duncan.—Harry Roxbury's presentation of Sergeant Longfellow is a thoroughly amusing and pleasant entertainment, and richly deserves its warm reception; La Sylphe's graceful movements evoke unstinted applause; the comedy sketch, Hogmanay, by J. L. Shine and company, is an excellent piece of work; Miss Vashti Wynne contributes an artistic Egyptian sketch; the Kramers achieve success in their burlesque dancing item. An equilibristic turn by Frank Maura is well received and admirable displays are given by Bowden and Stoll, acrobatic comedians; Florence Esdail vocalist; Violet Stockelle, comedienne; and the Bioscope.

Hippodrome.—General-Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Resident-Manager, Mr. H. F. Miller.—A charming musical comedy, entitled The Prince of the Dandies, is smartly played and staged, and the fun is kept rolling by Flo Stanley, Arthur Watson, Robert Leardo, and Harry Neilson. The Lady Jockey is a droll sketch capitally presented by Miss Teddy Edmonds and company. Maria Racks and Partner successfully negotiate some difficult acrobatic feats and a football match on cycles makes the Olympian team great favourites. Dewson proves a versatile musical artist of no mean skill, and other items are presented by Ferguson and Mack, dancers; A. W. Scott, comedian; Harry Hayton, comedian; and Cash and Clair, dancers.

OLDHAM.—Grand Theatre.—General-Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr. S. Smiley.—Mr. Frank Curzon's company is here with Dear Little Denmark. Miss Netta Lynde as Christine is a charming and dainty actress, and sings sweetly. Mr. Conway Dixon as Conrad Petersen has a fine presence, and his acting is well-nigh perfect. As Ophelia Miss Mabel Sealby's singing is capital, and her comedy excellent; Mr. Arthur Staples as Hans Hansen is very droll; Miss Claire Lynch makes a charming Xandra, and Miss Gladys Beech is a very good Adeline; as the gouty Duke Ernst, Mr. Henry Kitts is lifelike, and Mr. J. C. Fagan does well as Karl. Mr. Tom Redmond is smart as the burly Simon Jorgensen, and Mr. Harry Gregory is good as Jonas Jensen. The scenery is pretty, the chorus is strong, and clever dancing is also introduced.

Colosseum Theatre.—General-Manager, Mr. Wm. Eastwood.—Messrs. Levy and Cardwell's company in the pantomime, Hop o' My Thumb, continue to attract good business. Miss Kitty Trewhitt makes a dashing Prince Uno and her singing is capital. Miss Kitty Rafferty is a winsome Princess, and sings in delightful manner; Miss Gladys Wyse gains much approbation for her smart dancing as Jeannie Macgregor, and Miss Evelyn Major is a piquant Rupert. Little Georgie Harris is smart as Hop, his efforts being heartily enjoyed, and Harold Pyott as the diminutive Tom is a source of wonder. Mr. Vivian Wakeman as Georgina has numerous opportunities for fun-making, of which he takes full advantage; Mr. E. W. Selman as Jerry gains hearty applause; Cowley and Rick sing and dance cleverly; Master Stanley Annison and Master Sandy Simpson are smart and amusing; Miss Olive Purcell is a capital Fairy, and Mr. Sam Rogerson does well as the Giant. The chorus is excellent, and the ballets are well balanced.

C. Bailey extracts humour from the part of Michael; and Messrs. Henderson as the ew George Gibbon as the headsman, and Cyril Maitland as the sentry are good in their respective characters. Miss Mabel Ronald is again seen to advantage as the Little King; Miss Georgette Thierry deserves praise in the title-rôle; Miss Mary Collier is a sprightly and vivacious Sarette, Miss Constance Medwyn a realistic Keta Noveitch, and Miss Alice Barber a pleasing Countess Ladori.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank E. Burdett.—At the top of the bill this week Miss Zona Vevey, assisted by Herr Max Erard, is, in spite of several previous visits here, proving a bigger draw than ever; James and Jenny Jee, in their jumping and cycling on the tight and endless revolving wire give a wonderful performance; Johnson and Hart, in their speciality, In Hoopville, prove themselves to be hoop manipulators par excellence; the Merrions (Will, Harry, and Fred) have a smart and original turn; Tom Franks, ventriloquist, is decidedly original in his methods; Tony Freedman, light comedian, contributes a smartly-written and well-rendered topical ditty; Frank E. Ford is a clever exponent of wooden shoe dancing; and capital films are shown.

RAMSGATE.—ROYAL PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Lord George Sanger; Lessee, Mr. Ernest Mansell.—On Monday evening Mr. James E. Lewis's company commenced a six nights' engagement in the attractive musical drama The Welsh Maid. The piece is put on in excellent fashion, and the performances have elicited considerable appreciation.

RAWTENSTALL.—GRAND THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. William Matthews; Responsible Manager, Mr. J. A. Whitehouse.—We have this week Mr. G. M. Copping's company in Love Rules the World, which was admirably performed on Monday, and greatly appreciated by a large audience. Mr. Will Hee gave a fine impersonation of Harold Kingston, and as Maud Carruthers Miss Aimee Grattan Clyndes also gave a clever and powerful portrayal; Mr. George Gaisford as Stephen Blight made a most effective villain, and Miss Helen Cameron as Flo Merton was equally good as his accomplice in crime; Mr. Mat Russell as Billy Binks was most amusing, and as Kitty Snowdrop Miss Florence Gomer was successful; Mr. David Donaldson as Jim Dixey was good; and Mr. S. Wallbank as Paul Carruthers was convincing and earnest. The play is well staged.

READING.—ROYAL COUNTY THEATRE.—Proprietors and Managers, Mr. Milton Bode and Mr. Edward Compton.—Messrs. Fred J. Little and Fred Darcy's company is having a record pantomime success in Sinbad the Sailor, which continues to draw splendid business. Miss May Poulton is a highly-popular Sinbad, and all the artists, enumerated last week, are thoroughly up to their work. The specialities by the Lachterops, Newco and Sullo, the Sisters Clare, Walter Adams, and the Szarvasi-Ferencz Troupe are all well received.

THE PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr. George Howard Watson; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. E. Draco; Stage-Manager, Mr. A. Burridge.—El Tampicos present a typical Mexican instrumental, vocal, and dancing act, which is set in their own picturesque scenery, and proves a very attractive turn; Gladys Ray is a good comedienne and dancer; Clarke and Glenney create much diversion in The Haunted House; the Three Jewels dance with grace and agility; Prince Kuroki, Japanese illusionist, performs some very clever conjuring tricks; Seeley, West, and Rhodesia give a capital novelty entertainment in which juggling, mirth, and music are introduced; Chas. Mackwey and company produce a highly-amusing sketch, Breaking Up the Happy Home; Chas. Russell and Alf. H. Drinkwater are both good comedians; and the Palace Bioscope completes an acceptable entertainment.

LARGE TOWN HALL.—Joseph Poole's myriorama is still doing excellent business here, this being the last week of the visit. The entertainment is of a very varied and attractive character.

REDDITCH.—PUBLIC HALL.—Proprietor, Mr. T. E. Field.—Professor Woods' musical and pictorial combination opened here on Monday. The company comprises the following artists, who delight large audiences nightly:—Reg Heaton comedian; Eileen Hall, ballad vocalist; Walter Gray, juggling act; Young Stanton, ventriloquial sketch artist; Prof. Maccann, concertina soloist; and Miss Zelli Vondi; with a good show of animated pictures.

ROCHDALE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, the Northern Theatres Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. W. Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Resident-Manager, Mr. S. Burton.—Sapho, the attraction here this week, is well staged, and finds great favour. Mr. Ernest R. Abbott impersonates with ability the part of Jean Gaussin; Miss Ada Abbott holds the audience with a fine embodiment of the title-rôle; Mr. Stephen Crossley admirably portrays the polished Henri Dechelette; Mr. Edward Ouston makes up well as Flamant; Mr. Edwin Keene as Uncle Cesaire is highly diverting; Mr. Weedon Ross submits a forcible and convincing portrayal of old Legrand; and Miss Marjorie Tennant plays with distinction the part of Nichette.

EMPIRE AND PRINGLE'S PICTURE PALACE.—Lessee, Mr. Ralph Pringle.—The pictures shown here continue to attract good houses; and variety turns by the Lannons, pedestal dancers, and Douglas's Jolly Bakers, in an amusing and clever acrobatic act, complete a most enjoyable bill of fare.

ROTHERHAM.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. Holbery Hardy.—Mr. Walter Melville's company is here this week with The Beggar Maid's Wedding. Mr. Otto Minster is a manly Jack Cunningham, and Mr. Charles Barclay is seen to advantage as Dr. Millbank; Dicky Storm is most amusingly enacted by Mr. Herbert Lloyd, and Mr. Charles Brunester scores as Norman Marsh; Tina Torkington is smartly portrayed by Miss Daisy Meynard, and Miss Olive Warne cleverly enacts Maud Villiers; Miss Lily Duncker scores heavily as Elsie Cunningham, and Miss Marie Duncan is pleasing and sympathetic as Bessie Webster. The mounting and scenery are elaborate.

HIPPODROME, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. T. Edgar Fox; Resident-Manager, Mr. A. R. Holtands.—Messrs. Callahan and St. George head the bill here with a clever musical act. Wee Montyn Moore is deservedly applauded; Colbert brings down the house with a finished exhibition of club and hoop manipulation; Lillie Le Main scores highly with living marionettes; the Four Mayos are smart skaters; J. W. Darley and company present an interesting act, Music; Le Lars are high-class vocalists and dancers; Adelaide Waldorf does a brilliant vocal turn, and George Norton also appears with success.

RUNCORN.—PUBLIC HALL.—Lessees, Messrs. Hamilton and Hughes.—Good houses are the rule this week to witness a further first-class programme, consisting of Dene and Dixon, an entertaining turn, in The New Page Boy; Walter Aubrey, with the wooden shoes; Les Zanonis, a pair of jugglers in clever work; and Watson and McCue, a satisfying pair of comedians. The pictures are good.

SALFORD.—PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. E. B. Goulden; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harold Goulden.—Mr. Frank M. Thorne's company is here with The Woman Pays, and a full house followed the play with much satisfaction. Mr. Phil Harper plays the hero Sid Armstrong with vigour; the villainous steward Roger Marchant is ably portrayed by Mr. Clavering Craig; Mr. Joseph Magrath (Mickey Maloney) and Miss Lily Beverley (Polly Stokes) make good use of their opportunities in the comedy line; Miss Alice Greenwood is a charming Madge Armstrong; and Miss Kat Blair gains much sympathy for her clever presentation of Nell Morland. Mr. Beresford James makes a smart Cyrus Treadgold; Mr. Dunlop Stewart does good work as Luke Morland; Mr. C. Gaskell is a comical Nathan Moss; and Miss Florence Thorne (Tabitha) and Mrs. S. Porteus (Nurse Agnes) give good support.

RECENT THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. Turner; General-Manager, Mr. Herbert Raymond; Secretary, Mr. R. H. Lee.—Crowded houses (twice nightly) find much genuine fun in Harry Roxbury's pantomime, The Sleeping Beauty (book and lyrics by Miss Vashti Wynne), which is beautifully staged, and comprises ten scenes. Mr. Tubby Edlin as the Demon's Son keeps the house in roars of laughter, and the King and Queen are comically presented by Mr. Tom Shenton and Mr. Willie Black. Princess Beauty is charmingly presented by Miss Ivy Moore, who sings well; Miss Lillian Elliott is a dashing Prince Fearless, and has a pleasing voice; Miss Winnie Acton (Fairy Queen) and Mr. Frank H. Morton (Demon) are well placed, and gain much applause for singing. The specialities are of excellent quality, including cornet solos by John S. Leick and Mabel Keith, very smart dancing and manœuvres by the Eight Oowana Girls, acrobatic comic business by the Three Martinettes, and sand-dancing by Tom Shenton, Eva Shenton, and Willie Shenton. Miss Nellie Valentine as Viscount Broadlands gets much appreciation for her dashing manner and singing of "Charlie Brown. Under the bâton of Mr. Forshaw Kershaw the choruses are very pleasingly rendered.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; General-Manager, Mr. H. Winstanley; Resident-Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Boyle.—The Midnight Wedding is on a return visit, and Alfred Paumier and Walter Howard's company do full justice to the piece. Both performances on Monday night were crowded with delighted audiences. Paul Valmar (the hero) was well presented by Mr. A. E. Winnington Barnes; Miss Margaret Brodie cleverly portrayed Princess Astrea; Mr. Charles Whitlock was a dashing Captain Rudolf; Miss Jessica Black as Kathie, Mr. James E. Page (Sergeant Max), Mr. Wm. Franklin (Corporal Otto), and Mr. Algie Spalding (Private Bobo) combined to keep the audience in excellent humour. Miss Gladys Faunce as Rozel and Mr. St. George Frere as Lieut. Eugene von Streisburg also did well, and there were excellent representations of the other parts. The costumes and staging were very good.

SEACOMBE.—KING'S THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. James Kiernan.—A strong attraction is Mr. James Kiddie's grand comic Christmas pantomime, Dick Whittington. Mr. Charles Cork plays effectively as the villain Rodento, the King of Rats, his principal foil. Concordi, the Fairy of Belles, being prettily personated by Miss Maude Leviete; Miss Lena Page appears to advantage in the title-rôle, and Alice is charmingly presented by Miss Florrie Warner; Mr. Dennis McCarthy gets in some solid comic business as Alderman Fitzwarren; the Cat has been well studied by Mr. Bert Hudson; Idle Jack is in the able hands of Mr Charley Chard; and Mr. Tom Gott causes plenty of laughter by his rendering of Amelia Florence; Clifton and Gibson prove a clever pair of fun merchants as Silly Peter and Lazy Larry; the old favourite Miss Florence Hilton being accorded numerous encores for her smart rendition of the musical numbers as Sir Algernon de Mash.

SHEFFIELD.—LYCEUM THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager and Treasurer, Mr. J. E. B. Beaumont.—The King of Cadonia continues to be performed here to large audiences, and the members of Mr. Frank Curzon's company are all warmly applauded. The fine acting and finished vocalism of Mr. Bertram Wallis as the King are appreciated; Miss Alice Moffat as the Princess Marie has many admirers, her charming personality, melodious voice, and graceful deportment making her popular; Mr. Bertie Wright's Duke of Alasia is an impersonation full of genuine humour; Mr. Cecil Moylan is good as Brau; and other clever performances are Mr. Jack Martin's General Bronski, Mr. Cameron Carr's Captain Lanski, Mr. E Hartley-Summers' Panix, Mr. Cecil Tressillian's Laborde, and Miss Florence Lelgarde's Duchess of Alasia. The chorus is admirable, and Mr. H. R. Matthews is an efficient conductor.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager and Treasurer, Mr. J. E. B. Beaumont; Assistant-Manager, Mr. A. Henfrey-Aldred.—Jack and Jill, with its excellent company, exquisite dresses, and beautiful scenery, is firmly established in public favour here.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. William D. Forsdike; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. W. Ramsay.—Crowded audiences continue to enjoy the fun, music, and beautiful scenery of Dick Whittington, and Miss Florrie Gallimore, Mr. Fred Lloyd, Mr. H. O. Wills, and Mr. Will Lorenzi are other favourites.

EMPIRE PALACE.—The Moss' Empires Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Alan D. Dunbar.—The drawing-room entertainment of vocalism and mimicry by Miss Clarice Mayne and her humorous pianist was deservedly applauded. Messrs. Carney and Armstrong's clever and original comedy business and clean repartee were thoroughly enjoyed, and other popular turns were done by Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Faber in The Dramatist at Home; Haines and Borthwick in a comic sketch, Half-a-Dollar, supported by Miss M. Damer and Miss Vynall; Mendel, the talented blind pianist and composer; Miss Ruth Davenport, who looked charming in eighteenth-century costume, and sang "Beware," from Dorothy; La Berat, in her graceful and artistic mystic grotto dance; the Bros. Miller, comedians; and Mr. Mike Nono, dancer. On the Bioscope some amusing films were shown.

THE HIPPODROME.—General Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford; Resident-Manager, Mr. Frank Poole.—The clever sporting sketch in three scenes, A 33 to 1 Chance; Gillin, ventriloquist; the Three Orleans, vaudeville artists; Elroy, armless wonder; Miss Connie Mascot, comedienne; Messrs. Vandon, Perry, and Wilbur, the smart song and dance boys; Mr. R. H. Douglas, the clever comedian and burlesque-actor; and Miss Gladys Revell, are all popular here. The Bioscope, with artistic new pictures; Clare and Pastor; and Barrold's wonderful performing dogs and monkeys are quite successful.

CENTRAL HALL.—Lessees, the Jasper Redfern Co., Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Fred Holmes.—The highly-dramatic and artistic pictures shown here are the theme of general approbation, notably A Good Action Rewarded and A Tragic Idyll. The artists engaged are Mr George Young, blind musician; Miss Ella Beaumont, vocalist; and the Willands, with their Fantoches entertainment.

ALBERT HALL.—Poole's Myriorama and Picture Show is still doing good business by day and night. The variety entertainment here is contributed to by the Cattenos, amusing comedy gymnasts; the clever Manek-Shaw troupe of Hindoo conjurers, who are loudly applauded; the famous George French trope of trick cyclists; Learto, the clown, and "Pom-Pom"; the Snow Family, comic and graceful skaters; Miss Phyllis St Clair; Mr. Harry Dowsett, and the Comical Midgets.

SHREWSBURY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Director, Mr. W. Yates Gregory; General-Manager, Mr. Thos. Baugh.—Some first-class variety turns and capital moving pictures are the attractions here. Akbar is a skilful gymnast performing on the flying rings; the Spadonis merit high praise for their duets and dances; the Leonas contribute a smart musical act; and Bella Leaburn is a bright and pleasing comedienne and descriptive vocalist.

SMETHWICK.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor, Mr. C. Barnard; Manager, Mr. E. Hewitson.—Messrs. Matthew H Glenville and Fred Osmond's company continues to present the famous funny and refined pantomime Aladdin. The title-rôle is filled by Miss Hettie Zillwood, a charming personality, who is ably partnered by Miss Lou Charlesworth, a dainty Princess. The principal boy creates the greatest impression, perhaps, with "He's my pal," and also scores with "I've been out with Charlie Brown." Miss Lou Charlesworth sings "Somewhere" beautifully, and fully deserves the encore. The indispensable "Kelly" is brought into prominence by Mr. Fred Osmond, who, as the Vizier, creates much amusement. Mr. Clarence Turner supplied a quaint Mrs. Twankey, whose song, "Never let your husband be an explorer," and his patter in the Lancashire dialect put the audience into excellent humour. The Brothers Lavelle as the Policemen distinguish themselves by their knockabout tricks, particularly in the Kitchen scene. Mr. Pulo, who is quite at home as Wishee Washee, also introduced a clever and amusing juggling turn. Mr. Charles H Gallier does well as the Emperor, and his song, "Don't take me home," has caught on immensely. Mr. Frank Sutherland makes the most of Abanazar; and opportunities are afforded for the Venester Troupe of Dancers to display their particular abilities. The Sisters Wingrove also show remarkable skill in this respect, and their singing of "The dashing military maid" and "Ida my Idaho" bring them into warm favour. In the last act the vocal efforts of the Grando Sextette are greatly appreciated. There is an almost entire change of programme this week. Herr Carl, the Tramp lightning cartoonist, is a distinct success. The Three Hilberts, clever comedy acrobats and bouncing table experts, have an amusing competition; Miss May Wyatt, 'cello soloist, is also an interesting feature. A word of praise is certainly due to Mr. Frank Sutherland, who produced the pantomime, and also to Mr. Charles H. Gallier, the stage-managers. Mr. Fred R. Wyatt is the musical director.

SOUTHEND-ON-SEA.—THE HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, the Southend Hippodrome, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Lewis de Burgh.—The programe here this week is of all-round excellence. The artists engaged include Henriette de Seiri's artistic bas-reliefs; Belle Braham, the pictorial songstress; the Hyde and Cody Trio, eccentrics, in insane tricks; Harold Heath, coon delineator and dancer; Peggy Lennie and Walker Hast, in a charming little poetic phantasy, "A Sea Nymph"; and Tale and Tale, "The Barmaid and her Eccentric Customer."

SOUTHPORT.—OPERA HOUSE, WINTER GARDENS.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Percy Hutchison; Acting-Manager, Mr George Clarkson.—The entertainments at the Opera House for the coming year have been started with great eclat by the enterprising Mr. Percy Hutchison, who is to be congratulated on the excellent manner in which he has catered for the public amusement; and he thoroughly deserved the unstinted support accorded by the packed and enthusiastic audiences who witnessed the opening performances on Monday. The arrangemnts are this week of an exceptionally elaborate and attractive character, two separate plays being presented each day, the charming musical fairy play Pinkie and the Fairies in the afternoon, and Brewster's Millions in the evening. Both plays are capitally enacted by the clever artists engaged. In the former Miss Hermione Gingold is prominent as Pinkie. She acts with confidence and grace, and has a clear articulation; Miss Hetty Kenyon as the Fairy Queen is very attractive and is also a clever dancer; Misses Aileen Faithful, Peggy Rae, and Kathleen York are highly commendable as the Elves; Tommy is cleverly impersonated by Master Charles Chappell; Miss Dolly Sommers is admirable in the part of the Herald; Miss Lucie Caine (Cinderella) and Miss Estele Thebaud (Sleeping Beauty) are both good vocalists; characteristic impersonations are given by Misses Haidee Gunn (Aunt Imogen), Lucy Evelyn (Aunt Caroline), Muriel Alston (Molly), and Messrs Ribton Haines (Uncle Gregory), T. P. Haynes (Mr. Irons and the Beast); clever animal work is done by Mr. Sam Wilkinson as the Cat, and the Fairies' chorus was exceptionally well rendered. In Brewster's Millions Mr Percy Hutchison, who appeared for the first time since his leasehold of the Opera House, received a very hearty welcome, and repeated his inimitable and highly successful representation of Monty Brewster. He was ably assisted by Miss Lillias Earle as Mrs. Dan De Mille, a part she essayed very effectively, and also by Miss Cicely Stuckey, who portrayed Peggy in a fascinating manner.

SOUTH SHIELDS.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. John Coulson.—The Old Home is being presented here by Mr. Evelyn A'Dell's company. Mr. Charles Franmore gives an admirable portrayal of Daddy Dean; Hazel Dean is excellently depicted by Miss Nina Blake-Adams; Mr. Evelyn A'Dell is very good as the Rev. Eric Armstrong; and the same may be said of Mr. Horatio Sinclair as Lord Avondale. Mrs. J. W. Braithwaite does justice to the part of Bridget Donoghan; Mr. Fred L. Connyngham is very funny as Sam Adams, and is ably assisted by Miss Ethel Ashleigh as Polly Popp.

EMPIRE PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietors, The South Shields Empire Palace, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. R. Thornton; General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Resident-Manager, Mr. Ernest Bridgen.—A delightful turn is that of the Lukashimas, a Japanese troupe of acrobats, who have a good reception; T. E. Finglass, with "Idaho," sings himself into favour; Phil Rees's stable lads contribute a good sketch, Not a Crook; Jack Rose and Sue Lewis, the Yankee Doodle Duo, showed some good dancing; Harry Leybourn, comedian and mimic, Harry Bedford, with new songs, and the Bioscope complete an interesting bill.

STALYBRIDGE.—HIPPODROME.—Lessee, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. K. Stewart Macdonald.—Mr. Montague Beaudyn and company present For Honour and Revenge. Mr. Beaudyn in the arduous part of James Galston wins encomiums for his clever rendering, and Miss Irene Munroe as a woman of the world does well.

ST. HELENS.—THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE, LTD. General-Manager, Mr. McLeod Loader; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Harry E. Johnson.—Mr. C. Elderton's pantomime Robinson Crusoe continues to have a successful run, and all are loud in praise of the production. Miss Nita Clavering as Robinson renders some new songs in pleasing style, and Miss Isa Gibson (Polly Perkins) is greatly applauded in song and dance. The fun has increased, and Mr. J. H. Booth (Mrs. Crusoe), Mr. Fred Boulton (Will Atkins), Mr. Teddy Worth (little Billy Crusoe), and the Eltons miss few opportunities in the way of exciting laughter, and the whole company may be congratulated upon the admirable manner in which each performs his or her part.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. Barrasford, Sley, and Wilmot; Acting-Manager, Mr. Leo Weisker.—Mme. Albani occupies the head of the programme here, and her songs are heard with great pleasure. Menotti does some wonderful feats on the wire; the Venetians' singing, with pictorial effects, is received with much applause; Harris Coonie is a capital dancer; Hayman and Franklyn present a highly-amusing sketch, A Suit for Divorce; and Starr and Leslie are smart in their act. Pictures on the Bioscope conclude.

STOCKPORT.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Charles Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. Revill.—Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Levy and Mr. J. E. Cardwell's pantomime, The House That Jack Built, continues its success of last week, delighting large audiences; but despite its popularity it concludes to-night (Saturday).

EMPIRE.—Proprietors, The Stockport Empire Theatre Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Black.—Ernest Lord's Excelsiors, vocal entertainers, have had a pleasing reception here. Among the array of talent appearing are the Falady Troupe, exceedingly clever acrobats; Curtis Leo, who conjures in amusing style; Edie Anderson, a dashing vocalist and dancer; Hayes and Merritt, smart bounding trampolinists; Les Andres in an entertaining terpsichorean act, Dances of all Nations; Zenora, the little upside down wonder; and Charlton, a conjuror of much ability.

STOCKTON-ON-TEES.—CASTLE THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Chas. Imeson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Cecil Imeson.—Mr. E. H. Knight's company presents The Lighthouse Robbery, the play, which is full of thrilling incidents, being well received. Miss Hilda Baynton is a distinct success as Rose Prescott; Baby Freda is very clever as Little Nellie; Mr. Percy Beresford appears with credit as Tom Manly; and Mr. Rupert Talbot ably represents James Hammond.

HIPPODROME.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Harry Burns; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. Stainton.—The London Grand Opera Company, organised and directed by Mr. John Halpin, is giving a great treat to music lovers. The company includes some well-known operatic vocalists, and the principal artists are Miss Toni Seiter, Miss Agatha Wurth, Miss Una Bruckshaw, and Messrs. L. Russell, Wilson Pembroke, and Charles Tilbury. The company give a different opera each evening. The rest of the programme includes Kelly and Agnas, a good Australian comedy duo; Dan Conroy, popular comedian; Bonhair and Tess, with a charming speciality act; Marie Dawber, dainty comedienne; the Melba Twins, harmonising vocalists; and Horace Sade, international dancer. The Bioscope concludes.

GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. John Batty; Manager, Mr. Walter Batty.—Mr. M. Montgomery's company commenced the last week of its stay, after a two years' successful run, with the exciting drama A Lancashire Lad. Mr. F. S. Strickland, Mr. Stanley Gordon, and Mr. Byron, assisted by Miss Lina Nazeby and Miss Nina Vaughton, showed great ability in their respective rôles. To-night Sweeney Tod will be staged. The performances this week are for the company's benefit.

STOKE-ON-TRENT.—THE HIPPODROME.—Lessee, Mr Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Arthur Burton.—An interesting dramatic playlet entitled Her Return is presented with artistic skill by Florence Creagh and Dick Cruikshanks. The Donnas Trio appear in a clever equilibristic act on the trapeze; Ren Grahame is a smart descriptive comedienne; Dan Conroy submits his latest successes; the Three Phydoras are seen in a novel musical act; Friscari's manipulation of top hats is very wonderful; Ada Gatley, in her pot-pourri act, and George Lawrence, light comedian, are popular contributors to the programme, which is concluded by the Perfection Pictures.

STOURBRIDGE.—ALHAMBRA THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Douglas C. Phelps.—This week we have Mr. Dickie Clare's company in Lucky 'Liza. Mr. Dickie Clare takes the triple part of Silas Slim, the Judge, and the French Waiter; Peter Pettitoe, in the hands of Mr. T. W. Benson, is well handled; Mr. Norman W. Lee as Paul Pettitoe has a character to which he is admirably suited; Miss Vesta Brownie as Lucky 'Liza fetches the house with her dancing; Mr. A. W. Thompson makes a capital Barnaby; and Miss Elsie Walton deserves special mention for her capital portrayal of Vergina. Mr. J. W. Forrest is funny as William Biffins, and Mr. Bert Collins is droll as Tompkins, the Court Usher.

SUNDERLAND.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor, Mr. Richard Thornton; General-Manager, Mr. Harry Esden; Acting-Manager, Mr. George Dunn.—Mr. Frank M. Thorne's company is playing Little Phil's Mother. Miss Maud Russell, the principal lady, gives a meritorious performance as Ruth Towers, and Miss Gertie Renand does creditable work in the juvenile rôle of Phil. Miss Violet Crauford gives a well-studied delineation of Elspeth, playing with dramatic effect throughout. The Frank Towers of Mr. Percy Ballard is a meritorious piece of work; as also is Geoffrey Dane, by Mr. N. J. Monte. Mr. John Cullen is good in the rôle of Donald Taggarty; Messrs. Henry Earlsmore (Oscar Titherton) and John E. Tomlinson (Bill Brisket) prove themselves capable exponents of villainy; while the lighter vein is in the good hands of Miss Leslie Warner as Julia Worrilove and Mr. Frank M. Thorne as Sam Perkels, who do excellent work.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Richard Thornton; General-Manager, Mr. Harry Esden.—Heading the programme are Messrs. Fred Edwards and Co. in an original sketch, entitled Kleptomaniacs; from beginning to end it is brimful of sparkling humour, and the chief participants, Mr. Fred Edwards and Miss Bertha Northam, carry the whole thing through in commendable manner. Leoni Dixon scores a great success with her song and dance; the Barowskys are clever and humorous in their Continental acrobatic act; George Benson is warmly applauded for his well-studied mimicry of leading comedians; Marshall and Parr are clever and refined entertainers; Billy, the human-brained horse, causes wonderment with his extraordinary sagacity; and the success of Mr. Wallace Selkirk's spectacular production Our Empire's Defenders is being repeated this week.

KING'S THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. S. F. Davidson; General-Manager, Mr. Lloyd Townrow.—From the crowded houses during the past week it is quite evident that Mr. S. F. Davidson's pantomime Dick Whittington is entirely suited to the public taste. Mr. Will Evans in the rôle of the genial Alderman has made himself a great favourite, and is very effectively developing the humour of his rôle; Mr. Dan Crawley is a neat, smart, and humorous Eliza, the cook, and creates roars of laughter; Mr. Chris. Baker continues to please in his rôle of Idle Jack; the Brothers Ethairien have also established themselves as favourites as Captain Bill and Bo'sun Ben, and their rollicking humour is a source of much enjoyment; Mr. Ernest Laws does good work as Ahmed, and his rendering of "Asleep in the Deep" has created a furore; Mr. Sydney Dench, jun., is also in evidence as the Watchman; as Dick Miss Margaret Ruby's vivacity and buoyancy are decidedly refreshing, and her singing is a source of much delight; Miss Gertie Gavagan as Alice has also made herself extremely popular with her charming manner and her song and dance; Miss Hilda Playfair gives significance to her lines by her clear utterance and excellent vocalism; Miss Constance Clive as Dolly and Miss Violet Trevenyon greatly assist towards the success of the pantomime; and the Lottie Stone troupe of dancers delight all with their graceful movements.

FILM GOSSIP AND NOTICES.

Johnson v. Ketchell Film.

THE film of the Johnson-Ketchell contest, which Mr. J. W. Coffroth, of San Francisco, has brought to London, is altogether excellent. It shows everything, from the training of the competitors up to the time when the white man, after a game and plucky stand, is counted out. All the same, when one bears in mind that Ketchell was giving away no less than two stone, it strikes one very forcibly that the show he put up was quite wonderful.

Slight Fire in Shoreditch.

FIRE occurring at the Alcazar Picture Palace, Shoreditch, late last Monday night, alarm was caused among the members of the Central Shoreditch Club, whose rooms are situated above the picture show, but all escaped without injury.

Annette Kellerman Film.

THE Annette Kellerman swimming and diving pictures have been shown at the Standard, Pimlico, during the week. They are very fine, and the astounding acquatic feats of the beautiful "Australian mermaid"—sinuous form, bewitching smile, and grace itself—were cheered to the echo.

Arthur Brogden's New Appointment.

MR. ARTHUR BROGDEN has been appointed general-manager for Mr. Leon Vint's circuit of electric picture palaces, and will shortly open his London offices.

Our Navy and Army.

THERE is no entertainment in London to which the boys and girls home for the holidays can be taken with a better certainty of being genuinely interested and instructed than Mr. Alfred West's Life in Our Navy and Army, at the Polytechnic, in Regent-street. By means of the cinematograph the everyday life of our sailors and soldiers is presented so vividly and with so pleasing an admixture of the serious and the lighter sides of the Services that the entertainment holds the attention from the first picture to the last. For two hours each afternoon and evening Mr. West makes his appeal to large audiences of young people and their elders. In the first half of the programme life in the Navy is the subject. We see the latest Dreadnoughts, we watch a lesson in gunnery and various other instructions and drills. A Crowd on a Battleship is a delightful experience, and Portsmouth Harbour brings memories of the Victory, while a demonstration of how our bluejackets fight on land is a very inspiring affair.

For the First Time in Europe.

AT the Palace Theatre the really beautiful new series of life-motion studies of flowers and leafage, diversified by the action of light, which Mr. Alfred Butt (with the connivance of Mr. Charles Urban) is including in "Kinemacolor," may be taken as the crowning-point of bioscopics in Nature's tints, since they are the identical pictures that converted America's doubts into enthusiastic endorsement three weeks ago. They are being shown for the first time in Europe exclusively at the Palace.

A Film Dinner.

AN interesting event took place on Tuesday evening last at the Washington Hotel, Lime-street, Liverpool, when over thirty of the headquarter staff of Messrs. Films, Ltd., the well-known cinematograph experts, of 18 and 20, Manchester-street, were entertained at dinner by the directors, the occasion being the thirty-fifth anniversary of the birthday of the managing-director, Mr. A. T. Wright. Several artists from the local variety theatres contributed to the enjoyment of the evening, in the course of which Mr. Edwin W. Smith, on behalf of the staff, presented Mr. A. T. Wright with a magnificent diamond combination pin and stud, and in a few well-chosen words said that it was a slight token of the respect and esteem in which he was held by everyone connected with the firm. Mr. Wright, in reply, said that he was taken completely by surprise, and thanked them all most sincerely for the beautiful present. He called attention to the rapid growth of the firm, and said that it could not have attained its present position without the hearty co-operation of its employees. He was pleased to see so many there, and only regretted that the London, Belfast, and Newcastle-on-Tyne staffs could not be present, but hoped that on some future occasions it may be found possible to bring together the whole of the staff.

Pictures as Arguments.

A NOVEL method of addressing electors was introduced by Mr. J. T. Dales at St. Saviour's Hall, Forest Gate, last Wednesday night, when he demonstrated the advantages of Tariff Reform by a series of magic lantern pictures. If a heckler contradicts Mr. Dales' statements he simply flashes on the screen one of his many pictures, thus showing the disbeliever proof of his accuracy. One of the pictures depicted the enormous crowd outside Billingsgate, when 2,000 men applied for forty jobs. Others were of steamers, dumping their cargoes—steel, pottery, granite, glassware, and doors—on the docks free of duty. Mr. Dales also showed pictures of many factories which have been closed owing to unfair foreign competition.

Living Portrait Albums.

A LONDON firm has started taking cinematograph portraits of children and grown-ups and producing them in a small and handy form, so that by means of an instrument resembling very much the well-known stereoscope, an actual moving picture of the subject may be seen for ever after. This new development in portrait photography suggests extraordinary possibilities. It will be possible, for instance, for the octogenarian of 1990 to see himself laughing or crying in his cradle, or taking the first tottering steps of his life. Or scenes in the present-day nurseries, of children romping together, can be transferred with all their living movement to photographic reproduction, and kept for the happy youngsters, to be shown to their own children in days to come. The films on which these photographs are taken are 40ft. long, and show perhaps a full minute or more of actual movement. There are from 500 to 700 pictures, so arranged round a cylinder that they appear like the leaves of a book. The cylinder is placed in the Kinora, as the stereoscope-like machine is called, and the cylinder made to revolve either by means of a simple spring or by clockwork. The pictures flash across the line of view, and the animated effect is obtained. The cost of the first reel is 30s., and duplicate copies may be had for 6d. The Kinora varies in price, according to the type and model, from 15s. to as many guineas. The Kinora is actually equivalent to a living portrait album.

New Companies.

Thrills at the A.P.

AT the Alexandra Palace last week there was a high-class exhibition of up-to-date and comical subjects. The comical series were uproariously funny, and at least one, The Airship Destroyer, was ahead of time. The inventor of the aerial torpedo is discovered in a garden of roses with his lady love. He is a muscular young fellow and comely to look upon. He plucks a rose and gives it her, and they swear to be true to one another; but, there is always a "but." In this case it is her father who scorns the inventor hero who is hurried away by a mechanic. Through the field-glasses of the hero the audience sees a huge airship and later a host of aeroplanes. The airship, however, appears to be invincible. Its missiles are seen to hit their marks, aeroplanes drop and the occupants hurled out, a church is fired, and a motor gun has several narrow escapes, until at length that is blown up. A gallant signalman who sticks to his cabin falls a victim as the cabin is blown up. The next explosion witnessed is at the house of the hero's sweetheart. He runs from his aerial torpedo and dashes through smoke and flame and rescues her. Leaving her among the débris he rescues her father. Naturally there are orange blossoms for the hero. That is only one in the long list of pictures, and it is a very short story in comparison with the pantomime pictures. There was Ali Baba and the Forty Thieves and The Sleeping Beauty.

Strand Theatre de Luxe.

THIS week at the Theatre de Luxe, 65, Strand, films have been shown of The Big Horn Ranch, Life in the Interior of North Borneo, Two Truants, A Plucky Little Girl, The Unlucky Bridegroom, The Deserter, and John Gilpin's Ride.

Strand's Non-Flam Programme.

AN entire non-flam programme was given on the cinematograph at the Theatre de Luxe, in the Strand, last Saturday, and will be continued each day, Sunday included.

Harringay's New Electric Theatre.

PREMIER ELECTRIC THEATRES, LTD., have acquired an important site next the Queen's Head Hotel, Harringay, for a new picture theatre. Messrs. Emden, Egan, and Co., the well-known theatrical architects, have prepared the plans for a model theatre on the most approved up-to-date lines, with seating capacity for upwards of 1,000 persons. Building operations will be commenced forthwith, and it is anticipated the structure will be completed early in March.

MESSRS. CARPENTERS, LTD., have opened the Alexandra Picture Palace, at Aldershot.

Neath.

AT Vint's Electric Palace of Varieties, Neath, a very good programme has been presented this week, the principal items dealing with A Russian Girl's Heroism, The Obstinate Mule, Yokohama's Jubilee, Wanted, a Child, Marrying the Servant, and For Her Sake.

ABERDEEN.—WALKER AND CO.'S NEW YEAR CARNIVAL.—Messrs. Walker and Company's New Year carnival entertainments were given in the Music Hall, Aberdeen, to large audiences. The excellence of the cinematograph pictures shown by this local firm—the pioneers of cinematography in the North—doubtless is the means always of drawing big audiences, but the festive season has also much to do with the attendances. In a galaxy of novel and up-to-date representations of scenes and incidents, probably that depicting a good old fashioned pantomime was the best bidder for success. The subject was the never-old story of Cinderella, and as scene after scene was unfolded in all their brightness and splendour the audience was gradually worked up to a state of wondering excitement that culminated in the great transformation which precedes the famous harlequinade that our grandfathers and grandmothers revelled in. The story of The Haunted Castle forms the harlequinade, and many startling incidents take place while it is being told. To instance only one other of the films—that of the North Sea Trawling—the storm effects, contrasted with the calm and the attendant "fun and frolic" aboard these toilers of the sea, gives one an idea of what sea life is, both in its dangers and in its sports. Many interludes in the form of comic pictures keep the audiences in the best of humour.

ALDERSHOT.—WIDE WORLD PICTURES.—Proprietors, Messrs. J. Golder and Bert Sloman.—In compliance with a stipulation made by the Aldershot Council, under the Public Health Act, the bioscope has been removed outside the auditorium, with the result that the seating accommodation has been increased, and work of redecorating is now in progress. Capital programmes are being presented, the first part of the week the following films being shown:—Chicago May, a strong dramatic picture, Eastern Man, Mad Woman's Child, Crime by Suggestion, Longing for Gold, Human Wheel, &c.; whilst for Thursday and following nights a good set of pictures is presented.

ALEXANDRA PICTURE PALACE.—Proprietors, Carpenters' Theatres, Limited; Manager, Mr. J. Connors.—This fine building, erected many years ago as an entertainment hall, has been through many vicissitudes, with only little or no success, and, until recently, was a furniture saleroom. As a picture show there are signs of a great success, and the management may look forward to good support, judging by the patronage bestowed during the week just gone. The hall is most comfortable, the seating and heating being excellent, whilst the pictures shown are particularly clear and effective. The chief film this week is Furthest South with Lieutenant Shackleton, and other pictures are highly appreciated. Archie Gervase sings two capital songs during the performance.

ASHTON-UNDER-LYNE.—THE NEW PAVILION.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Leech; Assistant-Manager, Mr. E. A. Sims.—The Pavilion pictures for the week include some scenes of enchantment and beauty to young folks, from the pantomime, Little Red Riding Hood. A very beautiful scenic subject of Swiss scenery is Shauffhausen, its environs and its people. Entombed Alive is a very good drama; Unending Discussion is full of incident, which provokes laughter; Out With It is something out of the common, and should not be missed as an original circumstance; Subterfuge, or, the Misunderstanding is well conceived and worked out; Gas Inspector is full of comedy. The vaudeville portion of the programme is also of a superior order of merit. Layton and Douglas give a refined musical act; selections are given of classical music, marches, operatic selections, and latest songs. Elliott and Lane are a clever couple of Scotch comedy artists and dancers.

THE PICTUREDROME.—Lessees, Messrs. Welsker Bros.; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. Leckie.—"The World in Motion" pictures at this pleasure resort continue to win the favour and attendance of the working section of the public. The bill of fare for the week includes some films of special interest. Gentle Hearts, a pretty little picture-play. The subject is pathetic: two poor sisters in dire distress, who are finally rescued from starvation by the sagacity of a dog. A tantalising Young Lady is an amusing film; His Adversary's Card is also one of the comic series. We get also an interesting view of St. Malo, off the French Coast; and The Little Vendean tells a striking, touching story between the struggles of the French Royalists and the Republicans; Traitor to King and Country is also a good film. Mr. Robt. Paulas, baritone, sings a couple of songs in fine voice; Dalton and Dale, a couple of young artists are good at cross-talk and dancing at one and the same time.

THE ODDFELLOWS' HALL.—Lessees, the Ashton Entertainments Syndicate; Acting-Managers, Mr. and Mrs. J. Marks.—This variety and picture palace continues to forge to the front with good wholesome entertainment. The leading picture of the current week's programme is The White Slave. It is a story that not only excites, it thrills, and attention is ever on the stretch from the opening to the closing scene. Lugubrious humour is found in following the details of Suicide as a Profession. A very pretty story of the tender passion is The Love Token; and He Tried on the Handcuffs excited the mirth of all. Three-Fingered Kate is the doings of a lady who perpetrates a series of clever robberies by means of her maimed hand, which are not discovered for some time.

ATTERCLIFFE.—PICTURE PALACE.—Lessee, Mr. Matt Raymond; Resident-Manager, Mr. Edward King.—The excellent programme of pictures here this week includes Terrors of Russia in the Olden Time, A Woman's Repentance, The Navvy's Dream, and Bobby Wide Awake. A pleasing and deservedly applauded musical speciality act is contributed by Mr. Preston Holmes.

BARNSLEY.—TEMPERANCE HALL.—The Royal Canadian Picture Co. have done enormous business during the holidays. The pictures are exceedingly good.

BIRMINGHAM.—QUEEN'S HALL.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. B. Kennedy and J. P. Moore.—The re-opening of this hall with picture entertainments has met with marked success, and the enterprise of the management in securing the latest film subject is meeting with due reward in the shape of full houses. The programme is enriched with smart variety turns, and these prove very acceptable.

BRIGHTON.—COURT THEATRE.—Lessee and Manageress, Mrs. M. Barrasford.—An excellent series of animated pictures is exhibited here this week. The Prince and the Pauper is a splendid film, comprising several interesting and stirring scenes; The Redemption of John Farley and His Lost Love convey stories of a dramatic and pathetic character; and much amusement is afforded by Effects of Eating Dog's Meat and A Postman's Misfortunes. Mr. Arthur W. Briggs materially adds to the enjoyment of the pictures by his very appropriate and descriptive pianoforte accompaniments; Mr. Osland Denner, a well-trained baritone vocalist, contributes much-appreciated songs.

PALACE THEATRE.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs. Jay and Mann; Acting-Manager, Mr. Herbert Kent.—By arrangement with the New Bioscope Trading Co., Ltd., a varied selection of animated pictures is exhibited here. Palermo and Its Surroundings includes a series of picturesque views; Christmas is a very interesting film; Cricket on the Hearth presents Dickens's story in realistic style; and dramatic episodes are portrayed in A Montana Schoolmistress, Sons of the Soil, and A Soldier's Heart; while Evil Spirit in a Boarding-School and Lady Helen's Escapade are diverting.

BRISTOL.—COLSTON HALL.—Poole's Myriorama is attracting a good attendance here, and the variety company is strong and effective.

DARTFORD.—CONSERVATIVE HALL.—The following pictures were shown here last week: A Smart Burglar, Your Turn, Marquis, Course of True Love, The Childless Home, A New Jonah, Christmas, Picturesque Corsica, Animated Cotton, Comata, Sioux Chief, and Romance of a Boot and Dancing Slipper.

DUBLIN.—ROUND ROOM ROTUNDA.—The new and original Irish Animated Picture Co. are doing excellent business here, and the change of pictures, which include A Woman's Repentance, The Strong Arm of the Law; Seal and Walrus Hunting in Arctic Regions; The Black Hand Society; Onawanda, or the Red Indian's Devotion; Scenes of Yokohama's Jubilee, and others, are particularly fine and are heartily enjoyed. The Sisters Colley, Dublin's famous prodigies, in new songs and dances, have become big favourites. Mr. Frank McGrail is very good in Illustrated Songs, and Mr. Henry A. Peters conducts the orchestra in capital style.

PICTURE PALACE. — Lessees, Entertainment Halls, Ltd. — The pictures presented here this week are as follows: An Alpine Echo, When Jack Comes Home, The Burglar and the Champagne, Teaching a Husband a Lesson, Yachting at Cowes, For Her Sake, and Oliver Twist.

VOLTA.—The new pictures shown here include The Waterfalls of Tannforsen in Sweden, The Fascination of the Snow Mountain Peaks, Little Jules Verne, Love and Native Land, and the Interrupted Appointment.

DUNDEE.—PALACE THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. J. J. Bennell; Acting-Manager, Mr. Tom Lunn.—A fine holiday programme is presented here this week, and Mr. Lunn is kept exceedingly busy indeed. Several films representing incidents of world-wide interest and touching scenes in everyday life are vividly portrayed. Of the latter class, one entitled The Child Benefactor creates a fine impression. Among others shown are Tommy Lad and An Attempt to Smash a Bank.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. J. J. Bennell.—A capital show of pictures is presented here. A sensational view, A Captain's Honour, is shown with exceptional brilliance. The lecturettes by Mr. Tom Imeson add much to the pleasure of the display.

GILFILLAN HALL.—The B.B. Picture Company had a big house on Monday evening, when they started their concluding week here. Quite a host of films are exhibited, keen excitement being manifested when the view entitled A Duel in Mid-Air was thrown on the screen. Humorous films are numerous, and include an outstanding one entitled Two Strings to Her Bow.

NEWMAN'S PICTURE PALACE.—Lessee, Mr. Fred. Newman; Acting-Manager, Mr. Jack Noble.—A good holiday programme is presented here this week, and at every performance this cosy hall is packed by delighted audiences.

EDINBURGH.—OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and General-Manager, Mr. J. H. Sanders.—Mr. Sanders is giving splendid value to his patrons this week, and the special performances, six daily, are attracting very large holiday audiences. White Sea Fisheries is a realistic subject, in which effects of wind and wave are shown with great realism. The Sleeping Beauty displays in elaborate and beautiful films the old fairy tale, while The Indian Scout adds a dramatic touch in its suggestion of adventure in the Wild West to a bill replete with variety and interest. The Humour of Christmas and Hypnotic Suggestion are much to the taste of the spectators, and in the comedy turns provided by Mr. Fred Collins there are elements of fun which are heartily recognised.

PRINGLE'S PICTURE PALACE.—General-Manager, Mr. George Edmunds.—An excellent series of films is being shown this week. Lost in Siberia is a very interesting and sensational subject, and Muggins, V.C., tells of a soldier's bravery on the field of battle. There are several humorous pictures; while Mr. W. H. Smart, "Harry Lauder's Brother-in-law," is very amusing and Miss Kitty Lavigne contributes a charming turn.

FALKIRK.—TOWN HALL.—For the second week in succession Mr. Ralph Pringle's North American Animated Picture Co. has been showing in the Town Hall to crowded houses. The films are capital. The variety turns this week include the famous Scottish comedian N. C. Bostock and Billy Ross and company, singers, dancers, &c.

GLASGOW.—GAIETY, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. J. J. Bennell; Acting-Manager, Mr. George Dickinson.—To suit the holiday traffic, an attractive list of films, in which the humorous predominate, and several singing items, form the features of this week's display.

GREAT YARMOUTH.—THE GEM.—Managing-Director, Mr. E. V. Barr.—A fine series of pictures is being exhibited this week. A highly-interesting dramatic film, entitled The Restoration, is well received; and another amusing incident in the career of Foolshead is very entertaining. By means of the Gemophone some of the latest successes of Drury Lane pantomime are put on and are very popular.

GREENOCK.—EMPIRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. J. Bennell; Acting-Manager, Mr. F. L. Clayton.—Variety marks the excellent series of pictures exhibited this week. Schaffhausen is a beautiful coloured picture which shows the wonderful falls on the river Rhine; The Lie is a powerful dramatic picture depicting incidents of the Franco-Prussian War, and others which stand out prominently are The Motherless Waif and Noel. The amusing pictures in the programme include The Motor Cyclist, The Two Mr. Whites, and Bobby Wide-awake.

GUERNSEY. — RECTORY HALL. — Lessee, Mr. Albany Ward.—On Monday Albany Ward's Imperial Electric Pictures entered on its second week. This class of entertainment is evidently keenly appreciated, judging from the crowds that pay for admission. New films are added, one of special interest being Shackleton's Dash to the South Pole. The Unseizable Pickpocket, Father's Quiet Sunday, and Bobby's Practical Jokes cause roars of laughter, while Lost, Stolen, or Strayed and A Sailor's Romance appeal to the sentimental. The Stolen Bride is particularly good, and other subjects all please. The Cinephone Singing Pictures complete a good show.

HANLEY.—KING'S.—Lessees, Messrs. Moore and Kennedy; Manager, Mr. H. Kennedy.—The packed houses at each show are thoroughly enjoying the following versatile programme:—Justified, Foolshead at Pokenose, When Willie Changes Places with his Boss (very funny), The Talisman (a very pretty and original pantomime picture), Nick Carter (a cleverly-thought-out film), In Love with a Picture Girl, and The Jockey, one of the finest films ever shown. The vaudeville items presented by Palette and his dog Max are causing quite a sensation here.

HARTLEPOOL.—EMPRESS THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Albert Maxsted.—Two large audiences nightly are testifying to the popularity of Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope pictures. The Fisherman is a splendid dramatic tale of the sea, well told. Capital dramatic subjects are also A Modern Highwayman and In the Dead of Night. A splendid stern view of Ursula, the fatest motor boat in the world, is particularly interesting, and How a Sailor is Made is also watched with keen interest. Heaps of comedy are provided in The Brigand, When Prison Bars Are Useless, and Wonderful Machine Oil. A "go-as-you-please" competition takes place each evening, the final for which is announced for Saturday night.

HOUGHTON-LE-SPRING.—THE TOWN HALL PICTURE PALACE was opened on Monday, by Mr. Fred Wood, M.H.A.R.A. The programme consisted of a very fine display of animated pictures, and included three first-class turns by Mr. Baron Davies, Mr. Joe Burgess, and the musical sketch, entitled Britain's Pride.

KETTERING.—VINT'S ELECTRIC PALACE.—Proprietor, Leon Vint; General-Manager, Arthur Brogden.—Both houses were crowded on Monday night, and the programme gave entire satisfaction. The pictures included: The Little Teacher, The Golden Spider, Macbeth, and Wrestling. The Dubrees and Harry King supplied the variety turns.

KIRKCALDY.—EXCHANGE PAVILION.—Licensee, Dr. Walford Bodie; Manager, Mr. George Lee.—The London Safety Bioscope Company successfully catered for their numerous patrons during the holiday week, and presented a tip-top show. The entirely new film Nero, the burning of Rome, is a picture of unequalled grandeur, light and shade being beautifully marked, while the realism of the piece proves most effective. Without exception this is the finest film ever shown anywhere. The Orphan's Christmas, Billy Muggins, V.C., A Patient from the Country, &c., are also good. Mr. George Park sings some well-known baritone songs in true artistic style; Mr. Harold Carlyle proves himself a versatile comedian; while Master George Henday is highly pleasing in his chorus songs rendered in an à-la Lashwood manner. Dainty Doretta is also a very good turn.

LEAMINGTON.—ELECTRIC THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs. Gillsmiths, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Harry Plant.—Another very entertaining programme of pictures is provided at this popular palace of amusement, which meets with the hearty approval of crowded audiences nightly. The principal pictures include The Mill (a beautiful coloured film), The Bootmaker's Revenge, and Poorluck's Wedding, whilst others of an interesting and amusing character are A Day in Venice, Lilian's Christmas Day, For Gold and Glory, The Gulf of Salerno, and Bringing Home the Lamp. Both the artists, Miss Mina Langton and Mr. Horace Bernards, continue to delight the audiences with their artistically-rendered illustrated songs. Miss Maud Hummerston ably presides at the piano.

LEICESTER.—EMPIRE.—Lessees, The New Bioscope Trading Company; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chas. R. Craig.—The two big pictures in another excellent assortment are Was Justice Served? and Won in the Desert. Others shown include Learning to Dance, Mr. Inquisitive, Wanted a Housekeeper, Mulligan's Waterloo, The Heart of Gavroche, Empire Day in Sydney, A Wonderful Remedy, Grin and Win, Jones's Amateur Theatricals, The Broken Window, Through the Child, and A Share of the Poor. Lottie Lonsdale, a local favourite, is also making a successful first appearance here.

TEMPERANCE HALL.—Secretary, Mr. W. S. Rosie; Hall-Manager, Mr. Geo. Stanyon.—Mr. Walter Jeffs' present visit here will be brought to a close this (Saturday) evening. The usual excellent and diversified programme has been submitted during the week, including, by special desire, Mr. Jeffs' great sensation War in the Air, showing the future possibilities of an aerial invasion of England. The other films shown include The Huguenot, Sleeping Pills (one of Nick Carter's adventures), A Journey to Delhi, Lion Hunting in Wildest Africa, La Poupée, Fire Brigade at Drill, A Sailor's Vengeance, The Emerald Isle, A Tour Through Wales, Aviation Up-to-date, Politicians of the Day, Grand Comic Christmas Pantomime, The Housebreaker and the Champagne, One-Legged Beggar, and Weary Bones. In addition, Miss Dora Kingsley, in new illustrated ballads; Mr. Walter Rosette, in his illustrated recitals; and Miss Miriam Kananovitch, the juvenile musical prodigy, have appeared with success.

LIVERPOOL.—THE PALAIS DE LUXE CINEMA (late Tivoli), Lime-street, has certainly caught on, its success since the opening, several months ago, being somewhat remarkable. The show is a continuous one, patrons being allowed to enter when they please, and remain any length of time, while tea is served free between four and six o'clock in the afternoon. This alone is a big attraction for ladies shopping in town. The films shown are of the finest and freshest character. The management has consequently found it necessary to number the tickets of admission in order to deal fairly with their numerous patrons. There is again a pleasing variety in the programme, the many pictures exhibited including A Wedding Among the Rag and Bone Merchants and A Story of Circus Life, in addition to a thrilling scene of domestic tragedy, entitled Justified.

LLANELLY.—PICTUREDROME.—This week a champion solo competition (open to all) has been held. A prize of one guinea and a week's engagement was the reward. The pictures shown were: Further Adventures of the Little Chimney Sweeps, Italian Field Artillery, A Mother's Love, Life in a Gipsies' Camp, Italian Waterfalls and Fountains, The Glacier's Secret, and For the Money's Sake.

NEATH.—PALACE.—Proprietor, Mr. Leon Vint; Resident-Manager, Mr. Arthur Noice.—An excellent bill of fare is produced this week. A Russian Girl's Heroism is a fine subject; Wanted, a Child, unfolds a pathetic tale of parental love; and For Her Sake is well received. Among the amusing subjects, our old friend Foolshead is in trouble again. The obstinate Mule and Ma-in-Law Must Fly cause great laughter, also Marrying the Servant. The Brady and Johnson team are decidedly good.

NEWPORT.—CINEMATOGRAPH LICENSING.—At a special meeting of Newport Town Council last Friday, the Mayor (Mr. W. M. Blackburn) presiding, applications were considered for licences under the Cinematograph Act, 1909. A licence was granted for the Tredegar Hall, but the opinion was expressed that the screen and pay-box at the entrance should be removed. With reference to the Empire, it was stipulated that there should be an automatic contrivance for extinguishing a flame and a ventilator. The Central Hall and Temperance Hall proprietors had not complied with the Act, and licences were not issued to them. In the case of the Tivoli at Pill and Danter's Hall in Clarence-place, the buildings were declared to be unsuitable.

NORTHAMPTON. — TEMPERANCE HALL.—Secretary, Mr. G. Skempton; Resident-Manager for Andrews' Pictures, Mr. Frank Lyndon.—The principal dramatic themes this week are Justified, a story of a loveless marriage; The Mysterious Packet, a detective subject; and Good for Evil, a story with a moral. The comic subjects are new and entertaining.

NORTH SHIELDS.—BOROUGH THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. George Black; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Black, jun.—Splendid business has again been done here, thanks to the excellent programme provided, the principal pictures being Gentle Hearts, Truth Will Out, The Tale of My Life, &c. Hal Croueste, light comedian and character actor, appears and meets with great success.

HOWARD HALL.—Another enjoyable programme is again put forward here, The Patriot's Daughter, The Restoration, The Butcher's Bill, and other films being greatly enjoyed.

GAIETY.—Manager, Mr. A. Eskdale.—This popular little hall has again had a fair share of patronage. The leading films this week include Briton and Boer, The Minstrel, A Perilous Mission, &c. Fred Baxter, the favourite baritone, is paying a return visit, and is as popular as ever.

OLDHAM.—ROYAL THEATRE—General-Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Kilrow.—A capital programme is provided this week. A Story of Circus Life topping the bill. This is a very good picture, depicting the hardships of equestrian artists. The Blind Man is a most pathetic film, and takes well. A wonderful adventure film is Bobby Wide Awake, and it raises much applause. The amusing pictures are very funny and include The Lamp and Mr. Foolshead Steals a Carpet. Mr. Don Cameron also sings some well-illustrated songs with good results.

HIPPODROME—General-Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr. L. King.—The Two Orphans is a good headline, and other very good pictures are also in the bill. The amusing films include Foolshead's Christmas, The Motor Cyclist, and Unending Discussion. The Rhine Waterfalls is a good travel picture, and others are also very good. Mr. King contributes "Killarney."

SALFORD.—OPERA HOUSE AND ASSEMBLY ROOMS, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. Turner; General-Manager, Mr. Herbert Raymond; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. Shepherd.—The Change of Hearts (a powerful drama) and other excellent films, including The Dragon's Helmet, The Ragpicker's Christmas, &c., are given twice nightly to packed houses, who also enjoy the illustrated songs by Mr. Tom Sherlock.

NEW CENTRAL HALL.—Proprietors, Matt Raymond Co.; Manager, Mr. A. H. Gilbert.—The Raymond pictures include Muggins, V.C., Two Strings to Her Bow, The Gas Inspector, Before and After Marriage, The Light that Came, and Reforming a Husband, and draw big houses (twice nightly). Mr. Gilbert sings "It looks like a big night to-night" (illustrated), and "My home is far away."

SHEFFIELD.—GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. A. W. Turpin.—The Aerial Warfare of the Future and other wonderful animated pictures are presented here to large audiences by Mr. Fred Baugh.

MONTGOMERY HALL.—Mr. Henry Hibbert's interesting programme this week includes A Trip to Blackpool, Hiring a Girl, Through the Riviera in a Motor-car, Follow-Me-at-Three, A Theatre Pass (a screamingly funny film), An American Marriage, &c.

SOUTHEND-ON-SEA.—THEATRE DE LUXE.—The directors of the Theatre de Luxe, through their manager (Mr. J. W. Hemming), invited one hundred children from the Nazareth House to witness their pictures on Tuesday afternoon last. The children seemed to enjoy the pictures judging from their appreciation and laughter during the performance. On leaving the theatre each child was presented with an orange, a mince pie, and a bag of sweets by the management.

STALYBRIDGE.—ODDFELLOWS' HALL.—Lessees, Messrs. A. and H. Andrews; Manager, Mr. W. Llewellyn. An excellent programme is drawing good houses. Among the many pictures shown are A Pompeian Martyr, The Hunting Meet, The Mad Miner, The Leather Stocking, The Silkworm, a very beautiful picture showing the different stages in the life of this wonderful insect; True Love Never Runs Smooth, Where Prison Bars are Useless, A New Kind of Athlete, Uncle Learns Hypnotism, an amusing picture which provides the audience with plenty of laughter. Illustrated songs are rendered at each performance.

FORESTERS' HALL. — Lessees, Bros. Lens; Manager, Mr. Frank Lens. — The above hall has opened, and for the first week the management has secured Entombed Alive, Laddie, Unexpected Santa Claus, Sole Legatee, Yokohama's Jubilee, The Bank Smash, Missionary and the Maid, The Motor Cyclist, Roneo Turns Brigand, and A Conquest. Miss Frankie Barton is a pleasing vocalist, and Miss Molly Rayne, with her catchy songs, soon has the audience joining with her in the choruses. Mr. Russell Hatton introduces some very smart work with his twenty-five heads under one hat.

SUNDERLAND.—PALACE THEATRE.—Hamilton's Pictures and Varieties Company.—Large crowds are gathering here this week, and a good all-round programme is submitted. George Penn is a good singer and dancer, and his turn was warmly applauded; Charles Dare's Minstrels scored an instantaneous success; Ted Karno and company present an amusing sketch; the pictures include Comedy and Tragedy and Gentle Hearts, and are all of good quality.

AVENUE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Richard Thornton; General-Manager, Mr. Harry Esden.—The pictures and varieties at this house are of exceptional quality, and have attracted large holiday crowds this week. A Western Cowboy Story is the principal film, and a very powerful one indeed; Mr. Gadabout's Christmas was the source of much laughter. Gertie Gordon sang and danced to the entire satisfaction of all; Bell and Dryden kept their audience well amused; and D. W. Watson was warmly applauded for his instrumental solos.

TODMORDEN.—TOWN HALL. — The Martell Vandeville Company are submitting a truly magnificent programme this week, which is well appreciated by crowded houses. A beautiful scenic picture of logging in Canada is Down the Isar on a Timber Raft; A Brutal Master being a pathetic dramatic; while The Merry Widower produces roars of laughter. The Murder of the Duc D'Enghien, an historic film of Napoleon's time, is very fine, the stirring incidents being closely followed. A beautiful coloured pantomime picture is Blue Bird, while the Race for a Monkey made the audience clamour for an encore. The Jockey is the title of a splendid film of the racecourse. We first see the trainer's daughter confessing her love for Jim Blackwood the apprentice, who is anxiously awaiting his chance to ride in a race. As the hour of the great race approaches the regular jockey is found drunk, and Jim gets his chance. The starting-gate rises, the horses are off, and Jim, amidst great excitment, wins the race to the unspeakable delight of his sweetheart. Jim is persuaded by an unscrupulous bookmaker to dope the favourite for the St. Leger, but his sweetheart overhears the plot and exchanges the favourite for another horse, which Jim dopes. The favourite wins the race, and in the final scene Jim's sweetheart forgives him, and all ends happily.

WEST HARTLEPOOL.—PALACE.—Proprietor, Mr. Geo. Black; Manager, Mr. R. F. Hill.—Black's justly popular pictures are a strong holiday attraction, and fill the house twice nightly. There is excellent variety this week. The Light that Failed is a pretty film of a pathetic tendency, showing incidents in the life of a blind musician. The Child Benefactor and The Fatal Wedding, two dramatic subjects, are very entertaining. There is much that is humorous, particularly The Gas Inspector, Jones Eats Kangaroo, Baudoni is a favourite here, who never fails to please, and his original musical act is much enjoyed.

WIGAN.—NEW PAVILION.—Lessees, the U.S.A. Animated Picture Co.; Manager, Mr. Fletcher Sansome.—Another capital bill of fare is submitted here this week to crowded houses, the films being exceptionally fine. The Cricket on the Hearth, a splendid dramatisation of that story by Charles Dickens, is well received. Onawanda, a tale of an Indian's devotion to his employer, and The Jilt, a story of American society life, comprise the chief pictures. Several very amusing pictures are shown, amongst them being His Wife's Wine, The Talisman, The Winning Coat, and a beautifully coloured film, entitled Diamond Cut Diamond. Eugene and Willie, comedy musical artists, created much amusement.

WORKINGTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. Mack.—A good set of pictures and some good variety, including the Baltzens, Japanese jugglers, and Wee Tokio.

CARNEGIE HALL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Stanley Rogers.—Good houses witness a full display of films. The variety is also up to date and funny, including The Bohemians and up-to-date "Mr. E."

YNYSHIR.—WORKMEN'S HALL.—Lessees, Messrs. Pooles, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. W. Bynorth.—A programme of excellent pictures is shown this week. The chief are Muggins, V.C., a finely staged dramatic picture of a village lad in an Indian frontier war, who, by a brave deed, wins back the affection of his sweetheart; and The Brothers, an absorbing tale of self-sacrifice. Others include: Automatic False Teeth, Wonderful Machine Oil, Conscription Under Napoleon, A Childless Home, Three Neighbours, and a most beautiful panoramic view of Bettws-y-coed. Miss May McPherson is most successful in illustrated songs. The Cinephone is highly appreciated.

YORK.—HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. T. Bowman; Managing-Director, Mr. G. W. Wilburn.—The Incemores, living marionettes, are proving very attractive; Dolly Vince is a pleasing coon vocalist; and Eric Walmore a comedian of great merit. The pictures include The Gold Digger's Son, Fun with a Cigar, and The Pseudo Lady's Maid. Large audiences continue the rule.

VICTORIA HALL.—Lessee, Mr. Sidney Bacon; Resident-Manager, Bert Rutter.—Red Wing's Gratitude is a very fine film, well received. The Little Flower Girl's Gratitude is specially fine; and Jack Binns is an up-to-date comedian.

PROVINCIAL THEATRICALS.

SWINDON.—EMPIRE THEATRE.—Proprietors, The Wiltshire Entertainments Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Alfred Manners. — Mr. Leonard Boyne's company in Raffles is paying a welcome return visit here. Mr Reginald Dance meets with an enthusiastic reception in his portrayal of Raffles; the Earl of Amersteth finds a capital exponent in Mr. Arthur Willoughby; Mr. Arthur Fitzgerald ably plays Viscount Crowley; Mr. E. W. Thomas gives a meritorious impersonation of Curtis Bedford; Mr Harold West acquits himself creditably as Harry Manders, and a capable character study of Crawshay is presented by Mr. Oswald Griffiths. Miss Agnes Knights does well as Lady Melrose; Miss Marjorie Unette is a natural Lady Ethel; Miss Frances Titheradge makes a charming Gwendoline Conran; Miss Molly Tremaine is an effective Mrs. Vidal; and the Marie of Miss Beatrice Fitzgerald is good. Jerry and a Sunbeam precedes.

TONYPANDY.—ROYAL.—General-Manager, Mr. Sam Duckworth.—Mr. Fredk. Melville's company, in Married to the Wrong Man, is a wonderfully strong attraction; Mr. H. Lonsdale as Jack Gladwin presents a masterly piece of acting; Captain Dering is capably undertaken by Mr. G. Arthur; Mr. Leonard S. Harrison does well as Sergeant Manners; Mr. Henry Fielding provides much amusement as Timothy Clinker; Miss May Pemberton's asumption of Ruth is very clever; Miss Cissy Bellamy wins favour as Rose O'Connor; Dolly Fritter is played by Miss M. Day in a sparkling manner.

HIPPODROME.—Lessee and General-Manager, Mr. Will Stone.—Ella Blair and her Bowery Boys score heavily here, as also does Tudor with his cleverly-trained ponies; the Herald Comedy Four are well received; Fred S. Howard also gives a good turn; and the leading films are Laddie and Broncho Breaking.

EMPIRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Walter Wright.—Tom Thomas, the undefeated middle-weight champion of Great Britain, has taken to the boards, and makes his first apearance here—at home—where he worthily tops the bill; Jan Rudenyi and company meet with a hearty reception, as do the Wittington Trio of acrobats; the Six White Boys present a neat turn. Other accptable items are given by the Cromwells, Fritz Von Liston, Leah Arden, and G. F. Hall. The Empireoscope reveals the recent Thomas V. Wilson fight at the N.S.C.

TORQUAY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Managing-Director, Alderman W. H. Mortimer; Secretary, Mr. Arthur Pearse.—Mr. John A. Thomson's pantomime The Sleeping Beauty is running with much success here, and good audiences continue to assemble nightly. Miss Adele Roze fully maintains her popularity as the principal boy, and her singing of "I can picture Polly" is frequently encored; Miss Alyce Willyams, in the title-rôle, gives a winsome impersonation, Miss Emmie King and Miss Ethel Scorey being equally well placed as Boy Blue and Bo-Peep respectively; Miss Ethel Broad wins applause as the Fairy; Mr. Dan Belmore as the Yellow Dwarf is quite in his element; Mr. Jo Monkhouse is exceedingly quaint as Bamboozleum, a part in which he is admirably seconded by Mr. Richard Teasdalo as the King, and much merriment is caused by their antics; Mr. Sydney Godfrey is a Dame of considerable resource and has a good make-up; Mr. Edward Hanlon and Mr. Charles Harlin are amusing comedians and work very hard; and Mr. Edward Freeling is decidedly droll as Tommy Trout. The singing and daintly dancing of the large chorus add considerably to the success of the performance.

WAKEFIELD.—OPERA HOUSE. — Proprietors, Sherwood and Co.—Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Kimbeley's company is here in A Soldier's Honour. Mr. T. Arthur Ellis gives a manly rendering as Captain Deane, the hero; Mr. Jerrold E. Reed does full justice to the part of Captain Gerald Temple; Mr. Andrew Money is seen to advantage as the villain, Henry Thornton; the rôle of General Rochester is effectively filled by Mr. Ernest C. Edwards; and Mr. Harry Lyndon does well as Lieutenant Brattle. Miss Edie Macklin is an excellent Jemima Eliza; Miss Lilian Burns gives a good representation as Cora Lee; Miss Isa Lyndon makes a sympathetic Doreen Illingworth; a clever juvenile is found in Little Olive as Queenie Deane; and Miss Zara Leigh is pleasing as Gwendoline Temple.

NEW EMPIRE.—Proprietors, Sherwood and Co.—Mr. Fred Karno's company admirably present two sketches, Skating and Mumming Birds, which cause great amusement. In the former sketch some clever fancy skating is contributed by the Sisters Jackson and Arthur Weston. Mr. Walter Purvis, comedian, is popular; the Herrsleb Brothers are smart comedy gymnasts; and Mr. Stanley Buxton, comedian, and Miss Blanche Vincent, comedienne, also give pleasing turns. The Bioscope exhibits excellent coloured pictures.

HIPPODROME. — Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. Sydney Tolfree.—Mr. E. E. Howard and Co. win applause for their clever acting in the sketch Fight in a Lighthouse; Mr. Horace Wheatley, comedian, has an enviable reception; Mr. Alex Lukos is an entertaining protean artist; Mr. Alec Holt, mimic, provides a capital turn; Mr. Tom E. Conover sings well; and Miss Doris Daze is a clever dancer.

WARRINGTON. — ROYAL COURT.—Proprietor, Mr. J. Beecham; General-Manager, Mr. A. M. Loader.—Messrs. Smith and Carpenter's company is here in Two Little Vagabonds. Miss Dorothy Milne gave a natural representation of the sorely-tried Marion Thornton; Miss Mabel Cooke as Barbara Scarth was thoroughly efficient; and Miss Katharine Maude made a pleasing Nurse Randall. Welcome touches of humour were contributed by Miss Marie Pritchard; and Miss Ida Taylor was good as a maid servant; Miss Helen Grenville played with conspicuous success as Dick; and the consumptive Wally, as enacted by Miss Ivy Millais, soon won the sympathy of the house; Mr. Frank Beresford scored as George Thornton; and Captain Darville was capably enacted by Mr. Charles Brock; Mr. Edward Beecher was satisfactory as John Scarth; and Mr. C. Arthur Fairfax rendered good service as Leeson. An excellent study of Bill Mullins was given by Mr. Charles L. Ludlow; and the same remark applies to Philip Beaufoy as Dido Bunce and Mr. Fred Archer as the Coughdrop.

PALACE AND HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Eric Longden.—Albert and Edmunds company are delighting large houses here this week with the absurdity The Tower of London. The company also scores in the harlequinade; Ted Curtis and Picos make a hit with their dancing act; Alex Lofton is a smart coloured comedian and little Miss Muffett a dainty artist; Dale and Dale score as vocalists and dancers; and Bessie Neilson's illustrated songs are much enjoyed.

ROYAL THEATRE OF VARIETIES. — Proprietors, The Central Theatres and Franco-British Animated Picture Co.; Managing-Director, Mr. Wilberforce Turner; Manager, Mr. J. Waters.—There is another excellent array of pictures here this week.

WEST BROMWICH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. R. Nightingale.—Mr. Walter Melville's company is here in The Girl Who Took the Wrong Turning, and is no exception to the rule. The company is a very powerful one. Mr. F. Ronald Adair as Willie Mason has a part well suited to him; Mr. Sidney Sarl as Bill Slater is good; Miss Jessie Belmore as Sophie Coventry is a fine study; and Miss Florence Halton as Lucy Coventry is a charming sketch. The other parts are all well sustained.

NEW HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. R. Colin. — There is plenty of variety at this place of amusement, for in addition to the very excellent pictures clever turns are provided by Kitty Cameron, a comedienne and dancer of much ability; Geo. Castrey, comedian; Yamatamo, who gives a wonderfully clever slack wire performance; and Tamamoto, who is described as the greatest Japanese rope performer in the world. Farmer Skein's version of Zola's famous novel, "L'Assommoir," entitled "A Drama of Drink," also creates a very great impression.

WEST HARTLEPOOL.—GRAND.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Fred Granville.—Fred Granville's Productions, Ltd., No. 1 company is presenting The Better Land. Miss Marguerite Trevosper creditably represents Doris, and Mr. Edward E. Ashby undertakes the rôle of Philip Radcliffe. Mr. Stanley Radcliffe is well suited in the character of Hubert Radcliffe; and Miss Gerty Moody and Miss Emilie Entwistle, two clever and pretty children, are excellent in the rôles of Harry and Tessa.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Richard Thornton; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. F. Thompson.—"Standing room only" was the notice which patrons of this theatre were greeted with at both houses on Monday. The Okabe Family do some marvellous things in the way of balancing and acrobatic tumbling; Agnes Molteno is an operatic vocalist of considerable repute and also an expert on the piano, and her sketch A Dolly and Coach, in which she is assisted by her company, is thoroughly enjoyed; King and Queen are funny in their comedy sketch, introducing much that is original; some clever imitations are submitted by O'Gust, the original clown, and fully appreciated; a capital coloured film, The Mill, depicting a Dutch love story with a dramatic ending, is watched with considerable interest; the Ten Loonies in their musical absurdity are funny; and Archie Naish is entertaining at the piano

WESTON - SUPER - MARE.—KNIGHTSTONE PAVILION AND OPERA HOUSE.—Manager, Mr. W. Payne.—Messrs. John A. Thomson and Arthur Squire's pantomime company is paying its annual visit here in The Babes in the Wood. Miss Pattie McCarthy's fine presence and good acting make Robin Hood a charming personage; as Maid Marion Miss Daisy Stone is entitled to the highest encomiums; Allan-a-Dale finds a dashing exponent in Miss Winnie Hypatia; and Miss Ethel Hypatia is decidedly chic as Doris. Miss Cissie Williams as Tom and La Belle Sylvia as Daisy, the Babes, are a great success, their terpsichorean efforts being especially good. As the Dame, Pansy Blossom, Mr. Ross Warren proves himself a comedian far above the average; Mr. William Chandos as Weary Willie and Mr. George Chandos as Tired Tim keep the house thoroughly amused; Mr. Laurie Ray as Baron Graball and Mr. Charles Ross as Blinker, two local favourites, are given a flattering reception; Mr. John Vert's artistic singing makes Will o' the Wisp stand out most prominently. Unstinted praise must be given Miss Norah Prendergast, who sings with rare expression as the Fairy Queen. The quartettes sung by the Merry Foresters are quite a feature of the piece.

WEXFORD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor, Mr. E. P. Ronan.—Mr. Louis Calvert presented Sunday here this week, and on the opening night the performance was patronised by the Mayor and Corporation, as well as the elite of the district. Mr. William Giffard gave a fine impersonation of Colonel Brinthorpe, and Tom Oxley was capitally played by Mr. Richard Trieve; Towzer, Davy, Lively, and Jacky, "The Boys," were entrusted to Messrs. Richard F. Symons, Launcelot St. G. Lowther, James Hussy, and George Marriott, jun., respectively, and their interpretations commanded general praise. Mr. Boyce Williams as Arthur Brinthorpe made the most of the slender opportunities afforded him; Miss Janet Lind deserved all the encomiums showered upon her for her acting in the name part; Miss H. Graham Edwin made a vivacious Mrs. Naresby; and Miss Jessie Stone as the Nun pleased very much.

WHITEHAVEN.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor, Mr. Stanley Rogers; Acting-Manager, Mr. Falconer Jacques.—Messrs. H. Armitage and Arthur Leigh's company provides a strong holiday attraction with Leah Kleschna. Mr. W. Clayton appears to great advantage as Kleschna, and Mr. Chas. Barrett is excellent as Paul Slyvaine; Mr. A. J. Hicks cleverly enacts the character of Raoul, and Mr. E. J. Coyne submits a sterling performance as General Berton; Miss Bessie Rignold's conception of Leah is artistic throughout, and she received repeated applause. For the remaining three nights Lucky Durham is billed.

WIGAN.—ROYAL COURT THEATRE.—Proprietors, The Wigan Entertainments Co.—The Prisoner of Zenda is here and great praise is due to Miss Ida Molesworth and Mr. Mark Blow's company for their interpretation. In the dual character of Rudolf the Fifth and Rudolph Rassendyll Mr. Mark Blow is an eminent success; the part of Michael Duke of Streslau is in the capable hands of Mr. Geo. A. Brandram; Colonel Sapt finds an able exponent in Mr. Julian Cross; Mr. Edgar L. Hentzau; the part of Antoinette de Maubar is smartly handled by Miss Agnes Verity; and Miss R. Barton adapts herself capitally to the rôle of Princess Flavia.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, the Wigan Entertainments Co.—Richard Nightingale's talented company is here in Aladdin. Miss Edna Latonne scores well as Aladdin; and Miss Amy Pauline Gradwell is heard to advantage in the musical numbers of the Genie of the Ring. Miss Marie Radcliffe sings capably as the Slave of the Lamp; Miss Jenny Hackett makes a charming Princess; Mr. Harry Albery and Mr. Joe Perth cause plenty of fun as Widow Twankey and Wishee Washee; and Mr. Walter Bishop creates roars of laughter as Abanazar. Messrs. Francis and Francis are highly diverting as Flip and Flop; and the Bros. Lloyd are applauded for their double bounding cable act.

WOLVERHAMPTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr Charles Barnard.—A very strong attraction is provided here this week by the engagement of H. Armitage and Arthur Leigh's company in With Edged Tools. Prominent in an excellent cast is Mr. Hamilton Deane, who acts with power and earnestness as Jack Meredith; Mr. Henry Nunn gives a quiet but effective rendering of Guy Oscard; quite a feature of the performance is the exceptionally clever portrayal of the villainous half-breed Victor Durnovo by Mr. Arles Conway; Mr. Albert Campbell is successful as Maurice Gordon; and Mr. J. D. Geddes submits a scholarly study of the superstitious Sir John Meredith. Miss Marguerite Cellier has a difficult task in Millicent Chyne, but acquits herself well; Miss Marion Fawcett lends an air of distinction to the part of Lady Cantourne; Marie has a capable exponent in Miss Florence Dulhunty; and Miss Marie Leonhard sustains the part of Jocelyn Gordon with a sweet womanly grace that is positively refreshing. The stage effects in Gordon's Bungalow at Loango are realistic.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. Vivian Evans.—At the top of a good all-round bill is Arthur Lennard, whose character-studies "Sweet seventy-two" and "The woman pays" are rendered in a style which proclaims the true artist; Dalvere and Wallace are a couple of comedians whose methods are as novel as they are entertaining; the Three Dixons are heartily applauded for their singing, dancing, and banjo-playing; the Waltons provide a novel Chinese acrobatic act; Lazern thoroughly mystifies the audience with sleight of hand; Walter Wade, the mimetic comedian, scores heavily with his tenor songs; and other good turns are Mather and Mayer (comedy dancing duo) Two McKays (eccentric comedians), and the Dancing Paceys.

WORKINGTON.—OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Stanley Rogers.—Messrs. Armitage and Leigh have presented Lucky Durham here. Mr. Edmund Kennedy plays well in the title-part, and is ably supported by Miss Florence Tressilian as Helen Vallerton; Mr. Wm. Calvert is a great success as Lord Mountfallon and Arthur Leigh shows promise in the character of Reginald; Nellie Bonser plays the wronged widow with a fine feeling, and Dorrie Turner does well as the Hon. Margaret.

YORK.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees, Messrs. Waddington; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. J. Dacre.—The Dashing Little Duke is one of the prettiest musical plays seen here for some time, and as it is led by Zena Dare in the title-rôle, large audiences have been the rule. Miss Dolly Castles is a picturesque Diane, singing with great expression and taste; the fine voice of Reginald Adair is heard to advantage as De Malignon; Mr. Alec Johnstone renders excellently the part of the Abbé de la Touche; and as the unctuous Baron de Bellechasse Mr. Johnny Danvers is delightfully funny. Miss Nellie Dade is infinitely amusing as the Baroness.

OPERA HOUSE AND EMPIRE. — Managing-director, Mr. Wm. Peacock; Acting-Manager, Mr. Sidney Brook. — A huge success must be accorded Mr. Harry Burns and company in the pantomime Robinson Crusoe. Miss Minnie D'Aubyn is entitled to unstinted praise for her effective impersonation of the title-rôle; Miss Fanny Harris, too, as Polly is popular; as is also Miss Lilly Hayes as Bessie Barr; as Will Atkins Mr. Arthur Aiston scores a distinct success; and nothing could be more droll than the Mrs. Crusoe of Mark Stuart, a first favourite; Mr. F. Henderson is a comical Billy Crusoe; then there is Dan Hendy as Man Friday, Tray and Rich, and Coote's Yankee Doodle Girls.

The Committee of the cinematograph operators will meet on Tuesday to receive the draft reports from the secretary and treasurer for the past year, and to make arrangements for the annual meeting, which is to take place on Tuesday, Jan. 18. The representatives who attended the meeting at the Holborn Restaurant on Wednesday will also give their report. Nominations for any office and for the committee to act during the coming year may now be sent to the secretary, and should reach him by Tuesday next at the office, 29, Wellington-street, Strand.

AMERICAN AMUSEMENTS.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

NEW YORK, Dec. 29.—The School for Scandal was revived in splendid style at the New Theatre on the 15th inst. The effect of more than one scene was marred by the "perversity of inanimate objects" or the bungling of the stage hands, and these little drawbacks to what was otherwise a highly praiseworthy production were rather severely criticised. In fact, one newspaper went to the extreme of enumerating in detail every little contretempts that occurred during the performance. There is a marked tendency, however, in certain quarters to find fault with everything at the New Theatre that falls short of absolute perfection. But, for all that, the excellence of the production, and the performance as a whole, was fully recognised by the highest critical authorities. Miss Grace George appeared for the first time as Lady Teazle, and her interpretation had to stand comparison with past performances of the rôle by eminent players. The comparison being made, however, the general opinion was that Miss George had fulfilled expectations, and had come through the ordeal with flying colours. It is safe to predict that her performance will acquire the finish that makes for perfection as time goes on, and that higher honours will be hers than those which she has already won. As regards the rest of the fine cast selected for this notable revival, suffice it to say that all the characters were ably represented, the various parts being distributed as follows: Joseph Surface, Mr. A. E. Anson; Maria, Miss Olive Wyndham; Mrs. Candour, Miss Rose Coghlan; Sir Peter Teazle, Mr. Louis Calvert; Charles Surface, Mr Matheson Lang; Mr. Crabtree, Mr. Albert Bruning; Sir Benjamin Backbite, Mr. Ferdinand Gottschalk; Sir Oliver Surface, Mr. E. M. Holland; Moses, Mr. Lee Baker; Trip, Mr. Oswald Yorke; Careless, Mr. Henry Stanford; Lady Sneerwell, Miss Thais Lawton; Snake, Mr. Cecil Yapp; Sir Harry Bumper, Mr. Charles Balsar; and Rowley, Mr. Jacob Wendell, jun.

"CAMEO KIRBY," a play in four acts, by Booth Tarkington and Harry Leon Wilson, has been well received at the Hackett Theatre. The scenes are laid in Louisiana, in 1832, the days of frilled shirts, tight boots, and pantaloons for the men and of ringlets and crinolines for the women. Consequently Cameo Kirby is a "costume play" as well as a reproduction of certain phases of Franco American life in Louisiana that proves decidedly interesting. The action is from sunrise to sunrise, the scenes showing Madame Davezac's house in New Orleans, and the plantation owned by the Randall family outside of the city. The head of the house of Randall has been fleeced by a Mississipi River gambler, and, in a state of drunkeness has deeded away his plantation. The victim has killed himself, and his son learns from Colonel Moreau that the gambler was Cameo Kirby. The latter fights a duel with Moreau, and kills him. To avoid arrest, he climbs to a balcony and hides in the house of Mme. Davezac, where he is mistaken for Colonel Moreau, and according'y impersonates him, the Colonel being expected at the time as a visitor. Kirby eludes his pursuers by riding with Adele Randall and her friends to the plantation, where he falls in love with her, being still unrecognised as Kirby, the gambler. In the end, of course, his identity is disclosed, and the son learns that it was really Moreau who swindled his father, Kirby having entered the game in order to save the planter and restore his property when he became sober. This being made clear, Kirby carries out his original intention, and hands over the deed to Miss Randall, whose affection he has won, and who agrees to marry him.

Mr. Dustin Farnum, having the advantage of a romantic personality, makes Cameo Kirby a highly attractive personage. Such an heroic and gentlemanly gambler may never have been encountered in real life, but in the theatre nobody will remember that.

MISS NANCE O'NEIL has scored a great success as Odette de Maigny, in The Lily, a drama adapted from the French of MM. Pierre Wolff and Gaston Leroux by David Belasco, which was recently produced in Washington, and then described. The play was brought to the Stuyvesant Theatre, New York, on the 23rd inst, and was received with enthusiasm by a crowded house. Miss O'Neil, who portrayed a self-sacrificing "old maid" of thirty-five, the victim of a father's selfishness, who gives up everything in life worth having in order to preserve the so-called "family honour," electrified the audience with her denunciatory outburst at the end of the third act. As the curtain descended there was a storm of handclapping, and from all parts of the house came shouts of approval. In a lifetime of theatre-going one would rarely witness such a scene. The curtain was raised so many times that one lost count, and although the entire company was liberally applauded, the storm became a hurricane when Miss O'Neil appeared alone. Doubtless there were many in the audience thinking of the old adage, "Everything comes to him who waits." The Lily is a powerful play, and it is admirably acted all round. Mr. Charles Cartwright's impersonation of the Comte de Maigny is a masterly performance. Not forgetting his Kleschna, the burglar, or his Bennett, the butler, his portrayal of this arrogant and selfish old aristocrat is the finest thing he has done on this side of the water at any rate. Mr. Belasco has another success on his hands. The Lily will stay at the Stuyvesant till the end of the season.

MR. WILLIAM A. BRADY will call his new theatre in West Forty-eighth-street The Playhouse. It will be built in the Tudor style of architecture, with interior finish and decorations of the old English type. The stage and scenic devices will be modelled after those of the Prinz Regent Theatre, in Munich. Miss Grace George will open the new theatre, and will fulfil long engagements there each season, appearing in several of the old English comedies.

"MRS. DAKON," a drama in four acts, by Kate Jordan, was recently produced at the Hackett Theatre, the play being performed at special matinées. Mrs. Dakon is a selfish, frivolous woman. Having jilted Lawrence Brundage because he was not rich enough to stand her extravagance, she has married Dakon, he being a wealthy widower with a daughter named Ruth. Dakon loses his money, and his wife runs away from him, leaving a note to say that Brundage has enticed her to New York. Reaching the Metropolis, she slips into Brundage's apartment at a late hour, relying on his old affection for her, and hoping to persuade him to marry her after she has obtained a divorce from Dakon. But Brundage has no such intention, and insists on her returning to her home forthwith. Before she can leave, however, a telegram comes to say that Dakon has committed suicide, and she swoons as the curtain falls on the first act.

Eight years later, the child Ruth has grown to girlhood, and is living with her stepmother on a liberal income secretly supplied by Brundage without Ruth's knowledge. He has returned from South America, and Mrs. Dakon still has hopes of becoming his wife, but an attachment springs up between Brundage and Ruth, and the older woman witnesses an ardent love scene which throws her into hysterics. Brundage is determined that Ruth shall be made acquainted with the circumstances of her father's death, and it is understood that Mrs. Dakon is to tell her. But, fearing to lose her stepdaughter's love, the woman produces some old love letters that Brundage wrote her before her marriage, making it appear that they were written afterwards, and were the cause of her downfall. Ruth naturally turns against Brundage, believing her mother to be the victim of his treachery to her father, and Brundage the cause of his death. When she learns that he has been supplying them with money, she compels her mother to give up the income from that source, and they go to Paris, where Ruth paints pictures for a living. A year later Brundage finds them struggling along, and demands an explanation of Ruth's unaccountable opposition to him. Mrs. Dakon, who is about to marry again, is forced to confess the truth about the letters, and Ruth's love for Brundage is revived when she learns that he was not to blame for her father's death.

Miss Dorothy Dorr played the title-rôle effectively, and Miss Laurette Taylor distinguished herself as Ruth Dakon, winning high praise from the critics. As Lawrence Brundage Mr. Robert Warwick was earnest and sincere, and the other parts were well acted. The play is to be put on for a run shortly under the more appropriate name of Mrs. Dakon's Daughter.

OWING to Mr. Forbes Robertson's success in The Passing of the Third Floor Back at Maxine Elliott's Theatre, New York, and the unwillingness of Miss Elliott to disturb the run, the Schuberts have had to find another playhouse for Miss Elliott's season. Consequently it has been arranged that she shall appear at Daly's Theatre, New York, on Jan. 2 in Deborah of Tod's.

MR. GEORGE LASHWOOD is singing "In the Twi-twi-twilight" at the American Music Hall. He has "caught on" and is already a great favourite at the William Morris houses.

MISS CECILIA LOFTUS, who returns to London shortly, is appearing at the Plaza Music Hall. An evening newspaper says, "Cecilia looks tremendously British this season." Miss Loftus has added an impersonation of Mme. Sarah Bernhardt to her répertoire. Her imitation of Rose Stahl as the "chorus lady" is perfect, and when she appears as Bert Williams, playing poker, everyone roars with laughter.

MR. GEORGE ARLISS, whose retirement from the cast of Septimus, through illness, was recently announced, has derived so much benefit from a short rest that he intends to resume his part in the play next Monday.

SHOWMEN'S SUPPER AND BALL, BOLTON.

This popular social event in Showland was celebrated with great enthusiasm and enjoyment. Three hundred guests were present. Alderman Dickinson, chairman of the Market and Fair Committee, welcomed the showpeople, and wished them a prosperous and happy New Year. The Guild Chaplain responded for the showfolk, and expressed the pleasure they felt at being once again amongst their friends, the progressive and enlightened people of Bolton. The Showmen's Guild right gladly co-operated with Corporations in the uplifting and betterment of the popular amusements provided by the showmen at our fairs, feasts, and wakes. Arising out of the Bolton Ball and its success, a project was launched to commemorate similarly the Manchester gathering next Wednesday. There will be immediately on the close of the afternoon meeting of the Guild a meat tea for the members, followed by a social evening and a dance. Tickets, 1s. 6d., may be obtained from the members of the committee or direct from T. Hurst, hon. sec.

AT Newport, Mon, for the holidays, were Danter, Matthews, Butler, Fletcher, North, Wright, Shelton, Holmes, Gage, Turner, Williams, Jones, Hitchcock, Gess, Blanch, and others with shows, machines, and fairground novelties. At Burslem were Collins's Wonderland Show No. 1 and No. 2 motors, Davies' roundabouts and yachts. Hayes's park swings, shooters, throwing games &c., by Messrs. Wright, Hayes, Chaplain, Humphreys, Connoy, and others in combination will be at Newcastle, Staffs., for this week end.

"MISS TOMMY."

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—It would be very kind indeed of you to draw Mr. Cyril Maude's attention to the fact that for months I ran a play in the English provinces entitled Miss Tommy, by Jerome K. Jerome. You can prove this by referring to your many criticisms of that play.—Yours faithfully,

ANNIE HUGHES.

Midland Hotel, Manchester,
Jan. 4, 1910.

[We understand that Mr. Maude has decided to alter the name of Mr. Michael Morton's adaptation of La Petite Chocolatiere to Tommy.—ED. of The Era.]

AT the Maidenhead Town Hall Mr. Fred Karno opened a two nights' engagement on Monday with His Majesty's Guests. Mr. Sid Kearns as Sergeant Lightning was the life and soul of the piece, and worked very hard all through. Miss Winnie Bradfield and Mr. Doran Vincent acted well together as Lady Maud and Lord Easem; Mr. Jack Melville was amusing as the comic Curate. An acrobatic interlude in Act 1 was very cleverly performed, and another by Mr. George Hoare, with Mr. Tom Manardo as a dressmaker's dummy, won much applause. Mr. G. Robertson was natural as Mr. Miffin; Mr. Bert Royston caused fun as Fritz; and Miss Kate Brunton was a typical "New Woman." Miss Maggie Morton was billed for Thursday with A Broken Heart.

THIS week the Lancaster Grand Theatre was closed for three nights, reopening on Thursday with Messrs. Bennett and Wray's company, in Miss Hook of Holland.

MR. HARRY BENET'S company is playing The Lady Slavey to crowded holiday houses at the New Gaiety, Ayr. The audiences have been thoroughly enjoying the acting of Miss Nora

PROVINCIAL PANTOMIMES.

"THE HOUSE THAT JACK BUILT" AT DEVONPORT.

Mr. King, the courteous and energetic manager of the Metropole, Devonport, has this year chosen a subject always popular and fascinating with the children. The pantomime was produced on Boxing Day. The first scene is fixed at the Village of Sunnydell, and the powerful chorus quickly illustrate their vocal strength and the thoroughness of their training. Miss Kathleen Emmett as Jack Trot obtains the initial encore for a first-rate rendering of "Mrs. McCoy." Mr. Gilbert Payne—who, by the way, is the author of the book, and is to be heartily congratulated on placing before the public a witty composition—makes his début in this scene as Dame Trot, and quickly ingratiates himself. Messrs. Lapham and Wallen, a genuinely funny pair of comedians, create an excellent impression as Jessem and Jewen at the start with a rag-time song; and Miss Fanny Adamson as Sunshine is responsible for a picture-postcard song, which bids fair to become one of the most popular of the show, whilst the artist incidentally reaps a rich harvest of pictorial cards, which are thrown on the stage by various admirers. In Scene 2, Sir Niggley Grabbe's Pawnbroking Office, Mr. Fred Fulton as Sir Niggley renders "Mr. McCan" in rattling style, and with Mr. Payne he creates roars of laughter by a smart little skit on kleptomania. Scene 3 is illustrative of Dame Trot's Summer Retreat, and here a pretty stage picture is presented, the scenery and dresses of the company blending admirably. In this scene Miss Hilda Deacon as Marjorie Dawe is responsible for a well-executed song and dance, which the audience are not slow in appreciating. The following scene depicts the Flight of an Airship, the machine being most ingeniously constructed. The surrounding scenery being of of a plain greyish white creates a fine cloud effect, and the whole conveys an excellent impression of an aeroplane in full flight. The opening scene in Part II. illustrates the Island of Shoeland, and particular mention must here be made of the excellent scenery, the huge shoes being a source of delight to the children, whilst the scholastic pantomime keeps them on the tip-toe of amused expectation. The elders, too find plenty to keep their risible faculties busily employed as soon as Messrs. Lapham and Wallen appear as a couple of schoolboys. The second scene accords with the accepted notion of the House that Jack Built. Messrs. Lapham and Wallen again score in this scene with a "goey" song, accompanied by some smart step-dancing. The last scene, The Floral Palace, is a very pretty picture, and some finished dancing is here done, thanks to the efforts of the Godfrey Girls, the curtain being finally rung down on an exquisite tableau formed by the company, and the bioscope depicting a revolving Union Jack.

"CINDERELLA" AT DUNDEE.

Mr. Robert Arthur's annual pantomime, which is this year based on the good old fairy story of "Cinderella," was produced at Her Majesty's Theatre, Dundee, on Monday, the 3rd inst. The production this year has been entrusted to Messrs. R. C. Buchanan and Ernest Stevens, and is the same version that had a surprisingly successful season of over ten weeks at the Grand Theatre, Glasgow, last year, and received the rare compliment of being chosen from amongst the countless pantomime stories now before the public to be taken over to the Antipodes, and performed before a Melbourne and Sydney audience. Judging by the enthusiasm of Monday's audience, Cinderella bids fair to outdo all Mr. Robert Arthur's former pantomime successes at this house. The music, which is unusually bright and tuneful, even for a pantomime, has been arranged, selected, and composed by Messrs. Harry Richardson and George M. Saker, who must be heartily congratulated thereon. The lyrics and libretto are by that well-known and expert writer of pantomime books, Mr. Stanley Rogers, who also produces the pantomime for Messrs. Buchanan and Stevens. Mr. Rogers has followed the main lines of the "Cinderella" legend, while also taking full advantage of the licence generally allowed to pantomime writers, and the result is that we have a little of everything, the whole combining to make an entertainment of the very brightest and best.

The production is one of gorgeous splendour, no expense having evidently been spared on costumes, properties, and scenery. The pantomime is divided into two parts, and is played in nine scenes, viz., The Glade, The Baron's Library, Cinderella's Kitchen, The Portals of Fairyland, The Home of the Fairy Godmother, The Royal Ballroom, Exterior of De Debtington Hall, Ante-Room in the Palace, and In the Sweet Springtime. The various sets and cloths, every one of which is a masterpiece of the scene-painter's art, are by Messrs. Harry Brooke and J. Fowler Hogg. An extra special word of praise is due for the scenes entitled The Glade (a magnificent piece of staging and painting), The Home of the Fairy Godmother, The Royal Ballroom (a piece of particularly dainty and artistic colouring), and the concluding scene, In the Sweet Springtime (another excellent set).

Of the cast, which is remarkably well chosen, nothing but the highest praise is due to Mr. Rogers for his able selection. Miss Agnes Tandy is in every way a most successful Prince, her dashing style, clever acting, and charming rendering of her songs, all combine to make her an ideal principal boy. She is possessed of an excellent contralto voice, which she uses with good effect in her songs, "Somewhere," which was rapturously encored, "Health, wealth, and the girl you love," and "Jenny, I'm saving every penny," and in both of these also she made a hit. A delightful little Cinderella is found in Miss Felicia Firmin, who is the possessor of a rich and melodious voice and a dazzling smile. She scored a decided hit with her song "In the jungle," and was also vociferously applauded for her other song, "Little Miss Snowshoes," both of which had to be repeated. Her terpsichorean accomplishments are also of a high order, and in this line her success is also unequivocal and complete. Along with Capers (Mr. W. Leopold, jun.) she also took part in the "Parrot" duet, which proved an attractive number. Miss Dollie Hook is a very dainty Duke of Whistbridge, her contribution of song and dance stamping her as an artist of rare ability. She speaks her lines with delightful clearness and distinctness, and her song "The girl in the clogs and shawl" was rendered with such smartness and point that the audience were loth to let her depart, even after she had responded to several encores. Dandini is pleasingly represented by Mr. Harry Ongar, who sings "I used to sigh for the silvery moon" and "Come and put your arms around me, Georgie, do," very happily. In the latter he is very effectively and picturesquely assisted by the chorus. He also contributes several nimble dances, for which he was loudly cheered. The Baron and Baroness, as played by Messrs. E. Statham Staples and Alfred Clark, two excellent comedians working on widely-contrasted lines, the one lugubriously comic and the other with a ponderous and unctuous type of humour, are ridiculous and diverting personages in the extreme. Messrs. Staples and Clark are the principal fun-providers, and their business in the scene where the Baron has to swallow a compulsory dose of medicine is ridiculously comic; and, in fact, all through the pantomime the audience are kept in fits of unrestrained merriment. Mr. Staples's song, "Don't take me home," caught the fancy of the audience at once, and had to be repeated over and over again. He is a complete master of facial contortion, and created much laughter with his extraordinary dancing. As the Baroness Mr. Alfred Clark keeps up a running flow of quaint malapropisms, while his acting, especially in connection with the ruling of her ineffective spouse, the Baron, is ludicrously funny. He sings with much success "For months, and months, and months," which was provocative of great hilarity. The two elderly daughters of the Baroness, Araminta and Elvira, are played by Miss Ethel Ramsay and Miss Marianne Carozzi respectively, and they play into each other's hands admirably, their quarrelling scenes being capitally managed. Mr. W. Leopold, jun., makes a diverting and agile Capers, whose comical acrobatic dancing caused much amusement. Mr. Harry Carlisle as the Royal flunkey, Joseph, was quaintly comical. Miss Dorothy Moulton makes a handsome Fairy Godmother, and displays a sweet singing voice in "Love makes the whole year June." Misses Molly Beverley, Irene Vaughan, and Annette Vox looked well and acted nicely their respective parts. Speciality dances were introduced by the Lottie Stone Troupe, and these nimble-toed and charming ladies were warm favourites throughout the evening. Special praise must be awarded the chorus, who have evidently been picked with a view to their talents as well as good looks, for their excellent singing and acting, their various evolutions being gone through with much dash and spirit.

Taken altogether on its merits, Cinderella should have a very prosperous career, and we tender Mr. Robert Arthur and his courteous acting-manager here, Mr. Louis Karpe, our warm congratulations. The stage-management is in the hands of Mr. Henry Carlisle, who deserves every credit for the manner in which the various heavy sets were handled on the opening night. The musical-director is Mr. Ernest Wolfe, and right well did he perform his duties. The elaborate costumes are by Miss Hall, Miss Adela Jackson, and Messrs. H. and M. Rayne. A beautifully-designed carriage, brilliantly lit with electricity, and drawn by two pretty little ponies standing some thirty inches high, is an important factor of the production, and is a special delight to the children. In a word, Cinderella is a huge success.

"CINDERELLA" AT LEEDS.

Mr. John Hart's pantomime Cinderella, at the Grand Theatre, opened with great success, and, judging by the crowded houses, it seems as though it will equal any of its predecessors in popularity. We always look to the Grand Theatre to give us something worthy for all Yorkshire pantomime lovers to journey to, and it will quite come up to the anticipation of its visitors. The whole pantomime is bright and artistic, with not a touch of vulgarity, and crowded out with mirth from start to finish. Indeed, during a course of some twenty annual pantomime visits here, we do not remember seeing such a funny comedian as Mr. Tom E. Murray, who takes the Baron character. His own original laugh, and the funny manner in which he renders his "wheezes," keep the audience in one continual roar of merriment. He seems to have plenty of latitude allowed him in occupying the stage, and this is as it should be with so funny a comedian. Another sterling comedian is Mr. Edward Lewis, who plays the Baroness, and who makes the character stand out prominently. His song, "I can't reach that top note," will be one of the hits of the pantomime. Another favourite artist is Jack Pleasants, who is rapidly forging ahead in popularity, and his "dry" humour is fully appreciated. It seems to be the fashion nowadays to hand the character of the Ugly Sisters over to the ladies, and this year we have a lady taking one of these characters, viz., Miss Alice James, who creates much amusement, and plays the part with a keen sense of humour, and much cleverness of characterisation, and Mr. Albert Letine taking the other with equally satisfactory results. The Brothers Redmond as the Handymen work indefatigably throughout. Miss Moya Mannering is a very pretty Cinderella. She fits the rôle admirably, and has already become a great favourite. Equally charming is Miss Jane Eyre as the Prince. She renders her lines in a crisp and clear manner, and she possesses a fine voice. Dandi, the valet, is in the capable hands of Miss Olive Crellin; and Miss Barry Eldon makes a capital Fairy. Towser, the dog, is well played by Mr. Fred Zarinella. When we say that the "book" has been written by Mr. J. Hickory Wood, it is sufficient guarantee of its hall-mark of excellence, and the local topics and additional lyrics have been cleverly written up by Mr. T. P. Doyle The pretty scenes, painted by Mr. R. C. Oldham, quite come up to expectations, especially Scene 3c, which shows Cinderella's Departure for the Ball, and also Scene 5, in the Second Act, is deserving of special mention. The beautiful ballets have been arranged by Mme. Phillipini, and the incidental music has been composed and selected by the clever conductor, Mr. Henry Jaxon. Mr. Wynn Miller, the courteous manager, ably looks after the front of the house.

"MOTHER GOOSE" AT MANCHESTER.

At the Palace, Manchester, on Monday, Harry Roxbury's pantomime of Mother Goose was successfully produced. Proceeding upon the sound assumption that fun is the main thing, no opportunities of raising a laugh have been allowed to go by, the humour being, in fact, developed to an extraordinary degree; yet nothing essential is sacrificed in the way of spectacular effect. The story told is simply that of the poor widow's rise to opulence by means of the wonderful goose; the loss of the goose, the wishing-well, and the gift of beauty, and the finding of the goose by Colin, who thereby gains the hand of Jill, the widow's daughter. Mother Goose is, of course, a very funny old lady, who, among other eccentricities, has a turn for vocal parody, in which she is melodiously joined by her son Jack, as when she repudiates her landlord's request for the payment of his rent. Walter Dale is very well cast as the Widow, and his tenor, harmonising with the baritone of Jack, scores every time. J. W. Gallagher, in the latter rôle, shows himself a capable and resourceful comedian; his style is unctuous and effective, and there is no lack of amusement while he is on the stage. A third comedian of note is Fred Acton, who has an infectious laugh, and who works well with the others as Muggles, one of the three brothers from the Mill. He is also responsible for the production (under the personal supervision of Harry Roxbury), and should be complimented on its smoothness. Then we have some extremely comic business with a horse, made up by the Lemaires; while Edgar Martell makes quite an amusing hit as the Goose, and two lively village constables are seen in the Miltons. Maud Prenton as Colin fulfils all requirements as principal boy; her voice is clear and powerful, and her appearance and movements are bright and pleasing; while a nice impersonation of Jill is given by Kitty Russell, the secondary parts being in the capable hands of Marjorie Prenton as Phyllis and Bessie Esmond as Eric. Pertinent to the action are the appearances of Amy B. Ellis as the Demon Discontent and Lois Caris as the Fairy Content. In addition to the entertainment of the story, some excellent specialities are introduced. Sydney T. Russell's Eight Sydney Girls provide pretty and graceful dancing; the Miltons give a really clever and comic exhibition of roller-skating; and an excellent vocal and dancing act is introduced by the Society Quartet. Many good songs are sung, the most notable being "I do like to be beside the seaside," by Maud Prenton. Of the scenery, a nice set is the Village Green, and there is an effective mechanical change of the Wishing-Well scene from summer to winter. The dresses are bright, and good work is done by the chorus and orchestra, the latter being under the directorship of Leslie Russell.

"Theatrical Accounts for Business Managers." How the affairs of a theatre can be most efficiently controlled by the adoption of systems of internal check. By Cuthbert E. Smedley, A.C.A. Price 3s. 6d., post free 3s. 9d. Address, The Publisher, "The Era" Buildings, 5, Tavistock-st., Strand, W.C.

THE LAW OF THEATRICAL CONTRACTS.

A paper on the law of theatrical contracts, and particularly with regard to contracts with artists, was read before the Theatrical Managers' Club by Mr. A. Montefiore Brice, barister-at-law, on Tuesday, Dec. 14.

Mr. Brice dealt at some length with the general legal principles underlying all theatrical contracts, pointing out the five essential elements in every contract—the offer and acceptance, the reality of the consent to the contract, the consideration for the contract, the capacity of the parties to the contract, and the legality of the objects of the contract. After discussing the essential elements in some detail, Mr. Brice applied these legal doctrines to various theatrical contracts, and in particular to contracts between managers and artists.

Dealing with contracts for exclusive service, Mr. Brice said:

Undoubtedly the prevailing idea on the part of the manager is to obtain, and on that of the artist to render, exclusive services. In fact, when the terms are not expressed the Court will imply that the services are exclusive. Thus, in Fechter v. Montgomery, although not a word was said in the letters which passed between the parties and formed the contract about an exclusive engagement, it was held that there was a mutual agreement that Fechter should give Montgomery a part at his theatre and that Montgomery should not act elsewhere without Fechter's permission. So, too, in Montague v. Flockton (L.R. 16, Eq. 189), where it was held that an engagement to act at one theatre is a prohibition to act at another. But when the parties set down their mutual agreement in writing, then the interpretation of its nature rests on the terms employed in that writing; and if those terms are not sufficiently explicit or, through careless or ignorant drafting, do not express the whole meaning intended, then the parties have themselves to blame if the contract should hereafter be found to express what they never meant. In illustration of this one may cite the case of Kelly v. London Pavilion, the New Tivoli, and the Oxford, Limited (77 L.T., 215), where the parties had contracted that "The said artist shall not perform before nor during this engagement at any theatre, music hall, club, concert, or place of amusement within one mile of the said music halls"; and that should the conditions be not observed, the company should have the option of cancelling the agreement. The plaintiff, who was better known as Miss Sybil Arundale, sang at a concert held at the Lyric Club (within a mile of the said music halls) one Sunday evening, and her contracts with the three halls were promptly cancelled. Sueing the management for damages for breach of contract, she succeeded on three grounds—firstly because Sunday is a dies non in theatrical contracts; secondly because the performance was not the same as that she had contracted to give; and, thirdly, because entertaining a private audience was not a performance in the sense of the contract. Now a common clause in modern theatrical contracts runs thus: "The artiste is engaged exclusively, and during the continuance of this agreement will not perform, sing, dance, or otherwise exercise his talent in public, either gratuitously or for his remuneration or advantage, or for that of any other person, theatre, or establishment (although not thereby prevented from fulfilling this engagement)." Perhaps this clause might be thought wide enough to cover the case of Kelly v. London Pavilion, but as a matter of fact it does not do so, and it still leaves artists open to do what Miss Arundale did.

Passing on to the case of the illness of the artist, Mr. Brice pointed out that there is no clause in theatrical contracts more usual than the clause or clauses relating to the illness of the actor. Thus a clause in the printed form of agreement of a well-known manager runs as follows:—"Should such absence [from illness] exceed twelve performances, whether consecutive or not, the engagement may be cancelled at the option of the manager." In another equally well-known agreement the clause runs:—"Should the artist be absent, owing to illness or other unavoidable cause, from more than six performances (whether consecutive or not) during the continuance of this agreement, the engagement may be cancelled." These clauses appear definite enough, but they do not deal with the case where the artist is absent through illness on one or two occasions, and those, let it be assumed, constituting the first two performances of a new play, when it might be supposed that the securing of a given artist capable of so creating a part as to make what in other hands might be a failure an extremely successful rôle would be a matter of great importance to the management. A contract which does not provide for an event so possible and so fraught with importance is not satisfactory, especially when it is seen that if the matter should come into the Law Courts the issue might be doubtful. For the law would apply to the facts of the case the test as to whether the failure of the artist went to the root of the contract or not. If it did, the manager might safely dismiss the artist; but if it did not, he would dismiss at his peril.

This is well illustrated, said Mr. Brice, in the case of Poussard v. Spiers and Pond, where the artist engaged in a principal part was unable, through illness, to attend the final rehearsals and the first four performances. Upon recovering from her illness and tendering her services the employers refused to accept them, and on her bringing an action for damages for wrongful dismissal it was held that the plaintiff's inability to perform at the opening and early performances went to the root of the matter, and justified the defendants in rescinding the contract.

Discussing contracting out of the Employers' Liability Act, Mr. Brice drew attention to the common clause in theatrical contracts of this nature which deals wih the common law and statutory right of an employee to sue for damages by way of compensation for injuries received in the course of employment. Such a clause usually runs thus:—"Notwithstanding anything contained in the Employers' Liability Act, 1880, or any Act containing or amending the same, the artist shall not, nor shall the artist's legal personal representative, in case of the said artist's death, have any right of compensation or any remedy whatever against the manager in respect of any personal injury to the artist"—caused by defect of plant at the theatres visited or by the negligence of persons in the service of the managers of such theatres.

It is true that a person may contract out of his rights, whether they are statutory or at Common Law; but it may be pointed out that this clause is not effective against a claim under the Workmen's Compensation Act, 1906, under which, however, the maximum amount recoverable in the event of death or permanent incapacity does not exceed £300, or, in the event of temporary incapacity, does not exceed £1 a week.

But there is a further consideration which affects this clause. It does not protect the manager from a claim by the artist when such artist is under the age of twenty-one years. It is true, of course, that an "infant" can enter into valid contracts of service which contain restrictive covenants. It has been held, indeed, that contracts of service which imposes fines and restraint of employment after leaving that contemplated by the agreement in question are binding on infants. And, further, it has been held that an infant may even contract himself out of the Employers' Liability Act and his common law right to compensation for injuries received through the negligence of his employers and their agents. But the law, when considering such contracts, always regards them from the point of view as to whether or not they are generally, and on the whole, for the benefit of the "infant." Thus, in Clements v. London and North-Western Railway (1894, 2 Q.B., 482) where the plaintiff, an "infant," upon entering the service of the defendant company, contracted out of his right to claim under the Employers Liability Act or on account of his common law right, but agreed to join and be bound by the rules of an insurance society connected with the railway company, and to which the railway company largely contributed, under which he obtained more favourable terms than were open to him by preferring his statutory or common law claim, it was held that such a contract was valid and, as a whole, for the benefit of the "infant" plaintiff. As Lord Esher, Master of the Rolls, said in his judgment in that case, that while the contract contained terms not to the advantage of the "infant," on the whole the agreement was a manifest advantage to the "infant," and as such was valid.

But in the clause inserted in the theatrical contract in question there is no such counterbalancing advantage to the "infant." The manager does not contribute to an alternative insurance scheme—there is no such alternative scheme to which he could contribute—and the clause makes the contract not a contract to the advantage of the "infant." Seeing that so large a number of persons below the age of twenty-one are employed under these contracts the fact that such a clause is invalid as against them is a matter of no little imporance.

Other subjects dealt with in the paper included "The Understudy," "Custom of the Profession," "Giving and Receiving Notice," "Interpretation of Clauses," "Managers' Decision and Discretion," "Fines and Forfeitures," and "Injunctions."

Mr. Editor.—Sir,—In your report of Mr. Arthur Carlton's Cinderella pantomime at the Opera House, Coventry, you state that Miss E. Rainforth played the Fairy Godmother. The part has been undertaken since the production by—Yours faithfully, May de le Grange.

Presentation.—As a mark of appreciation of his kind assistance during the rehearsing and producing of Miss Lena Stanton and Harry Joseph's pantomime Dick Whittington, at the Grand Theatre, Mansfield, Mr. Joseph presented Captain Cecil Clayton, the manager of the theatre, with a richly-chased silver cigar-case. The presentation was made immediately before the fall of the curtain on Saturday evening, and aroused great enthusiasm amongst the audience.

Messrs. Jacobs and Jephson's Dick Whittington is a big attraction at the Theatre Royal, Macclesfield. Miss Florrie Curtite, a dashing Dick, wins much admiration; Miss Netta Dunville is quite at home as Alice, and her singing and dancing cannot be too highly praised; Miss Millie Seale as Capt. Cuttle is particularly smart and charming; Mr. Bobbie Graham is an amusing Fitzwarren, and is well supported in the laughter-making by Mr. Fred Dunville as Idle Jack and Mr. Dan Jacobs as Sarah; Mr. Cyril Jephson is an imposing Emperor; as Shuffle and Shirk Messrs. Alf and Will Phillips are very good; and Mr. Lambert is an effective Cat.

Mr. Chas. Elderton's company is drawing crowded houses in Aladdin at the Eden Theatre, Bishop Auckland. Miss Maudie Vincent (Aladdin) and Miss May Gibson (Princess Badroulbadour) are very pleasing, and Messrs. James and Alexander are popular as Tip Pit and Wot Toe. The Cameron Quartette are highly successful, and Morrisey's musical turn and balancing act gives great satisfaction. Stean and Melia are good dancers, and Claremont and Victor give a capital performance in their acrobatic turn. The Chinese magician Li-Ching-Hi is full of masterly trickery, and the Sisters Terry gain favour as duettists. The Lottie Stone Quartette dance well, and the Mimosa Juveniles are capital.

AMUSEMENTS IN AUSTRALIA.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

SYDNEY, Nov. 30.—Miss Nellie Stewart is at the Royal, playing her greatest part, Nell Gwynne, in Sweet Nell of Old Drury, with Mr. Harcourt Beatty as Charles II., in which he made his first appearance in Australia. And the house is full, for Miss Stewart is our most popular actress, and, unless the disastrous coal-miners' strike paralyses all business, a record Christmas season is in store. Miss Nellie Stewart's next bill will be a revival of Zaza. The lady's friends will rejoice to hear that the New Zealand tour quite restored her voice and general health.

THE Ascho-Brayton "boom" is still on at the Criterion, Othello being the attraction, but the last nights are announced, when The Taming of the Shrew and Julius Cæsar will be revived.

"HAVANA" was revived—naught but revivals now—at Her Majesty's on Saturday, the event being made attractive by the return of Mr. Bert Gilbert, after his enforced rest on the Blue Mountains. He made a hit as Nix, the lugubrious boatswain. Miss Olive Godwin also scored a distinct success as Consuelo; and Miss Susie Vaughan proved her value by "taking on" the giddy Isabelita. Mr. W. S. Percy became more popular than ever as Reginald Brown; and Mr. Herbert Clayton (Jackson Villiers) made quite a success. Mr. J. R. Hogue, one of "our own," sang well and acted carefully as the Hon. Frank Charteris; Mr. Pat Bathurst appeared as Diego de la Concha, and every part was faithfully filled. The chorus is the finest ever heard, even in this land of splendid choruses.

"THE HEART OF A HERO" is the bill at the Palace, with Miss Nellie Fergusson and Mr. Kenneth Hunter and Miss Ethel Buckley in principal rôles.

THE Tivoli patrons have gone mad over Mlle. De Dio, the wonderful dancer whom Mr. Harry Rickards secured when in London early this year. The Trapnell Sisters and Miss Bertha Stuart are all popular. Mr. F. Curran pleases greatly; and Miss Dolly Harmer has many admirers. To-night Fred Graham and Miss Dent will return to the Tivoli.

MASTER HAYDN BECK, a wonderful player on the violin, only nine years old, is creating a sensation. At six years of age he played the best of music at the New Zealand Great Exhibition. He is a child in manner, very attractive in appearance, and he is generally regarded as a re-incarnation of some dead and gone great musician. He is going home for "finish," as it is called.

MR. LEWIS SCOTT, the veteran actor, author, critic (for The Era for nearly forty-four years), and journalist, has been seriously ill. A most influential committee organised a testimonial fund. All the leading musical artists combined in a grand concert, folks of all ranks, including all the theatre managers, sent subscriptions, and the recipient is now ordered away to the Blue Mountains to recuperate.

MISS NETTIE BUNDLE, a new elocutionist from New Zealand, created a profound impression at the Haydn Beck recital.

MELBOURNE, Nov. 30.—HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE (Lessee, Mr. J. C. Williamson; Business-Manager, Mr. E. J. Tait).—The Lady Dandies continues to draw large audiences. The elaborate and pretty dressing of the piece renders it specially attractive, while the music is tuneful and catchy. The solo parts of Miss Florence Young are finely rendered, while the choruses are bright and harmonious. Judging from present appearances The Lady Dandies is destined to enjoy a long and successful run.

THEATRE ROYAL (Lessees, Messrs. Meynell and Gunn; Business-Manager, Mr. Arthur Levy).—After a successful run of three weeks The Girl Behind the Counter was withdrawn on Friday evening last. Saturday night saw a revival of the popular musical comedy The Belle of Mayfair. There was a packed house, which thoroughly enjoyed every item throughout the piece. Mr. Cromwell repeats his interesting and successful portrait of Hugh Meredith; Mr. Brett comes to light once more as the bumptious and amusing Sir John Chaldicott; Mr. Tom Payne is a nimble and altogether satisfactory Simpson, the footman; Mr. Harold as Raymond Finchley is quite at his best; Miss Lizette Parks is a charming and winsome Julia; Miss Helene Rose, whose "Gibson Girl" song is one of the features of the play; and Miss Ruth Lincoln and Miss Emmeline Orford are others in the cast.

KING'S THEATRE (Lessee, Mr. Bland Holt; Business-Manager, Mr. Simonsens).—The White Heather, one of Mr. Holt's most successful pieces, was revived here on Saturday evening in the presence of a packed house. Mr. Bland Holt has around him a numerous company, capable of fulfilling all the demands which The White Heather puts on the performers. The play was capitally mounted, the Lock scene and that depicting the search for a missing ship's log in a wrecked schooner at the bottom of the ocean being especially well arranged. The White Heather can only be repeated for five more nights, as Mr. Holt's season terminates here on Saturday evening next.

OPERA HOUSE (Proprietor, Mr. Harry Rickards; Business-Manager, Mr. Fred Aydon).—To an already exceptionally strong programme several new turns were added on Saturday evening last. Foremost among the new arrivals are the Kremka Brothers, who succeeded in rousing the audience to enthusiasm with their exceedingly clever acrobatic feats. The Kremka Brothers are undoubtedly the best acrobats that have appeared in Melbourne. Mr. Harry Marte, who appeared for the first time, sang a number of new melodies very successfully and danced cleverly; Miss Phyllis Sydna contributed an English ballad, for which she was recalled; Mr. Tom Dawson convulsed the house with his song entitled "You're the one"; Mr. Franco Piper repeated his clever performance with the banjoes; Hassan, the Indian juggler, introduced a number of new tricks and illusions; while other interesting items were contributed by Brown and Robinson, Walter Emerson, Post Mason, Gwennie Hasto, Harold Parkes, Bert TyrreH, Miss Athmore Grey, and Vaud and Verne.

GAIETY THEATRE (Lessee, Mr. James Brennan; Business-Manager, Mr. Harry Brennan).—A complete change of programme drew a crowded house on Saturday evening. Artists appearing with success at present include Nellie Morrison (soubrette), Lilly Vockler (balladist), Roger Quartette of acrobats, Coleman's Girls (dashing duo), Deno and Campbell, George Deroc, James Craydon, Pearl Livingstone, George Dean, Ella Airlie, Charles Fanning, and Warwick Lumley.

WEST'S pictures at West's Palace still continue to draw excellent houses. On Saturday evening a number of new films were submitted, and met with approval from a large house.

THE World's pictures at the Bijou Theatre are nightly witnessed by full houses. The management have reverted to the old system of a mixed programme instead of relying on pictures alone, and on Saturday evening a number of artists appeared in various turns, which were thoroughly enjoyed by the audience.

MESSRS. J. C. LODGE-PERCY AND JAMES MARTIN'S company are at the Sheerness Hippodrome for the week, and opened with Moths. Mr. F. Vernon Travers was seen to advantage as Prince Sergius; Lord Jura was well portrayed by Mr. J. C. Lodge-Percy; Raphael de Correzo was in the hands of Mr. Douglas Howard; Mr. Edward Ashworth did well as Ivan; Miss Marie Ramuz made the most of the Duchess de Sonnac; Miss Henrietta Schiller played the difficult part of Fuschia Leach with great success. Camille is also in the bill.

THE LATE HENRY SWINERD.

The announcement of the death of Mr. Henry Swinerd (which occurred on the 18th of last month at the comparatively early age of fifty-seven) was received with universal regret by the whole of the theatrical profession, but more particularly so by those who could claim an intimate acquaintance with so interesting a personality. Mr. Swinerd's connection with the theatre world dates from the early eighties, and he will be best remembered as the genial manager of the Royal Artillery Theatre, Woolwich, a post which he only vacated two years ago. For the rise of this theatre from an occasional concert hall to its present standing the late Mr. Swinerd could be said to be mainly responsible. The formation of a local amateur theatrical company, under Mr. Swinerd's direction, marked an advance in things theatrical in Woolwich, and so popular were the entertainments provided that a continuous run became necessary. The Christmas pantomimes of this period provided by Mr. Swinerd were liberally supported. Eventually Mr. Swinerd booked a series of engagements with high-class touring companies, with the result that the accommodation of the theatre was taxed to its utmost capacity.

The whole of the profession will remember with regret the fire of 1908, which completely gutted the theatre, but Mr. Swinerd used his influence in initiating the movement which culminated in the building of the present charming playhouse, complete with every modern improvement. The reopening of the new theatre really marked the termination of Mr. Swinerd's energies in Woolwich, for by this time he had launched out in private enterprises which needed his personal supervision. Mr. Swinerd's companies included Justice at Last, The Girl from Japan, and Dare-Devil Dorothy, the two latter plays being toured in partnership with Mr. J. W. Cordiner. Dare-Devil Dorothy, the well-known musical comedy, is in its tenth year of tour, and is still running.

Mr. Swinerd will be remembered in Woolwich not only for his theatrical successes, but also as the provider of other miscellaneous entertainment, for he was a ruling factor of all local fêtes, &c. As a patriot and a sympathiser with deserving charitable institutions Mr. Swinerd was unsurpassed. In this connection it is perhaps sufficient to mention that toward the "Absent-Minded Beggar" Fund he was personally responsible for a contibution of a sum of £150. Mr. Swinerd's abilities and his genial personality won for him a wide circle of friends.

MR. WM. WILSON-RAE, general-manager of Fred Wilkins and Bro., Ltd., theatrical furnishers, Duke-street, Liverpool, writes:—"In reference to the report of a charge heard at the West Ham Police Court against a person giving the name of Wilson Rae, and reported in 'Theatrical Gossip' in your issue of the 1st inst., I have to inform you that I am not the person referred to, nor am I in any way connected with him. I have no relatives of the same name (outside of members of my own family), and, as far as I know, am the only person in Great Britain legitimately entitled to the surname of Wilson-Rae.

"THE SINNER" is being played at the Cambridge Theatre, Spennymoor, by Mr. Wilson Benge's company. Mr. Wilson Benge undertakes the leading rôle of Monk Stretton in a satisfactory manner; Mr. Alex Finlayson as Paul Lenaine acts creditably; Mr. Charles Burdon (formerly of Spennymoor) makes a hit as Edgar Thornhill; Mr. Frank Radcliffe was exceptionally good as Bill Stanton; Mr. Ulick Burke is successful as Lord Ewen; and Mr. Harold Playfair plays well as Jack Ewen. Miss Sadie Smith is capital in the rôle of Honor Thornhill; Miss Dora Olga is very good as Little Ned; Miss Geraldine Verner as Vera Ewen is satisfactory; Miss Adelaine Raby is a fascinating Meg Stanton; and Miss Gertrude Vickers acts with credit the rôle of Nora.

MESSRS. C. AND F. RENAD'S company, in The Swiss Express, is providing plenty of fun at the Crewe Opera House. Miss Dorothy Deakin is a pleasing Virginia; Mr. Wilfred Bailey as Dr. Gondimar Gull convulses the house, and as his two eccentric servants Messrs. C. and F. Renad are very quaint. Mr. Victor Raymond's clever portrayal of Dudley Green is enjoyed, and Mr. James Hawkes is a good Bob Rollingstone. The Lottie Stone Quartette of dancers are excellent.

AT the Opera House, Burton-on-Trent, Alfred Paumier and Walter Howard's company, with The Prince and the Beggar Maid, is drawing good houses this week. Mr. Walter Howard, impersonating Prince Olaf, is an ideal hero. The vindictive Prince Hildred and his ill-fated brother Michael are well played by Mr. Mayor Crooke and Mr. Lionel Gadsden respectively. A dignified cleric is Mr. F. B. Farbridge's Bishop of Illyria; Mr. Robert Noble is good as Captain Hector; and bright and amusing are the scenes between Mr. Richard Lane (Karl) and Miss Mono Hungerford, a winsome Viola. The arduous rôle of the Princess is undertaken with complete success by Miss Ethel Bracewell. Miss Ethel Patrick plays with natural ease as the Beggar Maid.

MR. EDITOR.—Sir,—In your notice of Miss Hook of Holland at Ayr in your current issue you state that the part of Mina is played by "Miss Muff Carewe." It should be Miss Madge White.—Yours faithfully, Ada White, 13, The Avenue, King-street, Southsea.

PLAYERS OF THE PERIOD.

MISS WARD.

Miss Ward, who has achieved an enviable reputation in the provinces, commenced her theatrical career some fourteen years ago, after having won honour as an amateur, both in operatic and histrionic work. It was chiefly with amateur societies around the Midlands that she was concerned, her father, the late Dr. Charles Aston-Smith, of Tipton, being a very well known practitioner, and commanding a wide circle of friends. Her first professional engagement was with Mr. Louis Calvert, when on tour with his extensive répertoire company, in Shakespearean and other classical plays. During this time, Miss Ward gained valuable experience in understudying and in playing all kinds of small parts. For some two years after this, owing to indifferent health and private matters, Miss Ward left the stage, but returned to play Adrienne, in Proof, which was then being toured by her husband, Mr. T. Edward Ward, and, notwithstanding so long an absence from theatrical work, achieved a marked success. Later she essayed the dual rôle of Madeline and Adrienne, and continued playing these parts until the expiration of Mr. Ward's lease of this play. After this Miss Ward always headed the cast of the different productions undertaken from time to time by her husband. First she played the parts of Mary and Lucie, in Mr. Arthur Shirley's Perils of Paris, and latterly the part of Jeanne Fortier, in the same drama. Then followed a three years' run as Madge Conway, in a new version of Mr. E. T. De Banzie's Her Wedding Day, the pronounced success of which venture was not a little owing to the leading lady's charm and virility. The monotony of so long a run was naturally now and again relieved by the happening of the unexpected, sometimes serious and sometimes otherwise, one such incident distinctly otherwise occurring when Miss Ward sustained a dislocated elbow, caused by a nasty spill from her bicycle, and, in spite of chloroform and an operation pluckily insisted on, giving her evening's performance with no more apparent discomfort than the wearing of her injured arm in a sling. The unusual sight of the innocent young bride, Madge Conway, heroically walking to the scaffold in the last act with a broken arm aroused an extra amount of sympathy and tears.

In the next production, that of Man and Wife, the popular Napoleonic play written by Mr. Walter Howard, Miss Ward created the leading part of Marcelle, and afterwards showed her versatility by playing the cripple boy Jean, in the same piece, a part requiring much quiet intensity, especially in the death scene, where silence "off" is indeed golden, but which on one occasion at a Birmingham theatre was rudely disturbed by a new stage-hand, who on being cautioned by the cripple boy herself, threatened to box the "young nipper's" ears, the ferocity of the threat being only equalled by the abjectness of his apology on his discovering that the "young nipper" happened to be Miss Ward. The next engagement was that in the leading part of Honor Symes, in Her Fatal Past, which Miss Ward created and played for two years. After another run with Man and Wife, playing Marcelle, Miss Ward created Nell Greystone, in Mr. Walter Howard's Second to None, which was quickly followed by her taking up the part of Princess Idalia, in Mr. C. Watson Mill's new play, The Love of the Princess. Recently she again played Nell Greystone, varying the irksomeness of a long tour by impersonating odd nights two such diverse parts as Vere Herbert, in a version of Ouida's Moths, and Nan, in Buckstone's comedy, Good for Nothing. At the Court Theatre, Warrington, on the 27th ult., Miss Ward created the leading part of Rose Avondale in her husband's production of His Real Wife, by Chas. A. Clarke, and achieved distinct success.

ON the night of the 3rd, at the Town Hall, Newry, Mr. Payne Seddon presented Mr. Chalmers Mackey's company, in Rollicking Rory. Mr. Mackey, in the title-rôle, thoroughly sustained his reputation; Miss Nana Flensberg as Rosie Callaghan made an admirable Irish Colleen; Mrs. Chalmers Mackey as MRS. Ashleigh, and subsequently as Rosaleen displayed ability; Miss Janette Lyons as Widow O'Donohoe was a fine type of old Irishwoman; Mr. J. P. McBride as Desmond Fitzgerald was clever and convincing; Mr. John St. John Stuart as Stephen D'Arcy took the part of the villain to perfection; Mr. Fred Charles did full justice to the part of Captain Ashleigh; and Mr. Lawrence Sullivan as Shaun Brady was well placed.

ON Saturday Mr. Allan Wilkie's company completed their week's engagement at the King's Hall Theatre, Ilkley, and gave a fine performance of Hamlet, with Mr. Wilkie in the title-part and Mr. Alexander Marsh as the Ghost. Miss Carrie Baillie as Ophelia quite captivated the audience, and at the close of the play Mr. Wilkie was called to the front for a speech, in which he expressed his thanks for the kind manner in which he had been received.

PRESENTATION.—After the performance of Miss Hook of Holland at the New Gaiety Theatre, Ayr, on New Year's Eve, the staff met to present Mr. H. W. Day, the manager, with a diamond scarf-pin and their best New Year wishes, together with a handsome ring from a local gentleman. In acknowledging the gifts, Mr. Day said he accepted the presents in that hearty spirit in which they were offered, and they would always remind him of his very pleasant connection with the staff of the New Gaiety Theatre, Ayr. He wished them all a very prosperous time in the New Year.

DEATH OF ALFRED B. CROSS.

The news of the death of Mr. Alfred B. Cross will be almost as great a shock to his comrades as it has been to his relatives. To one and all he was a sympathetic friend, to his wife a loving and devoted husband, and to his son an affectionate father.

Mr. Cross, whose real name was Alfred Brookes, was born in Bolton in 1853, and commenced business life at the early age of eleven in the Bolton Post Office. Here, in the course of a few years, he rose to a position of trust and responsibility, and his courteous manner when dealing with the public enhanced the popularity he had already earned in the town. When it is explained that he was captain of the Cricket Club and secretary of the Dramatic Society, as well as being associated with other local organisations, his popularity will be readily appreciated. Even the Dramatic Society did not, however, fulfil all his histrionic ambitions, as before he was twenty years of age he gave frequent recitals, engaging even the Town Hall and filling the entire programme himself with recitals from Shakespeare and other classics, and readings from the works of Charles Dickens. With such ambitions, it was inevitable that sooner or later he would abandon the life of routine in which he was then engaged for the more congenial atmosphere of the theatre. He commenced his professional career as a member of the stock company at the Theatre Royal, Gloucester, in 1877, under the management of Mr. Dutton. He then went to Exeter, where for six months he was a member of the stock company directed by Mr. Neebe. It was during the Exeter season that his one and only son, Evelyn, was born. In 1879 he was playing Captain Beauclerc in Diplomacy with a touring company; a stock season with Mr. John Coleman followed. During 1880 Mr. Cross was a member of the touring Caste company, playing, among other parts, George D'Alroy and Lord Beaufoy. It was during this tour that he became associated with Mr. George Alexander and Mr. Herbert Waring. He went to Leicester in 1882 as leading man, and eventually toured under the management of Mr. Elliot Galer. Subsequently he played Frank Darlington in Youth on tour, under the direction of Messrs. Holt and Wilmot. During 1883 Mr. Cross was leading man with Mr. Joseph Eldred, and followed by playing Bob Brierley at the Court Theatre, Liverpool. In the autumn of 1884 Mr. Cross played "leading business" at the Surrey, under the management of Mr. Paul Merrit, and was then selected by Mr. Wilson Barrett to play Theorus to Mr. Leonard Boyne's Claudian on tour. With Miss Bateman (Mrs. Crowe) he played George Warner, Nathan, and Colonel Forrester on tour, and afterwards spent twelve months playing the entire Shakespearean lead with the Alleyn-Bernard company. For a further twelve months he played Harold Armytage in the Lights o' London tour. During 1888, while Ben-ma-Chree was still running at the Princess's Theatre, Mr. Cross was selected by Mr. Barrett to play the part of Dan Mylrea in the first provincial production of the drama. He was frequently afterwards associated with this play in production as well as in acting. Mr. Cross played Andreas to Miss Grace Hawthorne's Theodora during one of that lady's provincial tours, and also at the Princess's Theatre during Mr. Boyne's absence. During the next few years his engagements in the provinces were to play Jack Manley in Still Alarm; Walter Lee in Taken from Life; Prince Kandos in Passion's Power; Ned Drayton in In the Ranks; Orlando in support of Mrs. Langtry; lead in Cross for Valour, England's Flag, and Silence of Night; lead and management with Lured to Ruin and Fettered Lives. His London engagements during this period included lead at the Olympic, under Mr. W. W. Kelly, lead at the Opéra Comique, lead in many special matinée performances, and during the run of The English Rose at the Adelphi he was retained by Messrs. Gatti to understudy Mr. Boyne as Harry O'Mailley, and occasionally played the part. He has also played for the Elizabethan Stage Society, and in 1897 he stage-managed and produced Caste for the Dublin University Dramatic Club. His first real venture in management on his own account was with Wings of Wealth in 1900, but soon after this he was with the Bandmann Répertoire Company, playing D'Artagnan; David Garrick, Bob Brierley, one of the Corsican Brothers, and Pete Quilliam in Messrs. Hall Caine and Wilson Barrett's The Manxman. Soon afterwards, owing to the illness of Mr. E. H. Vanderfelt, he was called upon at very short notice to play Orlando at the Court Theatre, London, but owing to the death of Mr. Vanderfelt the performances were brought to a close in about a fortnight. The part of Pete Quilliam, in connection with which Mr. Cross will be most vividly remembered, had, however, such a strong attraction for him that he again commenced management with a répertoire company of his own, playing The Manxman as often as possible. Very shortly afterwards, at the end of 1901, he was successful in securing the full rights of the latter play, and commenced touring it alone It was during the early days of this tour that his first wife, and mother of his only son, died, and in 1905 he married Miss Minnie Waterford, daughter of Adelaide Rorsand and the late Tom W. Ford. His performance of the great-hearted Pete is so well known that it does not require comment here. Sufficient that he toured the play practically without a break till the end of 1908, when it was altered by Mr. Hall Caine and revived by Messrs. Smith and Carpenter at the Lyceum Theatre, London, under the title of Pete. Mr. Cross thus played Pete about 2,500 times, while Mrs. Cross played Kate for about five years. A short tour with an American play, The Night Before Christmas, practically closed his professional career, and for the past few months he had been resting in Manchester. His favourite parts were Pete, Dan Mylrea, and Claude Melnotte, and his hobby, work, and plenty of it. He came to London a few days before Christmas, and it is thought contracted a chill on or after the journey. He did not, however, show signs of any real illness until Thursday, Dec. 30, when he was too ill to rise in the morning. By the night of the 31st he was worse, and the doctor was called in. During the next twenty-four hours he was delirious, but on Saturday evening he fell into a deep sleep of exhaustion, which lasted until mid-day on Sunday, Jan. 2, when he ceased to breathe. He had the unremitting care of his devoted wife, who never left his side during the three days. Both his wife and son, to whom he was deeply attached, were present in his last moments. The cause of death was heart disease, accelerated by work, worry, and chill.

Mr. Cross was buried quietly at Nunhead on Tuesday, only his wife, son and daughter-in-law, sister, and sister-in-law being present.

THE MUSICAL YEAR.

The year 1909 was remarkable for the number of important musical events, and the increasing interest shown by the public in music of a high-class character. In January, an English season was given at Covent Garden, in which the chief feature was three cycles of the Ring by English vocalists, with only one or two exceptions, under the experienced direction of Dr. Richter. So confident was the great conductor in the possibility of giving Wagner's Ring in English, and so much had our native artists benefited under his training, that the experiment, although a daring one, was not without success, and the music in many instances delightfully sung. The chief fault of the English singers seemed to be a lack of clear enunciation, but it has to be considered that many of the young artists came fresh from college, and had little or no operatic experience. Dr. E. W. Naylor's opera, The Angelus, which won Messrs. Ricordi's prize was also produced during this season; but did not prove any particular success. The grand season at Covent Garden opened brilliantly with a highly successful performance of Saint-Saëns's Samson et Dalila, given in operatic form for the first time in London, although the music is familiar to all concert-goers. So great an interest was taken in this performance, and Madame Kirby Lunn's superb embodiment of Dalila that during the season the opera was produced a number of times. Another novelty by a French composer was Debussy's Pelléas et Melisande. Although splendidly mounted and admirably performed Debussy's opera did not achieve any special success beyond a certain amount of interest aroused by a clever and artistic production. The performance, however, of Gustave Charpentier's Louise at once secured a triumph, both by its charming music, interesting libretto, and the magnificent performance of M. Gilibert as the father. That so fine an opera has not been given at Covent Garden before is a matter of some surprise. The last novelty of the season was Baron d'Erlanger's Tess, founded on Thomas Hardy's well-known novel, "Tess of the D'Urbervilles," which, mounted with great care for picturesque effect, contained graceful and pathetic music, and had a most favourable reception. Following the grand season came the Moody-Manners' brief, but highly successful season of opera in English at the Lyric Theatre, in the course of which A. Maclean's opera Maître Seiler was produced. The Castellano Italian company also gave a season of Italian opera at the Coronet Theatre, and afterwards at Drury Lane, that proved highly popular. Many of the older and seldom performed operas were given with excellent results by this clever company. The new works they produced were Domenico Mouleone's Cavalleria Rusticana, on the same subject as Mascagni's opera, and Leoncavallo's Zaza. In the autumn a short season at Covent Garden was given by the Carl Rosa Opera Company. At His Majesty's Theatre, Miss Ethel Smyth's opera, The Wreckers, was successfully produced by Mr. Thomas Beecham, three performances being given, and an extra one at the command of the King. The students of the Royal Academy of Music gave an excellent account of Mozart's Magic Flute and part of Bizet's Carmen, and in the autumn gave a performance of Sir Alexander Mackenzie's opera, Colomba, not heard in London since 1883, while the students of the Guildhall School of Music distinguished themselves in Hérold's Pré aux Clercs and Gounod's Irene, the English version of La Reine de Saba. Joseph Holbrooke's Pierrot and Pierrette was given six times at His Majesty's Theatre, and in December W. S. Gilbert and Edward German's new opera, Fallen Fairies, was produced at the Savoy Theatre. No city in the world is at the present time better supplied with fine orchestras than London, and the New Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Mr. Landon Ronald, which held their first season this year is a welcome addition to our many splendid orchestras. Excellent performances have been given at their concerts, and among the new works produced mention should be made of Sir Charles V. Stanford's "Ode to Discord," Hamilton Harty's "Concerto for violin in D," "Francoys Villon," by William Wallace, and Schuman's "Symphony." The Queen's Hall Symphony Concerts, under Mr. Henry Wood, have produced three Nocturnes, by Debussy, conducted by the composer, Borodin's "Symphony in B minor," and two tone-poems, "Finlandia" and "En Saga," by Sibelius. The London Symphony Orchestra continue to retain the esteem of the musical public by the high standard of their performances. The conductors were Nikisch, Hans Richter, Safonoff, and Kussewitsky, and the chief novelty produced was Paderewski's new symphony in B minor, given for the first time in this country. Festivals were held at Brighton, Hereford, Liverpool, and Newcastle-on-Tyne, and the hundredth anniversaries of the birth of Mendelssohn and the death of Mozart duly honoured. Of the choral societies, the Royal Albert Hall, under Sir Frederick Bridge, the London Choral Society, directed by Mr. Arthur Fagge, and the Bach Choir, all gave interesting and artistic performances, and a new choir, the Queen's Hall Choir, conducted by Mr. Leoni, has produced Hubert Bath's "Wedding of Shon Maclean" with very successful results. It is impossible to more than refer to the host of concerts given during the past year, but mention should be made of the important concerts given by such great artists as Madame Nordica, Mme. Kirkby Lunn, Mme. Calvé, Clara Butt, Gerhardt, and Henschel. During the past year many famous composers and artists have passed away, Edward MacDowell, Mrs. Henry J. Wood, Lassalle (the baritone), F. Thomé, Ebenezer Prout, George Perren, A. Veanesi, Clotilde Kleeberg (pianist), J. L. Molloy, Dr. Jordan (organist), Heinrich Conried, Hermann Schroeder, Edouard Silas, E. Hartog, and many others of note. Finally, mention should be made of the successful series of promenade concerts at Queen's Hall, under the conductorship of Mr. Henry J. Wood.

AT the Aberaman Grand Theatre, Mr. William Maclaren and Miss Lily C. Bandmann and company are playing to crowded houses in Claudian. Mr. Maclaren gives a very excellent portrayal of Claudian Andiates, and Miss Bandmann plays with considerable spirit and effect as Almida; Mr. Frank Owen Chambers acts with fine reserve as Thariogalus; Mr. Chas. T. Chaloner is successful as Belos; Mr. Douglas Earle is good as Agazil; Alcares is well handled by Mr. Weston Hubbard; Mr. Cecil Maynard did good work as Rhamanies; Miss Maud Garth was a pleasing Edessa; and other parts were well sustained. The play is capitally staged.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP.

SIR CHARLES WYNDHAM arrived in New York last week, and, with Miss Mary Moore, will appear at the Comedy Theatre there on Monday next in The Mollusc, which is an established favourite with Americans. Sir Charles occupied a box at the theatre last Monday evening, when Mr. Laurence Irving and Miss Mabel Hackney appeared in The Affinity, which has been seen in London under the title of The Incubus.

MR. LAURENCE IRVING was heartily called after the second act, and after eulogising the author of the play, M. Eugène Brieux, added, "I would like to say that I sincerely hope the long esteem and regard in which you held him who made famous the name I bear will never be diminished by anything I may say or do. You were always loyal to my father, and I trust I may never do anything that would meet with his disapproval were he still alive."

SIR CHARLES WYNDHAM, speaking in New York of the New Theatre there, said that "one of the great difficulties with such an institution was to secure a large number of actors of the first-class. They can employ themselves so much more profitably in other ways that it is only reasonable to suppose that they will not take up with the national theatre idea. The only way I can see for such a plan to be successful is through the establishment of a large fund for pensions. As for a national theatre in England, I do not think one will be established, and have said so repeatedly. As far as we have been able to make out in London, your millionaires are arranging to present the same productions the regular theatres in New York have had for years. I had not thought they would begin on that ground at least."

SIR HERBERT TREE, in response to many requests, will revive Beethoven at His Majesty's for a week, namely, from Monday, Jan. 24, until Saturday, the 29th, with matinées on the Wednesday and Saturday. The theatre will then be closed for one day to admit of the final rehearsal of Mr. Justin Huntly McCarthy's new play, The O'Flynn, which will be presented for the first time on Tuesday, Feb. 1, with Sir Herbert himself in the title-rôle and Miss Evelyn D'Alroy as his leading lady.

MR. ARTHUR BOURCHIER has decided upon Thursday, Jan. 20, as the date of production at the Garrick of Dame Nature, Mr. Frederick Fenn's adaptation of La Femme Nue, with Miss Ethel Irving in the principal rôle. Miss Irving's support will include Miss Nancy Price, Miss Agnes Hewitt, Miss Pamela Gaythorne, Miss Minnie Terry, and Messrs. Norman Forbes, Frank Cooper, J. D. Beveridge, Ernest Leicester, F. Kinsey Peile, Bertram Steer, and George Bealby. Dame Nature's stay at the Garrick is limited, owing to arrangements made for the production of a new play in February, when the former piece will in all likelihood be transferred to another theatre.

"THE TENTH MAN" is the title of the new play by W. Somerset Maugham which Mr. Arthur Bourchier will produce at the Garrick early next month. What sort of individual the "Tenth Man" actually is must be left for the first night to disclose, but it may be assumed that he is the personage who acts differently to anyone else, who, in fact, does just the opposite to what, in the words of the accustomed phrase, would be done by "nine out of ten." Such a character it is undeniable would form an excellent subject for Mr. Somerset Maugham's facile pen.

"GLASS HOUSES" is the suggestive title which Mr. Bourchier has conferred upon the English version of Paul Hervieu's play Connais-Toi, of which he has secured the rights for this country. Three writers are at present at work on the piece, and much may therefore be expected.

MR. MARTIN HARVEY commences his spring tour at the Grand Theatre, Southampton, on Monday. The company will consist of Miss N. de Silva, Miss Mary Rorke, Messrs. Charles Glenney, Fred Wright, sen., Owen Roughwood, Percy Foster, George Cooke, Philip Hewland, Leonard Craske, B. A. Pittar, Denholm Muir, Comberbach, and Neville; Misses Brenda Gibson, Beatrice Ainley, Sybil Walsh, and Bessie Elder. Mr. Frank B. O'Niell will continue in the capacity of business manager.

DURING the early portion of the tour Mr. Harvey will mainly rely upon The World and His Wife, The Conspiracy, The Breed of the Treshams, A Cigarette Maker's Romance, and The Only Way. Despite the pull which electioneering has of necessity on the public interest at the present time, the advance booking at Southampton is of a highly satisfactory character, and big houses are practically assured.

MR. FORBES-ROBERTSON'S manager, Mr. Percy Burton, who crossed from New York to London for Christmas and New Year's week, speaks enthusiastically of the theatres in the Empire City, and Mr. Forbes-Robertson's success. He says: "When went to Washington, I called at the White House, and was received by President Taft, who was most genial, and shook hands with the grip of a bear. He expressed his great interest in the theatre, and his intention of coming to see Mr. Forbes-Robertson act, and he did so last week. 'Of course, I have other things to do,' the President said, smilingly, 'besides going to the theatre.'" Mr. Burton, by the by, has been suffering from a sharp attack of rheumatic fever, and will be detained in London by his doctor's orders for another week.

MISS VIOLA TREE, who has already made her mark as an actress and a concert singer, is also a clever essayist, and in the January number of The Nineteenth Century and After there is a paper by her on the censorship of stage plays. She concludes her article thus: "Let not this year's Blue-book be relegated to the dust-heap, or merely looked on as a pleasant reference book of wit and epigram; let it become part of the living law. One who spoke in favour of the Censor allowed that in an ideal state of things there need be no Censorship. This is the first step towards the realisation of that ideal state."

MISS MARIE TEMPEST, always a favourite of the New Yorkers, has renewed her popularity in Penelope, at the Lyceum Theatre in that city, and is playing to crowded houses. Having tested the loyalty of her American admirers by staying away from them for five years, she has returned to find them staunch and true. Miss Tempest finds abundant opportunity for the exercise of her sprightly wit in Mr. Maugham's diverting play, and is seen at her very best as Penelope O'Farrell. The sparkling dialogue and the consulting-room scene of the second act cause constant laughter. Mr. Philip Desborough as Dr. O'Farrell, Mr. Herbert Ross as Professor Golightly, Mr. Wilfred Draycott as Davenport Barlowe, Miss Mabel Trevor as Mrs. Ferguson, and Miss Maud Milton as Mrs. Golightly, are all very good in their respective rôles, other parts being well played by Mr. McIntyre Wicksteed, Miss Minnie Griffen, Mr. J. Sebastian Smith, and Miss Nannie Bennett.

THE wedding took place at Christ Church, Lancaster Gate, on New Year's Eve, of Miss Auriol Lee, the talented young actress, and Mr. Frederick W. Lloyd, the well-known actor. The bride was becomingly dressed in white cloth, with an overwrap trimmed with ermine, and a white turban toque ornamented with a large white plume. The Rev. Swan Mason, who officiated, gave an eloquent address, in the course of which he said he knew, and was glad to know, that they both followed the same calling and profession, and in that profession he saw much like his own. It was noble work. It had God's sanction, and in some ways it was an ally of their Church.

IT had been said that "He who pleases is of greater utility than he who instructs." What a privilege to combine both! All the world might be a stage on which we must play a part, but it was not given to all to play in the fierce light of public opinon. To how great an extent they were called on to instruct was shown by the fact that even on that solemn occasion he could not find more suitable words to say to them than those which had often publicly fallen from the lips of their sister there:—

"It is very meet
The Lord Bassanio lead an upright life,
For, having such a blessing in the lady,
He finds the joys of Heaven here on earth."

There, in four lines, was the whole marriage address. Those lines set forth the duty of the wife to be the true helpmeet to her husband, to strengthen and confirm him in an upright life; and the duty of the husband that he might repay such love by deserving it.

SEVERAL prominent people in the theatrical world were present at the church, and at the subsequent reception held by the bride's mother at 10, Queen-street, Mayfair. Sir Herbert Tree sent a letter of congratulation, which was also signed by every member of the company at His Majesty's Theatre, and among the many presents were a blotter from Miss Marie Lohr and a silver vase from Miss Madge Titheradge and Mr. Charles Quartermaine.

THE glories of the old Britannia seem to have been revived under the management of Mr. Humphrey Brammall, jun. The sea of faces which confronts the visitor to the theatre testifies to the great success of the pantomime, while hundreds have been unable to obtain admission. The pantomime is quite up to the standard of West End productions, the company work together with the greatest unanimity, and the music and stage-management are excellent.

SIR GEORGE LEWIS, by his retirement from practice as a solicitor, leaves a gap which will not easily be filled. His name is associated with many cases connected with the theatrical profession; and many actors and actresses will remember with pleasure the tact, knowledge of the world, and legal experience and acumen which steered them through serious difficulties.

MR. FORBES ROBERTSON recently read Richard Watson Gilder's poem, "The Heroic Age," in the actor's exquisitely polished and expressive style, at a dinner of the Civic Forum at the Hotel Astor, New York.

MR. CHARLES MANNERS has hit upon a useful expedient for the enlightenment of the lover of music by the issue of a series of "All Abouts," each of which contains a full description of the story and music, scene by scene, of famous operas, the principal airs and themes being illustrated by a few bars of each. No. 1 and No. 2 are devoted to Wagner's Rienzi and Gounod's Faust respectively. The guides, which have been prepared and written by Mr. Francis E. Barrett for the Moody-Manners Opera Company, will enable those witnessing the opera to understand the story thoroughly and to get a good idea of the prominent features of the music. The little book, which may be had for 2d. each, is just the thing necessary for the ordinary public, who are thus enabled to realise and understand more clearly the beauties of the composers' works.

DISCUSSING the arduous work attendant on stage management, Mr. Arthur Collins says:—"I don't know whether managers are long-lived men, but I shouldn't think so. Sir Augustus Harris was only forty-five when he died; H. J. Leslie, who produced Dorothy, also died young; Charles Harris was about the same age as his brother when he died; Charlie Wilson, lately with Stoll's and one time of the Alhambra here and Hammerstein's, New York, was also quite a young man, and the news of his death a few days ago came quite as a shock. The late Augustus Daly was yet another of the great managers and producers who died while still comparatively young.

"IT is very engrossing work, as this little story of young Shubert, head of Shubert Bros., New York, shows. Young Shubert, then a man under thirty, was badly smashed up in an accident. He wouldn't let the doctors deceive him, but asked them point blank how long he had to live. They told him the end could not be more than an hour or so away, upon which he ordered them, despite their protests, to carry him to the telephone, and he spent his last moments fixing up what was to be done with the various theatrical companies and enterprises in which he was interested, literally dying at his post as much as any soldier had ever done on the battlefield."

MR. JAMES WELCH returns to the West End on Monday, the 17th inst., when he will revive at the Criterion When Knights Were Bold, with which he has been enjoying a highly prosperous tour. Mr. Welch will be seen again as the irrepressible baronet so whimsically cast back into the days of old, and Miss Audrey Ford will reappear as Rowena.

MR. ERNEST ALFRED CARPENTER, joint managing-director with Mr. H. R. Smith, of the Lyceum Theatre, and managing-director of the Theatre Royal, Bristol, whose sad death we recorded in our last issue, has left estate sworn at the total amount of £382.

MISS EDITH WYNNE MATTHISON and her husband, Mr. Charles Rann Kennedy, leave Liverpool for New York to-day (Saturday) by the ss. Lusitania.

MR. E. RAYSON-COUSENS has been engaged by Mr. Tom Watt for the part of Archibald Carlyle and stage-manager for the Bullock version of East Lynne

NUMBER one of The Prompter, a monthly journal devoted to the interests of amateurs, has just appeared. The little paper is intended to form "a medium for the exchange and discussion of ideas pertinent to questions of the moment" from the amateur point of view, and is a very readable production. Among the features of the journal are "Stellar Jottings," in which appreciations of the work of leading actors and actresses are given week by week, and the Play Bureau, by means of which new one-act pieces may secure production or publication. The first number contains a comedietta by Duncan Kennedy, entitled Isaac Harber's Heart, which, if not of striking originality, is humorously written, and should be of excellent service to the amateur.

MR. PERCY HUTCHISON is accomplishing a remarkable achievement at the Opera House, Southport, of which he is lessee and manager, putting on two colossal shows like Pinkie and the Fairies and Brewster's Millions each afternoon and evening respectively throughout the week. On Monday both productions ran with extraordinary smoothness, not a hitch being discernible. Mr. Hutchison, who, on Monday, appeared for the first time at the Opera House since it came under his management, received a hearty welcome, and won warm praise for his artistic rendering of Brewster.

AT the close of the performance, in response to a demand for a speech, Mr. Hutchison, after warmly thanking the audience for their magnificent reception, said many of the patrons were no doubt aware he was responsible for the régime of the Opera House, and he endeavoured to place before them all that was worthy of their support, both as regards musical and dramatic performances. Amongst the prospective London successes to be presented there were Our Miss Gibbs, The Flag Lieutenant, The Arcadians, Mr. Martin Harvey, The Dollar Princess, and many others.

MR. HUTCHISON then made a welcome announcement. That evening he had received a cable from America, sent by his chief under whom he had served for ten years—Sir Charles Wyndham—in which he announced that he would visit Southport. He took that opportunity of thanking his loyal staff, from behind and in front of the house, also the orchestra, and last but not least, Mr. George Clarkson, his resident-manager.

MISS IDA MOLESWORTH and Mr. Mark Blow's company, in The Little Damozel, scored a great success at their opening performance at Harrogate last week. According to local critics, the play was so beautifully acted and so lavishly mounted as to make the audience imagine they were witnessing a performance at a West-End London theatre. Miss Molesworth's performance of the Damozel was described as "a veritable triumph." All the scenery, furniture, and properties are reproductions of those used in London. The play was immediately re-booked for a return visit in the height of Harrogate's summer season.

MR. A. HYLTON ALLEN, whose marriage we announce in another column, has recently attracted a good deal of attention in New York by his performance of Aristobulus in Mr. Faversham's production of Stephen Phillips's Herod. Mr. Hylton Allen's work in this country was chiefly in association with Mr. Forbes Robertson, Miss Ellen Terry, Mr. Edward Terry, and Mr. Nat Goodwin, while three of his visits to America were under the management of each of these gentlemen.

MRS. HYLTON ALLEN, although English, has played only in America under the management of Mr. Nat Goodwin, and also with Miss Elliott in Mrs. de la Pasture's new play Deborah of Tod's, produced in Boston Dec. 6. Mr. Hylton Allen is a Sussex man, and is looking forward to spending a portion of next summer in that county, and introducing his wife to his many friends and to the scenes of his boyhood.

THE O.P. Club have removed to new premises and are now located at the Adelphi Hotel, Adelphi, W.C.

PRESIDENT TAFT carried out his intention of going to see Mr. Forbes Robertson in The Passing of the Third Floor Back, and visited Elliott's Theatre, New York, on the 30th ult. for that purpose. At the end of the second act the President expressed a desire to meet Mr. Forbes Robertson, and the actor was escorted to the President's box, where he and Mr. Taft talked for about ten minutes. Mr. Robertson said he had never before played in the presence of the President of the United States, and that he greatly appreciated the honour. Mr. Taft said he was very much pleased with the work of the star and his company.

SINCE M. Maeterlinck's delicious fairy play, The Blue Bird, started on its successful career at the Haymarket Theatre, the blue bird has come to be regarded as the symbol of happiness. To ensure the happiness of ones friends in the new year, therefore, one must give them a blue bird. The fluffy blue mascots can be bought at the Haymarket Theatre and all the principal stores, in all sizes, from 1s. upwards.

"WHERE CHILDREN RULE," which is being enjoyed by enthusiastic audiences twice daily, will be suspended at the Garrick Theatre on Saturday evening next, in deference to Mr. Arthur Bourchier's long-standing contract to produce his new play the following week. An interesting event will take place this evening, when a large contingent of boy scouts, who are going to witness the performance, will be reviewed by Master Bobbie Andrews before entering the theatre.

THE remains of Albert Henry Fielding, late bill inspector at the Haymarket Theatre, were laid to rest at Tooting Cemetery on Monday. Mr. Fielding was for many years agent in advance for some of the best companies on the road, and in his earlier days was in the service of the Great Vance. Amongst those who attended the funeral were George and Walter Fielding (brothers), the deceased's eldest sister, all from Bristol, and Robert John Williamson, bill inspector at the Garrick Theatre (his bosom friend for twenty-eight years).

THE inclusion of Mr. Lyn Harding in the cast of The Strong People, which is to be Mr. Lewis Waller's next production at the Lyric, is an assurance that the playgoer may expect some powerful scenes in Mr. McLellan's new play.

THAT very pretty pantomime Cinderella at the Crystal Palace Theatre will be given every evening during next week and until further notice, with matinées on Wednesdays and Saturdays. Miss Dorothea Clarke as Cinders has become a great favourite, and Miss Maisie Ellinger as Prince Charming shares the honours. Of the many beautiful scenes, perhaps The Grove is the most popular, for here live deer are seen drinking from a running brook, to the accompaniment of the singing of many birds. Cinderella's electric-lighted coach is a splendid equippage.

THE Stage Society has selected for its next production a play in three acts, by Lady Bell, with the significant title of The Way the Money Goes. The play deals with the conditions of the working classes, a subject in which the authoress has long manifested a deep interest.

AT Lambeth Police-court on Monday Stewart McCarthy, aged twenty-eight, who declined to state his address or occupation, was charged on remand with stealing property belonging to Austen Milroy, an actor. On Dec. 11 the prisoner called at the Kennington Theatre, where the prosecutor was then performing, and, giving his name as Stewart, asked to see Mr. Milroy. That gentleman, who had met the prisoner during the previous week at Cheltenham, and believed him to be a man of some position, received him in his dressing-room, and left him there while he went on the stage. When Mr. Milroy returned he found the prisoner had gone. He afterwards missed a diamond pin, a gold watch, chain, and a gold-mounted umbrella, valued in all at £15. The prisoner pleaded guilty, and was sentenced to six months' hard labour.

MR. NORMAN V. NORMAN, who is well-known as a keen sportsman, arranged a hockey tour in the South of England last week. Mr. Norman's team, which included half a dozen county players from Hampshire, Dorset, Cornwall, and Devon, played four matches, winning two, losing one, and sharing one. A very pleasant time was spent.

THE Children's Court was duly inaugurated on Tuesday at six of the London Police Courts, and juveniles for whom licences to appear on the stage are required will no longer be compelled to attend a place where justice is dispensed to hardened criminals. Special rooms are now provided in which to hear the various cases, and no member of the public is admitted, with the exception of the Press. To suit the convenience of magistrates it has been arranged to take the juvenile cases at 2 p.m. on Tuesdays and Fridays.

THE first application of a theatrical character was at Bow-street, when permission was granted for nine girls, all over twelve years old, engaged in the Drury Lane pantomime, to remain in the theatre until eleven o'clock at night. Another application was granted in favour of little Mary Glynne at the Strand Theatre, and another on behalf of Miss Elise Craven and Master Claire at the Coliseum.

THE Glossop-Harris Shakespearean company met with more than ordinary success on the occasion of their first visit to the King's Theatre, Greenock, last week. On Saturday, when The Taming of the Shrew was presented, the theatre was packed to the doors with an enthusiastic audience of nearly three thousand people. The final fall of the curtain was the signal for a remarkable ovation, of which Miss Glossop-Harris and Mr. Frank Cellier were principally the objects. With the advent of the New Year Miss Glossop-Harris entered on the fifth of her tour.

THE Glasgow "Cinderella" Fund for Poor Children, which was originated some years ago by Mrs. Percy O. Humphrys, wife of the manager at the Theatre Royal, Glasgow, is once more to be helped by theatrical sports, taken part in by all the pantomime stars. These will be held in Celtic Park on Thursday, Feb. 10, and the leading attractions will be an aeroplane display and a Marathon race from the Royal to the grounds.

THE fancy dress ball of the Playgoers' Club will take place on Monday at the Hotel Cecil. A feature of the occasion will be a number of sets made up of dances representing characters from various plays, whilst Mr. Kenneth Douglas and Miss Marie Löhr are coming specially to judge a novelty in the form of an "egg and spoon" waltz, which is calculated to try the skill of the dancers.

MR. STANLEY COOKE desires it to be known that he is not a member of Mr. Eugene C. Stafford's touring company, but is fulfilling a special engagement of four weeks at the Coronet Theatre to play the Rev. Robert Spalding.

THE Murray King and Clark pantomime Dick Whittington has already made for itself a great name on the South Coast. Never before have so many flowers been thrown on to the Devonshire Park Theatre, Eastbourne, stage as were recorded last Saturday, when the Christmas run terminated at that flourishing town. Hastings is following suit, and judging from the advance booking, Folkestone refuses to be left behind.

AN interesting performance will take place at the Birmingham Theatre Royal in May. It is a musical comedy called The Heiress of Edgbaston, written by Mr. Follet Thorpe, a local author, and composed by Mr. Guy Jones, the conductor of the Theatre Royal orchestra. It will be played for six nights and one matinée at the Theatre Royal by a company entirely composed of amateurs.

MRS. E. L. FERNANDEZ, the vice-president of the Professional Woman's League, died in New York on the 21st ult., at the age of fifty-seven. Mrs. Fernandez had conducted a dramatic agency for a number of years, and was known by everybody in the American theatrical profession. She was the mother of Miss Bijou Fernandez (Mrs. W. L. Abingdon). Before the closing of Tony Pastor's Theatre, New York, she always acted as the hostess at the annual Christmas tree and gathering of stage children.

THE hundredth performance of Sir Walter Ralegh was reached at the Lyric on Tuesday, when a full house greeted the principal members of the cast with much heartiness, Mr. Lewis Waller, of course, receiving an especially warm welcome. Miss Winifred Emery and Miss Lilian Braithwaite's fine performance also won renewed admiration.

THE licence of the Alexandra Palace has been transferred from Mr. Edwin Goodship to Mr. F. T. Boucher, the newly-appointed managing secretary to the Palace trustees. Mr. Boucher was formerly in the service of the Crystal Palace for twelve years, and during the latter part of the period he was assistant manager.

A NEW prima donna came to the front on Tuesday, when Miss Amy Evans, the well-known Welsh concert singer, appeared in the rôle of Selene in Fallen Fairies at the Savoy. The daughter of a concert singer, Miss Evans received her first instruction in singing from Mr. David Lloyd, of Ton-y-Pandy, afterwards studying under Signor Alberto Randegger. At the age of fourteen she won first prize at the Eisteddfod at Cardiff. After singing at various musical festivals and concerts, Miss Evans made her London début at the Queen's Hall on Sept. 17 last, when she won enthusiastic praise.

APPLICATION was made on Wednesday to the President of the French Civil Tribunal on behalf of the directors of the Porte St. Martin Theatre, for permission to institute an action for damages against L'Eclair, the Paris Journal, and the Secolo of Milan for publishing pirated extracts from Chantecler, the production of which is now promised for the end of January at the Porte St. Martin Theatre. The Court granted the application, and the case will come on for hearing next week.

MRS. CALEB PORTER, who will be remembered as playing all sorts of character-parts, including that of Stephanus in The Sign of the Cross, and as part authoress of The Bridge Tangle produced at the Court in 1908, left the stage some years ago to take up dressmaking, and has established an agency at 175, Brompton-road, where costumes can be found to suit all sorts of parts at the last minute and at extremely low prices. Mrs. Porter's own stage experience showed her how hard it was to have to dress a part as well as one would like when studying and rehearsing all day, and she has tried to meet what she found one of the greatest difficulties—that of making a little money go a long way. Some of the new firm's character dresses may be seen at the Playhouse in Little Miss Cummin, and orders for a good many pageant and fancy dresses have also been executed. The busier members of the profession will find it a great saving both of time and money to pay a visit to Mrs. Porter's establishment, where a large stock of Paris and Vienna models are on show.

MR. W. W. KELLY'S bookings for the Christmas and New Year holidays at Kelly's Theatre, Liverpool, and at the Birkenhead Theatre Royal, have proved thoroughly successful. At Kelly's Messrs. Dudley Bennett and Wray's company in A Country Girl has played to capacity business nightly, and every evening since Boxing Night money has been turned away. On Monday Mr. Kelly's attraction will be Mr. Arthur Carlton's company in Cinderella. At the Birkenhead Theatre Royal next week Mr. Percy Hutchison, Miss Lilias Earle, Miss Cicely Stuckey, and company will be the attraction in Brewster's Millions.

A NEW Territorial musical play, entitled The Cause, written and composed by Captain and Mrs. Scott-Gatty, was successfully performed at Hertford on Wednesday, in aid of the Hertfordshire Regiment.

MISS DORA PASS concluded on Saturday last a special engagement as Mary Lee, in Captain Jack, in which she achieved gratifying success. She has had another tempting offer to go abroad with Miss Mohawk, but prefers England at present. Her recent engagements have been under the managements of Mr. Andrew Melville, Mr. Morton Powell, Mr. Gilbert Payne, and Mr. Cyril Leighton.

MISS GLADYS FORD-HOWITT, at the termination of False Gods at His Majesty's, was engaged by Mr. William Giffard for Mr. Louis Calvert's tour of Sunday, appearing with marked success in the title-rôle.

MR. KEITH G. KENNETH commenced his spring tour last week with Under the Greenwood Tree and The Woman of Kronstadt. Both plays are dressed and mounted on a most elaborate scale, and the company is one of exceptional strength, including Miss Betty Fairfax, Miss Ida Chapman, Mr. Bernard Copping, and Mr. Montague Lane, who undertakes the stage-management.

THE many friends of Mr. Reginald Grant, the popular acting-manager at Kelly's Theatre, Liverpool, will learn with satisfaction that he is back at his post after his serious illness. Mr. Grant has received so many good wishes and hopes for his speedy recovery that he finds himself unable at present to personally reply to each, and asks us to express his gratitude to his well-wishers.

MR. TOM CONWAY, the popular Baroness of the Cinderella pantomime now playing at the Alexandra Theatre, Stoke Newington, has not been able to appear since Tuesday night through a very bad attack of influenza and bronchitis. He was unable to attend rehearsals, but played at the first performance, and continued to do so, although very ill, until Tuesday. He hopes to resume his part after a few days' rest.

"DON" will celebrate its hundredth performance at the Criterion Theatre on Monday. Mr. Rudolf Bessier's clever comedy goes to the Kingsway on Jan. 17, with all the members of the original company.

OWING to the success of The Forty Thieves at the Grand Theatre, Fulham, special matinées will be given every Monday until further notice, in addition to those on Wednesdays, Thursdays, and Saturdays. Children are admitted half price at all performances except those of Saturday evening, and to all seats except gallery.

MR. C. C. DORRILL'S experiment of providing a pantomime Boxing Day at New Theatre, Oxford, the first time for twenty-one years, proved a great success, and Mr. Brydon Phillips is to be congratulated on his foresight in catering so acceptably for the University town. Sinbad was voted a refined and funny pantomime, eminently suitable to Mr. Dorrill's patrons.

MR. J. E. VEDRENNE is sending out a company with Mr. Lewis Waller's success, The Fires of Fate, by Sir Arthur Conan Doyle. The company plays four weeks in the suburbs, opening on the 31st inst. at the Fulham Theatre, with the Coronet and Kennington to follow, and subsequently visits all the large towns.

"THE PARENTS' PROGRESS," a new one-act play by "George Paston," will shortly be put on at the Prince of Wales's in front of The Little Damozel. That popular piece will early next month have to be transferred to another theatre to make way for a new musical play, written by Mr. Frederick Lonsdale and Mr. Paul Rubens, with lyrics by Mr. Arthur Wimperis and Mr. Rubens, and music by Mr. Rubens. The cast will include Miss Isabel Jay, Mr. Bertram Wallis, Mr. James Blakeley, and Mr. Lauri de Frece.

PROFESSOR EBENEZER PROUT, Professor of Music in the University of Dublin, who died on Dec. 5 last, has left property sworn at £4,749 gross, and £4,731 net.

INTERESTING statistics of the performances during the first half of 1909 at the Paris Grand Opera are to hand. The largest number of performances fell to Wagner, who had fifty-one evenings to his credit, and he was the only composer who was represented by as many as five works. Gounod came next with forty-two, Saint-Saëns had twenty-four. Meyerbeer, with two operas, had only twelve.

THE centenary of Schumann's birth will be celebrated at his native town of Zwickau by the opening of a museum bearing the name of the composer.

THREE new operas have been written by Leoncavallo, the first of which, entitled Maja, will be heard for the first time next Monday at the Teatro Costanzi in Rome. Malbruk, the second novelty, will be presented at the Teatro Nazionale, Rome, in the course of this month. By the composer's desire, the third work, Camicia Rossa, will not be brought forward until next year, when it will be performed in Rome on the occasion of the unveiling of the Victor Emmanuel monument.

AT a Shakespearean reading of Much Ado About Nothing at the Passmore-Edwards Institute on Sunday, the 16th, Miss Ella Erskine will be the Beatrice and Mr. Walter Pearce the Benedick. Miss Agnes Brayton, sister of Miss Lily Brayton, will be the hero. Miss Erskine will also assist at a Shakespearean recital at the Portman Rooms on the 18th (Tuesday) as Olivia, in a scene from Twelfth Night.

THE combat of the two Hunnish knights in Fallen Fairies at the Savoy is among the most realistic sword-fights ever presented on the stage. The weapons used are specially wrought Sheffield steel blades, 42in. long and nearly ¼in. in thickness, and the force of the blows delivered may be gauged by the fact that after three weeks' fighting the edges of each sword are cut and dented like a saw. The men who handle these weapons are well able to wield them. Mr. Claude Flemming, an Australian, whose early life was spent in rounding up cattle and stock on his father's 50,000 acre holding on the Darling River, stands 6ft. 3in., with a 48in. chest, and weighs, with his tiger skins and armour upon him, nearly 18st. His opponent, Mr. Leo Sheffield, is well over six feet, weighs nearly 15st., and has a chest measurement of 42in.

ITEMS OF INTEREST.

A Triumph of Naturalism.

THE following neat bit of criticism is taken from Vanity Fair of Nov. 10 last:—". . . think again of the exact depiction of a man driven to find consolation in the brandy bottle, which was recently given us by Mr. Lyn Harding in Mid-Channel, at the St. James's Theatre. It was not the shouting, raving drunkard of tragedy or of farce with which we were so painfully familiar—the more obvious art of a simpler day; it was the subtle, scientific representation of the first steps downward in the drunkard's career, drawn for us by an artist in Nature, whose very restraint was terrible because it was true. It was the triumph of naturalism. And it is that naturalism which so differentiates the modern stage from the older school of fine declamation and rough, haphazard effects."

Cinderella's "Fairy."

HEARING so much of the wholesome honest hilarity and the beauties of the Elephant and Castle Theatre pantomime Cinderella (presented with such success by Mr. Charles Barnard, by arrangement with Messrs. Ernest Stevens and R. C. Buchanan), a local school teacher made up a small party of his "toddlers" the other afternoon, and made them all comfortable in the pit. In East-street next day two of the party, orphans, (aged respectively six and five), were discovered holding converse on a doorstep. The result of the consultation was that their locale was ultimately changed from the said doorstep to the stage door of the theatre, where they waited and waited with a patience worthy a good cause. They had made diligent inquiries as to where they could find "Cinderella's Fairy," and by some means they had migrated to the back instead of the front of the theatre. Probably their infantile instincts suggested that, as they had not seen the Fairy enter while they were in the pit, she must of necessity have another mode of ingress and egress.

AT twelve midnight a kindly journalist passed through the stage door into the chilly night air, and under the contiguous railway arch noticed the two children fast asleep in each other's arms. He thereupon awakened them, and asked what they were doing there. "Please we're waiting for Cinderella's Fairy," said Tommy, and Mollie nodded her head vigorously. "And what do you want of her?" queried the gentleman. "We want her to take us to her boo'ful home, where we can have sweets, and oranges, and—and——" And Tommie paused. "And find our mummies and farders, 'cos everybody says they have gone there." This from Mollie. The journalist knew an influential man who wanted to adopt two such children; and thus it came about that Tommie and Mollie have since been adopted, and in years to come will tell their friends how they found Cinderella's Fairy in the person of the kindly journalist.

Miss Tempest on Oysters.

MISS MARIE TEMPEST has been praising American cooking. To a representative of the New York Herald she said: "I think all your food over here is heavenly. Your cooking is superb. Your oysters are divine. I would as soon paint my tongue with iodine as eat a London oyster. It has much the same taste. But the oysters one gets here! The flavour is maddening! I love to contemplate them lying in their liquid depths calmly awaiting interment. Doesn't it seem cruel to jab a fork into them? It seems as if I had been living on the half shell since I reached this city. And your oyster cocktails! I adore them. You may think it unpatriotic on my part to hit the English oyster when it is down," said Miss Tempest earnestly, "but it is the most dangerous thing in England to-day." "Except the suffragette." "I accept your amendment. The English oyster doesn't wear hatpins."

Changing the subject, Miss Tempest spoke of her reception at the Lyceum, New York, where she is now appearing in Penelope, and expressed herself as being "deliriouly happy over it." Although she had been playing the part in London for over a year, Miss Tempest confessed to an attack of stage fright. She said: "I tried to think of the many good friends I had made over here, but it didn't help me. I felt as if I should go to pieces, and I told my company so. When I made my entrance my voice failed me absolutely for several seconds, but under the spell of such a spontaneous welcome I came around all right. When the curtain went down on the first act I was the happiest woman in the world."

The Comet and the Stage.

THE approach of the comet reminds one how little the topic has been touched on in writing for the stage, although it lends itself to humorous treatment. Apparently, however, in Germany one farce turning on the comet which is now appearing does exist. It is by Nestroy, who was a well-known writer of farces, and it is even now played on almost every stage in Germany and Austria. It is called Lumpacy Vagabundus, or The Tramp Wanderer, and there are very comic characters in the piece. A tailor, a cobbler, and a joiner, all of them tramps, meet as such on the high road. They buy jointly a lottery ticket, and with it win the first prize. The joiner keeps his share of the money and marries his master's daughter; the tailor plays the Grand Seigneur and gets rid of his; the cobbler spends his in drink because he has read somewhere that the comet, which is coming, is to destroy the earth, and it would be no good, under those circumstances, to keep what he had won. One of his songs, which had very great popularity, was "Die welt steht auf kein fall mehr lang, lang, lang" ("The earth will not last, in any case, very much longer").

Pantomime Gout.

IT is not generally known that Mr. Arthur Collins has suffered for the past five or six years from gout in the feet and legs during the last few days before the production of a pantomime or drama. Mr. Cecil Raleigh, who has had a great deal of experience of rehearsing at the "Lane" attributes this to the fact that the stage there slopes downward to the footlights, making the task of directing a rehearsal a particularly uncomfortable one. Mr. Collins will often have to stand, in virtually one position, on the slope for hours at a stretch, and this year he finished his rehearsals with one foot and leg in a gout boot.

The Effect of Music.

THE Week End, a rising and spirited little paper, is full of theatrical tit-bits this week, and we take from it the following:—"Two professional pianists were anxious to impress each other, and one remarked, 'Do you know, the other night I sat at my piano and wandered idly over the keys, until I found myself playing "Home, Sweet Home," and I played it as it has never been played before. Its pathos even affected me. Suddenly I became conscious of another sound, proceeding from the cage of a canary that I had covered up for the night. On withdrawing the cover I found the poor little bird with tears rolling from its eyes, and sobbing its heart out!' After listening in pained silence to this touching story, the other man replied, 'Yes, I can well believe it, for I, too, have had a strange experience. The other evening, filled with all the fire and ardour of a musician's soul, I sat at my instrument and played as I had never played before. 'The Village Blacksmith' was my theme, and I could see with my mental vision all the animation and life of the noisy forge. Presently I became aware of another sound in the room, and on lifting the cover from my canary's cage, I found the dear little bird with sparks flying out of its tail.'"

Moss's Empires, Limited, and the Hackney and Shepherd's Bush Empire Palaces, Ltd., with their respective magnates, Sir H. E. Moss and Mr. Oswald Stoll, are the joint proprietors of the Alexandra Theatre, Stoke Newington, and Messrs. Moss and Stoll have shown their usual excellent judgment in arranging with Mr. Ernest Stevens and Mr. R. C. Buchanan for the production there of the pantomime of Cinderella and the Glass Slipper. The cant phrase, "funny without being vulgar," is exactly appropriate to this admirable entertainment. It is too often the practice to vulgarise pantomime; but a much better effect can be obtained by genuine comedy than by meaningless buffoonery, and by well-delivered dialogue than by lazy, crude, and careless improvisation. There is plenty of broad fun in Cinderella; indeed, the entertainment is full of it, and laughter is never long unheard. But the fun is based on really humorous ideas, and there is no ugly absurdity about the effect. Take, for instance, the performances of the parts of the Baron and Baroness by Mr. George French and Mr. Tom Conway—who, by the bye, has been absent from the cast from indisposition since Tuesday, his place being taken with great ability by Mr. Chas. Kean. Each of these impersonations, extravagant as it is, is intelligently conceived. The Baron has a distinct individuality. His make-up as a little man of bilious temperament, habitually overborne by his stalwart spouse, is carefully elaborated for all its exaggeration. Mr. Conway as the Baroness might be the tyrannical parson's wife sometimes met with in the rural districts. These two artists act their parts, and the absurdity of the situations is doubled by the "possibility" of the personages. To see the sudden awakening of hope in the Baron's face when his stern help-mate reads from a doctor's book that his spasms can be cured by a "teaspoonful of neat brandy," and to mark the dejection which his features express when she goes on to discover that, on the symptoms becoming more severe, the pains must be allayed by a teaspoonful of turpentine in water, is delicious; and the characterisation is not abandoned when the Baron gets up the chimney, and, after the explosion of a patent cleaner, comes tumbling down covered with soot, or when he engages in a screamingly funny wrestling match with a gigantic footman, formidably embodied by Mr. Chas. Kean. In all cases, the little Baron is still himself, ever excruciatingly absurd. The well-simulated dignity of the Baroness makes her mishaps—as when a property-horse lies down on her, and she is finally beaten down by her husband after she has forced him to become belligerent—all the more droll; and these two actors are inexhaustible in their supply of "business." Miss Nellie Wigley, who plays the gallant Casimir, is an ideal Prince. She has a superb figure, beautiful features, and a very agreeable voice. She acts with easy effrontery, and sings some well-chosen songs in a way that renders encores undeniable; and she has a winning way with her, composed of equal parts of dash and daintiness, which makes her immensely popular. It is not often that one finds in pantomime as fresh, as refined, and as ingenuous a Cinderella as Miss Dorothy Rundell, a pretty young lady, with "educated" enunciation, and a mellow voice pleasantly inclined to the lower register. She is delightfully simple and natural, and at the same time shows a quiet sense of humour. The tradition of making the elder sisters two hideous monsters has happily not been observed in this case. As Araminta, indeed, Miss Edith Barwell's charms are obscured by a clever make-up, not, however, amounting to horrible ugliness, and she plays the part accordingly; but the other sister, Elvira, is by no means a "fright" as represented by Miss Vic. Charlton, who acts with agreeable archness, and, assisted by the Lottie Stone troupe of dancers, sings some very effective songs. The ever-active Capers is made strikingly important by Mr. Bobbie Walker, whose acrobatic skill enables him to throw himself about in recklessly amusing fashion. He is ever on the move, and all his fun is clever and clean. Miss Gwen Howard is a fine figure of a Duke as his Grace of Whistbridge, and her song "Ship ahoy" is rendered in free, easy, and exhilarating style, and evokes very hearty applause. Mr. Arthur Sutcliffe treats the part of Dandini in quietly effective comedy style, and, coming before the curtain in an interval, delights the audience with a humorous song about a "Grand Baby and a Baby Grand"; and special praise must be given to Miss Kitty Dale as the Fairy Godmother for her beauty of face and figure, her clear and distinct delivery, and her charming and sympathetic singing. Miss Jessie Hamilton is good as the Dream Fairy. Miss Dora Balmain, Miss Etta Copsley, and Miss Jean Leighton are pleasing representatives of minor personages; and the corps de ballet and supernumeraries are all well chosen and perfectly drilled. The scenery, by Messrs. Thos. Holmes, Stafford Hall, R. C. Oldham, D. G. Hall, A. Terraine, and E. Grimani, is very artistic and effective, excellent examples being the Home of the Fairy Godmother, in which an electrically-lighted coach and bouquet are introduced, and the Royal Ballroom, a handsome and spacious set. Miss Lottie Stone has arranged the ballets, in one of which there is a picturesque dance of bayadères; and the stage-manager for the pantomime season is Mr. Augustus Hammond, to whose care and attention much of the closeness and smoothness of the performance is due. Mr. H. J. Yorke, the musical director, leads an excellent orchestra with skill and decision; and, altogether, the Alexandra Theatre pantomime deserves to be most enthusiastically admired and praised. Full houses at both afternoon and evening performances testify to its success, which is richly merited by its many excellent and attractive qualities.

AT the Exchange Hall, Wellingborough, Mr. Percy Tyler's company appeared on Tuesday in A Message from Mars, which, being admirably mounted and very capably acted, gave great satisfaction to a good audience. The performance of Mr. Dudley Stuart as Horace Parker was distinctly good, and the weird Messenger was all that could be desired at the hands of Mr. Lionel Yaldwin. Mr. Percy Tyler gave a capital study of the Tramp; and Mr. Charles K. Francis was quite satisfactory as Arthur Dicey. Miss Nita Charlton was pleasing as Minnie Templer; and Miss Clara Nicholls was well suited to the character of Miss Parker.

"WHERE Children Rule Twice Daily" is the inscription on the front of one of our theatres. That is all right (says a weekly paper), but it is the midnight ruling we object to.

A GREAT AUTHOR-MANAGER.

"I have seen a gentleman soldier and a gentleman tailor, but never before a gentleman player," said Kelly, the dissolute leader of a Mohawk club, who had leaped on the stage and insulted the actresses in the company of Thomas Sheridan, the father of the great dramatist, and had been chastised by him. "I trust sir," said Thomas Sheridan, bowing, "that you see one now." The prejudice long clung to the actors, and, indeed, to the dramatic author's profession, has now almost passed away. Mr. George Alexander performs important civic duties, and at least two of our Members of Parliament are dramatists. But in the days in which Mr. Walter Sichel, the author of the fine biography of Sheridan which has just been published in two volumes by Constable and Co., deals the prejudice against the actor's profession was still strong, and even now Sheridan is better remembered as the author of The School for Scandal and The Rivals than for his splendid Parliamentary labours.

It would be hard to overpraise the way in which Mr. Sichel has done his work. And it is not mere bookmaking. He is primed to the muzzle with his subject; and, with the exception of a certain exuberance of "political" quotation, there is not a dull or unreadable page in these two finely-bound volumes. And Mr. Sichel, in order to place us in the proper "atmosphere," has even sketched the chief characteristics of Sheridan's age. The biographer's analysis of the dramatist's complex nature is masterly and complete. He says of Sheridan's traditional impecuniosity:—

"It must not be supposed, however, that Sheridan was always owing. For twenty-six years his Stafford election bills were regularly paid. During the attempt to arrange his affairs in 1807 it was found that his debts did not amount to one-fifth of what he imagined, while after his death they did not exceed £5,500—no more than his father's had been in 1769, and a trifle compared with the vast sums owed and handled by his compeers. It is plain that he could not have fought his way under every disadvantage for more than forty years without often paying for it. It is equally plain that the drunken swindler and driveller of tradition could never have more than held his own with those intellectual athletes, his competitors. Yet with every allowance for misstatements, his own letters prove that he passed long intervals in weathering the storm of the great unpaid, a fact which once led him to observe of an actor's absence of mind that it 'never extended to a Saturday.' Actors and actresses were often indignant at the close of the week, but deserters usually returned; they persevered for years in his employ, and King, his actor-manager, who complained that he had 'no free hand' even to buy a piece of 'copper-lace,' twice fled, and twice came back to the fold. Sheridan's periodical inattention to the theatre was chiefly due to his political preoccupations, and we find Mrs. Tickell longing for his return and stalwartly defending him against the impugners of his credit. Moreover, it may not be generally known that Garrick, reputed the most punctual of paymasters, was beset by actors clamouring for arrears. And since Garrick's day rent, competition, and salaries had risen, while audiences dwindled under the war of the French Revolution far more than under that with America. Where the prompt Garrick erred through caution the reckless Sheridan erred through delay. Garrick was kind and hospitable, but could be both jealous and stingy. His niggardliness, Quin used to relate, made him turn back on his way to a charity benefit because he had met 'the ghost of a shilling.'

"Sheridan, however, always found the way out. There is an authentic story which illustrates how he used to pour oil on the troubled waters. Miss Farren, on the eve of her marriage with Lord Derby, got him to remonstrate with the manager. The Sheridan papers proved that, as a matter of fact, she had been fined for non-attendance at rehearsals, and that these fines were deducted from her salary. But Sheridan thus appeased the diminutive peer: 'This is too bad. You have taken from us the brightest jewel of the world, and now you quarrel about a little dust that she leaves behind her.' Yet the dust was gold-dust, as the wit was well aware.

"To return to Sheridan's scruples, from which we have travelled too far. They harassed each of his wives even more than his carelessness. They starved his very horses. They victimised his equally prodigal son, who complained, with reason, that his father's desire to satisfy honour by big payments had marred his prospects in the new theatre; though he also complained, and without reason, that by dangling a theatrical monopoly before him he had barred him from a public career. They ultimately caused Sheridan's usual choice to be a choice of sufferers—one often exercised against his nearest and dearest. They led to his dread of facing a settlement because he fancied that disclosures would compromise him. These surely are queer counsels of perfection. By shrinking from a revelation of debts which he feared would damage his character, Sheridan really damaged it. Yet we know from the Sheridan papers that, so far from excluding his son from politics, he actually borrowed eight thousand pounds—and he considered it degradation—to forward Tom's three candidatures for Parliament. And we also know, from a number of authentic sources, that not one of his intimates, however they might have suffered, ever supposed that his injuries were designed. Though he could be terribly selfish he was not wittingly so. When it was brought home to him he hastened to atone; and where his sentiment was touched he could be unselfish also. When his need was sorest he at least twice disobliged the Prince, once at the beck of chivalry in the case of Princess Caroline, and again at the beck of principle with regard to Ireland and the Catholic question. 'His follies,' to quote Sheridan's favourite Farquhar, 'were weakly founded on the principle of honour, and the very foundations helped to undermine the structure.'

"But he touched life at too many points. He could be callous as well as sensitive to the call of his honour. Early forced to put a bold front on his distresses, he outran the uncertainties of his lot and even of his hopes. Absorbed by one subject, he readily let slip the other. He forgot the stage in his politics, and his politics in the stage; under the pressure of needless obligations his family, too, receded into the background. Woe indeed to all whose income depended on Drury Lane! Take the case of his first wife's kindred, whose trustee and executor he became. He loved the Linleys (who could help loving them?), their father always deferred to his opinion, yet soon after his second marriage their allowance was interrupted and for a time they were reduced to penury. The son, who through Sheridan had obtained an East Indian writership, was the first to acquaint him of their plight, and he must have succoured them, or they would not have remained his friends. That is the amazing part of his seeming heartlessness: no one quarrelled with him for long. While the great Mr. Sheridan's curricle scoured the countryside, and he flung guineas to postboys, what recked he of poor old Martha stranded at Bognor, or of Sarah, the other maidservant, coalless and threatening notice in town? No sooner shall Martha or Sarah recur to his recollection than they will be paid, and with tears, at the cost, perhaps, of some other victim, who will equally turn into his devoted slave. He would put himself to endless trouble for others. Richardson, who believed in his friend's goodness of nature, attributed all his errors to his moneyless beginnings. This is true; nor is it the trite plea of Becky Sharp that virtue is easy on five thousand a year."

"THE CITY."

Modern Play of American Life, by Clyde Fitch, Produced at the Lyric Theatre, New York, on Dec. 21.

(FROM OUR NEW YORK CORRESPONDENT.)

Announced as the last play written by the late Clyde Fitch, The City has scored a success that may be fairly described as sensational. It seems to be the general opinion that this is the "strongest" drama that Fitch ever wrote, and its success imparts additional honour to the playwright's memory. A high authority has pronounced it "the greatest example of purely melodramatic writing that has yet been accomplished by one of our native dramatists," and "a play of tremendous fascination and power."

Those who remember the terrifying realism of the late Charles Warner's impersonation of Coupeau, when he depicted the agonies of delirium tremens in the play called Drink, will be able to form an idea of the performance that has brought a comparatively unknown actor to the front during the past week, and created such scenes of excitement and commotion as are seldom witnessed in a theatre. The actor is Mr. Tully Marshall, and he impersonates a "dope fiend," which, in American English, means a victim of the morphine habit. Mr. Marshall was the original Joe Brooks in Paid in Full. It is said that Clyde Fitch "took his measure" on seeing him in that play, and had him in view when he drew the character of George Frederick Hannock, the aforesaid "dope fiend." Hannock is worked into a frenzy of horror and despair when a certain disclosure is made to him, and the pitiable condition of this human wreck is so vividly pictured by his representative that the audience is worked up to a degree of excitement that is almost hysterical. Hannock's writhings and contortions are dreadful to witness; but while we have shuddered at the picture we have admired the technical skill of the artist, and the newspapers seem to agree with the public that Mr. Marshall has "arrived."

The theme of the play is the change effected by the conditions of city life in a family reared and educated in a small country town. George Rand, sen., a highly respected business man with a grown-up family, living in Middelburg, N.Y., had an affair with a young woman some years ago, and she bore him a son. The woman is dead, and the son, not knowing that Rand is his father, but only that his mother was wronged, blackmails Rand. The latter has received a good-business offer from New York, and the members of his family, being tired of Middleburg, are eager to move to the metropolis, but the father decides to remain where he is. His illegitimate son, known as George Frederick Hannock, makes further demands upon him, and Rand is forced to reveal the skeleton in his closet to his own son. He has hardly done so, when he dies of heart disease. The second act takes place several years later in New York. Young Rand has succeeded not only in business but in politics, and is about to be nominated for the Governorship. Hannock, whom he has employed as his secretary, threatens to expose Rand's dishonesty in business unless he is promised preferment and the hand of Rand's sister in marriage. This last demand horrifies Rand, knowing, as he does, the relationship between them. He tells Hannock that what he asks is impossible; but his sister blurts out that they were married that morning. He sends her out of the room and reveals the fact that Hannock and Teresa Rand are children of the same father. Hannock is under the influence of morphine, and the effect of this disclosure is to make him rave like a maniac. He tells Rand that he lies, and defies him to make the statement in the presence of his sister. The girl is called in, but Rand has hardly opened his lips when Hannock shoots her, and she dies in her brother's arms. Seized and disarmed by Rand, the frenzied murderer struggles to get the pistol in order to take his own miserable life.

"If I am brought to trial," he cries, "all your own sins will be made known. Save yourself and your family! For God's sake give me the pistol!"

And Rand almost yields to his pleading. He lays the revolver on the table, but just as Hannock springs for it he snatches it up and hurls it through the window. As the curtain falls the madman is arrested. Mr. Walter Hampden, who appeared as Rand, was at his best in this scene.

The third act seems weak by comparison. Rand is obliged to give up the Governorship, and he fears that the girl he wishes to marry will turn from him; but when he frankly admits his faults she agrees to stand by him. In the final scene, Teresa Rand, an older sister who has married unhappily, and the husband she wishes to divorce, in seeking the cause of their unhappiness, cast the blame on the city. But the brother tells them that they are wrong. "Do not blame the city," he cries. "It's not her fault; it's your own. What the city does is to bring out what's strongest in us. If at heart we are good, the good in us will win; if bad, God help us! Do not blame the city. She gives man his opportunity; it rests with him what he makes of it. A man may live in a small place all his life—deceive the whole place and himself into thinking he has all the virtues, when at heart he's a hypocrite; but the village gives him no chance to find out—to prove it to his fellows—the small town is too easy. But the city! A man comes to the gate and knocks. New York or Chicago, Boston or San Francisco; no matter what city, so long as it's big and busy and selfish and self-centred; and she opens the gate and takes him in, and she stands him in the middle of her market place—where Wall-street and Herald-square and Fifth-avenue and the Bowery and Harlem and Forty-second-street all meet—and there she strips him of all his disguises, and of all his hypocrisies, and she paints his ambition on her fences and lights up her skyscrapers with it—what he wants to do, and what he thinks he is. And then she says to him: 'Make good if you can, or to hell with you!' And what is in him comes out to clothe his nakedness. To the city he can't lie. I know, because I tried."

Mr. Edward Emery, as Gorden Van Vranken, the husband of Rand's sister, gives a finely finished portrayal of a befuddled man-about-town, and the other rôles are in good hands.

MR. ROBERT MACDONALD'S company with The Dairymaids is playing to full and appreciative audiences at the Pleasure Gardens Theatre, Folkestone. Miss Dorothy Grasdorff, a dainty young actress of exceptional ability, scores a success as the winsome Peggy. Winifred is also gracefully portrayed by Miss May Casson. Mr. Wm. Spray as Lieut. Sam Brudenell, R.N., and Mr. Robert Caradoc as Joe Mivens, A.B., keep the house continuously in roars of laughter. Mr. Bernard Vaughan's fine stage presence is seen to advantage as the Irish naval doctor; Lieut. Breeton, R.N., is breezily acted by Mr. James W. Duval; Miss Mabel Medrow and Miss Kitty Kirwan lend valuable support as Lady Brudenell and Miss Pyechase; and praise is due to Miss Edie Martin for her clever study of Eliza.

MR. EDITOR.—Sir,—In mentioning me as the producer and stage-manager of the pantomime, Red Riding Hood at this theatre, your correspondent erroneously states that I am "an old Oxonian." He is evidently confusing me with a namesake—Mr. George Stone—who was business-manager here for the late Mr. Fred Neebe. I am an old Brightonian.—Yours faithfully CHARLES R. STONE. (FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

BERLIN, THURSDAY, Jan. 6.—A cordial and well-deserved reception was accorded to the popular collaborators' latest effort, which, though not without its faults, is very entertaining and humorous. The bearer of the "great name" is Joseph Hoefer, the most successful composer of dance operettas—needless to say he is a Viennese—and therefore extremely wealthy. Twenty years ago he was poor and insignificant, and was reluctantly compelled to own the superiority of his fellow-student's talent, one Robert Brandt. Robert, moreover, found favour with Klara, Hoefer's sweetheart, so that altogether poor Joseph was to be pitied. Now, after twenty years have elapsed, the men meet again, and their positions are reversed. Brandt's talents have not proved remunerative, and he is at a very low ebb indeed, with no prospect of getting his great work—a symphony, into which he has put the best part of himself—performed anywhere, not having the requisite name. Hoefer, one would naturally imagine, would gloat over his rival, but his heart of gold triumphs over base passions, and he magnanimously determines to help his old comrade to fame and fortune upon his own shoulders. He proposes that the great symphony shall be announced for performance under his name, and this is all the more generous of the "Waltz King," as he has been contemplating for some time the production of a serious composition himself. He has his reward, however, in the gratitude of his old sweetheart and her husband, and also in the loving admiration of the new queen of his heart—the daughter of an old acquaintance, a professor of music. That all comes to a happy termination is a foregone conclusion. Many of the scenes are very realistic and fascinating, particularly the artists' room of the Berlin Philharmonic Hall on the evening of the great symphony's performance. It is hardly necessary to say that the composition was a phenomenal success, and Brandt from henceforth becomes a noted musician. The interpretation was very good, and the piece is filling the bill to the exclusion of all else.

DR. LOTHAR has drawn a fairly amusing libretto from Herr Max Dreyer's satirical comedy Das Tal der Liebe, to which Oscar Strauss has written the music of an operetta, which has been produced at the Komische Oper with some success. The title remains the same as the play. The latter was produced at the Lessing some time ago and was then fully described in your columns. The music is pleasing, though not striking, and the work is well mounted and performed.

HENNEQUIN AND VEBER'S wild farce Im Taubenschlag is still holding the boards at the Residenz, and drew large houses through the holidays. The chief attraction is, of course, Herr Richard Alexander, the clever actor-manager, in the principal rôle, but the characters are all admirably sustained, as is the rule in this theatre. At present there is no sign of a change of programme.

ON New Year's Eve the merriest play in the bill of most of our theatres was put on, as is usual here. Miss Hobbs, at the Schiller, at Charlottenburg, drew a crowded house, and at the Luisen a laughable farce by Helfing, entitled Eine vernügte Kindtaufe, met with distinct success. The action of the piece passes in Saxony, and the dialect—not a little exaggerated, of course—amused the Berliners immensely. At the Volksoper a new composition by Klemens Schmaltisch met with a cordial reception. The title is Der Kampf um Schneewittchen; the plot, as may be gathered, is drawn from the old nursery fairy tale. The instrumentation is good, and some of the melodies are very pleasing.

A FINE performance of Der fliegende Hollander was given at the Royal Opera last night. The Emperor was present with several of his sons and a numerous suite.

THE handsome Hebbel Theatre is in a state of insolvency. It has been under an evil star from its commencement, and the deficit of last year has risen to enormous proportions. Herr Robert, the lessee and manager, who came full of excellent intentions to us from Hungary, has—despite good and conscientious work—been forced to succumb to adverse circumstances, and he has everyone's sympathy. The performances are continuing for the present, the proceeds being divided among the company. A new manager will probably be in office next week.

THE CENSORSHIP COMMITTEE.

A meeting of the Society of West-end Theatre Managers was held on Wednesday to discuss the recent recommendations made by the Censorship Committee. Four resolutions were unanimously adopted, and a copy of these were forwarded on Thursday to the Lord Chamberlain. Sir Charles Wyndham (president), Sir Herbert Tree, Mr. George Alexander, and Mr. George Edwardes (vice-presidents), and Mr. Arthur Bourchier, Mr. Arthur Chudleigh, Mr. Arthur Collins, Mr. Robert Courtneidge, Mr. Frank Curzon, Mr. Tom B. Davis, Mr. Charles Frohman, Mr. J. M. Gatti, Mr. William Greet, Mr. Frederick Harrison, Mr. Seymour Hicks, Mr. Edward Terry, Mr. J. E. Vedrenne, and Mr. Lewis Waller are members of the society.

The resolutions passed are as follows:

(a) That this society regards with extreme dissatisfaction the opinion expressed by the Joint Select Committee on the Censorship that it would be advisable to abolish the power of licensing theatres now vested in the Lord Chamberlain.

(b) That, in the opinion of this society, the discretionary powers of the Lord Chamberlain, exercisable as they are by him personally, without expense or delay, afford the greatest protection to the public and the State, and, in support of this opinion, this society would refer to the uncontroverted evidence of many witnesses called by the Joint Committee who testified to the satisfactory working of the Lord Chamberlain's department as the licensing authority.

(c) That in the opinion of this society, the substitution of the London County Council or any other authority for that of the Lord Chamberlain would prejudice the theatre by depriving it of the prestige which it now enjoys as holding its licence from the Crown.

(d) That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the Lord Chamberlain, and that he be informed that this society desires to record its appreciation of courteous treatment extended at all times to its members by him and by his predecessors, and to express its intention of supporting his authority so far as it lies in the power of the society to do so.

MR. FRED MELVILLE'S Her Road to Ruin occupies the boards at the Alexandra Theatre, Widnes. Miss Ada Champion plays Jess Willoughby to perfection. Mr. Charles Dickens is well placed in the part of Frank Temple.

LONDON VARIETY THEATRES.

CHELSEA PALACE.

Hall Caine figures in the bill at the Chelsea Palace this week, not by means of an original sketch, but with an excerpt from one of his most popular dramas—The Eternal City to wit. The part chosen is the Betrayal scene, and the experiment has proved entirely successful, the act being closely watched, understood, and applauded. Mr. Derwent Hall Caine, who has appeared many times in the part of David Rossi, repeats his impersonation with satisfactory results, his passionate acting appealing forcibly to the sentiment of the audience. Mr. Caine, however, might be warned against a tendency to precede with a consonant words that begin with a vowel, which militates against distinctness. Mr. Lewin Mannering gives sinister expression to the crafty minister Bonelli, and executes a most realistic death-fall; and Miss Phyllis Relph is a handsome Roma and displays tragic and emotional gifts. The excerpt is mounted in admirable style, a massive and well-furnished interior representing Roma's studio.

Another new item in the bill is a comic sketch by Harry Grattan, entitled

"THE INTERVIEWER."

Dr. Davis .....MR. FRANK HARRISON
Charles .....MR. MACK JOYCE
Miss Guinvere Geithere ....MISS PHŒBE MERCER

The farce was announced for production some weeks back, but was prevented by the illness of Miss Mercer, who was to undertake the title-rôle. Miss Mercer has now quite recovered, and appears as a lady journalist, who comes to interview a rising scientist. He detests all such ordeals, and every effort is made by the man-servant to circumvent the resourceful lady; but she is proof against all attempts to deter her, covering her face with a patent air-purifier when the man begins to sweep a particularly dusty carpet. Eventually the lady runs her quarry to earth, or rather to his Turkish bath, and it is while he is enjoying that luxury that the enterprising lady confronts him. The Doctor's rage knows no bounds, and he refuses point-blank to be "interviewed," but the water is getting hotter and hotter, and it is while undergoing increasing torments that the lady secures a "snapshot" of his face with a duly agonised expression. Under the threat to publish the photograph in her paper the Doctor at length succumbs and gives her his word to submit to the hated process. The humour of the dialogue is not particularly strong, but frequent laughter was evoked during the progress of the sketch, Miss Mercer acting vivaciously as the interviewer; Mr. Frank Harrison putting on a variety of comic expressions as her victim; and Mr. Mack Joyce doing very well as the man-servant.

Two favourite comedians occupy places of honour in the bill. Mr. T. E. Dunville uses his mirth-provoking abilities with effect in "Rub it out," and the "patter" attached to his policeman effusion "They haven't made me sergeant yet" is quite in the Dunvillian vein. Another old-established fun-maker is Mr. Tom Leamore, who relies on his "potman" impersonation to promote merriment. His more effective number is "Waiting for Mary Ann," in which Mr. Leamore achieves a most grotesque appearance and accomplishes a still more eccentric dance. A vocal scena by Charburn's Young Stars is supplied in A Picnic Up the River, which is enthusiastically received, and popularity is also won by Miss Jennie Johns, who makes a smart sailor lass and sings "The Middy of the King's Navy" in exhilarating style. The impersonations of Mr. Syd May are loudly cheered, the most realistic being that of Mr. Gus Elen, in which the imitator is aided by a close make-up. James Stewart amuses as the "tramp at the piano"; Ruffell's Bioscope furnishes an excellent selection of pictures; and Miss Dorothy Sefton appears in place of Novar Romal, indisposed. Satisfaction to artist and audience alike is secured by the co-operation of the capable manager, Mr. J. Norman Berlin, and his energetic assistant, Mr. George B. Andrews. Mr. Charles Aves ably presides over the orchestra.

BATTERSEA PALACE.

Visitors to this popular local hall can always rely upon a good and varied programme being submitted to them, and this week's company is no exception to the rule. The principal item is a really fine sketch, entitled The Last Halt. We are in the officers' quarters, the last halt of a batch of prisoners on the march to Siberia. Amongst them is the mother of Prince Paul Lerkoff—Rebecca Marstein. Through the instrumentality of the Prince the prisoners are set free, and Rebecca is called before the Prince, and in a very affecting scene she discloses the fact of his parentage. He leaves her for a short time to visit the outposts, and on his return finds her dead. The sergeant, asking for the new countersign, receives the reply "The Last Halt." The sketch is most capably played by Mr. W. H. Benson and company. Mr. Benson himself undertakes, in a most artistic and powerful manner, the character of Prince Paul Lerkoff. A clever performance of Rebecca Marstein is presented by Miss Mabel Wynn, an artist of no mean attainments.

Johnny Holland and company are responsible for an amusing sketch, entitled The Millionaire, which is strongly reminiscent of The Spitalfields Weaver, a notice of which appeared a short time since. We can only report the favourable impression it made, and can vouch for the fact that it kept the audience in a merry mood during its performance. Of the variety items, chief place must be given to Teddy Denham, a smart eccentric comedian, who is responsible for two songs, "So I do" and "The man who calls me wife," both of which received hearty applause; the Five Bombays also oblige with a good vocal and dancing act, the voices harmonising well together, and some very smart clog dancing being shown; Miss Molly O'Connor, a chic comedienne, introduces two songs, entitled "On Sunday he goes angling" and "Come and have a game with me," the last item suiting her style considerably better than her first number; Zera and Zema, continental equilibrists, present some smart hand-balancing; the Two Diamonds are charming singers and dainty dancers; Miss Ethel Donna is a good comedienne; and Gracie Dudley a pretty serio and a graceful dancer. Mr. James McCarthy is the courteous manager here.

THE GRANVILLE.

Once again Mr. Robert W. Duce has put forward a well-diversified programme for his patrons' amusement, and in him Walham Green is certainly able to boast of possessing an astute and courteous manager second to none. The famous Australian contralto, Miss Alice Hollander, is always a welcome and popular turn, and being in excellent voice, the audience were very loth to let Miss Hollander go, her artistic rendering of "Oh! dry those tears" charming everybody. Another attractive item is the skilful rifle-shooting of the Three Royal Dreadnoughts, who are aptly billed as the world's greatest rifle shots, and certainly the lady described as Miss Vera hits the mark every time with unerring accuracy. La Belle Alva (the gipsy peasant girl) trips several National dances with nimble gracefulness, and her latest novelty, the barefoot sand dance, is heartily applauded. Rhobins and Kruso are a clever musical comedy couple, who have just returned from a successful South African tour, bringing back with them many little tricks and incidentals, both novel and new.

Mr. Dusty Rhodes is programmed as a singing comedian, which is a perfectly correct statement, for he manages his voice most effectively, especially in the various little parodies of popular songs, which he introduces into two most mirth-provoking ditties, "Eggs and bacon," and a smart, up-to-date football song, "All friends together." The Czar's Royal troupe of whirlwind dancers storm the house with their robust and rapid movements, their agility being marvellous; whilst Miss Marie Terry and Mr. J. S. Bentley are seen to much advantage in a little military diversion, which pleases everyone. Others that appear are Mr. George James, a comedian who does well, and Miss Eiri Daunton, a pleasing comedienne. The latest films on the cinematograph conclude the evening's entertainment, the brightness of which is enhanced by the playing of the capable orchestra, under the skilful bâton of Mr. Frank Thomas.

CAMDEN HIPPODROME.

The Camden is now well started on its successful career as a music hall, and Mr. Albert H. Adams, the manager, is able to report excellent business. The top of the bill is occupied by that popular comedian, Lew Lake, who is presenting Old Chinas in China, which is another episode in the career of that ever delightful duo, Jerry and Nobbler. In the present scena we find them still in trouble, and the detectives looking for them, and they turn up in a piano case, and then, by the aid of help from their old friend, Isaacs, they get aboard ship, and after a somewhat adventurous voyage arrive in China, where, after much fun in a tea garden, they find Scotland Yard still after them, but, by the aid of a flying machine, again elude the "tecs." Lew Lake and Bob Morris, as of yore, are as amusing and lively as can be in their diverting personation of Jerry and Nobbler, and their audiences roar with delight at their various doings. There is a capable company, who all work hard to ensure success, and the sketch is capitally mounted.

Another big favourite is Tom Costello, who tells of his troubles anent a large family, which causes roars of laughter, and afterwards he gives his delightful scena, "My Home is Far Away," which he does in his usual artistic manner, and scores very heavily thereby. Ina Lorrimer, a Scotch comedienne, soon gains favour, and makes a decided hit. Essman is a clever juggler, who seems to be able to juggle with anything, and spins dishes in a most bewildering fashion. Mr. Claude Gardiner is a bright comedian with a couple of catchy songs, which he makes go with a swing. A fine display of dancing is given by Miss Edie King, who does varied styles, including some clever toe dancing. Miss Madge Allen is a very smart comedienne, whose song, "Take me down to Blackpool" goes with a bang, while her second number, "Paddle your own canoe" is equally bright, and she is most popular. Frank Sylvo, the tramp juggler, is as diverting as ever, and keeps his audience in a fine humour, while he juggles cigar boxes and lamps; Phil Bransby as a coster comedian of the Gus Elen type sings of his dream of wealth and caused much amusement. A fine bevy of beauty is found in the Colonial Girls, who sing some pretty songs and dance in the most fascinating manner possible. Their turn is extremely bright and lively, and cannot fail to make a good impression. The Four Burnells appear in their comic interlude, "On the Links," in which they indulge in some excellent fooling, which compels laughter. The boxing contest is especially funny, and keeps the fun going very fast. The Bioscope with some interesting films concludes.

POPLAR HIPPODROME.

We paid a visit to this popular East-End house of varieties on Tuesday evening last, and were cordially welcomed by Mr. Austin Anderson, who so ably attends to the managerial duties. After the orchestra, which is now under the direction of Mr. Smith, had opened proceedings in admirable style, Fred Arthur, in his song "Up the West," dilated on sundry incidents in humorous style. Sylvia Phillips warbled in tuneful fashion "I like you better than anyone else," which is quite a good number, and "Handle him with care."

Welcomed with hearty applause, Harry Champion rattled off, in that thirteen to the dozen style, the old favourite, "Boiled beef and carrots," also his "Policeman" song and "Showing it," the latter of which literally tickled the audience to death. Harry has a decided personality, and is a genuine favourite here. The Three Aza Boys, a clever trio, sang about the vagaries of the "Don't work brigade," afterwards treating the audience to some novel and interesting simultaneous dancing, a pleasing feature of which, without doubt, was the admirable time kept, and the symmetry of the different difficult steps. Camilla Feo, a prepossessing comedienne, costumed in white, sang her two songs, "Welcome" and "Can't go yet," with dainty expression and point, and danced with pleasing effect. She was the recipient of a lovely bouquet. The male member of the Paolins, a splendid example of muscular development, exhibited his strength in clever fashion, lifting his partner under different conditions with apparently the greatest ease.

Mabel Thorne, looking exceedingly handsome in a large picture hat and black Empire gown, daintily worked with red flowers, sang that good old chorus song "P-A-I-N-T" with all her accustomed "go." Perhaps her best effort was with "Georgie, where are you?" a new song which certainly took on. Mabel makes a lot of humorous business in endeavouring to find her "Georgie" in the hall, his eventual discovery creating much laughter. The Barton and Franklin Trio proved to be smart instrumentalists, vocalists, and dancers, the whole of their performance being smoothly and cleverly presented. Fred Karno's sketch The Yap Yaps proved very amusing, and mention must be made of the efforts of Marjorie Cecil, Gus Le Clerq, and H. V. Surrey in this direction. The Bioscope, with some humorous pictures, ended a thoroughly enjoyable programme.

HACKNEY EMPIRE.

Business continues to be wonderfully good at this popular hall, the seating capacity being tested to its utmost capacity every evening, and it must be admitted that the attractive programmes which succeed each other here with such unfailing regularity, fully deserve such a gratifying recognition. Alec Hurley, supported by a big company, is at the top of the bill in his latest production, Cockneys in Japan. Most of the musical numbers introduced fall to the principal artist himself, perhaps the best of the bunch being the love song. Billy Hobbs, coon vocalist, who is remembered in the neighbourhood as a popular member of the Mohawk's, sings a couple of songs with great acceptance, and proves that he is an exceedingly clever dancer, his ability in this direction gaining for him a great reception.

Stella Stahl, who opens the evening's entertainment, has a good voice and gives a clever display of dancing, gaining a very hearty curtain at the close; Maxey and Pete give a smart cyclist act, in which skill and humour are happily blended, the audience being most appreciative the whole time they occupy the stage. Jack Lorimer, the well-known Scottish comedian, who shares the bottom of the bill, is making himself a decided favourite, singing three songs, in the latter of which he has the assistance of a very attractive young lady, their dance being greatly appreciated. The Empire Comedy Four give a particularly good turn. Their part-singing is as near perfect as can be imagined, and there is a continuous current of comedy running through their act, which is thoroughly enjoyable. They gained one of the big receptions of the evening, and it was thoroughly deserved.

La Freya presents a series of studies, the lantern being utilised to throw a selection of very beautiful pictures on a white cloth, with the artist as the principal figure. Very frequent applause testified to the success of the turn, a hearty curtain being accorded. Jennie Hartley, in a song and dance, did well, the latter item being exceedingly good.

A feature of great interest in the programme is the appearance of the famous Craggs, who are at the bottom of the bill, in a new acrobatic comedy sketch Territorials; or, England's Last Hope. The show is in two scenes, the first representing a soldiers' dormitory in barracks, and the second, the gymnasium. "Billy," a new recruit, and his somewhat exciting experiences, forms the main idea of the trifle, and certainly the member of the troupe who portrayed that rôle caused some of the heartiest laughter of the evening. The production serves to introduce the company in their well-known acrobatic performance, which is as clever as ever. The whole show had obviously been well rehearsed, and the elaborate way in which it is staged should make it a popular feature in vaudeville programmes for a very long time, its reception by the audience leaving no room for doubt on that score.

The selection of pictures for the week comprises a very beautiful series of films in natural colours, of wild birds in their haunts, the pictures being wonderfully realistic. The orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Walter Greco, give a spirited performance of the overture to "Martha," and Mr. Charles Marté, the acting-manager, and Mr. Cyril Percival, his assistant, are very attentive and courteous in the front of the house.

THE METROPOLITAN.

There is plenty of rollicking entertainment of exactly the right type presented by Mr. Leslie Gooch at the popular house in the Edgware Road, and though the usual tabloid of drama is conspicuous by its absence this week, it is certainly not missed. Why should it be, indeed, with such a full-bodied and varied show, and with such a screamer as The Football Match? Here we have all the fun of pantomime in a compressed form, and there is over it all the aspect of sport—a decided asset in its favour. In the first scene the footers are making themselves fit, and we have the semblance of a plot in an alleged scheme for "nobbling" "Stiffy," the goalkeeper; but it really doesn't count. It is Stiffy whom we watch and at whom we laugh. He is responsible for many anomalies, among them being a quartet of kiddies, one of them black. There is a continual struggle at the entrance to the football ground, and when we get there we are absolutely dumbfounded at the great form displayed at goal by Stiffy, who saves his side and confounds the villain. Mr. Charles Chaplin in the character is decidedly droll, and he receives capital support. The whole thing is a screamer from start to finish.

Beattie and Babs, two youngsters, get one of the receptions of the evening. The elder girl, an attractive blonde, is responsible for some capital dancing, and the smaller girl burlesques the prima donna singing "Il Bacio" in a way that makes the audience laugh consumedly. In a final dance the kiddie shows all the aptitude of an expert. Mr. Frank Lynne, the chief comic singer of the bill, has a droll number in "That's as far as I go for ninepence." A particularly quaint item in his répertoire, too, is "A Coster's Idea of Free Trade," written on Tariff Reform lines, and very heartily received.

Miss Victoria Monks has a most popular number in "Back to home, sweet home," in which she relates how by a stroke of luck at backing a winner the owner of some drawing room furniture is able to pay out a distraint and eject a grasping landlord. The chorus is of the most tuneful order, and gallery and pit are very enthusiastic in the way they take up the choruses. They likewise exercise their lungs in the refrain of the favourite song "There's a girl in Berlin." Kurkamp, the singing conductor, introduced the song "Mélisande in the Wood," which is decidedly out of the beaten track of the serious vocalist at a variety house. We believe that Mr. Hayden Coffin recently sang it at the same house, and this week's audiences have been able to make comparisons. Charburn's Young Stars present a pretty entertainment under the title of A Picnic up the River, and with solo, chorus, and dance make things hum. Mr. Henry Moore in his mimicry includes counterfeits of Gus Elen and R. G. Knowles; Miss Marie Blythe's deep contralto voice gives full value to a tuneful descriptive song; and other turns include Wyndham and Wyatt and Ruffell's Bioscope with some most interesting films.

KILBURN EMPIRE.

Each evening this fine house is twice crowded to its utmost capacity, and in consequence the duties cast upon the energetic and urbane manager, Mr. C. Foster-Marner, are by no means light, but he comes through the ordeal satisfactorily. For the present week the programme is varied and most attractive. A capital first turn is that of Phillips and Merritt, smart dancers, and of whom the lady partner proves herself to be a whistler of no mean order. Prof. Lux's wonderful performing dogs perform all sorts of clever tricks, showing signs of very careful training, amazement being expressed at the arithmetical calculations of one of the animals. A warm reception greeted Mr. Harry Weldon for his screamingly laughable rendering of "Stiffy, the Goalkeeper," his reading from the newspaper of his astounding efforts "between the sticks" creating great amusement. Miss Frances Letty, looking very dainty, cleverly sings a new coon song, "Pack up your trunk and go," and dances very smartly. That favourite couple, Clark and Hamilton, with their wayward conceits, meet with general approval, the audience being kept highly amused. A new and beautiful series of art poses is provided by Mlle. Suzanne de Vernenil and ladies. The studies, "Sweet Awakening," "The Nymphs," "Diana," "The Bathers," "The Wave," "Despair," "The Three Graces," and "The Four Seasons" each evoke vociferous applause. Miss Rose Hamilton, a popular artist, follows with two very taking songs, "I do like a little bit of blue" and "Don't you think you'd like to marry me now," which give every satisfaction.

The new dramatic thrill, by Graham Hill, Heard in Camera, and played by those excellent Lyceum artists, Miss Frances Dillon and Mr. Eric Mayne, proves most delectable to the audience. The display of pathos and passion by Miss Dillon as the persecuted woman earns salvos of applause. Mr. Eric Mayne's Prefect is, of course, an admirably-sustained representation of cool and collected villainy. Mr. Ambrose Thorne's contribution, "I hope they won't put a tax on girls," and his patter, are sufficiently diverting. Sinclair and Whiteford, the popular comedy duologuists, give their well-known performance of "Mr. and Mrs. Tompkins" with good effect. The marvellous tricks of Sahib Gustav Fasola, the famous Indian fakir and Oriental wonder-worker, create much astonishment, his cabinet and box tricks being so skilfully and quickly performed that the audience is in a constant state of wonder during the whole turn. Two popular bioscope pictures are shown: Volcanoes of Japan and Why Smith Couldn't Sleep? and serve to end an exceedingly capable programme.

SANDY MCNAB and company are at the top of the bill at the Hippodrome, Bishop Auckland, this week, and their sketch, The Egyptian Mummy, proves very entertaining. Mr. Dave Samuels, Hebrew comedian, is excellent. Messrs. Ross and Grayson, in their musical scena, The Professor and the Pupil, are very amusing, and Damerell and Rutland are diverting comedians. The Sisters Netherland (vocalists and dancers), Miss Maud Clifton (comedienne), and Messrs. Polo and Florence (equilibrists) are all interesting turns, and the bill is concluded by a pleasing film on the Hipposcope, entitled A Noble Forgiveness.

"THE RUSSIAN PRINCESS."

Dramatic Episode, Written by Fred Maxwell, and Produced at the Empire, Camberwell, on Jan. 3.

Princess Claudia .....MISS LOIS DU CANE
General Draganoff.....MR. LIONEL D'ARAGON
Prince Karl .....MR. P. BARRY LEWERS
Gorski .....MR. MURRAY YORKE
Pederoff .....MR. HERBERT SYDNEY
Marx .....MR. CHARLES GAWTHORNE

Conspiracy, anarchy, love, revenge—we have them all in this new sketch, drawn in proper sequence by a talented writer, and illustrated by competent actors and a gifted actress. The story is typically Russian. Many of the characteristics of this land of despotism are placed before our notice. The cruel overpowering work of the secret police is brought into contrast with the serious devotion of the Nihilists to the cause of Anarchy, but there is nothing crude, nothing out of place, and good taste harmonises with artistic staging in introducing an excellent production.

As the curtain rises, the interior of a Russian gate-house comes before our eyes, a house to which years ago political prisoners who were dangerous were brought, bound, and precipitated into the river flowing beneath the floor. No trial took place, no questions were asked; the prisoners vanished, and only the old decaying walls were witness to the murder. Now this ancient house is in the hands of the Nihilists. To them the death trap is invaluable. The house is left to the care of one Gorski, a serf, who, as the play commences, is awaiting the arrival of his mistress, Princess Claudia, a mistress whom he loves, partly because both are pledged to espouse the Anarchists' cause, and partly because of her beauty and goodness. Presently sleigh bells are heard, and the Princess enters claud in furs. To her servant she explains her visit. Her lover Prince Karl, also a Nihilist, has long been imprisoned in a neighbouring fortress. Steps have been taken to aid him to escape, and the Princess has come to receive him and assist him to the frontier. Even as she speaks guns are fired in the distance, and we hear the sound of hurried footsteps gradually coming nearer, until at last, breathless and spent, Prince Karl climbs through the window, into his lover's arms. Pursuers are following him, however; the hated General Draganoff is on his track. Hastily the conspirators take council. They agree that the General must die, and draw lots to decide whose hand must strike the blow. Princess Claudia chooses the fatal card, and drawing herself up to her full majestic height, swears she will gladly be the executioner. Ere the confederates have fully decided on their plans, however, knocks sound at the door, and the voice of General Draganoff is heard crying, "Open, in the name of the Czar." All retire, and the General comes in. He bids his followers search the room, and presently he himself pulls aside a curtain, to reveal the charming figure of the Princess, clad in a bewitching gown. Claudia, in the few seconds she has been concealed, has decided on her plan. She will fascinate him with her beauty; she will call all her woman's wit to make him love her. The General is struck with her beauty; a passion is kindled in his breast—a passion that he cannot control; he desires her, and she is there enticing him to her arms. At length he is completely conquered; they fall together on a seat, and then Claudia's lover and her servants rush in and bind and gag him. But what can they do with their victim? Suddenly the death trap comes into their minds. Prince Karl disguises himself as the General, and Draganoff is flung into the river with only a muffled cry to denote his departure from this world, and as the soldiers reappear, the Prince, in his disguise, leads his newly-found lover, Claudia, to the General's carriage.

It is seldom that a new sketch has met with such applause, and Miss Lois du Cane is to be congratulated on the choice she has made, and on the ability displayed by her in her part of Princess Claudia. General Draganoff, portrayed by Mr. Lionel D'Aragon, is a clever character study. Mr. P. Barry Lewers as Prince Karl is also well placed. He ably seconds Miss Du Cane in her love scene, and plays the unfortunate Prince in an extremely lifelike manner. As the servant, Gorski, Mr. Murray Yorke is highly successful; while Mr. Henry Sydney as Pedroff and Mr. Charles Gawthorne as Marx deserve considerable praise.

ROTHERHITHE HIPPODROME.

A nightingale came to Rotherhithe this week. The pity it is that the songstress has a physical affliction that compels her to use crutches. Nellie Brierley is sweet of face and is a singing pit-brow lassie from Lancashire. We see her in a little scene representing the usual pit-head. The dialogue is poor stuff, and might well be dispensed with, but one is amply recompensed for this infliction in the three numbers rendered by Miss Brierley. In a very fine and cultured soprano, she first of all sings us "Home, Sweet Home," and then, it is to be presumed as an excuse to introduce her father, sings his favourite ballad, "Always." The third number is "Sing, sweet bird," taken somewhat too slowly, but always showing off Miss Brierley's upper notes. The young lady had very deservedly a fine reception, and we hope to hear a great deal more of her. We understand she is a protégée of Mrs. D'Oyly Carte's, and that in itself stands for a great deal.

The top of the bill is held by Mr. F. Lister and Mr. F. Kitchen's company, in a dramatic sketch, entitled No. 99. The story tells of how No. 99 breaks into the house of a Criminal Court Judge, and while in the act of robbing his desk of a roll of bank notes, is caught. The Judge covers him with a revolver, and telephones for the police. While waiting for their arrival, the Judge discovers in the burglar a man whom he has previously sentenced to ten years' imprisonment on a charge of manslaughter, and asks him how it is that he cannot go straight. The burglar explains that since coming out of prison he had tried hard to obtain employment, but, owing to his having been a convict, he was unable to. The Judge disbelieves him. The arrival of the police is then announced, and the burglar endeavours to make his escape. In doing so, he encounters the Judge's little daughter, who is just recovering from a severe shock caused by her being nearly run over by a runaway horse. She recognises in the burglar the man who saved her life by stopping the horse, and tells him that her father has been searching everywhere for him to reward him for his bravery. The Judge enters the room unobserved, and overhears the conversation, and so, instead of handing No. 99 over to the police, the Judge tells them he has escaped.

The acting throughout is excellent, and No. 99 is played by Mr. F. Lister. Mr. Langley is perfect in his part, and gives the audience a fine portrayal of the hard-hearted and cynical Judge. Miss May McGinley's rendering of the daughter's part is both characteristic and pathetic. Mr. Harvard plays the Doctor, a small but very difficult part, and was well received.

Miss Marion Armitage, comedienne and dancer, arrayed in male Scotch attire, greatly amused the audience with her Scotch song and burlesque dance, and informed them that she was "not cold in the kilt, nor kil't with the cold." Franco's Midgets, the smallest conjurers in the world, gave a fine display of tricks, and, with their quaint jokes and smart repartee, convulsed the house with laughter. Charles Carr, Stillman and Russell, Rosie Lee, and Dower and Denville are also in this bill.

CARL AND CARR'S song, "By the sea," by Mellor and Gifford, has proved a huge success, the audience joining in the chorus at every performance.

"A MAN AND A WOMAN."

Dramatic Sketch, Produced at the Standard Music Hall, on Monday, Jan. 3.

A Man .....MR. NORMAN PARTRIDGE
A Woman .....MISS ZANA ST. GEORGE

The Woman is of the lower world. Pretty of course, and unlucky, and, when we first see her, starving. The Man is a drunkard, also unlucky, and almost penniless. The Woman meets the Man when he is intoxicated, and she induces him to go home with her. A common enough occurence. But the Woman is no ordinary street-walker, and loathes the life she is compelled to lead, so when the Man partially regains his senses, she inquires the reason of his giving way to drunken habits. His story, too, is a common one. Jilted by the girl he loved, he had gone to the devil, had dissipated his money, and now the end had come. In his turn, he asks for the Woman's story. Another commonplace: A trusting girl, a blackguard man, disgrace, and the one course a woman can go unless somebody helps her. Then the Man tells the Woman that he has many friends, but although all of them will ask him to have a drink, all forget to ask if he is hungry. Talking of hunger reminds him that he is hungry, and that the Woman may be so too. He counts the few coppers he has left—sevenpence! Enough to buy a meagre breakfast for both; but the Woman, before she allows the Man to go out insists that he brushes his hair and has a wash. It pulls him together, and he takes a fresh interest in life. The Man tells the Woman that from the cradle he has needed a woman's care and to the grave he will need a woman to work for, to care for. They know nothing of one another—will she link her fate with his? No; it would not be right is the answer of this woman, trying to be womanly. And so he goes out to buy the breakfast. Presently he returns with the food, and the wonderful news that a man he had met in the shop had put him on to a job, at which he is to get a pound a week. The Man needs a Woman to care for him, needs the support a woman's affection will give him to be a success in the world. The Man tells the Woman this—begs her to marry him, and thus enable him to justify his claim to being a man. And so it comes about that the Woman gives her hand to the Man, and they take a vow. A Man and a Woman is splendid. It is a story of the murky depths of life—common as blackberries in September. But with Norman Partriege as the Man and Miss Zana St. George as the Woman it receives a treatment that grips the audience as a melodramatic interpretation never could do. The subject is a risky one, but everyone realises it is an everyday episode, acted in such a life-like manner that sympathy with two unfortunates is compelled, and instinctively one gives a sigh of relief, and is almost unreasonably happy and excited when the curtain comes down with a golden glow on the new life prospects of the handsome pair. Mr. Norman Partriege has never done anything better than the Man. Miss Zana St. George's fine, natural acting makes the Woman a delight.

Mr. Dickie should be well pleased with the all-round success of this week's programme at the Standard. Parker, P.C. tops the bill, and the little gallery boys scream with delight at the antics of the most amazing constable surely ever seen. Johnny Holland's Boat Builder is a double-meaning dialogue sketch reminiscent of the lieutenant in Captain Marryat's "Percival Keene." It was a big laugh from start to finish.

Gertie Gitana figures in this bill, in company with Diamond and Hart, Gordon Stretton, Phil Bransby, Bradley and Barnes, Eva Daunton, Morris and Mills, and Mabel Thorne, whose song, "Oh, whereever is Georgie?" goes splendidly. Mr. Maurice Volny, the Standard's well-known assistant-manager, wore a very satisfied smile when we wished each other "Good-night."

A CORRECTION.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—In your issue of Jan. 1, on page 44, Mr. Dusty Rhodes announces that he is booked at this theatre until 1916, and, as he holds no contracts with us, I shall be glad if you will be good enough to correct his statement.—Yours truly,

FRANK GLENISTER,
Manager.

London Pavilion,
Jan. 6, 1910.

MISS MABEL MAVIS was unable, through indisposition, to appear at the Holloway Empire this week. She has now happily recovered, and will resume business next Monday at the New Cross Empire, following on to the Coliseum. This weather is responsible for many breaks in the published programmes of the various variety theatres.

MR. SAM WALSH, the comedian who plays the star part in the sketch Town Hall—To-night, does not suffer from swollen head, for he has the smallest head of any living artist. His size is six and one-eighth, an unknown make in stock sizes, and the despair of every wig-maker in the world. Willie Clarkson, indeed, has had a special block made for the exclusive use of Mr. Walsh, and latterly this example has been followed by other perruquiers.

MR. WALSH is a Yorkshireman, and in the course of his career has played under canvas, in booths, and once penetrated 500 miles into the bush with his beloved piano to do a show for the benefit of the gold miners there. At Invercargo, New Zealand, Mr. Walsh once had a funny experience. On arrival he put up at one of the hotels, and asked for a glass of Burgundy. He was told he could not be served with it. Thinking Burgundy might be a scarce commodity in those parts, he changed the order to whisky and soda. The manager was fetched, and that individual duly informed Mr. Walsh that Invercargo was in a prohibition State, and that he could not be served with alcohol. With every deference the manager suggested a cup of cocoa as an admirable substitute, but the comedian would have none of it. The next day he sallied forth in search of whisky, with memories of former difficulties surmounted in Glasgow and Cardiff on sundry Sabbath mornings.

WALSH'S first attempt was with a guardian of the peace. Said he: "I'm an Englishman, just arrived here, and I want a drink of whisky. Where'll I get it?" The policeman told Sam it was well for him he was an Englishman and only just arrived or he would have run him in for daring to suggest such a thing. Mr. Walsh five minutes later put the same query to a carter; but that individual, being a life-long teetotaler, refused to have anything to do with him. Walsh next tackled an indolent-looking young gentleman standing at the corner of a street. For a moment he looked suspiciously at the comedian, and then replied, "Sure you are an Englishman?" "Yes." "Sure you've only just landed?" "Yes." "Sure it ain't a dog you want to buy?" "No, not a dog, wh——" "Yes, you do, you want to buy a dog."

WITHOUT another word the young man led the way to a ramshackle shop, where a most respectable-looking old gentleman sat entering figures in a ledger. "Dad," said the youth, "this gentleman has come to buy a dog. Let him have one." The "dog" was handed over to Mr. Walsh done up in brown paper, and, strangely enough, it cost exactly as much as a dog licence does in old England—7s. 6d. "But it tasted much nicer, I am sure," concludes Mr. Walsh in telling the story, "than any real little doggy would have done."

A LARGE and happy gathering on New Year's Eve at an old folks' matinée at the Surrey Theatre blessed the names of Macnaghten and Baugh. The audience consisted of the inmates of the Southwark Union Workhouse in Westmorland-road, the St. George's Workhouse, in the Borough, and the Christ Church Workhouse, in Marlborough-street, and altogether about 1,600 were present. The thoughtful hosts not only provided an excellent entertainment, which everyone enjoyed most thoroughly, but they also generously presented each of the old men with a briarwood pipe and an ounce of tobacco, whilst each of the old ladies received a substantial packet of Lyons' tea. The whole of the expenses were borne by the management of the theatre, and among those present were Mr. Devereux, the Deputy-Mayor and vice-chairman of the Southwark Board of Guardians, and several of the members, who took the opportunity before leaving of thanking the directors for their kindly hospitality to the old people.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

[We do not answer inquiries by post. In all letters the names and addresses of inquirers must be given as a guarantee of good faith. Initials only or pseudonyms will be used in the answers if so desired.]

D. B.—We are quite unable to oblige you with the private name and address of the lady you mention.

L. A. D.—We believe so; but are not certain, though we only know of the one lady bearing the name.

NAPOLEON.—Yes; there is a lady of that name in the profession. Write to the Gaiety or Daly's, and inquire of the managements of those houses.

SPARKS.—La Freya is a lady, and was very recently—in fact, in December—at the Coliseum, London. She is noticed at the Hackney Empire in this week's issue.

ALICE BRICKMANN.—You might write to the executors, care of Daly's Theatre, or to The New York Dramatic News, Broadway Building, New York. See notice above.

MABEL AND ROSA.—Among the Nine Muses there was no goddess of electricity as there was of dancing, music, and poetry. Urania presided over astronomy, and therefore, in a sense, light. She is represented as a young virgin dressed in an azure-coloured robe, crowned with stars, and holding a globe in her hands. Electra was not a goddess, and her story, which is the foundation of a tragedy by Sophocles, had nothing to do with electricity, in spite of the similarity of the name.

ST. JULIAN (Hackney).—A Fair Equestrienne is a musical comedy, in one act, written by Haslingden Russell—who adapted it from the play Die Kunstreiterin—and first performed at Bristol on March 14, 1890. In March, 1893, it was seen at the Trafalgar-square Theatre, where Miss Cora Stuart played Lady Kitty Clare, afterwards repeating her success in that part on the halls—the Palace Theatre and the Oxford among others. We do not know the address of the adaptor. Other versions of the same German original were produced in America.

INTERESTED PHŒBE.—Mr. Godfrey Tearle is not in the cast of The Importance of Being Earnest at the St. James's, neither is Miss Mary Malone. We cannot say where he is acting at present. A letter addressed to the theatre would reach him. In the spring of 1903 he was playing the part of the Rev. Edgar Linnell, in The Hypocrites, in the North company, on tour. Others in the cast were Miss Gladys Harvey as Rachael Neve; Mr. E. F. Meads, Leonard Wilmore; Miss Amy Ravenscroft, Mrs. Wilmore; Mr. Alfred S. Barber, Mr. Wilmore; Miss Florence Steventon, Mrs. Blaney; Miss Pauline Straus, Miss Linnell; Mr. Sydney Hamilton, Sir John Plugenet; Miss Mary Malone, Helen Plugenet; and Mr. Cecil Brooking, Rev. Everard Daubeney.

BIRTHS, MARRIAGES, & DEATHS.

The charge for inserting in "The Era" an announcement of a Birth, a Marriage, or a Death, or an "In Memoriam" notice, not exceeding twenty-four words, is One Shilling and Sixpence.

As a guarantee of good faith, the name and address of the sender must accompany each notice.

MARRIAGES.

URQUHART.—Jan. 3, at Airdrie, N.B., Charles Urquhart, in his 82nd year, father of John Hamilton Urquhart.

IN MEMORIAM

HARPER.—In loving memory of my lifelong friend Charles Harper, of 3, Liddington-place, N.W., Professor of Music (late of the Royal Academy, Sacred Harmonic, Covent Garden, and Savoy). Died Jan. 5, 1893; interred in St. Pancras Cemetery. Always thought of and ever grieved for by Elise.

LLOYD.—In loving memory of Richard William Delarue Lloyd (father of Amy Elvira), died Jan. 4, 1890, at 67, Swinton-street, London, W.C. Deeply mourned by his wife and family.

LOVELL.—In loving memory of Tom Lovell, who "crossed the bar" Jan. 4, 1909.
"To live in the heart is not to die."

SPENCER.—In ever-loving memory of my dear husband, Geo. Spencer, late Musical-Director, who passed away Jan. 2, 1906. Deeply mourned by his wife Alice.
Hard, hard was the stroke that compelled me to part
From a loved one so near and so dear to my heart;
But the love that I bore him will dwell in my breast
Till I meet him again in the realms of the blest.

DURING the past week Miss Chummie La Mara has had three offers to take up the part of principal boy in pantomime.

MISS ENID MEEK, who has made such a success as Red Shoes in Little Hans Andersen at the Gaiety Theatre, Manchester, received her dancing instructions from Miss F. Martell, of the Empire Theatre, London, who is to be congratulated on a most successful pupil.

GENTLEMEN,—For sudden affections of the Bronchial Organs I use and most cheerfully recommend "Brown's Troches." They are regarded as most eligible, convenient, and indispensable by numerous artists of my acquaintance, BOTH IN EUROPE AND AMERICA. They seem to act specially on the organs of the voice, and produce a clear enunciation.—Yours truly (Signed), MARIE ROSE MAPLESON.

THEATRICAL ACCOUNTS FOR BUSINESS MANAGERS.
How the Affairs of a Theatre can be most Efficiently Controlled by the Adoption of Systems of Internal Check.
By OUTHBERT E. SMEDLEY, A.C.A.
Price, 3/6. Post free, 3/9.

All concerned with the business side of a theatre will find much useful information and many valuable hints in "Theatrical Accounts for Business Managers," by Mr. Cuthbert E. Smedley, published at The Era office.—Referee, Jan. 31, 1909.

"Theatrical Accounts for Business-Managers," by Cuthbert E. Smedley, A.C.A. (The Era, Ltd., London, 3s. 6d.), is a most concise and comprehensive little work, calculated to prove of assistance to the theatre-manager. It shows how the affairs of a theatre can be most efficiently controlled by the adoption of systems of internal check. Specimen pages of the books to be kept are given, and the chapters treating of receipts, tours, book-keeping, and accounts and audit will be found to contain much useful information. In the appendix is given "a form of agreement with artists for touring engagements."—Liverpool Daily Post and Mercury, Feb. 3, 1909.

"Theatrical Accounts" (The Era, Ltd., 5, Tavistock-street, W.C.), we should say, is a very useful compilation for business-managers of our places of amusement. It is practical, exact, and analytical; it should stop leakages, and needs only good houses to keep it fully employed.—Sportsman, Feb. 8, 1909.

"Theatrical Accounts," by Cuthbert E. Smedley (The Era, Ltd., 3s. 6d.), shows how the affairs of a theatre can be most efficiently controlled by the adoption of systems of internal check. Specimen pages of the books to be kept are given. Receipts tours, book-keeping, and accounts, audit—each is allotted a separate chapter. In the appendix is given "a form of agreement with artists for touring engagements."—Morning Post, Jan. 27, 1909.

"Theatrical Accounts for Business-Managers," by Cuthbert E. Smedley, A.C.A. (3s 6d., The Era, Ltd., 5, Tavistock-street, W.C.). The work of accountants has now been brought to a fine art, and in almost every branch of business a different system has been elaborated. The present work deals in a small compass fully and clearly with all the special features of theatrical management on the business side.—Financial Times, Feb. 1, 1909.

Skeleton schemes of book-keeping, &c., with explanations, showing how the affairs of a theatre can be efficiently managed by the adoption of systems of internal check in all departments. Contains also a draft agreement as between manager and artist.—Birmingham Daily Post, Jan. 27, 1909.

THE LAW OF COPYRIGHT FOR ACTOR AND COMPOSER.
By ALBERT A. STRONG, LL.B. (Lond.).
"The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer," by Albert A. Strong, LL.B., solicitor, author of "Dramatic and Musical Law" ("The Era" office), seems to be the one compendious and indispensable authority on the subject, as vexed as the "Bermoothes" and as tortuous as a Chancery suit, that has long been wanted. It is in every essential a text book for the perplexed layman, and no solicitor or barrister worth his salt ought to think of taking or appearing in "proceedings" without consulting its pages. It must suffice, after what has been said, to state little more than that the contents include five chapters, respectively named "Copyright as Opposed to Performing Right," "Performing Right," "Infringement and Remedies," "Musical Copyright," and "International and Colonial Copyright." The work, for all its precise authority, is not dry reading. The statutes, with the elucidatory notes, necessarily impose a task on the reader which takes some tackling, but they had to be there. The cases adduced, however, are full of interest. Certain of them might fitly find a place in the romance of copyright. There was the fight of Charles Reade with George Conquest over "It's Never Too Late to Mend," for instance, and the equally interesting conflict of Mr. J. A. Cave with Chatterton over "The Wandering Jew." The latter was a famous battle. Chatterton took it to the House of Lords, and was finally beaten, to the unspeakable relief of Mr. Cave, who is never weary of relating the story. Had the result been otherwise, it would have meant his ruin. I well remember meeting him on the day of his victory and "crashing a cup with him" in honour of the same. "The Law of Copyright" is dedicated to Mr. A. W. Pinero.—Sportsman.

SPIRITUAL PLAYS.

In the course of an article which we printed some time since on the subject of the Censorship we remarked how few really fine pieces had been denied to the general public by reason of the existence of the Reader of Plays; and a case in point is Mr. RANN KENNEDY'S remarkable drama The Servant in the House. We omitted mention of the play in our résumé of the productions of the year, as any passing allusion to it could only be perfunctory and insufficient; but no one who heard the eloquent discourse which Mr. KENNEDY recently delivered to the members of the O.P. Club could have failed to be impressed with the idea that a writer had come amongst us with an entirely new conception of the importance and elevation of the art of the dramatist. We are all ready to acknowledge, in theory, that elevation and that importance; but few of us have either the ability or the enthusiasm to carry our principles into practice. Mr. KENNEDY, as he told us, approached his task with all the enthusiasm and earnestness of a BUNYAN or a SAVONAROLA. In the lecture to which we have alluded he said: "It was in some mild appreciation of God's humour, not to mention His awful Love, His Irony and Will, that I gave up lying myself, and set out to obey Him in The Servant in the House. What I said was (and there is no real modesty about me, thank God!): 'Wouldn't it be rather a fine thing, just at this very moment, when they are all talking a devil of a lot about dramatic construction, the abolition of the Censor, and the need of a National Drama, for someone to pop up unbeknown out of oblivion and give them a real play to test them!' So I did it, and wrote them a play so classically constructed that none of them ever noticed it, so humbly obedient to the sacred law of the Censorship as to make disobedience look rather a fool by side of it, and so national that just ordinary men and women at once found in it the actual problems, the veritable experiences of their own lives. I did it, and the clergy and the common people heard me gladly. It was part of my very problem to bring people to cues on the high and sacred questions I was propounding, to stir them to separation point, to divide the sheep from the goats; and it came out pat as I intended. I shall have seven such plays to give them before I've done. I shall have to pay for it, of course; but I expect that. Let us see, then, what there is about this play, which has really been so successful in America, in Sweden, in Finland, and many other countries, both in book form and on the stage, to make some people in my native land dislike it so intensely and others to claim for it quite a respectable place among dramas, as dramas go. . . . There will always be a very serious division among men the moment you make any very vital demand upon their religious and social faith, the moment you pin them down, as I did in The Servant in the House, to the realities of the creeds and prayers and professions they make so glibly, and force them to face the truth which they themselves are supposed to represent. You saw in The Servant in the House the actual struggle in which your own lives are at present involved—not merely the external obvious struggle of your conflicting creeds and parties, but the deep inward vital struggle of your souls for the possession of that which alone can bring you peace, for the lack of which you and all of us are being damned—namely, the realisation of our brotherhood towards all mankind. 'The hunger for brotherhood is at the bottom of the unrest of the modern civilised world,' wrote George Frederick Watts—a text I take for the title-page of the play. Now, it would be very easy—particularly easy on the stage—to tell lies about this, to flatter ourselves and others into the imagination that all is right with us or with them, when all is palpably wrong; to deal out smug smiles and dearly-beloved-brethrens, and little doles of Sunday school charity, and dream that we have saved the world. But I don't find God's world built that way; no more do you. Things are not made so easy for us. We live in a world of men, not milksops—fierce, pitiful, terrible, sinning, striving men who live actual lives, not pleasant Sunday afternoons. The fact is, this realisation of brotherhood, for which our whole life cries out, is a devilishly difficult piece of business."

Mr. RANN KENNEDY is right; and the stage is the place for the preaching of such doctrine as his. The drama has always been inclined to take the side of LAZARUS as against DIVES, of DON JUAN against TARTUFFE, of CHARLES SURFACE against JOSEPH. There is so much always being said on the side of conformity and respectability that we always welcome a voice on the other side. But just a word of warning may be given. "Brotherhood" is not always on the side of the spendthrifts, the rakes, and the drunkards, nor is selfishness always the sin of the sober, the thrifty, and the continent. A man may be just as rank an egoist who is ruining his family by extravagance and his constitution by intemperance as another who is hoarding his cash at the bank. Mr. KENNEDY is, perhaps, rather too much of a partisan. The rough working-man who is the hero of his play is a problem in himself; and a comedy might well be written showing the results of the action of his brother the clergyman had the latter placed the workman on the same social footing as himself, with all the differences of breeding and education, and the "drink habit" which is described as being the result of the mechanic's grief at the death of his beloved wife. Such comedy would be almost cruel, but it would be almost as near to average truth as Mr. KENNEDY'S stirring satire, which, as he acknowledges in the case of his bishop, is purposely exaggerated in order to point a moral and awaken the conscience of an audience. It is pleasant nevertheless to know that three American companies continue to play The Servant in the House to crowded houses, as also do the companies in the various European countries where it has already been produced; and that an excellent English tour has been booked, and will be commenced in the middle of February.

"HENRY OF NAVARRE'S" RETURN.

The New Year brings the welcome return to London of Mr. Fred Terry and Miss Julia Neilson with Henry of Navarre, and a crowded audience at the New Theatre on Monday evening greeted the favourite artists with hearty warmth. All the elements of a popular success are contained in Mr. William Devereux's clever play, in which scraps of history are leavened with a copious infusion of love, romance, and stirring adventure. Mr. Terry has in Henry of Navarre that kind of character which he has manifestly made his own. He is overflowing with gaiety, humour, and tenderness, and never a more gallant figure than the chivalrous Gascon has graced the stage. Certain parts of Mr. Terry's performance electrify the audience, notably at the end of the second act, when Henry, having been unconsciously saved from poison by his wife, dashes the cup in turn from her lips, bringing down the curtain amid extraordinary enthusiasm Miss Neilson repeats her artistic performance of Margot. Radiant in her silken robes, Miss Neilson acts the Princess to the life, being equally entrancing in her coquettish and her sentimental moods, her silvery voice falling on the ear with all its accustomed sweetness.

An event of no mean importance in the present revival is the introduction into the cast of Miss Terson, whose nom de théâtre furnishes in each syllable unmistakable indication of her identity. Miss Terson, of course, is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Terry, and combines with inherited graces a particular charm of her own. As the maid-of-honour, Marie Bellepret, she acts with girlish freshness and with the confidence of a more mature age. Her love scene with De Mouhy was exquisitely enacted, and won the admiration of all. The blunt soldier is still strongly embodied by Mr. Walter Edwin, who carries out the author's conception with unerring fidelity and skill.

Mr. Malcolm Cherry's performance of Charles IX. has grown in impressiveness. His make-up is wonderfully effective, and the King's petulant displays of passion are strikingly real. Mr. Cherry gains frequent rounds of applause, and it may well be said that he has added in a marked degree to his reputation. Mr. Horace Hodges makes an awe-inspiring figure of the astrologer, investing the part with dignity and delivering his lines with the point and emphasis always associated with this admirable artist. Miss Tita Brand draws a deftly-coloured portrait of the designing queen-mother, whose insinuating smile giving way to the expression of malignancy and cunning form quite a study in facial play.

Promoted from the minor part of M. De Besme to that of the Duc De Guise, Mr. Philip Merivale represents that rash and impetuous personage with due ferocity and vigour. Mr. Harry F. Wright repeats his picturesque portraiture of the effeminate Duc D'Anjou; Mr. J. Carter-Edwards as the Marshal De Tavannes again proves his ripe ability; Miss Gladys Gardner brings the part of Charlotte De Sauve into agreeable prominence by virtue of her charm and vivacity, and the other members of the cast who compose the gay throng assembled in the palace conduct themselves irreproachably.

A speech was demanded at the close of the play, and Mr. Terry expressed the thanks of his wife, himself, and their company for the kind manner in which they had been received. They would indeed be ungrateful, he added, not to appreciate the tremendous reception accorded them.

AT the Assembly Rooms, Carmarthen, packed houses greeted Miss Inez Howard's capital company, who, under the direction of Mr. Henry Chattell, presented Pete to an enthusiastic audience. The title-rôle was excellently played by Mr. George R. J. Austin; Mr. Guy P. Ellis distinguished himself as Philip Christian; Mr. William J. Roe was highly successful as Ross Christian; Mr. Clem Horlock was a capable exponent of the part of Cæsar Cregreen; Mr. Walter Hackton was capital as Dr. Mylechreest; Miss Margaret Savill obtained a flattering reception for her artistic interpretation of Kate Cregreen; Miss Katie Flood was a warm favourite as Nancy; and Miss Maud Randford as Grannie deserved much praise. The minor parts were in capable hands. The dresses and scenic effects were elaborate.

MR. FRED GRANVILLE is presenting the play Another Man's Wife at the Grand, Mansfield. The cast includes Mr. Stanley Radcliffe, Mr. Alfred D. Adams, Mr. Geoffrey Sutherland, Mr. Wilson Roberts, Mr. Leonard Marshall, Miss Hilda Brewster, Miss Phyllis Spalding, Miss Marion Mayne, Miss Beatrice Western, and Miss Ruby Loncraine.

ACTORS' ASSOCIATION.

Minutes of the council meeting held on Tuesday, Jan. 4, at 32, Regent-street. Present: Mr. Clarence Derwent (in the chair), Mr. W. W. Mote (solicitor), Messrs. C. Hayden Coffin, Frederick Morland, Cyril Cattley, Lewis Casson, F. J. Arlton, Langford Reed, J Poole Kirkwood, and Gilbert Esmond, Miss Agnes Imlay, Miss Marion Lind, and Mr. D. Young (secretary). The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed.

The secretary was instructed to acknowledge receipt of a letter from the Amalgamated Musicians' Union, and to say that the council sympathise with their views and their aims, and that they would be glad to have a copy of the letter they proposed sending to the London County Council and the Home Office, before definitely pledging themselves to any action.

The following bye-law was adopted:—"That the secretary be empowered to refuse admission to anyone who refuses to sign the book on entering the rooms, and that all visitors must be introduced by members.

The secretary presented the Rules and Constitution of the German Actors' Society, and it was decided that Mr. Freund be asked to kindly translate them, so that the council might be able to go into the matter of "International co-operation."

It was unanimously agreed that at the annual general meeting the following be presented as a council resolution:—"That this meeting wishes to express its approval of the action taken by members of the Council that the actor-managers who resigned should be asked to again become members of the Association."

The finance committee's report was submitted and adopted. The hon. solicitor reported progress on three legal matters. It was agreed that tariff cards should be posted up in the rooms of the Association, and that the members be asked to support as far as possible the efforts of the kitchen committee. It was arranged to hold a special meeting of the council to-day (Saturday), at 12 o'clock, to receive and pass the report and balance-sheet.

The following were elected:—Juan Bounaparte, Lionel Atwell, Una Gilbert, Charles Aldred, Ernest Bucaloss, and Rosina May Sullivan. Gordon Philiott, Douglas Munro, Maud Bowyer, Grenden Bentley, and H. Wentworth Fane were nominated, and Lucie Wilson was reinstated.

A.A. ELECTION.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—As I am nominated for the A.A. Council may I crave a little of your valuable space in which to briefly set forth my views, for I should hate to be supported by those who differed from me.

I believe I am generally termed an "Extremist" in actors' politics. That I take as a compliment (although I do not think it is meant as such), for an "Extremist" to my mind wishes to make up for lost time, to do a thing now, at once, whilst it is of some use; but my friends the "Moderates" say, "Oh, wait a bit. Let things get worse before we do anything!" Now that doesn't suit me at all. For instance, a minimum wage of £2 per week would be a very good thing if adopted now, but in, say, three or four years' time it may be quite useless, quite inadequate, as by that time we may all have to play twice nightly, also giving two matinées per day, and also be expected to travel in our own motors.

Again, payment for rehearsals is wanted badly now, but when the minimum wage has created a standard, and only those who come up to that standard are able to obtain engagements, a week or two's rehearsal will suffice, and the company being more efficient, runs will be longer, so payment for rehearsals then would not be the boon it would be now.

But I must "come to cues." So, briefly, I stand for the minimum wage, payment for rehearsals and matinées, the exposure of bogus managers at any cost—libel, or even wreckage of the Association. (Having just been the victim of a bogus actor-manager at a well-known suburban theatre, I speak feelingly.)

I also stand for a free agency. That is, I believe the Association should be the permanent address of all touring actors and actresses, much in the same way as the Green Room Club and the Ladies' Guild are those of the London actor and actress. It would be a boon to both artist and manager.

In conclusion, I do not believe in managerial influence at all. In a society of employees it is absurd, and has stunted the actor's efforts for twenty long, weary, dreary years. No argument can support it. So doubtless members will prefer to vote for the many "dark horses" who have put up for this election in preference to—Yours faithfully, ROBSON PAIGE.

THEATRE ROYAL, STRATFORD.

On Monday, Jan. 3, for the first time in London, the Drama in Four Acts, by Frank Price, entitled.

"A CHILD OF THE STREETS."

Sir John Graham ..... MR. JOHN ERROLL
Lawrence Craigie ..... MR. LEONARD AARDALE
Lieutenant Jack Ainsley MR. NORMAN H. TRACY
Robert Wallace ..... MR. CHARLES FREEMAN
Oscar Van Dam ..... MR. MAURICE JONES
Ezra Scroggie ..... MR. GEORGE FRANCIS
Pomeroy Smith ..... MR. CHARLES TOLCHER
Constable 214D ..... MR. LEWIS RAE
Gertrude Graham .. MISS NELLIE THORNE HALLAM
Lorna Carstairs ..... MISS YOXA SUMMER
Selina Haddock ..... MISS CARLOTA BLONDIN
Little Doris ..... LITTLE MAY RENAUD
Doris Graham ..... MISS DOT STEPHENS

Originally produced at the Grand Theatre, Walsall, in September last, A Child of the Streets made its initial bow to a London audience at the Stratford Theatre Royal on Monday. The author has relied for success on a story of strong domestic interest, easily followed, and embellished with appropriate scenery Consequently, its enthusiastic reception by Monday's audience was entirely merited. The plot was so fully dealt with in our columns of Sept. 25 that a brief outline will now suffice. Gertrude Graham and her child, on the death of Gerald Graham, return to England after a long estrangement from Gerald's father, Sir John Graham, the old man being now desirous of making reparation to his son's wife and child. This does not "suit the book" of his rascally nephew, Lawrence Craigie, and his paramour, Lorna Carstairs; but, despite their scheming, Sir John becomes reconciled to Gertrude, and little Doris, and Craigie, driven to desperation, murders his uncle. He manages, however, to fix the crime on Gertrude Graham, and contrives to have Doris kidnapped. Ten years now elapse. Gertrude has escaped conviction of the crime of murder, but she is homeless and friendless, and parted from her daughter, now a pretty and winsome lassie, who, as a street singer, has become a source of income to the villain Scroggie, who abducted her. The girl's pretty face and pleasing voice attract the notice of Oscar Van Dam, the keeper of a notorious saloon; and to the temptation of the ease and luxury offered her, Doris very nearly succumbs. She has, however, a guardian angel in her own mother, who, though unaware of her daughter's identity, accepts a situation in the same house in order to keep an eye on the friendless girl. After many vicissitudes, mother and daughter are finally revealed to each other, and there is a happy ending to a piece of more than passing interest, which should add another leaf to Mr. Frank Price's laurels.

Miss Dot Stephens, who plays Doris Graham after the first act, supplies the chief attraction of the piece Miss Stephens, it will be recalled, achieved fame in musical comedy before meeting with the railway accident which it was then feared would end her very promising career. Since, however, by remarkable surgery, she has been enabled to appear on the variety stage, which she has in turn forsaken for her old love, the theatre. In the rôle of Doris Graham Miss Stephens acts with a pathetic charm and grace, which win all hearts, and she sings "Mother's Eyes" and "Someone" with much expression and feeling. Her reception is the more hearty as Stratford is her birthplace. Mr. Leonard Aardale as the villainous Lawrence Craigie plays with considerable skill and power; and Mr. Norman H. Tracy has an excelent part as Jack Ainsley, a young man about town, and does justice to it. Mr. Charles Freeman is manly and convincing in the rôle of Robert Wallace; and Mr. Maurice Jones plays most appropriately as Oscar Van Dam. The vicious nature of Ezra Scroggie is admirably depicted by Mr. George Francis; Mr. Charles Tolcher is a decidedly clever and entertaining Pomeroy Smith; and Mr. John Erroll makes the most of his opportunities as Sir John Graham. Miss Yoxa Summer as the scheming Lorna Carstairs submits a well-studied embodiment of this prominent part, and Miss Nellie Thorne Hallam is a sympathetic and graceful Gertrude Graham. Miss Carlotta Blondin's portrayal of Selina Haddock is a diverting character study; and a word of praise must be bestowed upon little May Renaud for her very intelligent impersonation of Little Doris. As a police constable, Mr. Lewis Rae does well.

"THE HAG AND THE MASHER."

Dramatic Episode in One Act, by Alfred Hollis, Produced at the Muncaster Theatre, Bootle, on Thursday, Dec. 30.

The Hag ..... MR. ALBERT SEMBER
Reggie Verne ..... MR. H. ARNOLD ALLEN
Aubrey Verne ..... MISS VIOLET LAND

The scene of this little play is the garret of an old hag, who has kidnapped Aubrey Verne, the child of a Judge in revenge for his sentencing her son, a criminal, to death. The action arises from the attempts of Reggie, the brother of the child, to discover his whereabouts. In this he is eventually successful, though the hag makes several attempts to murder him. Mr. Albert Sember did some powerful acting as the Hag, and Mr. H. Arnold Allen was very active and effective as Reggie, Miss Violet Land playing Aubrey Verne prettily.

MR. EDITOR,—SIR,—In your current issue you state that the stage management of Cinderella at this theatre was under the direction of Mr. Wm. Cartwright. Mr. Wm. Cutler is responsible for this department for Messrs. Stevens and Buchanan, Mr. Cartwright being resident-manager for Mr. Chas. Barnard only.—Yours faithfully, John Coghlan, general secretary, Theatre Royal, Elephant and Castle, London, S.E., Jan. 4, 1910.

CAVALIERE F. CASTELLANO'S Italian Grand Opera Company is at the Worthing Theatre Royal. On Monday Il Trovatore was presented, the brilliant solos and pleasing choruses proving enjoyable. The répertoire includes Faust, Il Barbière, Di Seviglia, Rigoletto, Cavalleria Rusticana, I Pagliacci, Traviata, Lucia di Lammermoor, and Carmen.

"THE EVE OF HER WEDDING," played by Mr. Wilson Benge's company, filled the bill for the first three nights of this week at the Gaiety, Musselburgh, and was well patronised. Leading parts were taken by Messrs. Cecil A. Melton, Charles Osborne, C. M. Doyle, and Arthur Keand; and Misses Pauline Nanton, Esmai Ellys, and Annie Hylton.

PLAYS, in the time of Shakespeare, began at one o'clock in the afternoon. Some persons, however, were actuated by a stronger curiosity, and in order to secure good places went to the theatres without their dinners. See the prologue to The Unfortunate Lovers, by Sir William D'Avenant, first performed at Blackfriars in April, 1638:

"——— You are grown excessive proud,
Since ten times more of wit than was allowed
Your silly ancestors in twenty year,
You think in two short hours to swallow here.
For they to theatres were pleased to come,
Ere they had dined, to take up the best room;
There sat on benches, not adorn'd with mats,
And graciously did vail their high crown'd hats
To every half-dressed player as he still
Through hangings peep'd to see the galleries fill.
Good easy judging souls, with what delight
They wou'd expect a jig or target-fight!
A furious tale of Troy, which they ne'er thought
Was weakly writ, if it were strongly fought;
Laugh'd at a clinch, the shadow of a jest,
And cryed, 'A passing good one, I protest.'"

THE COPYRIGHT COMMITTEE'S REPORT.

"We will now proceed to consider the effect of the third paragraph of the Article. It is somewhat ambiguously worded, and is possibly capable of different interpretations. One member of the Committee took the view that par. 3 should be read as providing that par. 1 should have no retroactive effect whatever, and that in order to bring the latter part of par. 3 into harmony with the first few words of that paragraph the words 'have been lawfully adapted' should be read 'have been lawfully adaptable,' so that in those countries where the adaptation of works has been unlawful the adaptation of works published before the operation of the Revised Convention should still be unlawful, but that such should not be the case in countries where it has hitherto been lawful to adapt.

"This view did not commend itself to the rest of the Committee, who were of opinion that the object of the paragraph is that manufacturers who have, at the time of the coming into force of the Revised Convention, lawfully adapted works (that is to say, adapted them without infringement of authors' rights) to mechanical instruments, may still proceed to manufacture records in respect of the works which they have so adapted. But a difference of opinion arose as to whether, where there had been any adaptation to mechanical instruments of a work at the time of the coming into force of the Convention, that particular work would be free to be adapted by any manufacturer for any kind of instrument, or whether the manufacturer who had adapted it would be the only manufacturer who could produce the records of the work without the author's consent. A narrow majority of the Committee were in favour of the former view, which in their opinion is in accordance with the exact words of the latter part of the paragraph, and leaves all manufacturers upon an equal footing as regards works which by virtue of the paragraph might be reproduced without the author's consent, so that the effect of treating a manufacturer as having a vested interest in the work which he has adapted will be to give every other manufacturer practically the same freedom.

"It may be remarked that if protection be given to the manufacturers of records, in the sense that they should have what may be termed the copyright in those records, they ought to have the power to prevent the importation into this country of records copied from their own records. It will probably be necessary for this purpose to introduce some legislative provisions analogous to those found in the statutes, prohibiting the importation of records which would infringe the rights of the owner of copyright, and to impose, not merely confiscation of the records attempted to be imported, but also a penalty upon the importer, so that the clause may be practically enforced; and better provision might be made for seizure in this country, and forfeiture of any records found to be infringements, and for the punishment by penalties of any persons dealing in such records.

"Evidence was given before the Committee on the question of the effect of the production and sale of records, perforated rolls, &c., on the sale of sheet music, but the Committee do not find it necessary to refer thereto.

"Art. 14.—Authors of literary, scientific, or artistic works shall have the exclusive right of authorising the reproduction and public representation of their works by cinematography.

"Cinematograph productions shall be protected as literary or artistic works if, by the arrangement of the acting form or the combinations of the incidents represented, the author has given the work a personal and original character.

"Without prejudice to the rights of the author of the original work, the reproduction by cinematography of a literary, scientific, or artistic work shall be protected as an original work.

"The above provisions apply to reproductions or production effected by any other process analogous to cinematography.

"The Committee consider that this Article is reasonable, and therefore recommend its adoption, although it introduces new matter into the area of protection, and that the necessary legislation for that purpose and for domestic purposes should be included in any enactment necessary to carry out the suggestions in this report.

"Art. 15.—In order that the authors of works protected by the present Convention may, in the absence of proof to the contrary, be considered as such, and be consequently admitted to institute proceedings against pirates before the courts of the various countries of the Union, it will be sufficient that their name be indicated on the work in the accustomed manner.

"For anonymous or pseudonymous works, the publisher whose name is indicated on the work shall be entitled to protect the rights belonging to the author. He shall be, without other proof, deemed to be the legal representative of the anonymous or pseudonymous author.

"Art. 16.—Pirated works may be seized by the competent authorities of any country of the Union where the original work enjoys legal protection.

"In such a country the seizure may also apply to reproductions imported from a country where the work is not protected, or has ceased to be protected.

"The seizure shall take place in accordance with the domestic legislation of each country.

"Art. 17.—The provisions of the present Convention cannot in any way derogate from the right belonging to the Government of each country of the Union to permit, to control, or to prohibit by measures of domestic legislation or police, the circulation, representation, or exhibition of any works or productions in regard to which the competent authority may find it necessary to exercise that right.

"The Committee consider that these Articles may be accepted, subject to qualification. Art. 16 would clearly be inappropriate to the subject-matter of architecture. It has been already pointed out that the proper remedy for infringement in such a case would be a penalty of some kind, but if the Article means that provision must be made so that the author may be entitled to set the authorities of a country in motion to seize the object of which he complains, it will clearly have to be modified so as to exclude architecture from its operation. We think that there are other subject-matters to which this remedy may be inappropriate, and we recommend that this Article should only be accepted with the qualification that Great Britain may apply its provisions only to such subjects and in such cases as it considers suitable. The legislation which has been suggested must include dealing with Arts. 15, 16, and 17."

HARLEQUIN was a Roman mime. He is described with his shaven head (rasis capitibus), his sooty face (fuligine faciem), his flat, unshod feet (planipedes), and his patched coat of many colours (mimi centunculo). Even Pulcinella, whom we familiarly call "Punch," may receive, like other personages of no great importance, all his dignity from antiquity, one of his Roman ancestors having appeared to an antiquary's visionary eye in a bronze statue. More than one erudite dissertation authenticates the family likeness—the nose long, prominent, and hooked; the staring goggle eyes; the hump at his back and at his breast; in a word, all the character which so strongly marks the Punch-race as distinctly as whole dynasties have been featured by the Austrian lip and the Bourbon nose.

VARIETY GOSSIP.

MISS ELLEN TERRY was an interested spectator among the huge audience that filled the Coliseum on Monday afternoon to see the playlet Mr. Jellicoe and the Fairy. It will be remembered that she was one of the original company playing in Pinkie and the Fairies at His Majesty's, being supported in that production by Little Elise Craven as the fairy queen Since that time Miss Terry has taken great interest in this gifted youngster, and frequently applauded her in her latest performance.

AT the conclusion of the performance of Mr. Jellicoe and the Fairies on Monday evening, Mr. Cyril Maude, in answer to repeated calls, appeared with little Elise Craven in his arms. The audience seemed to be as delighted as the child, whom the popular actor-manager carried pick-a-back at his next appearance in front of the tableau curtains.

THE great sketch question is not solved certainly; but the appearance of one actor manager and his wife (Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Bourchier) at the Palace and another actor-manager (Mr. Cyril Maude) at the Coliseum seems to make the solution much easier. At any rate, the début on the variety stage of the celebrated trio of theatrical artists is a step forward, and gives a genuine significance to the concordat. For some time to come, we fear, this compromise will afford the only solution of one of the legal anomalies of the licensing laws. The report of the Theatres Commission which sat in 1892 was shelved, and history has an unfortunate knack of repeating itself.

THE success of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Bourchier in Mr. Henry Arthur Jones's little drama The Knife has resulted in Mr. Alfred Butt inviting the popular pair to extend their stay. Mr. Bourchier, however, is busy making arrangements for the production of Dame Nature. He also has on the stocks the piece, by Paul Hervieu, produced at the Comédie-Français on March 29 last year, and entitled Connais-Toi! The excellent English title selected for the adaptation is Glass Houses.

IT is rarely that an artist is nonplussed by loss of memory; but Little Tich had the rare experience one evening during the week of completely forgetting his patter in his capital song "The Dentist." He tried during a little impromptu gag to recollect; but memory was for once obstinate, and he went off. The Tivoli crowd took the incident quite good-humouredly, and gave the comedian a very hearty round of applause on his return to the footlights as the rose-crowned pet of the ballet.

MISS VICTORIA MONKS met with an accident on Monday, as she was motoring from the Metropolitan to the Oxford stage entrance in Tottenham Court-road. In order to avoid a horse and van, the car was turned suddenly and skidded into one of the electric lamp standards in the roadway. The car was damaged, and the popular comedienne had her hand cut by broken glass. She was attended by a Harley-street doctor, and was able to fulfil her engagement at the Oxford.

MR. BRANSBY WILLIAMS left Euston at midday on Saturday by the Cunard special train for an extended tour in the United States. A crowd of friends and admirers assembled on the platform to see him off, prominent among them being officials and members of the Dickens Fellowship, of which Mr. Bransby Williams is vice-president. As the train moved out of the station, amid waving handkerchiefs and hats, Mr. Bransby Williams, in the most exuberant spirits, scattered cards among the crowd, on which they were exhorted to "Smile."

MR. ARTHUR BOURCHIER, in an interview, confesses his conversion to the doctrine of the idea of a National Theatre. This, he declares, is mainly due to the criticisms of a learned dramatic critic who has thought fit to make sweeping assertions against those who attend the various performances of the Palace Theatre. Mr. Bourchier declares he can picture in his dreams a stately building, enriched by statues of ancient philosophers and scholars, where ordinary common or garden people would not be given the plays they desired, but on the other hand plays that they ought to see. The audience would also have to produce a sort of testimonial as to their general character, and the advertisements would be embellished with extracts from the ancient poets.

THE popular actor-manager is quite enthusiastic over his receptions at the Palace. He says that he has never acted anywhere to a more intelligently sympathetic audience, and that his experience of the halls has been so favourable that he means to return whenever a suitable opportunity arrives. The great difficulty, he declares, is the production of one-act plays. They have been slighted in the past by the very fact of their position on a theatre programme. Aspiring dramatists must therefore look to the variety theatres for much-needed encouragement in their work. They may be quite certain of "placing" works of real merit before the public.

AT the Water Rats' Lodge meeting on Sunday, at the Vaudeville Club, the officers of the year were duly installed, with the exception of Mr. Harry Tate, who was away in Glasgow. Ex-King Rat W. H. Clemart having installed Mr. Charles Warren in the chief office, the new King Rat proceeded to make the further installations. These included Papa Brown, Bank Rat; Burt Shepard, Musical Rat; W. H. McCarthy, Scribe Rat; Dave O'Toole, Test Rat; and Papa Cragg and Papa Brown, Trustees.

MR. CHARLES WARREN, who is known to all our readers as the enterprising representative in the United Kingdom of the American publishing firm of Witmarks, is also a legitimate comedian of considerable gifts, having played both in the States and England. His experiences on the variety stage in this country are later history, and are well within the recollection of our readers. He seems to have the secret of perennial youth, though his big and clever son, Charles Denier Warren, may be said to give popper away. Mrs. Warren is the charming and successful comedienne, Miss Rachel Lowe. As King Rat Mr. Warren's acknowledged administrative ability and his tact should have full scope, and we may join in the hope of his many friends that he may have a most successful year.

AT a special general meeting of the Variety Artists' Federation, to be held at the Bedford Head Hotel on Sunday, at six p.m., under the presidency of the Federation's chairman, Mr. Fred Russell, a most important proposal will be embodied in the rule which suggests the appointment of a permanent salaried chairman, in addition to a paid general secretary. We quote the proposed rule:—"The managing body shall consist of the following: A permanent chairman of the Federation, who shall be a member of the Federation, and who shall be appointed by the then Executive Committee in the United Kingdom voting by ballot, who shall be paid a salary determined by the Executive Committee, and shall remain in office until a resolution to remove him is carried by a two-thirds majority of the then Executive Committee. His agreement with the Executive Committee shall be subject to three months' notice on either side."

MR. WILL STONE, at the Ton-y-Pandy Hippodrome, on New Year's Day entertained 7,400 children to a free show. The youngsters were also presented with an orange each.

ON New Year's Day the orchestra at the Hippodrome, Ton-y-Pandy, presented their popular general-manager and lessee (Mr. W. Stone) with a silver and ivory calendar and diary. Mrs. Stone received three volumes of Beethoven's works, and Mr. E. Harper (acting-manager) a gold-mounted amber cigar-holder.

THE Borough of Margate Entertainments Committee invite tenders for the right to give musical entertainments on the Marine-terrace Sands during the ensuing season (May 16 to Oct. 1, 1910). Tenders, endorsed "Sands Entertainments," to be addressed and sent not later than Jan. 15, to John E. Saxby, secretary and manager, 12, Grosvenor-place, Margate.

THE Grand Theatre, Blackpool, as we stated last week in this column, has been purchased by the Blackpool Tower Company. It will be closed today for extensive decorations, and reopened on Monday, March 21 next, under the general-management of George H. Harrop, by whom dates for leading No. 1 companies will be considered. The companies already booked by Mr. Sergenson have been taken over by the new management.

AT the annual meeting of shareholders of the New Spa and Gardens, Ltd., Bridlington, on Thursday, the 30th ult., Mr. Harry Tunbridge, who has been general-manager and secretary for the last two years, was unanimously elected managing-director of the company. The appointment is a very popular one. Mr. Tunbridge has made himself a name here both amongst residents and visitors for his courtesy and geniality as well as for the excellent fare he provides for the patrons of the Spa.

"FORM, Riflemen, form," which is being sung so successfully at the Oxford this week by Mr. Leo Stormont, is from the pen of Sir Charles Villiers Stanford. We are told that the lilting swing of it throbs through the hall. There was a good deal of cheap patriotism about during the Boer War, represented by indifferent songs. But the "black week" of December, 1899, put an end to braggadocio verses. A song, however, which stirs the loftiest sentiments of patriotism in the listener is more than welcome.

AFTER the performance at the Prince of Wales's Theatre, Birmingham, on New Year's Eve, Miss Dorothy Ward, the popular principal boy, travelled in her motor-car to Dudley, and presented the prizes to the successful competitors in a carnival at the Trindall-road Roller Skating Rink. Upon entering the building she was accorded an enthusiastic welcome, and was personally received by the Mayor and Deputy-Mayor of the town. A dainty little girl on skates presented her with a handsome shower bouquet. Miss Ward was seasonably dressed, her beautiful toilette being of cream serge, with white ermine muff, necklet, and hat.

AT the Hulme Hippodrome, Manchester, on Monday, Dec. 27, Mr. William Holland produced a brisk and entertaining version of Aladdin. Good scenery, tuneful music, and a brilliant variety of dresses characterised the show, which met with a good reception. Miss Helen Charles was very pleasing in the title-part, and was well supported by Miss Poppy Holland as the Princess; while excellent fun was contributed by Mr. Bob Selvidge as Abanazar, Mr. Kennedy Allen as Wishee-Washee, Mr. Robb Wilton as the Widow Twankey, and the Three Comedy Chanters in subsidiary rôles. Songs, choruses, and dances were all well done.

THE famous Clempert has proved himself a draw all over the United Kingdom, and has been in great demand; but so great are the inducements offered to him by a South American management that at some pecuniary sacrifice he has arranged with managers here to postpone his immediate dates. He sailed by the Arrigan on Friday, the 7th inst., to Buenos Ayres, where he opens on Feb. 1 at the Palacis Novedades, for two months. He is due back in England in June to open at the Empire, Portsmouth (return date), and holds contracts for every legitimate hall in Great Britain to follow. There are hints already from the other side of the Atlantic that he will be compelled to be put to the inconvenience of postponing later dates in England, providing his health does not fail him. He wishes to thank all managers and agents for their kindness, and greets them with "An revoir," but not "Good-bye."

COUNCILLOR HAROLD ARNOLD, of the King's Theatre, Gateshead, had a very unpleasant and unwelcome New Year greeting on the morning of the first day of the year, being aroused at 5 a.m. by a policeman with the unsettling intimation that the stage door of the theatre had been found open.

HASTENING down to the "house" Mr. Arnold made a most disagreeable discovery. The members of the Bill Sikes fraternity had paid him a visit during the night. Whisky and cigars in considerable quantity had been removed from the circle bar, whilst the various offices had been forcibly entered, and an attempt made to remove the safe from its cupboard recess. The burglars had succeeded in turning the safe upside down without removing it far, and had forced the lock facings, but had failed to break open the door. As the safe contained the week's salaries of the artists (to be paid on the Saturday evening) Mr. Arnold may consider himself fortunate.

A COLLECTING box for the Poor Children's Breakfast Fund had engaged their expert attention, and this, being made of wood, was an easy mark, a sum of about 30s. being extracted. Some articles of wearing apparel, the property of Mr. Arnold, were taken, and it is presumed that the thieves then made their way towards an exit—the stage door. In their path they came across the stalls bar, and, evidently incensed at the failure of their main efforts, turned on the tap of a vessel containing about six gallons of port wine. Several jemmies, chisels, and hammers were left strewn over the place, and the loss and damage are estimated at between £40 and £50. Mr. Arnold is of opinion that the robbers attended Friday night's second performance and afterwards secreted themselves on the premises.

THE Great Salambos, who are appearing with such marked success in Aladdin, the greatest of all Drury Lane's production, in their popular and wonderfully mystifying electrical speciality in the Grand Palace scene, are a most creditable feature in this beautifully-mounted pantomime. At their behest, as Slaves of the Lamp, Widow Twankey's laundry becomes a gorgeous palace. Some ugly pieces of furniture are left behind, and Aladdin remarking on this, the old pieces are changed into beautiful palace couches, while a dingy-looking old mangle is transformed into a magnificent and luxuriously provided banquet table. This done, they then use numerous articles of food, &c., from the table as paraphernalia for their mysterious electrical displays. Their puzzling trickery, so entirely appropriate to such a pantomime, is done in full view of the audience.

JACK SMILES sent his dad, Jack Boston, a cheque for £50 as a New Year's gift. We do not suppose he will do it again "for months and months and months."

THE monthly meeting of the committee of the Music Hall Sick Fund will be held at the Crown Hotel, Charing Cross-road, on Wednesday afternoon next, at 4 p.m.

MISS LALLIE FORSYTH will present at Collins's A Million and a Half, a new comedy act, by Rita Carlyle. Miss Forsyth has just returned from a tour of India, China, and Japan, under Mr. Maurice Bandmann's management.

THE Great Caicedo, King of the Wire, is being complimented by Press and public in the States on his feats of startling originality. Needless to say, he is topping the bill everywhere on the Orpheum circuit.

MISS NELLIE BRIERLEY, owing to her enormous success at Rotherhithe, has been booked by Messrs. Beecham and Wheeler with Mr. Leon Zeitlin.

THE Stage Productions Company are presenting their first ambitious effort on Monday next at the Bedford—a musical comedy sketch, by Charles Crozier, with music by Frank Crozier.

AT the 641st meeting of the Executive Committee of the Music Hall Artists' Railway Association, held at the offices of the Association on Wednesday afternoon, Mr. Fred Herbert, in the chair, the weekly financial statement, showing forty-three new members and a cash total of £48 19s., was passed.

MISS BESSIE BUTT has made a pronounced success as Aladdin at the Theatre Royal, Glasgow, in Mr. Robert Arthur's gorgeous production, and Press, public, and management are unanimous in declaring that she is quite the finest Aladdin ever seen in the "Second City of the Empire." Miss Butt has now thoroughly established a reputation as one of the best principal boys extant.

IT is proposed that, upon the occasion of the retirement from active stage work in the music hall profession of Mr. John Alexander—familiarly and affectionately known as Johnny Alexander—a complimentary benefit shall be arranged as an expression of the high regard of his many friends, both professional and private. A meeting will be held on Thursday next, at twelve o'clock noon, at 18, Charing Cross-road, W.C., for the purpose of completing the committee list, and for fixing the date and place of the benefit performance.

AMONG those who form the committee are Joe Elvin, George H. Chirgwin, Paul Martinetti, Charles Pratt, George Harrington, George Harris, Harry Barnard, Albert Voyce, T. C. Callaghan, J. H. Milburn, Barney Hyams, Sammy Shields, Charles Stevens, Walter Munroe, Jack Lotto, Leon Bassett, Sammy Salter, Horace Wheatley, Arthur Were, C. Douglas Stuart, Joe Tennyson, Bros. Obo, Charles Coborn, Harold J. Pounds, Lawrence Barclay, Frank Boyce, H. Cee-Mee, J. Sparrow, J. F. Lambe, L. Peate, G. P. R. Burgess (President, Terriers' Association). Mr. Arthur Were is the hon. secretary pro tem.

MISS MARIE LOFTUS'S visits to London are, alas! almost as rare as those of Halley's comet to this terrestrial ball. The popular lady has, however, during the week more than justified her right to be acclaimed a star of the first magnitude, as has been evidenced by the packed houses at the Shoreditch Empire, where she has been delighting the wise men of the East by her arch and finished renderings of "Don't imagine your husband is a diamond in the rough (You're bound to cut your fingers if you do)," a song railing at the perfidy of man, and "Do I have to change before I get to London?" which details in humorous fashion the adventures of a Lancashire lass who, though looking harmless as a dove, is blessed with more than the wisdom of the serpent. The fair artist has not been permitted to leave the stage till she has given her wonderfully contrasted pot-pourri on "Artists past and present."

THE licence of the Alexandra Palace has been temporarily transferred from Mr. Edwin Goodship to Mr. F. T. Boucher, who has succeeded him as secretary to the Palace trustees, in order that he may carry on the business until the next ordinary transfer day.

MR. H. A. SAINTSBURY, the well-known actor, will appear on Monday, Jan. 10, at the Empress Theatre, Brixton, in a new dramatic sketch, entitled The Strolling Player, written by Miss Beatrix de Burgh, which gives Mr. Saintsbury exceptional opportunities to justify his reputation as a Shakespearean actor.

MISS MAY BEATTY, who is playing Dick Whittington in Mr. E. Humphrey E. Brammall's interesting revival of pantomime at that famous house, the Britannia, became an immediate favourite of the host of patrons that crowded the great house in Hoxton on Boxing afternoon. Dick sang "Somewhere," and there arose a mighty chorus. From four thousand throats it came, and the fair singer has never had a more successful number, to which her beautiful voice does complete justice.

THE replayed tie for the Music Hall Golf Pennant between Mr. Harry Meymott (holder) and Mr. J. W. Rickaby (challenger) took place on Tuesday on one of the West London courses. Mr. Rickaby played fine golf, and after standing two up at the end of the first round, he eventually won by two up and one to play. The winners of the pennant in rotation are:—Ed. E. Ford, J. W. Rickaby, Hal Forde, H. Meymott, and J. W. Rickaby.

MEMBERS of the theatrical and music-hall profession will learn with regret of the unexpected death of Mr. John Callan, a well-known comedian, which took place at 11, Upper Baker-street, Liverpool. Deceased was performing a fortnight ago as principal comedian in a minstrel troupe which appeared at the Olympia, and, although suffering from chill, he took his part until the close of the engagement on Saturday evening, the 19th ult. Afterwards pneumonia set in, and he died on Sunday, Dec. 26.

MR. CALLAN was an American, and came to this country with a minstrel troupe. He was afterwards connected with the famous Moore and Burgess Minstrels, and was a favourite with the public in Liverpool and elsewhere. His remains were interred at West Derby Cemetery, and since his death much sympathy has been expressed with his widow, who, we regret to hear, has been left in impecunious circumstances. John Callan was known all over the world as a minstrel, and should his many friends wish to help the widow they can do so by sending a contribution to Mr. F. H. Pedgrift at The Era offices, who will duly acknowledge any subscription sent.

MANY of our readers to whom Mr. James White, the stage-manager at the Granville, is so well known, will deeply sympathise with him in the death of his wife on Christmas Eve last, under tragic circumstances. The deceased lady was under the care of her medical man (a well-known Fulham practitioner), and he unfortunately mistook a certain bottle in his surgery, with the result that a dose of strychnine was administered in her medicine, with the above melancholy and sorrowful result. The inquest was held last Tuesday, and the coroner's jury added a rider that all poison bottles should be made in a distinctive shape.

TERRIER HARRY BARNARD has been appointed hon. treasurer to the Terriers Association.

AN extra turn matinée will be given at the Paragon this day (Saturday) at two o'clock.

MR. ARTHUR WERE, the secretary of the Terriers' Association, has been elected president of the Gallery First Nighters' Club.

MESSRS. ABRAHAMS, of the Queen's, Poplar, are giving their manager, Mr. Chas. Hector, a complimentary night on Friday, Jan. 21. Artists please note, and those willing to appear kindly send in their names.

MR. W. G. SYLVESTER, the Royal caterer, again successfully catered for the children's entertainment at Buckingham Palace on Tuesday. The youngsters were delighted with the programme arranged.

MISS ADELE LEVEY, who has been with Messrs. Murray King and Clark since May last, was presented on Monday by those gentlemen with a beautiful bouquet on making her entrance as the Emperor of Morocco in the gorgeous Palace scene. Miss Levey presents a striking figure in a dress of rare resplendence.

MR. ALFRED B. CROSS, the actor, who died on Sunday last, to the inexpressible grief of his wife, known professionally as Minnie Watersford, acted some years since on the variety stage under the name of Hugh Cannon in tabloid versions of Lady Audley's Secret, East Lynne, and other dramatic sketches, in companies pioneered by Mr. Brien M'Cullough.

THE draft report of the Joint Committee on the Censorship recommends that the producer of a play regarded as objectionable by the Public Prosecutor may be proceeded against. In the case of a conviction, it may be endorsed on the theatre licence. In the case of a song-writer it would probably be endorsed on his poetic licence.

THE Maid Marian of the Prince of Wales's pantomime in Birmingham is Miss Daisy Dormer, and the local press have become enthusiastic in that dainty artist's praise. We do not wonder at this; for, as a prominent manager said a little time since to the writer:—"It is delightful to see Daisy work, she puts her whole soul into it." We are not surprised therefore that she is booked until 1917.

MR. GEORGE LEYTON'S efforts in the cause of the Crimean and military veterans never seemingly slacken. The Master of Newington Workhouse had made the declining days of James Williamson, one of the six hundred, so happy, that the old man elected to remain where he was treated as an honoured guest, rather than take the chance of an uncomfortable lodgings on a small pension.

WHEN the old man died there was the difficulty of providing a grave without going to the parish. This was speedily solved by the same kind-hearted master and George Leyton. The Legion of Frontiersmen, of which corps Mr. Leyton is a member, bought a grave in Streatham Park Cemetery, and Colonel Driscoll, commanding a detchment of the Legion, paid the deceased veteran military honours.

THE secretary of the Music Hall Home, 31, Wilson-road, Camberwell, S.E., desires, on behalf of the committee, to thank the ladies and gentlemen who so kindly contributed towards the most enjoyable time spent at Christmas by the old performers in the home—especially Joe Elvin, Ted E. Box, Harry Blake, Harry Barnard, F. H. Pedgrift, Miss Kitty Colyer, Miss Mildred Hayman, Miss Ray Maskell, Mr. Harry Bawn, and My Fancy, Mr. and Mrs. O'Brien, Miss Vesta Tilley, the president (Mr. Walter de Frece), Mr. Lewis Isaacs, George Bush, Arthur Elvy, and Oswald Lux.

ON Sunday last the inmates were entertained by music and song by Mr. and Mrs. Norman Coles, Miss Cissie Bush, Mr. Fred Ralph, and Mr. George Bush, whose selections on the banjo were much appreciated. The secretary has pleasure in acknowledging the receipt from Mr. Vivian Evans, of the Empire Palace, Wolverhampton, the sum of £1 13s., and from Mr. George Weldon, Hippodrome, Dewsbury, £2 6s., being box collections for the Home Fund, and Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Mannering a donation of £1 1s.

THE Music Hall Home is now in its fourteenth year, and accommodates twelve old performers with home comforts. The committee hope for the support of the profession to The Era New Year appeal, headed by Miss Vesta Tilley. This annual appeal is the main support of the Home. The secretary will gladly send a collecting card to any willing to work on behalf of the Fund. Men's old clothes and boots are always very acceptable.

MISS MELINDA MAY, Secretary of the Music Hall Ladies' Guild, 61, New Oxford-street, W.C., on behalf of the committee, begs gratefully to thank the following. Mr. Alec Barish (Birkenhead) for new portmanteau containing new gentleman's and boys' clothing and ladies' new shoes. Miss May omitted to mention that Mrs. Ernest Collins was a visitor to the children's Christmas party at the Horns, Kennington, on Dec. 23. Also Mr. James Horne and Master Horne, who sang to the children; Mrs. Levy, two plum puddings (per Miss Lottie Albert); Mrs. Walter Stanley, pudding. The Sisters Macarte's gifts to the Christmas tree were warm jerseys, petticoats, &c.; also Miss Rosie Foote, warm clothing for the Christmas tree; Messrs. Mayne, costumiers, Waterloo-road, for loan of entire costume (Santa Claus); and Miss Agnes White, clothing and sweets.

WILL friends in or out of the profession please note that a prize will be given to anyone collecting the most money for this deserving charity in twelve months, commencing from Nov. 4, 1909? The result will be published in all variety papers.

THE bicycle given by Mr. Joe Zarmo is now on view at 18, Charing Cross-road. Hurry up; there are only a few tickets left, 1s. each, and the machine is a Rex, worth £50. Friends of the charity are heartily welcome to tea and reception, held every Wednesday, four to five o'clock. Funds, boots, and clothing are urgently needed.

THE following are the correct particulars regarding the dogs used in the Hippodrome spectacle The Arctic. The Samoyede dogs are natives of North-East Russia and West Siberia, and of the same breed as dogs used on most of the Polar expeditions which have started from England and Europe. They are thoroughbred specimens supplied by Mrs. Kilburn Scott, of Vale House, Bromley, Kent, whose kennels contain representatives from two Arctic expeditions, namely, that of H.R.H. the Duke of Abruzzi and the Jackson-Harmsworth and the first expedition to the Antarctic on the "Southern Cross."

THE sledge on exhibition in the entrance hall of the Hippodrome was the first to be used on the Antarctic continent in 1899 by C. E. Borchgrevink. He left some Samoyede dogs on Stewart Island, New Zealand, and descendants of them were used by Sir Ernest Shackleton on the last expedition. It should be noted that these Samoyede dogs of the Old World are quite different from the wolf-like Esquimaux of the New World. Expeditions starting from Europe do not use Esquimaux dogs because it is so easy to go to Russia and Siberia and get extremely intelligent, agile, and hardy dogs there.

AT the Wakefield licensing sessions, on Thursday, Dec. 30, Mr. Scott Alexander, of Scottie's Hippodrome, Hoyland, applied for, and received, a dramatic licence for above. He was also one of the few who received a Bioscope licence.

LADY CONSTANCE STEWART-RICHARDSON is said to be a disciple of the Maud Allan school, if we can apply that very prosaic word to the unmeasured impulse of that lady's interpretations of classic lieder and symphonies. My lady comes to the Palace to dance on the 17th.

LADY CONSTANCE is well abreast of the modern movement for the amusement of children—as evidenced by the sudden growth of children's plays everywhere—and is opposed strongly to their usual toys. "It must be worse than wrong," she says, "to make little children—the most lovely of the many lovely things that have been given us—the receptacles of hideous things—ogres, golliwogs, horrible animals in crude colours. . . . They would scare a grown person."

THE scores of the Music Hall and Theatrical Football League competition, for the challenge cup presented by Mr. Harry Tate, up to Sunday last, were: Gaiety Theatre, eight points; Edmonton Empire, eight points; Tivoli, six points; Fulham Theatre, six points; Holborn Empire, two; King's, Hammersmith, two points. The last-mentioned team sustained a defeat from the Tivolians on Sunday last by four goals to one.

SO great and novel an attraction have the seventy diving Polar bears proved to be at the London Hippodrome that now, at the close of each performance, both afternoon and evening, the circular curtain is raised for ten minutes to allow visitors to have a longer view of the animals playing and splashing in the water. Some of the bears search round for herrings which have been cast into the water, others play together in sheer enjoyment of the bath, while a further batch climb back to the stage to roam among the icebergs, thus giving the scene a most realistic appearance.

A FURTHER application was made on Saturday by Mr. Sidney Lamb, at Tower Bridge, in respect to the liquor licence of Gatti's, Westminster Bridge-road. After the premises had been closed four years a lease was granted to the late Mr. Ernest Carpenter, of the Lyceum, and his brother, Mr. Frederick William Carpenter, who, having carried out the necessary alterations required by the London County Council, proposed to open the place for cinematograph shows.

MR. LAMB said that on the very morning that the protection order was granted Mr. Ernest Carpenter died, and he now asked that a second protection order should be granted to Mr. Frederick William Carpenter. The authority which the protection order gave to the late Mr. E. Carpenter to sell liquor died with him. Sub-divisional Inspector Collins offered no opposition to the application, and the magistrate thereupon granted the protection order to Mr. F. W. Carpenter.

MR. FREDERICK VILLIERS, the famous war artist correspondent, will open at the Tivoli on Monday next in an entertainment, entitled "Fifteen Minutes on the Warpath." Mr. Villiers will relate his recent experiences with the Spanish troops in Morocco during the Riff campaign, illustrated with fifty remarkable photos of the actual fighting. Some of these photographs were taken by Mr. Villiers at immense personal risk.

IN the wonderfully successful sketch, The Russian Princess, by Frederick Maxwell, Miss Lois Du Cane wears for her first entrance a long handsome sealskin coat and Russian cap with graceful plumes and gold clasp, and white suede gauntlet gloves. Later, in the big scene with General Dragenoff, she appears in a beautiful evening gown of Russian blue crepe de chine and gold, with diamond ornaments, gold shoes, and silk stockings to match. Mr. Walter Gibbons has already booked the sketch, and it will be staged at the Hippodrome, Poplar, next week.

AN interesting turn was witnessed on Saturday last, on the occasion of the annual treat to 1,000 of the aged poor of Liverpool in St. George's Hall, when the eight-year old child of Mr. Herbert Cottesmore, the producer of the Shakespeare pantomime in the Mersey City, made her first appearance as an artist, and sang Tom Foy's song, "99," receiving a hearty round of applause from the delighted auditors. The presence of Mr. W. H. Mathews, who is eighty years of age, and the second oldest clown living, and who, in the character of Father Christmas, presented the little lady, was also appreciated, the contrast in the ages of the two being freely commented on.

NEW YEAR'S DAY at the South London was celebrated in customary fashion, Mr. William Payne, the esteemed manager, providing the poor children of the locality with a special entertainment. 6,000 youngsters responded to the invitation, and municipal importance was lent to the occasion by the presence of the Mayor of Southwark, supported by his aldermen and councillors. Other notable visitors were the Rt. Hon. R. K. Causton, the M.P. for Southwark, and Sir W. Henry Dunn, J.P., his opponent in the impending Parliamentary conflict. Fruit in large quantities had been given by the Borough and Covent Garden markets, and everyone on departure carried a parcel of fruit, buns, and sweets. Each child was further gladdened by a useful pencil case, presented by the Capital and Labour Company, Newington Causeway.

KEEN delight was manifested by the youngsters in the entertainment specially prepared for them, most applause being lavished on Professor Rosser's Royal Punch and Judy, which proved a great treat. In addition to many "extra turns," the programme was contributed to by Pete, the human monkey; the New York Nippers; Henry Hilton, conjurer; the Five Olracs, comedy acrobats; Garford's clever performing dogs; the Four Geraldos, jugglers; Professor Rosser's Royal Punch and Judy; Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope; Percival, comedy pianist; and Milli Dawson, child comedienne.

MR. JAMES HARE was initiated into the mysteries of the Terriers order on Sunday last. The ceremony was performed by Terrier W. L. Murray, W.T., assisted by Terrier Harry Gribben, V.T. Terrier Arthur Were officiated as organist.

A VERY successful ladies' concert was held at the Three Stags Hotel, Kennington, on Sunday last. Terrier W. L. Murray was in the chair, supported by the president, Terrier G. P. R. Burgess, Terrier Harry Barnard, Terrier Harry Gribben, &c. The following artists appeared: Terrier T. C. Callaghan ("Oh, what a lovely dream"), Terrier George Cooper ("That fatal rose of red"), Miss Lottie Lee ("Some Day" and "What you can't get you can do without"), Terrier Barney Hyams ("Seeing Life" and "Wait till my ship comes home"), Mr. W. Waite ("Golden Vanity" and "A Sergeant of the Line"), Terrier Charles Stevens ("Trying to find a match" and "The king of the house is baby"), Mr. Sam Wells ("Nazareth" and "Asleep in the Deep"), Terrier Steve Buckingham ("How do you do, de ay?"), Master John Marks ("Yiddisher Stories"), Terrier Harry Gribben ("The Bowery Boy"), Terrier Andie Caine ("Dingle Dongle Dell"), Mrs. James Tray ("Enjoy Yourself"). Terrier Barney Hyams acted as musical-director, and Terrier J. Chas. Moore was the accompanist.

SONGS, WRITERS, AND SINGERS.

THE pantomimes have everywhere got into their stride, and that hydra the British public, having sampled them all, is now clamouring remorselessly for copies of the songs which have been the principal means of making the "annuals" once more the successes they everywhere are—clamouring so vehemently that the several printing firms who work for Messrs. Francis and Day would welcome a rest, for even seemingly tireless machinery is the better for a stop, and some of the "hands" are complaining of having, through stress of work and overtime, to postpone their Christmas gatherings till near Easter, notwithstanding their knowledge of the existence of the saying that has ever been laid down as an axiom that "Holidays were not made for printers."

TIME was when "London and three miles round" was as far as the fame of a song was expected to extend, but nowadays the fame of the songs of the firm of Francis and Day extends to the uttermost edges of these islands, invades Continental countries, overlaps into the Colonies, and even surges up round the "Hub of the Universe." A visit to the theatres of London at this juncture, a glance in the musicsellers' windows in the neighbourhood of each playhouse, and the sounds emanating from the man in the street as he whistles on his way in any district, all show indubitably which are the songs of the hour, the day, and the time, and if Orpheus with his lute revisited these glimpses of the moon he would make no show in or near Town until he had learned to play some ten or dozen airs which are now permeating the Metropolis, and which emanate from 142, Charing Cross-road, particularly, it seems, "Let's all go down the Strand" and "There are nice girls everywhere," which are heard in everyone's mouths.

In the West Central district, and at Hammersmith, Stoke Newington, Clapham, Kennington, Brixton, Fulham, New Cross, Mile End, Stratford, Sydenham, and elsewhere, theatres huge and small have nightly (and daily likewise in most instances) vomited forth full audiences, the burden of whose song has been "Has anybody here seen Kelly?" or "I used to sigh for the silvery moon." In other instances it is "The girl in the clogs and shawl" or "Don't take me home" that appeals to the denizens of a particular locality; and again it is "For months, and months, and months" or "I'm looking for Mr. Wright" that has won the heart of the multitude, whilst at the portals of the great West End pantomime houses, in addition to most of the before-mentioned songs, "I'm waiting here for Kate," "Hello! you fellows!" and "Love makes the whole year June" are the topics of conversation among lovers of humour and judges of artistry and melody. And so it is that the printing presses toil on whilst an impatient London music trade clamours for copies of the songs that Francis and Day publish, all trying to forestall their provincial business rivals in the battle for editions of each and every one of the songs.

A PLEASING feature of the Birmingham pantomime of Aladdin at the Alexandra Theatre is the singing and dancing of those charming Australian ladies the Sisters Oswald. Their new song, "San San Sue," by Percy Edgar and Alf. J. Lawrance, is a decided hit. Messrs. Francis and Day will issue it forthwith.

MR. LOUIS LA RONDELLE has been delighting the stupendous audiences at each performance at the London Coliseum during the week by playing as overture a spirited march from his own pen, entitled "A Happy New Year." Next week the fine orchestra under his baton will essay "The Navy" two-step for the first time. It is sure to have a great vogue both in the ballroom and elsewhere, and to artists in want of bright music for use during an act it will be a boon. The name of its composer (Henry E. Pether) is a guarantee of excellence. Orchestrations are being issued by Messrs. Francis and Day. As a ballroom dance it is a great novelty, and directions are supplied with the pianoforte copies, which are commanding a ready sale among votaries of the light fantastic.

A NEW song of Miss Marie George's, entitled "Fol-lol-the-diddle-ol-the-day," by J. P. Harrington and Orlando Powell, will be issued soon by Messrs. Francis and Day, who have also secured Miss Rosie Lloyd's number, by Harrington and Fred Godfrey, the name of which is "Who's going to take me for a walk to-night?"

MESSRS. FRANCIS AND DAY are bringing out immediately Mr. Eugene Stratton's new song. "I may be a millionaire" is the title, and it is the joint work of Fred Godfrey and Charles Collins.

MISS ADA REEVE, who adorns every song she sings in the same manner as she illumines every line she speaks—with the indefinable touch of genius—is making a terrific success at Birmingham with Messrs. Francis and Day's song "He's a naughty, naughty boy."

MR. HERBERT E. HAINES has recently composed a charming "Valse des Roses" and a two-step, entitled "Frolic." The works of this gifted composer are ever in request, and it will be good news that both these compositions have been secured for publication by Messrs. Francis and Day.

MR. TOM COSTELLO, who has in town been working during the week no fewer than three houses (six performances) nightly, has secured a fine example of the work of Tom Mellor and Harry Gifford. It is a song called "I don't mind leaving the dear Homeland." Messrs. Francis and Day will issue it.

A HUMOROUS characteristic song of Miss Vesta Victoria's will be put upon the market directly by Messrs. Francis and Day, entitled "Mother's had a row with father." It is by J. P. Harrington, Chas. Collins, and Fred Godfrey.

E. W. ROGERS, whose successful songs for stars have been legion, has again supplied his old friend and client Mr. Arthur Lennard with a song. It is entitled "Which would you like to spare?" and, like all the songs from the pen that gave the world such numbers as "Skylark" and "Following in father's footsteps," it bears the impress of a past master of versification and flowing melody writing. Messrs. Francis and Day are the publishers.

A PENDANT to that delightful number "Mandy's Wedding," entitled "Mandy's Christening," by Mellor, Lawrance, and Gifford, will shortly see the light in sheet music form. Again the publishers will be Mr. David Day's firm.

MR. TOM YORKE'S latest song, entitled "William," written by Harry Castling and C. W. Murphy, has been accepted for publication by Messrs. Francis, Day, and Hunter.

MR. ALF. ELLERTON, whose great humorous song for Mr. Frank Lynne, entitled "My inquisitive kiddy," is still remembered, has provided the same artist with a most comical number called "Do what you can for ninepence," which details the endeavours of a chronically impecunious wight to obtain a shilling's-worth of the pleasures of life under varying circumstances with the full amount of his weekly allowance of pocket-money, and the disastrous consequences that always ensue. The ditty will yet further enhance the reputations of author and artist.

THE COLISEUM.

One has to believe in fairies at Yuletide and at the birth of the New Year. The kiddies insist on it, and one's faith in this most delightful doctrine of child life becomes firmer on listening to such a sweet little advocate as Elise Craven, the Coliseum fairy. To this fine house she returned on Monday with a most welcome companion in Mr. Cyril Maude, who made his début in variety as the protagonist of greed, in the new fairy piece by Sydney Blow and Douglas Hoare,

"MR. JELLICOE AND THE FAIRY."

Mr. Jellicoe ..... MR. CYRIL MAUDE
Policeman ..... MR. J. H. MILBURN
Sarah Dibin ..... MISS BERYL MERCER
Albert Edward Dibin ..... MASTER BERT CLERC
William Acres ..... MR. J. C. BUCKSTONE
The Fairy ..... MISS ELISE CRAVEN

The idea of the new fairy story is similar to Richard Ganthony's A Message from Mars, in which, it will be remembered, Charles Hawtrey, as Horace Parker, had to undergo the transformation from gentleman to tramp, a process that is now repeated in the case of Mr. Jellicoe. We are in Trafalgar-square, at the base of the Nelson column. To this stony refuge come the waifs and strays of the greatest city in the world, in all their squalid misery. Among them are Mrs. Dibin, a blind seller of bootlaces, who is led by her son, Albert Edward, a boy tramp, and a Mr. William Acres, who has done "time" for a crime of which he is innocent. The woman attributes her blindness and general feebleness to her work for an East End sweater, Mr. Jellicoe, who is also responsible for the man's conviction.

Mr. Jellicoe drives up in a real hansom, drawn by a real horse, and in his hunt for a shilling to pay the fare to Morley's Hotel he accidentally drops a sovereign or two. One of them is picked up by Acres. Recognising his old employer, Acres has an altercation with Jellicoe, who charges the boy with theft of one of the "quids." The good-hearted policeman will not take the charge, and Jellicoe goes into Morley's Hotel. Then, with the approach of morn, and to the strains of mysterious music, the column of Nelson descends, the figure of the great Admiral being accompanied by a fairy, who steps lightly to earth, and waves her wand over the prostrate figure of the boy waif intent on a book of fairy tales found in a dustbin at Highgate.

The radiant figure makes him overjoyed. He dances with her, and capers with happiness. Jellicoe is then brought bodily from his bedroom, and no sooner is he dumped in the square than he becomes a typical drink-sodden wretch. William Acres, his victim, on the contrary, is "togged out" in a fur coat and silk hat. The change of fortune does not stop here, for Jellicoe, caught in the very act of snatching Acres's watch, is given in charge, but his piteous cries for mercy are listened to, and he is allowed to go. When the fairy is quite satisfied that Jellicoe will continue in well-doing, she bids him a final farewell, is caught up by Nelson, and goes back with him to the top of the column.

Mr. Cyril Maude as Jellicoe turned tramp submitted an impersonation in every way as artistic as his Eccles, and though his opportunities are somewhat limited, owing to the necessities of time, he contrives to exploit his powers as a character-actor, and to completely enchain interest by a really clever sketch. Elise Craven is the fairy and dances in such a way that we may quote Florizel's praise of Perdita, and say "When you do dance, I wish you a wave o' th' sea, that you might ever do nothing but that." She is joined in her dances by Master Bert Clerc, a very promising youngster, who plays Albert Edward. Master Clerc, one can easily guess, is a pupil of his relative, Miss Elise Clerc, the ballet mistress of the Alhambra, and the instructress of la petite Craven. Miss Beryl Mercer plays quite conscientiously as Sarah Dibin; and Mr. J. C. Buckstone is most effective as William Acres. Mr. J. H. Milburn is an irreproachable member of the force.

The chief musical novelty of the bill is the Slaviansky Choir, founded by the late Mr. D. J. Slaviansky, who was the first to conceive the idea of collecting the old folk songs of the Slav people, and singing them in public, thereby introducing to society the real music of Russia, which, up to that time, had been entirely ignored. In short, Mr. Slaviansky did for the folk songs of his country precisely what Mr. Andreef has done, and is doing, for the native instrumental music of that country. Mr. Slaviansky himself was a singer of exceptional merit, the possessor of a fine tenor voice, and an able conductor. His musical talents have been fully inherited by his daughter, Mlle. Slaviansky, who continues to carry one his work, preserving all the old traditions. The chorus is composed of male and female voices, all of a high standard of excellence, and the singers are dressed in the rich national costume. Mlle. Slaviansky not only conducts the choir, but sings the incidental solos quite artistically. She obtains the finest shades of expression and a perfectly harmonious ensemble. On Monday the choir interlude opened with a rendering of a ballad of the eleventh century, about the celebrated Giant Nikitsch, which was followed by another ballad, "I hide my ring." A selection favoured with considerable applause was "Ei Uchnem," the song of the boatmen on the Volga, which was played many times by the Russian Balalaika orchestra during its stay at the Coliseum. There are some fine voices in the choir, one basso being especially remarkable.

Dickens interpretations are invariably popular at the Coliseum, and a most interesting pair of delineators of the characters of the great novelist appear in Mr. and Mrs. Edward H. Lucas. The pair win their chief triumph in their sketches of Dick Swiveller and the Marchioness, the scene between the two being followed by much interest. Mr. and Mrs. Lucas, who have returned lately from America, should have no difficulty in increasing their already great popularity on this side. A comic turn that affords immense amusement, is furnished by Humpsti-Bumpsti, who have found the way to put a most amusing face on disaster. Early in the bill we have the pleasure of hearing Miss Minnie Mace, a dainty dancer, a most effective singer, and a great favourite. Olga, Helga, and Eli Hudson share the artistic triumph secured by the older lady in "The Angels' Serenade," by Braga; Brian astounds everyone by his feats of strength; there is real comicality in the methods of Conn and Conrad; and Holden's Manikins deservedly score a hit with their almost human acting and gesture play. We have seen nothing better indeed than the wonderful realisation of the Salome dance before a miniature Herod, and there is a most interesting melodramatic coon scene with a manikin pony, possessing a natural activity that is more than remarkable. A delightful crowd on the evening of our visit made a couple of special calls for the manipulators of this highly artistic show, and the youngsters in all parts of the house were evidently highly pleased. Russell and Held, Vanando, ventriloquist, the Jackson Family, a most versatile crowd, and the Bioscope all contribute variety to a most excellent bill.

MR. EDWIN C. JAZON'S pantomime company, with Cinderella, opened at the Blyth Theatre Royal on Monday, in the presence of a packed house. In the title-rôle Miss Dolly Doon, the possessor of a sweet voice, soon became a favourite, her singing and dancing eliciting loud applause. Miss Vera Mayne met with a hearty reception as Prince Charming. The Ugly Sisters were well represented by Messrs. Crosby and Walker; Miss Jennie Clare won much favour as Dandini; the Baron had in Mr. Will Penn a clever exponent; the Carlsons and the Musical Keiths are responsible for the incidental specialities. The production was excellently staged.

SONGS, WRITERS, AND SINGERS.

Many flattering letters continue to pour into headquarters anent the truly wonderful successes achieved by the cream of King Pantomime's favourites, not only with the "plums" of the Feldman basket, but with some of the less highly-appraised numbers. Significent, too, is the fact that many of the Boxing Night song-failures have since been eliminated from many pantomimes, both in London and the provinces, and Feldman "winners" substituted for these "bad starters."

Charming Miss Helene Mohr, who has been so eminently successful in Mr. Fred Little's pantomime, Dick Whittington, at Leith, is taking her audiences by storm with her delightful rendering of Fred Godfrey and Will Letters's great song "Molly O'Morgan," and is nightly the recipient of many encores. In a recent letter she speaks in most glowingly-enthusiastic terms of her success with the tuneful tale of the Irish-Italian "girl with the organ."

Miss Christine Roy, writing from the Royalty Theatre, Chester, where she is performing in Mr. Peter Davey's pantomime this year, records the pleasing fact to Messrs. Feldman and Co. that their publication, "In a waltz, waltz," has been one of her most successful songs there, and next week, in addition to this number, she purposes introducing the ubiquitous "Somewhere" into the pantomime also. "Good wine needs no bush."

Mlle. Pauline Rivers, writing Feldman's from the Theatre Royal, Hanley, says: "Am still using in my scena ('In the merry winter time,' specially introduced into the pantomime) your two numbers, 'Sunbonnet Lady' and 'Come over the garden wall.' The former goes splendidly, while the latter is simply a walk-over. There was a hush, and then the most magnificent burst of enthusiastic applause it was possible to hear. Both these numbers are sung by the Sisters Gertie and Nellie Langley and the tiny tot Little Emmie." Letters like these speak for themselves.

Mr. Douglas Campbell, stage-manager of the Grand Theatre, Hull, pantomime, writes Mr. Bert Feldman: "Your songs are lifting the pantomime, 'Seaside,' 'I must go home to-night,' 'Molly O'Morgan,' and 'Somewhere' storming them." Thus does Hull reiterate the tale of success that all the other cities and towns are daily telling.

Miss Ella Retford, in a characteristic letter to Mr. Bert Feldman, from the Theatre Royal, Sheffield, ends up thusly: "I am pleased to let you know that 'Molly O'Morgan' and 'A girl up North' are both huge successes." Both these big Feldman winners are written and composed by Fred Godfrey, the former in collaboration with Mr. Will Letters, the latter with Mr. Fred D'Albert.

Mr. Gilbert Payne, whose successful pantomime, House that Jack Built, is at the Metropole Theatre, Devonport, in a recent communication to Feldman and Co., says: "I am pleased to say your song 'Somewhere' is one of the hits of the pantomime. My Fairy Queen is singing it in a special scene, with the chorus thrown on screen from lantern. 'Seaside' also going well."

The Sisters Albert inform Messrs. Feldman and Co. that they have made a record hit at the Theatre Royal, Bristol, with Mellor, Lawrance, and Gifford's latest "gem" of melody and poesy, "It's the Alpine dress you're wearing," for the rendering of which they get several encores nightly, and exactly the same thing happens at the Theatre Royal, Birmingham, with exactly the same song, but, of course, a different singer, the principal girl, Miss Angela Hope, who is about to "try out" (as our American friends put it) Rogers and Neat's latest rage, "The pretty little girl from nowhere," published by the same firm.

No fewer than three separate artists, all engaged in Mr. Graham-Falcon's pantomime at the Aquarium, Great Yarmouth, have written Feldman's laudatory letters respecting their songs during the current week, to wit: Miss Lilian Drake, who declares that "Molly O'Morgan" is the hit of the pantomime, Mr. Albert Lawrence, who is scoring prodigiously with "Somewhere," and Mr. Jack Waller, who is featuring "I must go home to-night."

Miss Hettie Lee, the dashing principal boy of the Sinbad company visiting the New Theatre, Harrogate, this week, is simply greeted with thunders of applause at every performance for her renderings both of "Somewhere," by Chas. K. Harris, and "Do you miss me in the dear homeland?", by E. W. Rogers and John Neat. Both of these are Feldman publications, far above the average as meritorious compositions.

A very striking success is Messrs. Little and Darcy's pantomime at Dalston, and anyone liking to hear good songs well sung should not fail to visit that popular house. Miss Marie Reeve in "I must go home to-night," Miss May Otto in "Somewhere," and Miss Dora Harvey in both "Molly O'Morgan" and "I do like to be beside the seaside," all do full justice to themselves (no faint praise) in these four Feldman "winners."

That sterling performer Mr. Marcus Boyle, who is playing Baron in The Babes of the Wood company at the Grand Theatre, Halifax, writes Feldman's most enthusiastically as to the success he has won with his rendering of Billy Williams's great song "I must go home to-night," by William Hargreaves, in pantomime. In the comic line this song may safely be quoted as one of the most universally appreciated in the realm of pantomime this season, and the chorus already permeates the air of every town in which it has been sung. Perhaps it is the infectiousness of the song's own "air" which is to blame—or to be thanked—for this!

Mr. Editor.—Sir,—In your notice in Saturday's edition of The Era of the pantomime at the Kingston Theatre you say the scenery is by Mr. G. Millar, the resident scenic artist. I am the resident scenic artist, and have painted all the full sets, Mr. Millar having executed two front cloths.—Yours faithfully, A. G. Betts, Royal County Theatre, Kingston-on-Thames, Jan. 3.

Percy Mayr produced last week at the Hippodrome, Shrewsbury, a new song specially "fitted" for him by Messrs. Mills and Bennett Scott, entitled "Modes à la Française," which he is anticipating will prove a winner on his forthcoming tour.

H. F. Greenfield, whose comic husband and wife duet, "Do you remember?—How can I forget?" is for the second year in succession one of the big hits of the Crystal Palace pantomime, has, again in conjunction with Edgar Bateman, completed a song entitled "—— And just then he fell out of bed," which details in humorous fashion the dreams on different occasions—whilst asleep on a terrible boarding-house bedstead—of a Frenchman, a chorus lady, a racing man, a Hebrew gentleman, a Scot, and a soppy masher, and what each was doing and saying in his or her vision at the crucial moment when a fall from the bed brought their momentary paradise to an abrupt conclusion. The song has been commissioned from America, but all rights for Great Britain have been retained. The foremost concert artists on this side are on the qui-vive, as it is rumoured that they only will have the opportunity of acquiring permissions to sing the number.

"A SEASIDE HONEYMOON."

A Musical Play, in One Act, the Lyrics and Music by Mr. Bert Danson, Produced at the Hippodrome, Norwich, on Monday, Jan. 3.

Jim McGregor Brown.....Mr. Bert Danson
Maria Brown .....Miss B. Wellings
Fifi .....Miss Majorie English
P.C. Nosy Parker .....Mr. Shirley Lea
Kruger .....Mr. Tom Hearne
The Boy Scout .....Master Tommy Toms
Dick .....Mr. Johnnie Watts
Dolly .....Miss Lilian Fawn
Maud .....Miss Lydia Alexandra
Agnes .....Miss Gertrude Carr
Kitty .....Miss Nelly Somers

(from our own correspondent.)

The piece is full of life and action from beginning to end, and the music bright and catchy. The scene is laid on the shore of a popular watering-place, where McGregor Brown is expected with his newly-wedded third wife. Suddenly an aeroplane is precipitated to the ground, from among the wreck of which Brown emerges. Anxious inquiries are made for the wife, but she is nowhere to be seen, so Brown goes in search of her. Fifi now appears and explains to P.C. Nosy Parker that she had been recently married, and her husband had left her forlorn at the church door. The truant husband, however, returns, and he and his bride decide to have a dip in the sea, and retire to separate tents to don their bathing suits. Thus attired, Fifi sings a tuneful song, "Will any young man come and splash me?" to which a dance is added. After she has retired to her tent Mrs. Maria Brown, accompanied by her thirteen children, appears grief-stricken at the desertion of her husband P.C. Parker recognises Brown as the deserter, and arrests him for bigamy. The two wives both claim the husband, and, to settle the dispute, Brown acknowledges his allegiance to his lawfully wedded wife, and turns Fifi over to his friend Dick, an arrangement which apparently is satisfactory to all parties.

Mr. Bert Danson as Brown was the life of the piece, his witticisms arousing much laughter. Miss B. Wellings as Mrs. Brown deserves praise; Miss Marjorie English made a dainty Fifi, and her song and dance were well received; Mr. Shirley Lea as P.C. Nosy Parker both looked and played his part to advantage; Mr. Tom Hearne's antics as Kruger, the bulldog, were amusing, Johnnie Watts as Dick rendered material assistance, as did Master Tommy Toms, the boy scout; and "the four girls who want splashing" materially added to the effect of the piece. The dresses were very pretty

At the New Royal and Hippodrome, Bilston, the Swift Duo, knockabout cyclists, introduce some clever and amusing feats; Gulliver, with his talking and singing doll, wins hearty applause; the amusing sketch The Registry Office, by the Matt Wilkinson Trio, is also very successful. The chief pictures are The Workman's Revenge and The Escaped Lunatic.

MR. LEON VINT.

Mr. Leon Vint, the well-known proprietor of the Globe Choir organisations and sceneoramas, after a most successful run of fifteen years, is about to retire from the touring business, and take up his residence at Globe Villa, Exmouth, a handsome mansion, standing on its own grounds in one of the prettiest parts of Devonshire.

In conversation with our representative, Mr. Vint said it was not his intention to give up work entirely, but there were several financial interests with which he was connected apart from his Globe

Choir and sceneorama which required his attention, and the one most important just now was his electric picture palaces.

Neath and Kettering were well established, but he had another six to open between now and September. "My palace at Barry Dock," he said, "will be ready first, I hope; then I am building a fine brick and stone structure at Llanelly. I have taken a long lease of the Theatre Royal, Loughborough, which I intend altering and redecorating, and the same with the Town Hall, Rugby. I bought the King's Hall, Exmouth, the other day, and also settled for a new picture palace at Bradford. This will be a big affair, and I intend when ready to name it 'The Welcome.' I hope also to start building a new palace at Neath to take the place of the present one. So, you see, I am not exactly retiring; in fact, I intend adding to my circuit of picture palaces wherever I can see a good opening. Mr. Leon Vint is comparatively a young man, being well on this side of forty.

"KING NOBBLER."

Farcical Sketch, Produced at the Surrey Theatre by Mr. Lew Lake, on Monday, Jan. 3.

Zacchari .....Mr. Harry Roberts
Umbrago .....Mr. Harry Lavers
Jerry .....Mr. Bob Morris
Jack Ambrose .....Mr. George Thurssy
Aby Isaacs .....Mr. Dave Bentley
Nobbler .....Mr. Lew Lake

"The perpetual pals" (vide programme) Nobbler and Jerry turned up amidst new surroundings on Monday night at the old Surrey Theatre. Our always-amusing burglar-convict-Cockney friends have invested in or acquired an aeroplane, and, in the company of Aby Isaacs, sail away to tropical climes and a cannibal island. In descending to mother earth once more the airship breaks from her moorings and escapes into the heavens. Whilst the trio are wondering what to do they are surrounded by savages, and both Mr. Bob Morris as Jerry and Mr. Lew Lake as Nobbler contrive to get an endless amount of fun out of this particular situation. To their great surprise the head man of the tribe welcomes them, and tells Nobbler that there is a prediction in their land that one day a stranger shall descend from the skies and shall rule over them. He, having seen the descent, welcomes Nobbler as King. The three comedians make the entry into the royal palace one long peal of laughter. Chiefs arrive from all parts with presents, and there is a dance by a number of black beauties. There is no regal dignity about King Nobbler, and, as a reward, he takes a dancer on each knee and distributes the others between Aby and Jerry. There is jealousy and treachery on the part of the cannibal astrologer, and a plot is hatched to dethrone King Nobbler. Our heroes get into a very tight corner, and their lives are almost on the point of being sacrificed when a party of bluejackets and marines arrive and the curtain descends on a hand-to-hand encounter between the men-o'-warsmen and the savages, and once more the inseparables are triumphant. King Nobbler is very laughable, very briskly played, and very well mounted, and got the heartiest of receptions. Messrs. Lake and Morris are in fine form just now, and they have a very staunch supporter in Mr. Dave Bentley as Aby Isaacs.

Nirlo's talking birds are creating quite a sensation on the Continent, where they are being booked far ahead by Continental directors, who are delighted with the novelty.

THE TIVOLI.

The New Year bill at the cosy house in the Strand has quite an international complexion, and the attractiveness of it is rightly acclaimed by large audiences. Mildred Deverez from Mexico and Amélie de L'Enclos from Paris, the former a dancer of dramatic gifts, who is seen in "The Vampire Dance," and the latter with a phenomenal upper register, may be quoted as instances of the cosmopolitan nature of the bill. Miss Deverez's appearance is associated with the return of Mr. Tom Terriss to London, and he adds largely to the significance of the lady's fine interpretation of the red-haired syren and her deadly purpose. Amélie de l'Enclos does not attempt vocal gymnastics in the way of runs or trills. She just does a crescendo to the highest notes above the stave of the treble clef, and holds them without difficulty. Her choice of numbers includes Godard's "Berceuse" and "The Last Rose of Summer," and the extraordinary notes vocalised with such ease are of good quality—not thin as are those of many soprani leggieri we have heard.

Miss Marie Lloyd, who had quite recovered from her indisposition on the night of our visit, finds a specially hearty welcome for her original comedy at a house that seems to be specially her own. Her magnetism is remarkable, and the Lloyd methods are employed with the admirable finesse that is the distinguishing mark of this real comedienne. We get great versatility, too, from the "one and only" in such numbers as "The Costers' Ball." "The lady from over the water" and "The next best thing" are other popular items from a répertoire that is invariably being freshened up with lyrics that throw on social domestic problems quite a piquant colouring.

Another prominent favourite in Mr. Joseph Wilson's list of stars is Mr. Tom Dunville, who can burlesque anything from Shakespeare downwards. Just now he is making a real success of his "Policeman" song. He is particularly fortunate in the choice of his répertoire, and though naturally revelling in extravagance and absurdity, there is always point in patter and lyrics, and the vis comica does the rest. Little Tich's return is another welcome event to the Tivolians. Opening with the number, "A risky thing to do," this bundle of fun follows on with a capital skit, "The Dentist," which is a real screamer, and a final success is scored in the now-famous skit of the ballet girl, in which Tich figures as a wreath-crowned fairy in voluminous skirts, and keeps everyone laughing.

Mr. Gus Elen contributes to the general enjoyment of his admirers at this house by his admirable comedy as a pessimist in "You've made a nice old mess of it," which is quite Elenic in character; and a comedian, George Formby, who hails from Lancashire, makes his mark by his quaint style in "My night out." Mr. Charles Whittle is successful in "All go down the Strand"; and Kurkamp, the singing conductor, has a good reception in "I've left my love in Dixey."

A tabloid version of What Happened to Jones raises shouts of laughter as presented by Mr. Lionel Rignold, whose admirable impersonation of Jones is consistently supported by Mr. Fred Dobell in the part of Ebenezer Goodly and by Miss Marie Daltra in the part of Alvina. A Pierrot's Crime, a tragi-comedy in dumb show, is from the pen of Max Maurey, the well-known French playwright, with music by Rudolphe Berger. Pierrot, after having disgusted his indulgent wife with his behaviour in his cups, becomes furious when she leaves him. He stabs with a table-knife the dressed dummy belonging to madame, and from the depths of remorse he rises to heights of happiness when, on his recovery from his tipsy nightmare, he finds himself being tended and soothed by the wife he accuses himself of having murdered. The eloquent gesture play of M. Thalès makes the trifle quite artistic and interesting; and Mlle. Massilia does all that is necessary for the part of the wife.

Miss Madge Temple returns after a short absence to this house, and renews her enviable popularity in the capital selection, "I'm looking for Mr. Wright," an aeroplane song, and in "I used to sigh for the silvery moon," the latter a very charmingly written chorus song, with which the singer is admirably suited. The lyrics are nicely scored, and the fair vocalist makes of the melody a most effective and artistic study in singing. Jack Marks is a smart dancer; Mr. Frank Harwood sings capitally; Miss Ella Shields makes herself popular; and King and Benson and Hanvarr and Lee are also on the bill. There are also pictures projected by Ruffell's Bioscope.

"THE GUN."

Dramatic Episode, in One Scene, by Percival H. T. Sykes, Produced at the South London Palace on Monday, Jan. 3.

Henri Duval .....Mr. Percy Murray
Dr. Louis Blanc .....Mr. Frank Elton
Master Henri Duval .....Master S. Sykes
Mme. Annette Duval .....Miss Jane Read

Pathos is provided in the new sketch which Mr. Percy Murray presented on Monday to a South London audience, by whom it was highly relished. The little piece is a domestic tragedy, carried out with poignant effect by its exponents. Mr. Murray has the part of a French workman, who idolises his little boy Henri. It is the lad's birthday, and among his presents is a gun given him by his equally doting mother. The father thinks he ought to practise the use of firearms so that he can teach his boy to shoot, and with that purpose loads the gun and fires at the door. Just at that moment the boy, who has been trying a flying machine in the garden, enters, and is struck by the bullet. The father, rendered crazy by the occurrence, lays the boy's inanimate form on a couch and refuses to allow anybody to touch him, until he is at length dragged away by a couple of gendarmes, who have been hastily summoned. The boy, however, is not mortally injured, and eventually revives; but the father has entirely lost his reason, and, after an affecting scene, falls dead. Mr. Murray draws a touching picture of the inconsolable parent, and his depiction of the demented father at the close is very impressive. Master S. Sykes makes a pretty boy, and acts intelligently. His voice reaches well over the footlights, but an effort should be made to correct an inclination to place emphasis on the wrong word. Mr. Frank Elton as a Doctor and Miss Jane Read as the young mother, play their parts acceptably.

The other items of Mr. William Payne's programme are well assorted. Mr. Harry First's humour as the Hebrew parent in The Matrimonial Fee is unforced and skilful, and is highly appreciated. He has admirable assistants in Mr. R. Salisbury and Miss Florence Hadley. Another sketch in which homely humour and sound sentiment are contained is supplied by Lee and Bentley; Mr. Ernest Shand keeps the audience continuously amused with his depiction of "The Agitator," and in his song "Send for me," his breezy style being very effective. Ruffell's Bioscope supplies a diverting series of pictures, and the programme is further strengthened by Cecil Curtis, variety artist; Henri Cazman, "the one-man music-hall," in entertainment, "Le Café Chantant"; Katie March, comedienne; The Rawsons (Maggie and Jack); and Jack Hamilton, comedian.

Miss Phyllis Dailey, who was originally engaged by Mr. Bernard Mervyn to play Lady Isabel, has been presenting the heavy leads in his sketches, and is now retained for his "Nick Carter" series, the first of which is due at Bow next Monday.

SONGS, WRITERS, AND SINGERS.

THE National Music Publishing Co., of 132, Charing Cross-road, W.C., can be truly said to possess more than the average share of pantomime successes this season. The hearty reception which continue to be given to "There' a girl in Berlin" has been an inducement to several managers to include it in their productions

"LENA SCHMIDT," another of the company's winners, grows more in favour at every performance, and without hesitation we may add that it will scarcely be possible to escape this melody wherever you may go, so fascinating is the refrain.

THE title of "You all want something to cuddle" is so manifest that "it is readily embraced" by all sections of the pantomime-going public. This swinging melody has vastly improved several productions to which it was only added after a week's performance had already been given. There is no doubt that it is really a winner all along the line.

As was to be anticipated, "You might shake hands" has likewise readily scored. Its tender appeal forms a marked contrast to the more vivacious numbers in the pantomimes, and by this means alone secures its full complement of applause.

"BADEN POWELL'S SCOUT," another of the National Music Publishing Company's, is set to an enspiriting march theme, which at once stirs the patriotism of all hearers in our tight little island, more especially the rising generation, with whom, of course, the subject of the song deals. It has made a big victory everywhere it has been engaged for pantomime.

MR. NEIL KENYON'S successful Scottish song, "Is that a fact?" with which he has made such a conspicuous hit at the Grand Theatre, Glasgow, is now published by the National Publishing Company. Additional verses have been written, which permits the song being successfully rendered either in pantomime, concerts, or any place of entertainment.

ONCE again we may mention that if you are still desirous of further improving your pantomime you should secure some of the above-mentioned, permission for which will be readily granted.

PANTOMIME artists all over the kingdom continue to bombard the Star Music Co. with telegrams announcing the success of one or other of the firm's popular songs. An especially interesting item is the fact that artists finding certain songs not too successful are almost invariably replacing them with Star Company numbers, those most in demand being "I've been out with Charlie Brown," "Ship ahoy!" "I can picture Polly hanging up the holly," and "Sea! Sea! Sea!" This is very significant.

ARTISTS engaged in pantomime are advised to note that the Star Music Co. are preparing an exceptionally strong batch of songs for those who will be returning to the halls, and will welcome correspondence on the subject. Amongst the new songs will be found several by those experts, A. J. Mills and Bennett Scott.

MISS ADAH PAYNE, the famous soprano vocalist, late of Moody-Manners' principal opera company, is this week getting a perfect ovation at the New Palace, Durham, by her masterly interpretation of "To the end of the world with you," and with other songs from her extensive répertoire.

A PARODY.

Mr. Charles Coborn has sent us the following excellent verses, which should be read with special interest by the slackster, who, in spite of the implorings of secretary and other officials of the M.H.A.R.A., is too graceless to assist in the promoting of his own welfare:—

"A FOOL THERE WAS."
(With apologies to Rudyard Kipling.)

A fool there was and he made his prayer—
(Even as you and I)
To the Railway Co.'s to reduce his fare—
We call him the feller who didn't care,
For he never attempted to prepare—
(Even as you and I)

He knew that a list was prepared for him—
(Even as you and I)
Stuck up at the Agency, neat and trim,
For the small and the great and the fat and slim,
For the grumbler, as well as for Sunny Jim
(Even as you and I)

Oh, the time we waste and the money we waste,
And the work of our clerical band!
And all for a feller who doesn't care,
And we jolly well know that he never will care,
Nor try to understand.

A fool there was and he "chinned" at the bar
(Even as you and I)
Till Saturday came, and his joy fled far
When he found that the Rules would his chances mar,
And he lost the concession—and there you are!
(And so did you and I.)

But it isn't "the game," and it is a shame
That one of this favoured band
Won't take the simple trouble to try
And fill in his name as the days go by,
And will not understand.
(Weeps.)

CURTAIN, to slow music.

"A1 DEMONS."

THE SALAMBOS AS SLAVES OF THE LAMP.

Many a small boy and girl these holiday times have gasped and later on chattered incessantly on the wonders he and she have witnessed at the Drury Lane Aladdin pantomime. A tiny youth of the writer's acquaintance was asked the other evening what item in the pantomime he liked best.

"Oh," he replied, without the slightest hesitation, "those fire-eating fellows, of course. They are just A1 demons." The young gentleman meant the Salambos, and he should not have used the word fellow in the plural sense, because one of the "fellows" is a lady. But boys do not as a rule stop to consider a trifle like the letter s and the difference it might make. Their opinions, however, are usually honest ones, and that is why the writer sought Mr. Salambo out for a chat, for the many fine scenes he has in the Lane production call for attention from adults as well as youngsters.

Does he not as the Genii of the Lamp appear to the audience in a circle of flame? And when later Abanazar's assistant tries to get possession of the lamp, does not Salambo disappear in a flash of light from sight? Again, when Aladdin rubs his lamp on his sleeve, does not the faithful Genii again appear in a flame with glowing tongues of light streaming from his mouth, eyes, and fingers, and with one more flash, bigger than any that have gone before, does not Salambo change the old laundry into the banqueting hall of a fairy palace? All of which, remarkable as it may seem to a small boy, is equally wondrous to the grown up, and everybody is left wondering as to how it is done.

The Salambos appeared in the Sleeping Beauty at the Theatre Royal, Edinburgh, in 1897, and the previous year were at Brixton in Cinderella, duplicating that performance in Hull in 1898. Mr. Salambo possesses a wonderful map of the world, on which is marked the date of his visit to each city, town, and village, and return dates. An hour's study of this original document convinced the writer that there is scarcely any village of importance anywhere that the Salambos had not played.

"Yes," says Mr. Salambo, with just a touch of pride, "to-day we are playing in the first theatre in the world, and we—my wife and I—have also given fit-up shows in villages in the remotest and most savage parts of the earth."

Mr. Salambo confesses to being the son of a doctor, and as a boy he was apprenticed to a cabinet-maker. When he had saved a little money he became a fruit buyer in Los Angelos. Then came a hard luck period, and he became an engine driver on the Southern Pacific Railway—an engine driver, mark you, who studied chemistry and electricity between the signals and the stations. There were no accidents worth mentioning.

It is nearly four years since the Salambos were seen at the best entertainment places in Britain. In the meantime they have been on a world tour. They were responsible for the creation and building of "Dreamland," St. Kilda, Melbourne; also of "Wonderland City," Sydney. They have toured Australia, New Zealand, Tasmania, China, Japan, and India with their own company, and during their travels they have met with many novel and unique experiences.

In India their fire-blowing act caused the Parsees to really worship them, for fire is the Parsees' god, and when they saw the Salambos toying with flame and exchanging volumes of fire with each other by merely blowing sheets of flame from the bare lips, they seemed to think they were their gods come to earth. As a consequence, they were followed from town to town, and were bowed and salaamed to whenever they were seen in the streets.

Mr. Salambo has a very fine and valuable collection of views that he has taken during his travels. While in Christchurch, South Island, New Zealand, Mr. Salambo, together with his wife and a party were boating on the Avon, a picturesque little river that runs through the city. They had rowed up the river some three or four miles, and owing to the swift down current were nearly exhausted in attempting to land on the river bank. Mrs. Salambo made a grab for the bank, and, in doing so, her weight pushed the boat away from the shore. The craft capsized, precipitating the lot into the water. Mrs. Salambo, in her frantic endeavour to avoid being thrown into the water, grabbed again at the grass, and her fingers went through the body of a dead cat that lay on the bank. The camera Mr. Salambo had made such good use of was at the bottom of the river. Coats, hats, and other belongings went floating down stream, and the party had to walk back to town along the river bank. After being laughed at by half of Christchurch they arrived at the theatre in time to get on.

In Colombo they were followed about by hordes of beggars—young men, old men, small boys, young women, old women, and little girls—who all claimed relationship in the only few words of English they could speak. Mrs. Salambo put up a joke on her husband there. She got a young woman who had a youngster on her back to come up to Mr. Salambo and demand a kiss. Now, the women here all more or less chew some sort of a root that causes the teeth to turn red, and this particular girl had the reddest teeth of all. She climbed into the Salambos' carriage and insisted on the kiss from Mr. Salambo that his wife had promised her she could have. "The sight and experience was funny—after it was all over," admits Mr. Salambo, "but it was rather awkward for me at the time. But I escaped the onslaught by handing the girl a dollar."

When on board the Orient ss. Oroya, while crossing the great Australian Bight, very bad weather was experienced—so bad, in fact, that a sailor was washed off the hurricane deck on to the main deck, a 60-ton coil of wire rope was taken from one deck to the other by the waves, and the vegetable lockers were broken open and vegetables covered the decks of the whole ship. As they lay in their bunks in their state-room the Salambos admit that they were tumbled about to an alarming degree, and neither of them spoke to the other, thinking in each case that the other might be asleep. As it happened they were both wide-awake. The first indication Mrs. Salambo had was when Mr. Salambo blurted out, undoubtedly talking to himself: "Rocked in the cradle of the deep—be blowed!"

The Salambos have crossed the Andes Mountains from Buenos Ayres to Valparaiso, having done the journey on the backs of little mountain climbing donkeys. The whole company travelled with them. Mr. Salambo, on the first occasion he did this journey, carried a stage frame weighing nearly a ton over mountain passes. When he got to Valparaiso he discovered that he could throw the picture of a frame by means of the bioscope on to a cut cloth and get the same effect. "I thought things," he admits.

Once Mr. Salambo broke his journey at Trinidad. He bought out the Spanish proprietors in the market place, and erected a stage there. Everybody brought their own seats, and the Genii of the Lamp went away with a big basketful of money. He has never played to such generous patrons before or since.

But the Salambos have a fund of anecdote and adventure that only the space of a volume could do justice to. They intend to publish their experiences one of these days, and when they do the world will get some interesting reading.

Mr. Salambo's Christmas card this year took a novel and original shape. It represented the proscenium of Drury Lane Theatre. By an ingenious arrangement at the back the drop curtain automatically raises itself—disclosing the wizard and his charming wife in the Palace scene, in which they work their fiery wonders at our National Theatre.

As the small boy remarked: "They are A1 demons," and nobody should miss seeing the Salambos and the many wonderful things they accomplish.

"SEXTON BLAKE IN AMERICA."

A Detective Dramette, in Four Scenes, by C. D. Carlile, Produced at the Bedford, on Monday, Jan. 3, 1910.

Sexton Blake ..... MR. C. DOUGLAS CARLILE
Tinker ..... MR. LEE GILBERT
Risque Lincoln ..... MR. C. A. CARLILE
Kit Carson ..... MR. JAMES DUNCAN
Yellow Jack ..... MR. J. LANGFORD
Tess ..... MISS CARLOTTA DE YONSON

Miss Carlotta De Yonson is producing another of her Sexton Blake sketches at the Bedford this week, and the latest scored an immediate success. In this sketch Sexton Blake is in America, and we find that the Bank has been robbed by a notorious gang—the Night Hawks. Kit Carson is the Chief of Police of his district, and has failed to capture the thieves. Sexton Blake offers his services, and tracks the gang down to their den at Risque Lincoln's drinking saloon. Here, disguised as a clergyman—and a fighting parson too, as he proves—he discovers who the gang really are, and also of their plan to lure Carson and his men to the hut in the mountains, and blow them up. Blake outwits them, and in the final scene in the hut, we get some exciting moments, and are shown how Sexton Blake, aided by his young assistant, Tinker, captures the whole gang. It is a thrilling episode, and capitally played by Mr. Douglas Carlile, who repeats his finished impersonation of Blake, and plays with his accustomed coolness and ease which is always so telling. Tinker is capitally played by Mr. Lee Gilbert; and Mr. C. A. Carlile is very dramatic as Risque Lincoln. Messrs. Duncan and Langford both gave excellent accounts of themselves as Kit Carson and Yellow Jack; while Miss Carlotta De Yonson contents herself with the small part of Tess, Lincoln's daughter, who is in love with Carson, and lends material aid to Sexton Blake. However, Miss De Yonson by her admirable handling of the character makes it stand out prominently, and she is to be congratulated on the very pronounced success of her latest production.

MR. HARRY LUCK has in study a new song, by Chas. Collins and himself, entitled "The Quaint Old Fellow with the Quaint Old Style"; also another, by Harry Wincott, "Moving the Happy Little Home."

MUSIC HALL HOME SHILLING FUND.

We are again making an appeal on behalf of the Music Hall Home Era Shilling Fund, and with that appeal we have very great pleasure in associating the name of Miss Vesta Tilley, who will for the next few months act as a sort of fairy godmother to the fund. "I think," said Miss Tilley, in conversation with our interviewer the other day, "that the Music Hall Home is a very deserving charity and a very excellent thing. Something of the sort was certainly wanted for the poorer professionals. Every week of my life I give pounds away at the stage-door to numbers of the profession who call upon me for assistance. Now this year I want to create a record in the matter of collections for the fund, and I personally shall work my very hardest for it. In everything I wanted before the profession has always come forward very generously, and I hope that they will help me all they can now. I have a number of private friends who are going to work for me, too. I think, however, that most of the support should come from the professionals themselves."

As was arranged last year, a solid gold medal will be presented by The Era to the collector who obtains the largest amount for the Fund up to March 31, 1910, the lists closing on that date.

THE NEW CINEMATOGRAPH LAW.

TRADE DISCUSSION AT THE HOLBORN RESTAURANT.

REV. T. HORNE'S VIGOROUS SPEECH.

A well-attended meeting of the newly-formed Cinematograph Defence Society was held on Wednesday afternoon last at the Holborn Restaurant. The main object of the meeting was to discuss what action, if any, proprietors, manufacturers, and showmen should take in respect of "the uncalled for action of the London County Council in shutting up Sunday cinematograph shows."

Mr. E. H. Bishop, of Messrs. Tylers, was in the chair, and among those present were F. R. Griffiths (New Bioscope Trading Co.), W. Jury (Jury's Imperial Pictures), W. H. Broughton (representing a company with four halls), the Rev. Thomas Horne (chaplain to the Showmen's Guild), J. Rosenthal (of Rosie Films), Andy Wright (of Films, Ltd.), G. W. Grant (managing-director of Biograph Theatres, Ltd.), J. Williamson, J. J. Newbould, G. H. Smith, J. Rosenthal, J. W. Smith, L. Landmann, G. H. Cricks, Marquis Serra, P. E. Stow, and R. Collier.

The Resolution.

The first resolution, moved by Mr. W. H. Broughton, was as follows:—

"That this mass meeting of the Cinematograph Exhibitors of the United Kingdom, whilst welcoming the new Cinematograph Act for the further safety of the public, protests against certain regulations as drawn up by the Home Secretary as being unworkable, and against the introduction by certain licensing authorities of conditions not intended by the Act or mentioned therein, especially with regard to Sunday opening."

The speaker said few people had an intimate knowledge of the Act. His experience was that plenty of people had not read it at all. For his part he was convinced that the people responsible for the drawing up of the L.C.C.'s new regulations knew practically nothing about the cinematograph business. Mr. Broughton severely criticised the drastic action of the Council which makes it imperative that the operating chamber shall be placed outside the building or the auditorium of permanent shows. He contended that they should not be left to the mercy of local busybodies. It stultified their efforts, and prevented money being spent in new enterprises. They were now placed in a position to be harassed by local authorities. The regulation restricting the electric pressure to 110 volts would entail ninety per cent. of showmen having to lay down motor generators to reduce their current. He thought it would be very inconvenient to have the cables taken as a separate circuit from the source of supply, and he could not see how it affected the safety of the public. How the size of a spool box affected the public safety he also failed to see, and satirised the proposed restriction of the spool to 12in. He could not understand this regulation. On the other hand, where only one film is used the spool box could be 14in. The regulation requiring a special attendant to watch over the sand bucket was equally absurd, especially if it was outside the operating chamber. It was not right for exhibitors to be in the hands of any constable who could walk in and demand to see the licence, but a special official should be appointed. The London County Council had bands in the parks on Sunday and took the money for programmes and seats, and also from forty to fifty music halls that were opened every Sunday. What was good for them should be good for such an innocent recreation for the people as a cinematograph show. The whole industry should say "We abide by the Act, but refuse to be dictated to by any Councils going outside that Act in any shape or form."

A Vital Trade Matter.

Mr. J. J. Newbould, of the London Cinematograph Theatres and the Provincial Cinematograph Theatres, in seconding the resolution, said he entirely agreed that the L.C.C. had gone outside the Act. He strongly supported the formation of a diplomatic committee to approach the Home Secretary and the L.C.C. on the matter, so vital to them all, and especially as regards the section dealing with Sunday closing. He knew a Bishop and many of the clergy regarded the picture show as an instructive entertainment for the people. Coming to theatres took the people off the streets, and from the public houses. For that reason alone coming to theatres should be encouraged. He suggested that everyone interested should subscribe to the funds, and that counsel's opinion be taken as to their position. The Era had done a great deal for cinematograph showmen in the past, and had helped them to maintain an independent position with the authorities. That journal was prepared in the future to maintain the rights of cinematograph proprietors, and to support to the greatest extent in its power whatever action the committee might decide to take.

Mr. Ogden Smith advocated that immediate action should be taken, and proposed the second resolution:

"That a Cinematograph Defence League, composed of cinematograph exhibitors and others interested in the cinematograph industry, be and is hereby formed for the mutual protection of the cinematograph exhibitors against the arbitrary interpretation of the Cinematograph Act."

The Rev. T. Horne was not officially invited to the Holborn Restaurant meeting, but he was present—extremely late, unfortunately—and was not able, owing to pressure of work, to stay to the end. He saw enough of the earnest purpose of the vast gathering to convince him that there was need for him (busy as he is just now) to lend a helping hand.

So great was the stern resolve to get to work at once that resolutions were passed without amendments where wise and careful redrafting would have been better for the utimate success of the movement. For example, Resolution 1 conveys a wrong impression, utterly at variance with the best thought of the meeting. We refer to the part of the resolution we have marked in italics:

"That this mass meeting of the cinematograph exhibitors of the United Kingdom, whilst welcoming the new Cinematograph Act for the further safety of the public, protests against the regulations drawn up by the Home Secretary as being unworkable, and against the introduction by certain licensing authorities of conditions not intended by the Act or mentioned therein, especially with regard to Sunday opening."

Hot blood will run riot at times—and better enthusiasm running over than hesitation and lukewarmness. It is the enthusiasts that give life to every forward movement. Having regard to the tactical mistake of censuring the Home Office, at the outset Mr. Horne did not support the resolution. The real culprits are the licensing authorities, straining their local powers and lending to the regulations their own views.

As a stranger at the meeting, Mr. Horne saw the uselessness of protest under the excitement of the moment. He was, however, in fullest sympathy with the real object of the framers of the motion, and took the will for the deed.

The Rev. T. Horne's Fine Speech.

At the request of the secretary of the meeting, the Rev. T. Horne supported the second resolution in a speech that was punctuated by considerable applause. The rev. gentleman warmly endorsed the resolution. It was high time, he averred, that cinematograph exhibitors of all grades combined for the protection of their interests and for the vindication of their work as the instructors, as the amusement providers of the people. He claimed for himself considerable experience in one great branch of the business—the showmen exhibitors—who travelled the fairs of the country. As well as being the Guild Chaplain he was the official representative in the Parliamentary work of the organised showmen of the Empire. He emphasised the regret that previous speakers had expressed that concerted action was not taken earlier. The Era, in articles from his pen, had, week by week, sent warning messages to the whole body of cinematograph exhibitors and traders. Only the showmen, through their organisation, had taken Parliamentary action to modify the Bill when before the Legislature. He, and those identified with the show business, had received every possible courtesy and consideration from the Home Office. The fullest possible attention had been paid to them, and he assured the meeting that the Home Secretary would deal justly with every genuine grievance brought properly before the Home Office. He asked them to act with such care as not to prejudice their cause with the general public. They must carry public opinion with them at every step of their onward movement.

He gave them one important piece of information—the one valuable contribution he possessed. In intercourse with the Home Office the question of Sunday shows was mentioned. He was then told that the Home Secretary did not intend to make his Bill a Sunday-closing Bill. He begged his hearers to remember that Corporations have large powers of option and discretion under the various Local Government Acts.

It is the manifest intention of local government legislation that this should be so. Their chief work must be to convince the local authorities that the cinematograph exhibition was the most powerful and the most successful counter-attraction to the gin palace and to the public-house.

Their League would have to go slow and carry public opinion with them. Above all, they must not, in their eagerness to get redress, forget that public opinion was based on religion. Their Sunday exhibition must be worthy of the occasion. They must instruct as well as interest and amuse. He warned them against allying their League with those who were waging war against proper Sunday observance, the forces alien to the sober christian thought and the progressive elements in the empire.

As a clergyman of the National Church, he ventured to warn them against the dangers he had specifically referred to. Above all, he urged the League to be ever forwarding all good efforts, to instruct as well as to interest the people, to be whose servants in these high endeavours should be their earnest purpose.

The Guild Chaplain was obliged to leave before the meeting terminated. His speech was highly appreciated, and at the request of the promoters of the movement, he consented to join the Executive Committee. Mr. Horne has further written on the subject as follows: "Arising out of the action of the London County Council and some provincial corporations in administrating the new Act, great alarm at last fills the minds of cinematograph exhibitors. Acting with definite information, specially ours, we tried to arouse the cinematograph industry to a sense of the impending danger. When the act was under discussion in both houses of Parliament, warnings were sent from The Era to all the interests threatened by the Act, in ample time for strong action to be taken. We were assured that the Theatre and Music-Halls Committee of the L.C.C. were in perfect accord with the trade interests, and that all was well as regarded permanent shows. We are amazed to find that the assurances have not been borne out by the later facts of the case. The executive officials of the Guild were in constant touch with Mr. Gladstone through the Home Office officials, and the Act as regards movable structures, tents, and booths, is full proof of the hard work done by the Guild. In Section C of Clause 7 the important words: 'subject to such regulations,' were not in the Bill as amended by the Commons. The determined action of the Guild procured the acceptance of these extremely important qualifying words. The Guild officials also obtained the promise, faithfully kept, that a forward copy of the draft regulations should be submitted them for consideration and observation before they were issued. When the Guild Chaplain received the draft copy he at once brought the President of the Guild (Mr. P. Collins) and the Acting Vice-President (Mr. George Green) to town. These experts attended with Mr. Horne at the Home Office. The Home Office officials quite readily and frankly heard the showmen's objections to certain of the regulations that appeared to bear hardly on their business. The results, as seen in the regulations, although not all that they sought, show a real desire on the part of the Home Secretary to understand and to make all reasonable allowances for travelling shows.

The Advantage of Being Ready.

"The showmen were ready. Their organisation was already in touch with the Home Office on various other matters, and independent of that the showmen have friends in both Houses of Parliament, ready to act for them."

It was ultimately decided to take counsel's opinion as to whether the L.C.C. and other bodies were legally entitled to restrict the Sunday opening of shows under the Act. The members of the Society are to be informed as to what course counsel advises. In the event of the licensing authority bringing actions against their members, the Society will defend them in such actions. The subscription is £5, of which £2 is payable at once and the £3 remaining will continue in abeyance, to be called up if needed. We are informed that a decision was arrived at to open all shows next Sunday. By this means a test case will be obtained, and the trade will then know once and for all its real position.

The following gentlemen will constitute the committee: Rev. Thos. Horne, Messrs. Ralph Pringle, Onda, Sydney Bacon, T. Whiteley, Horace Sedger, E. Laurilard, Ruffel, Matt. Raymond, F. R. Griffiths, M. A. Pyke, Walter Jeffs, A. Andrews, Leivers, Park, A. Wright, Jamieson, S. Carter, Shanley, W. H. Broughton, G. W. Grant, F. Weisker, T. R. Grant, W. M. Borrodaile, Deacon, F. Stebbings, W. Jury, Geo. Edwards, J. D. Walker, H. T. Brickwell, Ogden Smith, R. T. Jupp, Erskine, Somerall, Hayforth Smith, T. P. Alton, C. W. Lovesy, J. Rosenthal, J. J. Newbould, H. Erman, Henderson, P. M. Beck, B. Everitt, J. Robart, F. Prentice, A. Burgoyne, Savage, and Halliman.

WHAT THE CINEMATOGRAPH SHOWMAN MUST DO.

He must understand that his show is under a special Act of Parliament, now part and parcel of the law of the United Kingdom—England, Ireland, Scotland, and Wales; that wherever his show was built up on Jan. 1, 1910, that was, for the purposes of the law, his county and place of abode. If he understood the Cinematograph Act clearly, he has already made an application to the licensing authority for a licence.

Who is the Licensing Authority?

The Cinematograph Act, in Clause 2, fixes the County Council as the licensing authority. The showman seeking a licence must apply, in the first instance, to the Clerk to the Council of the county wherein his show is built and ready for inspection.

What the Showman must do to Obtain His Licence.

He must try and get a clear grip of all that the Cinematograph Act requires him to do. This may best be done by studying the Act itself, and with it the all-important regulations that the Act enforces. Get

1. The Act,
2. The Regulations,
3. The Explanation

from The Era offices, post free, for 4d. For the good of all cinematograph show proprietors using movable structures The Era publisher will send copies of the three pamphlets on receipt of 4d. to any address.

The Operator's Box.

The first and great essential is to satisfy the licensing authority that the operator's box fulfils the conditions set out in the regulations. It is evident that the law demands, in the interest of public safety, the most constant care and the most perfect appliances, with regard to the box or the enclosure. Every cinematograph proprietor and every operator must thoroughly grasp the conditions under which the law now permits him to work. Ignorance will be no excuse. It is the showmen's business, like every other citizen, to know the law and to keep it. Ignorance will mean the loss of the licence, and will close the show. So get the Act, the regulations, and this guide to both. Read, mark, learn, and understand them.

How the Regulations Carry Out the Act.

With regard to the licence of a travelling show the Act says in Clause 2:—"(1) A county council may grant licences to such persons as they think fit to use the premises specified in the licence for the purposes aforesaid on such terms and conditions and under such restrictions as, subject to regulations of the Secretary of State, the council may by the respective licences determine. (2) A licence shall be in force for one year. (4) An applicant for a licence shall give not less than seven days' notice in writing to the county council and to the chief officer of police of the police area in which the premises are situated of his intention to apply for a licence."

Section 5 of the same clause fixes the licence at not more than £1 a year. Regulation 3 says that "Every licence granted under the Act shall contain specific conditions for the carrying out of regulations 1 and 2 in the building for which the licence is granted. Provided that, where the licensing authority is of opinion that it is impracticable, or, in the circumstances, unnecessary to safety, that the enclosure should be of a permanent nature or should be erected outside the building or auditorium, the licence may by express words dispense with these requirements. In any such case the enclosure shall be effectually ventilated direct to the outside air; and the floor, if of wood, shall be completely covered with fire-resisting material. Subject to the provisions of No. 14 of these regulations, every licence granted under the Act shall contain a clause providing for its lapse, or, alternatively, for its revocation by the licensing authority, if any alteration is made in the building or the enclosure without the sanction of the said authority."

Conditions as Regards Show Booths.

Except so far as the regulations exempt movable structures, from conditions only reasonably applicable to permanent buildings, the word "building" in the Act means "any booth, tent, or similar structure." The exemptions in the Act itself are extremely valuable. In Clause 7 of the Act and Section 3, it is provided, in the interest of travelling shows:—

"(3) Where it is proposed to give any such exhibition as aforesaid in any building or structure of a movable character, it shall not be necessary to obtain a licence under this Act from the council of the county in which the exhibition is to be given if the owner of the building or structure—

(a) has been granted a licence in respect of that building or structure by the council of the county in which he ordinarily resides, or by any authority to whom that council may have delegated the powers conferred on them by this Act; and

(b) has given to the council of the county and to the chief officer of police of the police area in which it is proposed to give the exhibition, not less than two days before the exhibition, notice in writing of his intention to give the exhibition; and

(c) complies with the regulations made by the Secretary of State under this Act, and, subject to such regulations, with any conditions imposed by the county council, and notified in writing to the owner."

It will be seen that having once obtained his licence the showman has no further expense; the one licence carries him for twelve months the country through.

The All-Important "Regulation 14."

In the regulations issued by the Home Secretary to carry out the Act, the all-important one for showmen is No. 14. It recognises the practical differences between permanent and movable structures, and it provides for the special circumstances of the show business as distinct and separate from cinematograph shows in halls, shops, or other permanent premises.

Clause 7 in the Act is the charter of the showmen's freedom. "Regulation 14" is the first attempt of the Home Office to practically safeguard that charter of freedom. It is for showmen to give the regulations (now and until revoked the law of the land as much as though it was in the Act itself) the most ready obedience.

Regulation 14 says:—"In every case where a licence has been granted under the Act in respect of a building or structure of a movable character, a plan and description of the building or structure, certified with the approval of the licensing authority, shall be attached to the licence. Such a licence may provide that any of the conditions or restrictions contained therein may be modified either by the licensing authority or by the licensing authority of the district where an exhibition is about to be given. The licence and plan and description shall be produced on demand to any police constable or to any person authorised by the licensing authority or by the authority in whose district the building or structure is being or is about to be used for the purpose of any such exhibition."

The Sum and Substance of the Whole Matter.

The showman must realise that two things are absolutely necessary to obtain and to hold his licence: (1) The box must be certified all right by the licensing authority; (2) the booth must be all right. A word or two about the booth. There is no difficulty at the Home Office about show booths. At the Home Office conference, before the regulations were finally fixed, the executive officials of the Showmen's Guild (Messrs. Collins, Green, and Horne) convinced the experts concerned in the drafting of the regulations that shows provided more than the strictest requirements of local authorities with regard to exits, and the immediate access to them. Shows have no staircases, no passages; from the auditorium to the exits is but a step, and that an immediate outlet into the open air is provided by the numerous exits of cinematograph show booths. The comparison made by the Guild of the Building Bye-laws of great towns like London and Glasgow, and submitted to the Home Office, proved that shows provided 30 per cent. more exits space than permanent buildings. That is why the regulations only demand adequate exits and ready access to them. The comment of the Home Office on the Guild's case for show booths was to the point: "You offer us more than we ask."

For a 50ft. to 60ft. back booth two exits on either side are more than adequate, with, of course, the exits over the front. As most booths have three on each side (some have more), and two over the front, the show booth is in a superior position as regards exits to permanent places of amusement. The regulations governing the inside or the auditorium of the show booth are No. 1 and part of No. 2. Gangways, staircases, and passages do not exist in travelling shows. Travelling shows are built level with the ground, and open directly into the open air on all sides of the booth. Regulations 1 and 2 are:—

"1. No building shall be used for cinematograph or other similar exhibitions to which the Act applies, unless it be provided with an adequate number of clearly indicated exits placed in such positions and so maintained as to afford safe and speedy egress for the audience.

"2. The seating in the building in which the exhibition is given shall be so arranged as not to interfere with free access to the exits."

What to do when Moving from Fair to Fair.

Having obtained your licence for the year you are free to travel the country, provided you observe the conditions set out in Clause 7, Section B. Under it you must give two days' notice to the county council and to the chief officer of police of the district in which you are building up two days, or more, before you reach the town, telling both the police and the county authority that you will give an exhibition under the licence of the Act, and in conformity with the regulations.

A letter addressed to the Clerk of the County Council, and where the town is itself a county borough you address your letter to the Town Clerk. Where the police are a borough force, you must send your No. 2 letter to the Chief Constable of the town. You must fix the time convenient to you, and give in your letter the date and time of your first performance, to both the county authority through the Clerk, and the police through its chief officer. That is all the law requires of you. Although you are only required to give two clear days' notice of your first performance, we advise for the smooth working of the Act that you send in several days' earlier than the legal notice. There may be local conditions about which the authorities administering must give you written notice. It will be to your advantage to know fully about these, in order to take action if needed to safeguard your interests.

Local Conditions—If Any?

We do not anticipate that these will be found in any serious or injurious sense. If experience proves that they are, we have the remedy for redress provided in the Act. We can petition the Home Secretary to issue new regulations. Time will show the necessity for this; but, none the less, the remedy is there. The Guild fought hard for it and won it, and the Guild will use it when the need arises.

Suggestions for Letters Under the Act.

(Name.)

Minor Points, yet Important.

Draw a sketch ground plan of your booth showing the exits, and that they open outwards, giving the width of each exit. This plan of your show must be produced, duly signed by your licensing authority, at the request of the proper authorities where your show may be located.

Always send in your notification of intention to show in the next town a week or more in advance. It will smooth matters immensely with the local authorities whenever you do this. It is more businesslike and shows on your part desire to meet the local authorities readily and allows time for correspondence. Besides all that, it is good business to be able to say, "I gave you ample notice." It gives you a claim for consideration with regard to possible interference at the last moment.

It is as much for the good of the showman as for the local authorities and the general public that the Act, under the first issue of the regulation should have a full and fair trial.

An Extremely Important Point.

Showmen must no longer nurse their grievances or suffer tyranny under the law, or rather the tyrannical straining of power by local authorities. In every case where attempts are made to impose conditions and regulations in excess of the regulations under the Act, write at once to the Guild Secretary, 5, Tavistock-street, Strand, London, W.C. Take pains and trouble to state fully and clearly your grievance, and the Guild officials will deal with the matter. If the regulations press hardly on showmen, our remedy is plain. It is to present such a case for more just treatment as shall be irresistible. We can always obtain justice, if your case is just, at the Home Office. So do not submit to local tyranny, where such is attempted, without using your Guild as a means of protection and remedy.

STAGE STAFF GOSSIP.

A meeting of those interested in the cinematograph industry, held on Wednesday in the Holborn Restaurant, came to a decision which may affect everyone employed in theatres and music halls throughout the country. For this meeting a general invitation had been issued, but it appears that the operators and smaller exhibitors were not given much attention or a fair hearing, and that the questions raised were only those affecting the financial interests of the proprietors and manufacturers.

The main question was the decision of the London County Council not to permit cinematograph entertainments to be given on Sundays except under the conditions that are imposed upon licensees of theatres and music halls The organisations representing the artists, actors, musicians, and stage employees have taken prompt action to place their views on this very important question of Sunday labour before the Home Secretary, the London County Council, and the Press. The following is a copy of the letter in which these views are stated:—

Jan. 6, 1910.

To the Right Hon. H. J. Gladstone,
Home Secretary, Whitehall.

Sir,—We are instructed by the societies we respectively represent to draw your attention to the fact that on Sunday last cinematograph entertainments were given, and that a number of proprietors have resolved to continue giving such entertainments on Sundays within the metropolitan area, contrary to the regulations of the London County Council, which, we understand, have been approved and sanctioned by you.

At a meeting held yesterday in the Holborn Restaurant, of representatives of manufacturers, factors, hirers, and showmen connected with the cinematograph industry, steps were taken to establish an organisation, and to provide funds to defend those proprietors who may be proceeded against for giving entertainments on Sundays. This meeting was furnished with counsel's opinion, in which it was clearly stated that "It is the clear duty of all proprietors of cinematograph entertainments to combine in resistance against the announced purpose of the London County Council to close these entertainments on Sundays.

"I hold a strong opinion that as the Cinematograph Act, which comes into operation next Saturday, finds them open on Sundays and does not declare that they shall be closed, any regulation of the London County Council to that effect is ultra vires."

The regulations of the London County Council to which we attach vital importance, and to which the proprietors of cinematograph entertainments are opposed, prohibit any place of amusement, licensed by the Council, being opened on Sundays "by way of trade or for personal gain."

If the proprietors of cinematograph entertainments are allowed to give entertainments on Sundays by way of trade and for personal gain, as they desire and claim the right to do, an invidious preference would be given to them which would make them still more serious rivals to theatres and music halls, and we are certain managers of theatres and music halls would, in self-defence, immediately make an effort to secure the same right. If this came to pass we should have Sunday amusements all round, with seven days' compulsory service for all engaged in places of amusements.

We ask you, Sir, to secure equality among the competitors in the amusement world by safeguarding the interests of those employed therein, by taking such steps as may be necessary to enforce the regulations made under the Act, and we suggest that the Metropolitan Police should be authorised to ascertain from those organising Sunday entertainments, if the permission of the London County Council has been obtained.—We are, yours sincerely,

(Signed by)
W. H. Clemart,
General Secretary, the Variety Artists' Federation, 18, Charing Cross-road, W.C.
Duncan Young,
Secretary, the Actors' Association, 32, Regent-street, W.
Joseph B. Williams,
General Secretary, the Amalgamated Musicians' Union, 9, Great Newport-street, W.C.
William Johnson,
General Secretary, the National Association of Theatrical Employees (including cinematograph operators), 29, Wellington-street, Strand, W.C.

Theatrical employees are reminded that the general meeting of the Dramatic and Variety Theatre Employees' Provident Association will take place to-morrow, Sunday evening, in the St. James's Theatre. The proceedings will commence at eight o'clock prompt. Doors open at 7.30. Any non-member who is interested is cordially invited to attend the meeting. The following alterations to the rules will be submitted and recommended for adoption by the Management Committee:

Rule 6, clause A: after the words "who is" on the last line but one, to read ". . . a financial member or becomes a financial member of the N.A.T.E."

Rule 8: add at end of clause B the words, "A member shall clear his card of all dues on or before the last Saturday on the card, or be fined 6d."

Rule 12, clause A: on second line, after the word "received" add the words "by the secretary."

Rule 16, clause 3: add after the words "sick visitor" the words "within three days of being notified."

Rule 21: add "Any member failing to attend a general meeting or to send an acceptable excuse to the secretary before the meeting shall be fined 6d. Every member shall pay 2d. for each new card, and to replace a card lost by a member the member shall pay 3d."

At a meeting of the committee held on Tuesday evening Mr. Arthur Palmer presided, in the absence of the President. Eleven applications for membership were granted, and the arrangements for Sunday's meeting completed. It is hoped that Mr. Cecil Paget, of the Hippodrome, Peckham, a trustee, will be able to preside at the meeting.

Arrangements are being made to hold the annual general meeting of the London No. 1 Branch of the N.A.T.E. on Sunday, Jan. 30, and it is requested that members of this branch will send in nominations for office and committee and resolutions for consideration at the meeting to the secretary not later than Jan. 14. Notice of the business for the meeting will be issued to members in due course. At the meeting of the Committee on Wednesday, ten applications for membership were granted. It was decided to endorse the joint actions of the various societies opposing Sunday labour in places licensed for amusement by the L.C.C. The annual dinner will probably take place on Sunday, Feb. 13, and it is expected a much larger number will be present on this occasion. Tickets 2s. 6d. each, will be obtainable from the secretary and stewards.

The Vaudeville Theatre staff are invited to a dinner to be given to-morrow evening in the Salisbury Hotel, St. Martin's-lane, by Mr. F. Anstey, the author of The Brass Bottle. This will be the second occasion on which Mr. Anstey has been the host of the staff, who were also the fortunate recipients of most seasonable presents at Christmas from Mr. Gaston Mayer and the management of this house.

RINKING GOSSIP AND NOTICES.

Earl's Court Carnival, Jan. 14.

THE Empress Rink people at Earl's Court are holding their first fancy dress carnival on Friday, Jan. 14. There are to be fourteen prizes divided between competitors, arranged in first, second, and third classes. A committee of five, from contemporary rinks, will act as judges, and numbers will not be allotted to intending competitors until the night of the carnival. Walter Stanton, the famous skater, has been specially engaged to give an exhibition of fancy skating. There are to be rainbow and moonlight dances, and the huge rink and corridors will be arranged in a Chinese scheme of carnival decoration. The prizes have been on view in the spacious corridors of the rink for some time now, and Mr. Izod, the manager, who is putting out every exertion to make the function a "startler," tells us that he has a very pleasant surprise in store for those attending the carnival, among whom will be a number of well-known actors and actresses.

Election News at Earl's Court.

THERE seems to be no end to the enterprise of the Willard and Bostock management of the Earl's Court rink. We are informed by these gentlemen that they have made arrangements for announcing every election result on the rink as the news arrives. Special printing machinery will be installed at Earl's Court on Monday next, and as the results are telephoned the figures will be immediately printed and issued to rink patrons desiring the latest political information. By this means it is hoped that the latest news will be obtainable at Earl's Court even in quicker time than if political enthusiasts had waited for it at their clubs or in town.

At the Aldwych.

ONE of the first roller rinks in London was the Aldwych Skating Rink, standing now where the old temporary building of the Morning Post stood. It is a pretty cottage-like building from the outside, but once inside you are in a domed hall where enjoyment holds sway. Here all day long you hear the song of the roller-skates; the persistent loud roar of thousands of little wheels frolicking over the smooth maple flooring, making a noise that comes to the ears like the purring of a thousand cats. The place is always crowded, and the Aldwych is the only skating rink in the heart of London, and all roads lead to it. In connection with the Aldwych Rink there is also run a Sunday skating club, which has become very popular with the patrons.

Haystack at Olympia.

ON Jan. 14 Olympia will witness a "Barnyard Festival," in which the skaters are to represent rustic characters. There will be men in smock frocks, ploughboys, and dairymaids, and there will also be all sorts of animals announcing themselves not only by their appearance, but by their cry. The hall will we transformed, at one end being a huge haystack, with real pigs, a real cow, real fowls, and a real dovecot.

Crystal Palace Skating Carnival.

THERE will be a fancy dress skating carnival at the Crystal Palace on Wednesday next, Jan. 12, at 7.30. Judging from the number and variety of entries, it bids fair to be the best carnival that has ever been held on this mammoth rink. The rink manager, Mr. F. G. Stumcke, has this year made several new departures in the way of variety of classes, and on this occasion prizes will be awarded for the most effective, most handsome, the best burlesque, the most original, and the best advertisement costumes. There will be a special prize given for the ladies' most handsome evening dress. The juvenile classes will be for girls under eleven years and boys under fourteen years. Intending competitors should send in their names and class as soon as possible. During the evening competitors and audience alike will be entertained by Mr. Syd Martin.

A.R.H.A.

THE rinks registered with the Amateur Rink Hockey Association are the Crystal Palace, Balham, Brixton, Porchester Hall, Cricklewood, County Rink (Kingston-on-Thames), Oxford Rink, Castle Rink (Bedford), Castle Rink (Northampton), and the Walpole Hall Rink (Ealing).

Geo. Callis at Holland Park.

IT will interest Welsh people to know that George Callis, formerly manager to the American Roller Rink Company at Cardiff, is manager of the new Holland Park Rink.

Reynolds and Donegan Snowed Up.

REYNOLDS AND DONEGAN were snowed up on Sunday afternoon, Dec. 21, and all Sunday night, in a 10ft. snowdrift, 15 miles from Sioux City, and there was no dining-car on the train. Earle Reynolds was equal to the occasion, and bought out all the fruit and candy the newsboy had, "so we got along fine." He adds: "We are on our Pacific Coast trip now, leaving to-night for St. Paul and Minneapolis, where we play three weeks. Then a three days' journey to Spokane, Wash., which forces us to lose a week in travel."

Rinking Going Big at A.P.

So great is the demand made upon the accommodation for skaters provided by the Alexandra Palace Skating Rink that the Trustees have decided to enlarge it at once, and the work is already in hand. By the removal of the rather extensive orchestra at one end and carrying the skating surface futher under the gallery at the other, the floor of the rink will be practically doubled in size. In addition the old-time monkey house is to be adapted to the needs of learners. When these alterations are completed the Alexandra Palace Rink will be one of the finest in London.

Rinker's Chin.

"RINKING CHIN" is the very latest facial eccentricity of fashion! According to the Daily Mirror it has ousted even the "motor frown" and the "aeroplane peck." The "rinking chin" is spreading through every class, and it is so characteristic of the rinker that you can pick out from a dozen persons walking along the street those who are rinking adepts—by the way they hold their chins. There is a touch of vanity about it, but a great deal more of weariness. It is the habit of balancing and of looking a good distance ahead, while moving swiftly, that gives the peculiar method of holding the chin—slightly elevated and projected—which is associated with this sport. Except that it makes conceited people appear supercilious, and does not go at all well with a tip-tilted nose, the "rinking chin" is not to be deplored.

Monohan Talks.

THE great Monohan writes to us from the Olympia Rink, Darlington, where he has been accorded a hearty reception this week. Next week he will pay a return visit to the Spring Bank Rink, Nelson. Monohan says: "I frequently hear rink-managers say they are getting the crowds without attractions. This may be true for the moment, but wait till the crowds begin to drop off. Ordinary skaters get tired of the same old thing, skating round and round. Then is the time that managers begin to think of some way to bring them all back as before. My advice is, open your rinks with a boom, and keep them going in that way. Managers should teach their patrons something of the art there is in roller skating, and show them how many steps and movements can be accomplished. When they are learning fast, encourage them and keep them interested. That is why, from time to time, good professionals should be engaged to give exhibitions."

"Bab" Skates.

THE British Roller Skate and Engineering Co., Ltd., have secured an order for 1,000 pairs of "Bab" skates for the new Finsbury Park rink, and the rink at the World's Fair, Agricultural Hall, is also fitted up with "Bab" skates.

The Era's Xmas Crackers.

The Era correspondent, Mr. C. E. Evason, was successful for taking first prize for the funniest costume and make-up at the Stourbridge Rink New Year's Eve carnival. He went as a huge Christmas cracker or bon-bon.

London Rink Hockey League.

AT the Crystal Palace rink on Wednesday night a match in the Second Division of the London Rink Hockey League between Orion Athletic and Glendale was won by the former club by four goals to none. Green and Dudham each scored two goals for the winning side.

AT Cricklewood last Thursday evening, in the second division of the London League, Melbourne Athletic beat Kent House by 1 goal to 0. The losers played a man short during the greater part of the first half, but managed to resist a very strong attack. In the second half Melbourne Athletic continued to have the better of the game, and F. Wilkinson scored the only goal.

Racing at the Lava Rink.

BEFORE an excellent attendance some good racing took place at the Lava Rink, Camberwell, last Thursday night. Officials: Judge, Mr. H. H. Ewin; timekeeper, Mr. H. Brockman; starter, Mr. C. B. Saunders; M.C., Mr. Chas. Knight. One Mile Members' Handicap (novices).—H. E. Hoyles, scr., 1; J. O. Titcher, 10 yds., 2; E. E. Anthrobus, 30, 3. Won by thirty yards. Time, 4min. 19 2-5sec. One Mile Members' Race.—S. F. Casey, 1; E. J. Liddle, 2; F. E. Barker †, E. M. Swain †. Won by a yard; inches. Time. 3min. 57 2-5sec. In an attempt to beat the Lava Rink one mile record, A. W. K. Cocker covered the twenty-two laps to complete the distance in 3min. 52 3-5sec., being outside the record of 3min. 47 2-5sec.

Amateurs to Race at Catford.

AT the Central Hall Skating Rink, Catford, on Jan. 20, under N.S.A. laws, a one mile handicap, open to all amateurs, will be held. The handicapper will be Mr. G. H. Brockman, N.S.A. Competitors may train on the track on Monday and Wednesday, Jan. 17 and 19, from 5.30 to 7 p.m. Entries close on Jan. 17.

Masked Carnival at Clapham Junction.

THE masked carnival at the Vardens-road Rink on New Year's Eve proved a big success. The costumes were numerous and picturesque. Mr. L. J. Mantle as a tramp kept the audience amused with his eccentricities. An advertising costume worthy of note was that of a sailor, with "Ironclad Mantles" suspended from his cap and pictures of battleships on his costume. During the evening sports, in the way of musical chairs, egg and spoon, potato races, &c., were indulged in, for which prizes were given. Prof. Carroll gave a clever exhibition of trick and fancy skating, and concluded with two jumps. A football match between two scratch sides resulted in a win by the floor-manager's side by two goals to nil. About 12.30 a confetti battle took place, and for half an hour the air was full of confetti.

A Wonderful Party at Clapton.

A CHILDREN'S Christmas party was held yesterday afternoon at the Premier Rink, Lower Clapton-road, N.E. Prizes of £2 2s. and £1 1s. and several silver prizes were given to the girls, and similar rewards to the boys. There was a monster Christmas tree (the largest ever seen). A real Father Christmas presented each child with a toy, and a wonderful tea took place at four o'clock. Father Christmas, assisted by Fairies, Goblins, Brer Rabbits, Puss-in-Boots, Aladdin, Beauty and the Beast, Robinson Crusoe, Teddy Bear, Elves, Punch and Judy, and other distinguished guests, proved himself the most popular president ever seen at the biggest and best children's tea party ever given.

Croydon's First Costume Carnival.

THERE was a very large attendance for the first costume carnival at the Croydon Rink, given on New Year's Eve.

Amateur Handicap at Ilford.

ON Wednesday night the Ilford Rink Speed Club held under N.S.A. laws their first open mile race. The event drew a large crowd, and excellent sport was witnessed. A handsome silver cup was put up by the management, and this was won by C. Weidhoff, of the Ilford S.C. The Ilford Club are fortunate in possessing a skater of Weidhoff's promise. A case of hard luck was that of H. H. May, another Ilford man, whose time as second in the fourth heat was just one-fifth of a second behind that of Webb, the fastest second. Officials:—Timekeeper and handicapper, Mr. H. G. Brockman; starter and judge, Mr. Fred Leighton; judges, Messrs. Morgan and Schramm; corner judges, Messrs. Jarvis, Lock, Beresford, and Mason; lap-scorers, Messrs. Dixon and Phillips. Track, thirteen laps ninety yards to the mile. Heat 1: A. V. Freeman, Aldwych S.C., 75yds., 1; D. M. Swain, Lava S.C., scratch, 2. Time, 3min. 39 2-5sec. Heat 2: C. Weidhoff, Ilford S.C., 75yds., 1; F. G. Carlisle, Lava S.C., scratch, 2. Time, 3min. 40 2-5sec. Heat 3: S. F. Casey, Lava S.C., 20yds., 1; R. H. Webb, Ilford S.C., 95yds., 2. Time, 3min. 39 3-5sec. Webb's time (fastest second), 3min. 40 3-5sec. Heat 4: E. W. Bussey, Lava and Brixton S.C.'s, 35yds., 1; H. H. May, Ilford S.C., 70yds., 2. Time, 3min. 40sec. Final: C. Weidhoff 1, A. V. Freeman 2, R. H. Webb 3, S. F. Casey 0, E. W. Bussey 0. Time 3min. 37 2-5sec.

Central Hall, Wandsworth, Carnival.

ON Thursday last a grand fancy dress carnival was held at the Central Hall Skating Rink, Wandsworth. It was a magnificent success, fully 300 people appearing in costume, and about the same number of spectators. The floor was one blaze of colour, and so little to choose between the costumes that it took over an hour to judge them. Twenty-eight prizes were competed for, including a gold watch for the most handsome lady's costume, which was won by a lady dressed in the Early Victorian period, and a dressing-case for the most handsome gentleman's costume, which went to a gentleman arrayed as Sir Walter Raleigh. After the prizes had been presented Mr. L. Morley (the manager) made a speech thanking the ladies and gentlemen who so kindly judged the costumes, and the skaters for turning up in such numbers. The skaters responded with three cheers for Mr. and Mrs. Morley. The whole affair was one continual success from the start to the finish, and Mr. Morley and his assistants are to be congratulated on the result which was obtained.

Officers Only.

THE Aldershot maple floor rink, situated in Halimote-road, close to the station, is largely attended at all sessions. On Tuesdays and Thursdays, from 2.30 till 5, it is reserved exclusively for officers and their families. A great fancy-dress and masked carnival takes place on Tuesday next, Jan. 11

Novel Exit of 1909

THE Cliftonville Skating Rink, Belfast, presented a very attractive appearance on New Year's Eve, when a fancy dress ball was held and a dramatic surprise illustrating the departure of 1909 and the coming of the New Year. There was a fashionabe attendance, the entire arrangements being carried out by Manager Lieut.-Colonel F. W. Roberts, V.D. A few minutes before midnight an old man, representing 1909, crossed the floor, vanishing in a volume of flame. The figure of a child seated in a sleigh with bells next appeared, representing 1910, and was accorded a hearty welcome. Lieut.-Colonel Roberts worked untiringly for the success of the function, and was deservedly congratulated by many of the skaters present.

New Year's Eve in "Brum."

A GAY company skated in the New Year at the American Rink, Monument-road, Birmingham. A fancy dress carnival was held in aid of the Crimean and Mutiny Veterans' Association, a handsome sum being realised. The participants displayed much originality in their attire, and it is safe to say that such a brilliant scene has never before been witnessed on a rink in the city. The prize-winners were as follows:—Ladies: Prettiest costume, Mrs. Dawes, "The Poster Girl"; most original costume, Miss L. Doherty, "Tariff Reform"; most grotesque costume, Miss Cowley, "Washerwoman"; consolation prize, Miss Davies, "Mrs. Siddons." Gentlemen: Prettiest costume, Mr. C. Baker, "Chinaman"; most original costume, Mr. Hardman, "K.C.B."; most grotesque costume, Mr. Challingsworth, "Scotch Territorial"; consolation prize, Mr. Richards, "Alfred the Great." Children: Miss Gladys Hill, "Bonbon," and Miss Walker, "Swiss Peasant." At midnight the skaters joined hands and sang lustily "Auld Lang Syne." Skating continued until 12.30 a.m.

East Birmingham.

WITH a capital of £13,000, divided into £1 shares, the Empire Skating Palace, Ltd., has been formed to conduct a rinkery within a populous district of East Birmingham. The total net profit to be earned is estimated at £8,421, whereas the payment of 50 per cent. on capital would involve £6,500, thus leaving ample margin for contingencies.

New Skating Palace for Sparkbrook.

IT will be welcome news to the lovers of rinking in South Birmingham that a magnificent rink is to be built in their midst, and it will be equally welcome news to skaters all over Birmingham to hear that one of the finest rinks in the provinces will be provided at Walford-road, Sparkbrook. The Empire Rink will be the last word in construction and equipment, and will be a pattern of organisation. It is proposed to remedy the defects which have been found in older rinks, and it is expected that the rink will immediately take up the position of the leading rink in the Midlands. The skating area will be 24,320 sq. ft., and will hold 1,500 skaters, while the promenade and gallery will accommodate 3,500 spectators. There will be a secret-jointed hard maple floor, no pillars, separate cloak and skate room, refreshment room, billiard room with three tables, a band of ten performers, and the best ball-bearing skates. There will be a separate rink for learners, popular prices, and the rink is only a penny stage from the city. The prospectus of the company has just been issued, and shows that the capital proposed is the extremely moderate one of £13,000, offered in £1 shares at par.

Lady Havelock Allan to Present Prizes.

ON the 12th inst a carnival will be held at Olympia, Bishop Auckland. The management are decorating the rink for the occasion. Lady Havelock Allan has been asked to award the prizes.

New Year's Eve at Clacton.

THE Clacton-on-Sea Rink is being patronised by large numbers of skaters and spectators. The floor is crowded at each session, and Mr. Wooldridge is kept very busy instructing. Excellent music is supplied by an "Orchestrion" and a continuous show of animated pictures proceeds simultaneously with the skating. The New Year's Eve carnival was a great success, the fun lasting until well into New Year's morning.

Moonlight Carnival at Dudley.

WHAT the management claim to be the finest carnival ever held in the provinces took place at the Trindle-road Rink on New Year's Eve, in the form of a Fancy Dress Moonlight Carnival and New Year's Eve Confetti Fête. Just before twelve all the skaters clasped hands, forming one huge circle. Suddenly the rink was plunged in darkness, just one faint light being thrown on the clock; as the minute finger touched the midnight hour twelve sonorous notes boomed out, proclaiming the passing of the old year. Gradually the darkness lifted as the limelights got to work, and the skaters sang "Auld Lang Syne." A confetti battle took place, lasting until one o'clock. The prizes were presented by Miss Dorothy Ward, the principal boy from the Prince of Wales pantomime, Birmingham, who motored over after her performance to perform this ceremony.

Hae their Doots.

THE Town Council of Dunoon, the popular Clyde resort, met recently to discuss a scheme for a rink in the Castle Gardens, to be run by the Council in connection with their popular concerts. A specification was submitted for a rink to accommodate 400 skaters and 500 spectators, to cost £2,600. No decision was arrived at, as several councillors thought the popularity of roller-skating might decline before the outlay had been recovered. In the meantime, statistics are to be collected, showing the results of other West of Scotland rinks.

Fancy Dress Carnival at Eastbourne.

ROLLER skaters at Eastbourne had the novel experience of ushering in the New Year on the rink. The management of the Devonshire Park arranged a carnival masque, which, announced to commence at 9.30, continued until the early hours of the morning. Both as regarded the number of skaters and spectators, the event proved highly popular, while the fancy dress costumes were exceedingly good. There were many of artistic design, and a great number of a humorous description. A capital programme had been arranged, including a half-mile handicap, which had a very exciting finish, and resulted in a win for C. Arnold, B. Cooper being second, and F. Rawlings third. Among the other items were the usual fancy dress competition, a thread-needle race, an excellent exhibition of fancy and figure skating by Prof. John F. Davidson, an egg-and-spoon race for ladies, and a hand polo match between teams representing Devonshire Park and St. Peter's. At midnight the skaters unmasked and exchanged the usual New Year compliments.

Billy Frames as Skate Judge.

THE fancy dress Christmas carnival held at the Zoo Skating Rink, Glasgow, on Wednesday evening of last week must be set down as having been an unqualified success. The number of spectators and competitors were alike gratifying, the former reaching almost 1,000, while the latter would probably total 200. The following were the judges:—Mrs. Humphrys, Theatre Royal, Glasgow; Mrs. J. B. Preston; Mr. W. F. Frame, the well-known Scottish comedian; Mr. John Clyde, the famous modern Rob Roy; Mr. "Colin McGregor"; and Mr. A. D. McFarlane, husband of Miss Frances Letty. During the evening the skaters paraded, and after the grand march past the judges awarded the prizes as follows:—

BEST costume representing Tit-Bits:—Lady's prize, Miss Paton; gentleman's prize, Mr. Tom Smith. Most humorous costume:—(1) Mr. Jack Brown (Mug's Alley); (2) Mr. William Gilchrist (sweep). Prettiest costume:—Miss Belle Gallacher (baby). Best Father Christmas costume:—Mr. Jack Findlay. Best costume representing Christmas:—Miss Madge Mossman (Christmas Cracker). Best costumes representing national dress of any country:—Miss Younger (Egyptian lady) and Mr. McIntosh (King James). Best costumes representing Glasgow pantomime favourites:—Miss Ina Robin (Happy Fanny Fields) and Mr. J. Murray (Harry Tate in Fishing). Prettiest costumes worn by children under 14 years:—(1) Master Gordon Aitken (Santa Claus); (2) Miss Madge Dewar (Dutch girl). The prizes were presented by Mrs. Bostock (wife of Councillor Bostock, proprietor of the rink). The carnival terminated with a confetti battle, after which the company sang "Auld Lang Syne."

Great Yarmouth Winter Gardens.

GREAT YARMOUTH, with its 52,000 population, has under consideration a scheme to lay a rock maple floor in the Winter Gardens for the use of roller skaters. The Corporation was one of the first bodies in the Eastern Counties to encourage this popular sport. Now the Piers Committee have decided to appeal to the Council for the necessary powers to cover the present Jarrah block floor with rock maple. The building is an exceedingly spacious one, having a floor space of 150ft. by 50ft. On entering one feels that sense of freedom so distinguished from the cramped, depressing atmosphere of some rinks. The whole of the roof space is festooned with a growth of creepers.

Care of "THE ERA."

RICHARDSON SKATES are the BEST in the WORLD.

They have held ALL WORLD'S RECORDS for twenty-four years, and every event of importance during the past few years, either fast or fancy has been won on RICHARDSON SKATES, including Harley Davidson's victory at Olympia Rink, London, February 26th, 1909.

STATEMENTS WHICH CANNOT BE DISPUTED:

The Richardson Ball Bearing Skate Co. positively equipped 80 per cent. of the Rinks operating in America. Sixty per cent. of the Rinks in this country operated by independent rink proprietors are equipped with Richardson Ball Bearing Skates.

Richardson Skates are the universal choice of, and used by, practically all the leading instructors, unless employed in rinks operated by other skate manufacturers. The Richardson is the most perfectly constructed Skate on the market. The front truck is under the ball of the foot, and the rear truck practically under the heel, which allows the skater to be over his work. This principle is acknowledged to be the best by the leading skaters of the world. Rear trucks extending back of heel only act as a leverage when skaters lose their balance.

The Richardson Ball Bearing Skate Factory have equipped more Independent Rinks than all other manufacturers combined.

The repairs of Richardson Skates are 50 per cent. less than those of any other make, and the simplicity of construction makes it an easy matter to effect repairs.

Manufacturers: Richardson Ball Bearing Skate Co., Chicago, U.S.A.

Sole Distributing Agents for Europe: J. C. PLIMPTON & CO., Plimpton's Buildings, 116, Old Hall Street, Liverpool; 38 and 40, Curtain Road, London, E.C.

Tender forms can be obtained from Mr. J. W. Cockrill, surveyor, Town Hall, Great Yarmouth.

Pigs, Ducks, and Turkeys as Prizes.

THE management of the Royal Concert Hall, Hastings, organised a grand farmyard carnival on skates on Wednesday last, offering valuable prizes of live pigs, ducks, fowls, turkeys, geese, &c., the conditions being that the lady or gentleman competitor must dress as a farmer, ploughman, or farmer's wife, dairymaid, and so on. The event proved a very great success.

Festivities at Hove.

A MASKED costume carnival was held on Thursday evening at the Selborne-road, Hove, rink. The second, for children in fancy dress, will take place on the afternoon of Wednesday, Jan. 12.

Hull's Skating Rinks.

A FINE maple floor, good skates (the Samuel Winslow), excellent music, and good company are to be found at the American Roller Skating Rink in Beverley-road. Business has been very brisk at the Newington Rink during the holiday season. The floor and band are at their best, whilst the skaters are rapidly approaching proficiency. Next Tuesday a masked fancy dress carnival is being held. An average of 150 skaters is to be found on the floor at the East Park Rink every evening.

New Year at Ipswich.

SOME 220 skaters took part in the New Year's Eve carnival at the Ipswich Palace Rink. The grand parade was a great success. Engineered by Mr. Fisk, the skaters formed into couples, quartettes, and couples again, deploying all round the rink to the gratification of the large gathering of spectators. Following on this came the waltz competition, the judging of teams—always one of the prettiest features of carnivals at the Palace—and the judging of costumes, couples, &c. The utmost ingenuity was shown by some of the competitors. An immense representation of a Michelin tyre advertisement (Tyred Tim) was one of the chief features, while a Jack-in-the-Box arrangement had good points. The youngsters fell in love with a massive Teddy Bear, and needless to say topical ideas, such as that of cartoons of the General Election, Father Christmas, &c., were much in evidence.

Merrymaking in Kirkcaldy.

A MOST enjoyable evening was inaugurated for patrons of this rink by manager James Hunter, whose name is now synonymous with enterprise in local rinking circles. Games and sports of all sorts were participated in by old and young, and the advent of 1910 was hailed amid an animated scene of rinking merrymaking. A grand fancy-dress carnival, too, was held here, at the Palace, on Friday, and was well attended. A feature of the turnout was the varied forms of fancy attire, which received fitting reward by the management. A battle of confetti at midnight was most pleasing to watch. Mr. James Grant is manager here.

Merry New Year's Gatherings.

THE old year was "rinked out" and the new year "rinked in" at Chapeltown and Roundhay, Leeds. At Chapeltown, just before midnight, 500 skaters formed a ring on the skating floor, and joining hands, sang "Auld Lang Syne." On the stroke of midnight Tschaikowsky's "1812" overture was given, and afterwards skating was renewed. At the Olympia Rink, Roundhay, a fancy dress and masquerade carnival took place. The rink was beautifully decorated. The prize-winners were:—Best Costume.—Ladies: 1, Miss Leslie Kirkby (Wincarnis); 2, Mrs. Jackson (Fashion for All); 3, Mrs. Appleyard (Olympia Rink). Gentlemen: 1, Mr. Ives (Directoire); 2, Mr. Andrew Angel (The Turk); 3, Mr. D. V. Allen (Crusader) Most Original Costume.—Ladies: 1, Mrs. Woodhouse (Court Dress); 2, Miss Swinden (Aviation); 3, Mrs. Jackson (Beefeater). Gentlemen: 1, Mr Sugden (Bedouin Chief); 2, Mr. T. Appleyard (John Bull); 3, Mr. G. Hargreaves (Good-night) Comic Costumes.—Ladies: 1, Mrs. Smithson (Mrs Brown's "At Home" Day); 2, Mrs. Schofield (Old Woman who Lived in a Shoe); 3, Miss Powell (Folly). Gentlemen: 1, Mr. Symonds and Mr Jackson (Heavenly Twins); 2, Mr. Stanley Parker (Clown); 3, Mr. Bearup (Monkey Brand).

Big Business at Leicester.

THE craze at Leicester for rinking reached its zenith during Christmas, the Boulevard, the Empress, and the Belgrave rinks being crowded both at the morning, afternoon, and evening sessions At all the rinks the enterprising managements put forward special attractions.

Littlehampton now in Line.

A SYNDICATE has been formed at Littlehampton, Sussex, to build a skating rink and public hall, and will be provided in due time with every accommodation for theatrical productions. The hall is to be 120ft. long by 45ft. wide, with ample dressing-rooms and every convenience. Messrs. J. Linfield and Sons, Littlehampton, are the builders, and the secretarial duties will be carried out (pro tem) by Mr. T. Crunden, 9, Beach-road, Littlehampton. The building is now in course of erection, and will be ready for the Easter holidays. This will provide a long-felt want for the town and neighbourhood.

A Look Round Liverpool.

ROLLER skating is being carried on in the Mersey city with great success. At the Tournament Hall, Edge-lane, crowds attend the three daily sessions, the floor being kept in capital condition. The Premier Rink, Renshaw-street, a fine and enormous place, opened only a few weeks ago, and capable of holding 1,500 skaters, is going ahead like wildfire, prizes being given on special occasions. The speed races at the big Albert Hall building, in Pudsey-street, are a novel draw, bringing plenty of patronage; and the Bootle rink is being visited by large numbers of residents of the north end.

Rita and Her Teddy Bear.

THE Premier Rink, Luton, was opened last August, and still continues to draw large crowds. Last week the rink was full each evening. Rita and her Teddy Bear caused much amusement on Friday evening last. The graceful skating of this young couple was much admired.

The Rexos.

THIS indefatigable skating couple journey to Manchester next week, where they will open at the Ardwick Empire.

Mansfield's Gold Medal.

SKATING has taken on here in no half-hearted manner, session after session seeing the rink conveniently crowded. The management, represented by Mr. Shearman, has given a gold medal, to be raced for by competitors within a five-miles radius of Mansfield. Prof. Chinn gives exhibitions of fancy skating daily.

Chilton-Heyes Sisters.

THE wonderful exhibitions by the Chilton-Heyes Sisters at Montrose have provided not only entertaining but instructive programmes, and so successful has their visit been that Mr. Bruce London arranged for a return visit.

Old Infirmary as Skating Rink.

THE Central Skating Rink, Old Infirmary, Scotswood-road, Newcastle, was formally opened for beginners on New Year's Eve by Mr. Colin Veitch, of Newcastle United. Mr. Veitch referred to the conversion of the old building to a place of entertainment and healthy recreation, and said he was greatly in favour of roller skating, and wished every success to the rink.

The Empress, Nottingham.

THE Empress Rink has long established itself to be Nottingham's premier rink, and it still continues far and away to hold that position. The attendances are a long way in excess of any competitor, and New Year's Eve was no exception to the rule. The special attraction was a one mile race between C. Fell (cyclist) and T. Slater (skater), which the skater won with ease, being awarded a gold medal. A grand fancy dress carnival took place on Thursday last.

First Pentre Carnival.

THE first carnival proved a huge success, drawing both skaters and sightseers from all directions. Many of the costumes were very fine, and reflected great credit on the patrons. One of the best was the "Black Cat" of Mr. Horner, advertising the cigarettes of that name. The Diamond Carnival was voted splendid, and resulted in the "Sandwich Man" and the "Maori Maid" winning the prizes.

Father Time and the Fairy.

THE first grand fancy dress carnival was held at the Victoria Rink, Salisbury, on Friday last, and proved a great success, being one of the most brilliant spectacles seen here for a long time. Every seat had been taken, and standing room only was available. The costumes were most original, and two ladies, representing "Superstition" and "The General Election," secured handsome prizes. A fine display was made by the grand march past, and great amusement was afforded by the musical chairs. At twelve o'clock a car enveloped in a dark covering was drawn across the floor by "Father Time," and as the last stroke of twelve had sounded the covering was removed and a dainty fairy was seen standing in a silver-coloured car, representing "The New Year." A battle of confetti brought a successful and enjoyable evening to a close.

Rinking in Sheffield.

THE pastime of roller skating is at the height of its popularity in Sheffield just now, and the attendances at all the rinks are large. At the American Rink, in Shoreham-street, there was recently a ladies' night, and ladies ruled the rink. A novel feature is to be introduced at this establishment shortly. On Monday, Jan. 24, championship races are being arranged for boys and girls who use the road skates which are to be seen in such great numbers. This should prove very attractive. Professor J. Gentil, the Brazilian champion, has been fulfilling an engagement at the Olympia Rink, and his skating feats are proving very attractive. At the Empire Rink, near Abbeydale-road, Little Doris's displays attract a good deal of attention, and are really remarkable exhibitions of skill.

Where Sheffield Children Rink.

SANTA CLAUS evidently left many roller skates in the stockings of the children of Sheffield judging from the number who are found converting the asplated playgrounds into open-air rinks. There is now an open space in Headmill-road, Sheffield, this week devoted to roller rinking.

Council and Skating Rink.

SPENNYMOOR'S new skating rink was the subject of discussion at the local Council meeting last week. It was stated that the rink proprietors had persisted in erecting the building before the plans were passed, and that the erection was contrary to the Council's by-laws. The Council decided by resolution to take legal proceedings against the company.

Topsy Turvy Night at Stourbridge.

ON Thursday evening the manager of the rink (Mr. H. J. Wharton) organised a very successful Topsy Turvy night. The floor manager was Miss Blenkarne, and the instructors (!) were Mrs. Banks, Mrs. Calder Moore, Mrs. H E. Haskew, Miss Chappell, Miss E. Chapman, Miss A. Chambers, and Mrs. Wooldridge. Much fun was caused by the menkind falling frequently, and having to be assisted by the instructors (!). The competitions were freely patronised, and caused much amusement. Altogether, a most enjoyable evening was spent, and reflects great credit on the manager.

Premier Rink, Sutton-on-Sea.

THE above rink held its first carnival on Tuesday last, when the management presented for competition some handsome and valuable prizes. During the evening W. Hurst showed all present what fancy figure and trick skating can be accomplished on wheels. The management of the affair was carried out by Mr. W. H. Seager, the district-manager of the company.

West Hartlepool Pavilion Rink.

THE carnival held on New Year's Eve at this rink was a huge success. Many of the costumes were novel and striking, particularly one representing "Ruination" (women, wine, and cards) and one of "The World on Wheels" (Mercury carrying the globe). Commander Peary was there, looking quite at home. A novelty introduced on this occasion was a class for representations of celebrated actors and actresses in some popular character, and in this class Mr. J. W. Roderick cleverly impersonated our old friend W. H. Brougham as the Messenger from Mars, for which he was awarded first prize; whilst Mrs. Peake secured the ladies' prize for a representation of Miss Lily Elsie as Sonia in The Merry Widow.

Queen's Rink, West Hartlepool.

MONDAY night was the occasion of the season here, when the first fancy costume carnival was held. There were many competitors and over 3,000 spectators, and all seemed to thoroughly enjoy themselves. Of costumes there was a great variety, many of them being quite original. Of the ladies, a billiard table was a novel idea, and for this Mrs. Peake was awarded first prize in the original class. Others were "Merry Widow" (Miss Hogg), "Topsy" (Miss Turnbull); advertisement, "Hixopad" (Mrs. Alex Hirst). The gentlemen prize winners were: Handsome, "Comet" (Mr. Broderick); original, "Diver" (Mr. F. Lund); burlesque, "Scotchman" (Mr. Straughan); and advertisement, "Spratt's Biscuits" (Mr. R. P. Blacklin). The prize for the best couple was awarded to "Bear and keeper" (Messrs. Sheldrake and Rush). A gymkhana and a Cinderella is announced for later on in the week.

Weston-super-Mare.

A GRAND fancy dress masquerade carnival was held on New Year's Eve at the Victoria Skating Rink, Weston-super-Mare. The competition was very keen, and Mr. Stanley, the proprietor, awarded some very handsome prizes. The open event was very easily won by Miss Byrne Jones, a professional lady skater.

Jessie Darling on the Continent.

THE New York Herald has fallen in love with Jessie Darling. Says the Herald:—"Jessie is the finest rink skater in the world. She is at the Hippodrome. Her début was a triumph. Jessie Darling on skates surpasses in grace and audacity the best terpsichorean artists. The dangerous 'fire dance' is a most thrilling performance. Unfortunately, Jessie Darling can only remain a week in Paris." Miss Darling writes us that she opened this week at Berlin, and next week will be at Hamburg. Happy New Year, Jessie!

IT was unfortunate that Cull Pitt should be forced to "lay off" with a cold for a few days just as he had perfected the part of Abanazar in the Alexandra Theatre pantomime, Birmingham. He has, however, shaken off the cold, and is playing his part with undoubted success. Mr. Harry Cooke, the stage-manager, deputised for Cull Pitt.

MR. HARRY LAUDER, in New York, is repeating his former success, and going bigger than ever if that were possible.

AT the Empire Music Hall, Wrexham, the artists at the top of the bill this week are Agnese and Arthur Lynch, who are a very popular turn with their American picture songs. The other attractions include Wayne and Lovell, patter comedians, in a novel musical act; Lucy Lynd, vocalist; and the Hamiltons, in their refined vocal scena. The pictures fully maintain their popularity.

ALI COGIA, Arabian magician, is the chief turn at the Ellesmere Port Hippodrome and Picture Palace. Bert Everard as a light comedian is enjoyed; Lillie Linton is well received as a comedienne; Douglas and Clark are heard to advantage in their songs and patter; and a comedian and dancer with a refreshing style is D. J. Pedley. The animated pictures are interesting.

MISS ELLA and her lions are paying their first visit to Scottie's Hippodrome, Hoyland, this week. The animals are well trained, and went through their performance on Monday night without a hitch. The tableau at the finale, showing Miss Ella as Britannia, is very pretty. The Vemians, in living statutary, are smart and refined; Phil Burt, comedian, Belsey and Hughes, Laffan B. Jolly, and Miss Pattie Burton are also in the bill, which includes pictures.

MR. SCOTT ALEXANDER (Scottie) entertained, in Scottie's Hippodrome, Hoyland, on New Year's Day, about 500 poor children of the district to a good breakfast, which was followed by an entertainment. He also made a present to all the old people of the district.

MR. RYDER DAVIS writes that he and his wife have held the names of "Ward and Davis" since 1897. But this last year or so there has cropped up another firm with the same names. Everybody in the profession, he asserts, knows that he and his wife are the first with this name. It is only fair that this should be known, as on two occasions at least confusion and loss of engagements have resulted.

A PRETTY little girl carrying a large Teddy Bear attended before Mr. Paul Taylor on Monday at Marylebone, and application was made on her behalf for a licence to enable her to take part in a variety entertainment at the Metropolitan. "But I cannot take these applications now," said the magistrate. "They must be made at the Children's Court at Clerkenwell." A similar application made to Mr. Curtis Bennett at Bow-street had been refused on the ground that the Court had no jurisdiction now that the Children Act had come into operation; and he (Mr. Paul Taylor) proposed to follow Mr. Curtis Bennett's example. A police officer explained that the child was to appear at the theatre that night, and the Children's Court does not sit until Tuesday afternoon. Mr. Paul Taylor replied he had nothing to do with that. He had no jurisdiction.

AT the Palace Theatre the really beautiful new series of life-motion studies of flowers and leafage diversified by the action of light, which Mr. Alfred Butt (with the connivance of Mr. Charles Urban) is including in "Kinemacolor," may be taken as the crowning-point of Bioscopics in Nature's tints, since they are the identical pictures that converted America's doubts into enthusiastic endorsement three weeks ago, and they demonstrate more conclusively than any previous specimens the complete solution of many photographic problems—especially with regard to the colours, blue and violet. The subjects, rich in stereoscopic effects, illustrate the intricate beauties of carnations, chrysanthemums, roses, lilies, nasturtiums, pink heath, cornflowers, gladioli, pansies, and dahlias, and they are being shown for the first time in Europe exclusively at the Palace.

ON behalf of the management of the Coliseum, an application was made at Bow-street on Tuesday for licences for the appearance of Miss Elise Craven and Master Bert Clerc. Miss Craven, he said, had been previously licensed at that Court, and at Marlborough-street also, for Sir Herbert Beerbohm Tree's production of Pinkie and the Fairies. The children appeared in a play with Mr. Cyril Maude, and the application was for an eleven o'clock licence for four weeks from Monday, although it was not thought they would be required until that hour. Sir Albert de Rutzen granted the application.
